Mattresses for camping are much thinner than the house type, generally about two inches thick and filled with cotton or silk floss. A mattress mus the used with the spring tpye bed and is also a welcome addition to a cot or sleeping bag. The trailers usually come equipped with both springs and mattresses.

The big point in the comfort of any bed used in the outdoors is the covering. Warm woolen blankets are a necessity—and plenty of them. While the summer days are hot—the nights outside can be uncomfortably cold owing to fog and dampness. If the sleeper is cold—no matter how wonderful his bed may be, he will suffer agony and his trip be spoiled.

IF

After seeing a business man light a cigar and flip the match thoughtlessly into a corner of his office near a waste basket. a visitor wrote the following paraphrase of one of Kipling's best known poems:—

'If you can toss a match into a clearing
And never give a thought to put it out,
Or drop your cigarette butt without fearing,
That flames may kindle in the leaves about,
If you can knock the ashes from your brier,
Without a glance to see where they may fall,
And later find the forest all afire,
Where you have passed—with no one near to call;
If you drive your auto through the working,
And cast your stogie stub into the slash,
Unmindful of the danger therein lurking,
Or homes of happiness that you may smash;
If you can leave your campfire while 'tis glowing,
No thought of industries that it may blight.
Or of the billion saplings in the growing,
Turned into charcoal ere the coming night,
If you can start a fire beneath a brush pile
When the wind is roaring like a distant gun—
You surely should be jailed without a trial
And labelled as lunatic, my son."

BASKET HAD BEEN CUT FROM GAS BAG.

After word was flashed by a passing steamer that a gas bag had been seen 25 miles out of Port Stanley, Ont., Canada. the tug Frank H. Stanley and the seaplane Nina, owned by the Aeromarine Aairways Company, started for the location.

They found the bag of the lost U. S. navy balloon A-6698 in which Lieutenants Roth and Null started as the navy entrant in the Indianapolis balloon race on July 4. Later searchers found bodies believed to be those of the missing men.

With the bag was found clothing of the balloonists, an American flag. a log book and some food. Photo shows the crew of the tug hauling the bag aboard. It is the first time a tug and a seaplane recovered a wrecked balloon. Photo was taken from the seaplane.

PUBLIC HOLIDAY WHEN PEACE TREATY SIGNED

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 20.—(Canadian Press). — The Turkish Commissary of the Interior has instructed the newly elected deputies to hasten to Angora, the capital, so as to permit convocation of that National Assembly without loss of time. July 24, the date set for signature of the peace treaty, will be celebrated as a public holiday.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

It is not necessary, when residing on a street or when directing some visitor to a street, that a citizen should know where and how the name originated, but this information is interesting.

Most streets are named in honor of prominent men in the development of the city or country, although often the history attaching to them is forgotten and the name develops into simply a designation of a particular place, handy for reference.

Peterboro, which took its name from Peter Robinson who directed the settlement of the district in 1825, abounds in names which link it with the great men of the past. At least ten Governor General of Canada have given names to the city's streets—Aberdeen, Aylmer, Dalhousie, Dufferin, Elgin, Sherbrooke, Hunter, Murray, Stanley and Lansdowne. These distinguished men were: Earl of Aberdeen, 1893; Lord Aylmer, 1830; Lord Dalhousie, 1820; Earl of Dufferin, 1872; Earl of Elgin; Sir John C. Sherbrooke, 1816; P. Hunter, 1799; General J. Murray, 1764; Lord Stanley and the Marquis of Lansdowne, 1883.

Simcoe street is named in honor of Colonel Simcoe, Governor of Upper Canada in 1792. Bethune street commemorates James Grey Bethune, a merchant of the district. "Bonaccord" is the motto of Aberdeen, and was chosen as a street name by Rev. J. M. Roger, first minister of St. Paul's first Presbyterian minister in the district, and a native of Aberdeen, Scotland.

Edward VII Remembered.

Albert street should remind citizens of Edward the Peacemaker, who was Prince Albert; Brock street recalls the great General Sir Isaac Brock; Gladstone avenue is so named in memory of England's Grand Old Man—Right Honorable W. E. Gladstone.

Monarchs, and the streets named in their honor, are: Charlotte street, Queen Charlotte; George street, King George; Louis street, Emperor Louis Napoleon III.

Bolivar street recalls a South American dictator of that name and Brown street took its name from a Waterloo veteran, Colonel Brown.

Many local celebrities are immortalized in Peterboro's street names, among them being Edmund Chamberlain, a town councillor; Charles Burnham; Samuel Dickson, a lumberman; D. W. Dumble, retired Police Magistrate; Rev. Mark Burnham, (Mark street); Mrs. A. E. Nixon, nee Miss Manning, (Manning street) and Robert Romaine, publisher of the Review.

Rubidge street takes its name from Captain Charles Rubidge, R.N.; and Douro street received its title from the Marquis of Douro.

Topical names are also common, and are informative as to the early situation and plan of the city. Townsend street, of course, was the first southern boundary of the town, over which the city has swept with passing years. Cricket Place is the site of the cricket ground, not many years closed, where the old country game was enthusiastically played.

Rink street led to the old skating rink, and Kirk street receives its name from St. Andrew's Kirk.

Other topical names are Cedar, Crescent, Centre, Concession, Division, Elm, Lake, Lock and Water, all of which suggest some peculiarity on the location at the time of construction, or mark a particular location in the town as it was then laid out.

Most Urgent Wants

There's a world of interest in the Want Ads. They reflect the urgent desires of various businesses, households and individuals.

The Wants tell what is most needed. If the cook has left, if a worker is needed in the office or factory, if an article of value is lost or found, if there is urgent necessity to sell a piece of property, secure tenants, roomers or boarders—all such conditions are expressed and met in the Want Columns.

The Wants are close to the heart interests of hte people. It is interesting to watch them carefully.

The British Labor Party

By P. M. SARL

LONDON, July 20—(United Press)—Possessing the largest Parliamentary representation the party has ever had, recognized as the official opposition at Westminster, and spoken of as the possible next government. the British Labor Party is yet much worse off today than it has been for many years—worse off, that is, from the point of view or organization, finances and membership.

Arthur Henderson, M. P., secretary and vice-chairman of the party, states that during the last two and a half years trade union membership has fallen from six and a half million to something just under five million, and accumulated funds which stood at sixteen million pounds have been exhausted by the heavy drain of unemployed payments, strikes, etc., as well as the reduction in membership subscriptions.

During the war the government readily met labor's demands about the employment exclusively of unionists reduction in membership subscriptions, and the trade union membership naturally jumped tremendously, exceeding the six and a half million mark. After the war many ex-unionists, released from the army, did not rejoin their old unions, while many new unionists fell away with the introduction once more of "free" labor.

Disastrous Strikes

Then the disastrous miners, railway and other strikes caused many secessions and much sectional strife. Funds became exhausted and disgruntled members resigned from the unions. Many new sectional unions were formed, but many of the seceders did not join any organized labor body. The big labor representation in the House of Commons was elected by a score or more diverse branches of the labor movement and does not necessarily represent trade union labor.

Far-seeing labor leaders recognize that the present Parliamentary strength is largely unstable and transient and unless the organization can be stabilized, the party will suffer many reverses at the next election, or whenever the conservatives and liberals can settle their own party differences. Accordingly a big "back to the union" campaign is being organized, with a view to drawing all members of the "working-class" into the unions.

Statisticians calculate that there are some fourteen million "workers" in Britain, and the idea is to draw them all into the one great solid movement.

The subject of forming "One Big Union" has naturally been re-introduced, and it is admitted that logically this must be the obvious eventual aim of the trade union movement, but the idea is not at present looked on very favorably in this country.

Biggest Union Object

The strongest opponents of the "one big union" scheme are the biggest and most highly organized unions, such as the railwaymens, engineers, miners and other technical crafts, which object to using their funds—usually very large—and organization for the benefit of the poorer and looser federations in labor disputes which do not appeal to the "aristocracy of labor."

Even the "aristocracy of labor" is not always unanimous and certainly cannot always count on the support of the "unskilled" trades. Railwaymen, engineers and miners secured most favorable terms during the war, and this was the cause of the collapse of the great projected railwaymen's and transport-workers' strike in support of the miners two years ago. The unskilled rank and file stood aside because they could see no benefit to themselves.

So far the "Back to the Unions" campaign has not been strikingly successful, thanks to the misguided zeal of several sections of the movement. The South Wales Miners Federation called a strike to force all non-federation miners back into the ranks, but it was a fiasco.

The national union of teachers has done a great deal of harm to the "one big union" idea by its arbitrary and generally unsuccessful attempt to hold up the education authorities.

The "back to the union" slogan is to be peaceful persuasion, for very few of the unions can today afford to resort to strikes to enforce their demands.

WHAT BUILDS BUSINESS

Business competition is coming back into the world with a vengeance, and the merchant, manufacturer or banker who expects to get ahead from now on must fight his way upward, declared George Woodruff, Chicago banker, in an address before the South Dakota Bankers' Association.

Kingston business men will profit by reading what this clever banker and business man had to say.

Advertising, Mr. Woodruff asserted, is the most effective of all weapons in the fight for business and among the various kinds of advertising, newspaper advertising is unquestionably the "big Bertha" of them all.

"First, you must secure interest," he continued, "Your advertisement must be so well laid out, so attractively worded, so compelling in appearance, it will secure the reader's interest.

"Secondly, you must create in the mind of your prospect the desire to patronize your bank and make use of the service it offers. You must show how and why it is advisable for the reader's viewpoint to save money.

"Granting that your advertisement has aroused interest and created desire, if it is to obtain maximum results, it must breathe and inspire enthusiasm over saving money, over paying bills by check or protecting their valuables by a safety deposit box that they will be ready to put their desire into action. Before your advertisement may be considered a success it must compel action."

Furthermore, the same rule applies as in all other fields of endeavor. Don't advertise spasmodically. Regularity and continuity of purpose in advertising pays the highest dividends.

EXPECT TO REACH VERDICT TOMORROW

Addresses to Jury in Delorme Trial Continuing This Afternoon.

MONTREAL. July 20.—(Canadian Press).—Addresses to the jury in the case of Rev. Adelard Delorme, who for the past five weeks has been standing trial on the charge of murdering his half-brother, Raoul, on January 6, 1922, were continued to-day.

This morning the second address from defence counsel was made by C. H. Cahan, K.C., who spoke in English. Yesterday, the French address on behalf of the defence was made by Alleyn Taschereau, K.C.,

The speech of Crown Prosecutor. R. L. Calder, K.C., will be made this afternoon and the charge of Judge Sir Francois Lemiux to-morrow morning. A verdict some time tomorrow afternoon or evening is expected.

Mr. Cahan said at the outset that the Delorme trial was important not only because the life of a man was at stake, but because it had shaken the social structure of this country to its very foundation. He told the jury that it might happen that some of them might be placed in the same position as the accused, and it was for them to mete out the same justie as they would expect themselves.

Mr. Cahan then said. "I have seen a man in the box, accused of murder when I know by actual facts that I could not divulge at the time to be as innocent of the crime as I was. Yet I have seen such a man stand trial and I have seen the judge put on theblack cap and sentence him to be executed. We were able to bring such facts to the attention of the minister of justice that a few years, afterward his innocence was so absolutely apparent, that he was allowed to go free.

Why?

WHY waste time in useless "shopping around" when the advertisements lay before you the choicest wares of every progressive merchant in town.

Why use needless effort in an endless store-to-store quest when the advertisements enable you to make your choice of the finest merchandise without even leaving your home.

Why pay more than you ought when you can stretch your dollar to the elastic limit by taking advantage of the bargains and good buys that are daily advertised in this paper?

Why risk dissatisfaction by buying unknown unbranded goods when you can as ure yourself complete satisfaction by buying an advertised product, backed by the integrity of a man who spends real money to establish his name and to build up public good-will?

Read the advertisements. Buy advertised wares. It is a safe and sound policy bacon hogs. This state of affairs is the main reason why we supply England with such a small part of her bacon requirements .We have just as good types of hogs for the making of first class products but unfortunately not enough care is yet taken by the majority of the producers to eliminate undesirable breeds and start in with the one object in view of giving the packer the type of hog in sufficient quantities to meet successfully the competition of farmers of foreign countries who have realized that the best way to capture trade is to sell a man what he wants. We have a small population here and until such time as our point of consumption reaches that of the supply the future prosperity of the hog industry rests with the raising of a class of animal that when made into a marketable product meets the requirements of the overseas buyers. Our government as well as the packer, is doing its best to impress the producer of this fact that "just pigs" wont do but that a particular type must be raised in larger quantities.

Government Inspection.

Government inspection at the packing house is a service to the consumer that I wish to point out. Most of our packing houses, however, are under government inspection, and those that are, need offer no other guarantee to the consumer that their product is wholesome and clean. An average of around 18 per cent. of hogs killed are affected with disease, and those portions so affected, are destroyed. It often happens that we loose the whole carcass in this manner. Post mortem examination is made on all animals by veterinary surgeons and their vigilance does not end until the product leaves the plant. People should be very careful of what they eat. I think it is reasonable to believe that one of the secrets of health is how one thinks and eats. You should demand, when buying meats, that the government stamp of approval is thereon.

The Hide Business.

Kiwanian Harold Perry represents the Colonial Hide Co., in Peterborough and district. This company has fourteen branches in Canada. Last year the Peterborough plant purchased twenty thousand cow hides, fifteen thousand calf skins, twelve thousand sheep skins and a large quantity of horse hides and wool. The hides are collected all over the country and are trimmed, classified and graded. The passing of the small tanner was brought about by improved machinery and specialization. Mr. Perry gave a general outline of the methods used in tanning and the use to which the various hides are put. One interesting phase in the process of manufacture is that of splitting the hide in one, two or three splits. This is done by machinery.

A vote of thanks to the speakers was moved by Kiwanian Joe Wearing and Kiwanian Harold Lacey.

President J. A. McKone presided at to-day's meeting.

BON FIRE CAUSED ALARM

Shortly after midnight the fire-department was called to a bon fire at the rear of 219 Hunter street. The fire had been left burning when the man, who started it had gone to bed.

Chief George Gimblett points out again that starting rubbish or bon fires without permission, is contrary to a city by-law.

CARD OF THANKS.

The family of the late Miss Kate J. Fowler wish to thank the doctors and nurses of Nicholls Hospital for the attention and kindly treatment given Miss Fowler. They feel that all that loving hands could do was done to relieve the sufferer, and are very grateful to all who in any way helped in the time of their sad bereavement.

TRANSMUTATION.

Midway between the hell of passion and the heaven of peace, is the purgatory of transmutation—not a speculative purgatory beyond the grave, but a real purgatory in the human heart. In its separating and purifying fire the base metal of error is sifted away and only the clarified gold of truth remains.

Along the saintly way toward the divine life, the midway region of transmutation is the country of sacrifice, it is the plain of renunciation. Old passions, old desires, old ambitions and thoughts, are cast away and abandoned, but only to reappear in some more beautiful, more permanent, more eternally satisfying form. As valuable jewels, long guarded and cherished, are tearfully thrown into the melting pot, yet are remoulded into new and more perfect adornments, so the spiritual alchemist, at first loth to part with long cherished thoughts and habits, at last gives them up, to discover a little later, to his joy, that they have come back to him in the form of new faculties, rarer powers and purer joys.—In "From Passion to Peace."

Expect All Pictou Collieries to Be Working Next Week.

NEW GLASGOW, July 20. — (Canadian Press). — Stellarton U. M. W. Local this morning, voted 327 for and 54 against a return to working immediately. The meeting was a prolonged one, and was confined to members of the U. M. W. the only outsiders present being an ex-board member. William Murray, of Thornton, but he did not vote.

Alex. Stewart, of Westville, deposed International Board Member was refused admission to the meeting.

The action of Stellarton U M. W. members means that Thorbourn will probably follow their action and that all collieries of Pictou County will be working at least by the first of the week.

The voting was by secret ballot, and their action in excluding every one from the meeting, except members who had right there means that vote was bona fide.

SANGUINARY FIGHTING FOLLOWS VILLA'S DEATH

CHICUAHUA CITY, Mex., July 20.—(Canadian Press).—When General Francisco Pancho Villa, commander of the rebel armies in Northern Mexico, was shot and killed this morning a battle followed.

More than 100 casualties have occurred in sanguinary fighting which followed the shooting of Villa by Trillo. The latter is said to have become incensed at the former bandit leader and to have fired at him suddenly. The bullets took fatal effect and Villa died almost immediately. Trillo was fired upon by other men near the scene of the shooting, and was killed a few minutes later. Men who had rallied behind Trillo then engaged loyal Villa troops and a general battle occurred within the ranch.

VOL. LIII., No. 17 PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, JULY 21, 1923 PRICE THREE CENTS

TIME GERMANY WAS THINKING OF PAYING UP

Such is One Suggestion Found in British Note, it is Unofficially Reported.

ALLIES GET DRAFTS

LONDON, July 21. — (United Press).—The contents of the British note to Germany were carefully guarded to-day to give France and Belgium tmie to study their drafts of the document and express approval if they wish before the note is delivered in Berlin.

Unofficially it is said that the document is firm in tone and suggests that Germany cease passive resistance and begin to think about paying up but all such forecasts are unauthorized.

A Covering Letter.

Drafts of the note with a covering letter were handed to French, Belgium and American representatives last night, and early reply from the Allies was requested.

The Count De Staulaire, French Ambassador to the court of St. James hurried immediately to Paris to confer with Premier Poincare.

Premier Poincare and his ministers, considering in secret the British note to Germany, already have found several of its propositions inacceptable, according to information from well-informed sources.

This leaked out, despite orders that no indication of the note's contents or France's re-action was to be given the public.

It is said the French Government, will accept the note as basis of discussion. From authoritative sources the United Press, learns that the British note proposed an international commission, to be appointed by those nations expecting reparations to determine Germany's capacity for payment.

This, as well as other points of the note were said to be unacceptable.

TORONTO MEN ON A FISHING TRIP

Will Journey to Jack's Lake in Search of Fish

A party of men well-known in Toronto newspaper and police circles passed through Peterborough yesterday on their way to Jack's Lake on a fishing trip. The party consisted of Athol Gow of the Toronto Daily Star; James Hogarth, of the Toronto Telegram; Inspector of Detectives Guthrie; Detective Sergeant Murray; and Sergeant Wigg of the Peterborugh force, joined the party here.

The party already had some exciting moments, as an axle on the car in which they travelled was broken near Curtis. This necessitated an adjournment to a nearby farm house where the Toronto natives were entertained to an old-fashioned farm dinner of ham and eggs. Mr. Gow was loud in his praise of this back-to- the -farm- movement, saying he had the appetite of five men.

During their stay at the Empress Hotel in Peterborough, several bear stories were told, causing Mr. Hogarth to request a gun for self protection. At a merry meal yesterday, the party was amused by the thought of Mr. Hogarth engaging in a sprint along the road from camp, which he leaves alone on Monday, with his string of fish over shoulder and a 300 pound bear lumbering in the rear. A big bear was shot in the Jack's Lake district a short time ago.

A QUEBEC VILLAGE IS SURROUNDED BY FIRE

ESCALANA, St. Maurice County Quebec, July 21.—(Canadian Press). —This village is completely surrounded by forest fires, and unless rain falls within a few hours, the situation is so menacing, that residents will have to move away. The strong wind from the north is pushing the flames this way and some fires are jumping hundreds of yards a time. Heat has become intolerable and fear is entertained that in addition to losses of properties lives may be lost if the situation does not improve immediately.

THE WEATHER.

Yesterday's high point was 93 in the shade. This was within one degree of the highest figure for this summer, one hot Sunday the latter part of June.—W.P.

JURY'S FINDING DELORME CASE LATE TONIGHT

Verdict Cannot Possibly Be Reached Earlier and May Byen Ee Delayed Till Monday.

THE SUMMINC UP

MONTREAL, July 21.—(Canadian Press).—Trial of Abbe Delorme for alleged murder of his half-brother Raoul, approached one step nearer conclusion this afternoon, when Judge Sir Francois Lemieux, delivered his charge to the jury. His Lordship delivered his French address first and court was then adjourned till three o'clock. The Judge on resumption of the case, repeated his charge in English. The case was expected to go to the jury at around five, standard time. Court officials were dubious that a verdict could be reached to-night.

"I trust same fate has not been reserved for us. In any event, when that arrives we will meet it, having satisfaction of having done our duty. For, gentlemen, Providence has eternal forgiveness, eternal forgiveness for partisans of justice, but same divine Providence has eternal condemnation for prevaricators of justice, and I have lived long enough to be able to tell you, that I have known prevaricators of justice, who suffered themselves, in their children, and for some of whom it touched, in their money. They were prevaricators of justice."

MONTREAL, July 21. (Special.) —The jury in the Delorme case are unlikely to retire before four o'clock this afternoon and their verdict is not expected until late to-night at the earliest.

Two Possibilities.

But two things stand between the Rev. J. A. Delorme knowing whether he will will be found guilty or innocent of the murder of his half-brother Raoul, or an another alternative, being returned to Bordeaux jail to undergo another trial. The first is the charge of Chief Justice Sir Francois Lemieux, the other is the jury's verdict of guilty, innocent or unable to agree.

Forecast Impossible.

This morning when the court reconvened at 11 o'clock, Sir Francois Lemieux began to sum up evidence for the benefit of the jury. No one could forecast how long he would take, especially as he has to do it both in French and English. It does not seem possible that His Lordship would conclude before late in the afternoon if not well into the evening. Close followers of jurisprudence in the province of Qufebec stated that other judges have held themselves in readiness to receive the verdict no matter at what hour it was returned, even if it were on Sunday.

No one knows whether the jury will take a long or a short time to arrive at a decision, but in view of the length of time it has taken to produce evidence and hear addresses to the Jury, it was not thought likely that a verdict will be returned before the court opens on Monday morning.

Points of Law.

There still remains however the possibility that evidence having been produced in such volume and so completely covered in examination and cross-examination, His Lordship would feel that there was nothing left for him to do but to instruct them on points of law.

Sir Francoise Lemieux opened his charge in French and said that the Jury had to consider this question, "Is Adelard Delorme guilty of the murder of his half brother, Raol, on Jan. 6, 1922.

He had pleaded not guilty. Both Crown and defence cases had been thoroughly presented. He thanked both the counsel for the Crown and defence for their courage and for their attitude towards the Court and jury and said that they did great honor to the bar of the Province of Quebec. His Lordship then remarked: "In many quarters there is not the slightest suspicion of how much courage and energy, not to speak of exhaustion are necessary to prepare a big criminal case. Three very eminent men and three remarkable Quebec judges have died of exhaustion following the prosecution of their duty.

NO ORDERS TO CHECK PAPERS IN PETERBORO

No orders have been received in the city regarding the enforcement of the anti-betting information act, so far as could be learned this afternoon. No instructions have been given to hold up American newspapers containing this news, and the book stores have received the usual supply this week, and are selling them as usual.

CHANGE IN SCHEDULE.
COMMENCING TO-DAY, THE 11:30 P.M., SERVICE OF THE "COMET" BUS TO CHEMONG PARK WILL BE DISCONTINUED. OTHER HOURS AS PER SCHEDULE. GORDON MEIN, PROPRIETOR. 2d-17-3065.

Two Nations Under One Flag

For the first time in history British troops marched in an American Independence Day parade, when at Portland, Oregon, recently, British marines from H.M.S. Curlew participated. They are shown here saluting President and Mrs. Harding, who witnessed the history-making event. A special dispensation was granted by the War Department to permit a foreign armed guard to march through an American street. In his speech the president expressed the hope that hereafter representatives of the British navy always would march alongside of American troops in "processions of peace."

U. S. TOURISTS SHUN EUROPE

Many Fear They May Be Caught by the Outbreak of Another War.

LONDON, July 21. — (United Press).—The enormous falling off in American tourist traffic to Europe is shown by the announcement that the Mauretania has been withdrawn from service for a fortnight on her next arrival at Southampton. The suspension of service by this huge liner at the peak of what is usually summer travel is causing much comment

The situation between Germany and France is chiefly responsible for the slackness of transportation. Americans are declared to be remaining home out of an exaggerated fear that travelling in Europe is unsafe and even that they may be caught by the outbreak of another war.

The loss to the European nations runs into millions of pounds for the Americans are good spenders.

WORKERS PARTY MAN WAS ARRESTED TO-DAY

SYDNEY, N.S., July 21.—(Canadian Press.)— John Macdonald, Toronto representative of Workers' Party of Canada, was arrested today at Glace Bay by Provincial Police on a charge of seditious utterances. The information was laid by ex-Mayor A. C. McCormack of Sydney Mines, who alleged that accused, speaking at a recent meeting in that town, said in part: "They come with their damn flag and take you." This was supposed to refer to conscription for army. The arrest was ordered by Attorney General. Macdonald took to Moscow last year District 26's application for admission to the Red Internationale. This application was subsequently quashed by order of John L. Lewis.

FISHING PARTY CLAIMS BIG CATCH IN OTONABEE

A fishing party consisting of George R. Waltenbaugh and G. A. Stevens of Newcastle, Pa.; Alfred Williams and Alfred Davis of Peterborough, claim a catch of 52 bass weighing between two and three pounds each in the Otonabee river at Nassau. One large bass weighed 4 pounds 3 ounces, they say, and an eel, which was a very exciting catch, measured 37 inches long. The latter was caught by G. R. Waltenbaugh.

The party leaves for Rice Lake to-night, where they will spend the week end. On Monday they propose a trip to Orillia.

ENGLAND WON SIXTH ANNUAL TRACK MEET

BAPTISTS GATHER IN STOCKHOLM CONGRESS

STOCKHOLM, July 21.—(United Press).—The third World Congress of Baptist known as the Baptist World Alliance opened here, to-day with several thousand delegates present.

The last meeting of the Baptists World Congress was held in Philadelphia, in 1921, the next was scheduled for Berlin, in the summer of 1916, but this was cancelled because of the war. It as thought for a time that the present meeting would have to be postponed on accoun of developments in the Ruhr.

The Mexican Army After Deliverers

Do Not Appreciate the Speedy Removal of Pancho Villa.

MEXICO CITY, July 21. — United Press).—Federal forces tramped through the hills near Santa Barabra at dawn today, in search of the seven assassins, who shot down Pancho Villa, the Mexican Robin Hood, while he was driving his auto down the street, in a suburb of Parra.

With Villa, the famed outlaw, of Mexico dead the government made every effort to trace his assassins. As daylight broke over eastern crest, troops took up the intensive pursuit.

STRIKE MAY END IN THE EAST

Miners Will Vote on the Issue on Sunday and Monday.

SYDNEY, July 21. —(Canadian Press).—The week end and Monday is expected to decide how the Cape Breton miners will align themselves on the question of International President Lewis' instructions that they return to work.

Caledonia No. 26, at New Waterford, Harbor and Mechanic Local have decided in favor of accepting the international President's edict and other locals will vote to-day, Sunday and Monday.

It is understood that the deposed executive are considering ordering the miners back to work or holding a referendum shortly to decide whether or not the miners should go back to work as a body.

A decision favorable to work in such a vote, would probably keep for the MacLachlan-Livingstone executive their present following and the struggle for supremacy between the deposed and provisional forces would go on while the men worked.

A number of maintenance men offered for work at Collieries No. 2 and 16 to-day.

A collection of 5,000 American stamps valued at $125,000 was recently exhibited in London. It belonged to the United States.

SERVES SELF.

Miss Clara O'Brien of Oklahoma City was deputy district court clerk and as such issued marriage licenses. "I'll have one," said Dale Smith. "The girl?" she inquired. "Make it Clara O'Brien," he pleaded. She did, probably the first lecense clerk ever to serve herself.

FARMERS WORRY OVER WEATHER

Lack of Rain Was Dominant Minor Note in Market Conversations.

Farmers on the market would have swapped their produce this morning for "just a real good" shower of rain.

Their fields are parched and their crops wilting under the blazing sun of the last seven days, and while some of the grain crops are ripening well others, including oats and spring wheat, need moisture immediately and a long cool drink at that.

"Dune" Drumomnd's customers had only one topic of conversation this morning. They represented all parts of the country around Peterborough and the consensus of their reports was the persisting drought as the only and at the same time serious cause of apprehension in their surveys and estimates of the harvest.

A man with a truck load of huckleberries which he had picked in the vicinity of Koshabog Lake up in Methuen Township, and incidentally was selling at 25c a quart or $2 a pail, told the Examiner that the crop was cooking on the bushes.

"The blueberry season is usually good for about six weeks," he said, "but from the present prospects I think it will be all over in two weeks. The weather has been too dry and hot."

Raspberries are also being set back by the lack of rain, according to Mr. A. Stinson, a grower on the gravel road. He had 50 boxes of Cuthberts representing his first picking, which he soon disposed of. Rain over the week end would revive them, he said, but so far the raspberries have not been filling out to suit an exacting producer, anticipating the demands of the public. And in the woods the red berry season is also overdue. Some of them are ripening but the bulk of this harvest will not be ripe until well on into next week.

The Late Pea Crop.

Although the early peas were a failure and in other sections the canneries have secured only a fraction of the pack that is normal for this stage of the season, Bruce Johnston of North Monaghan said that the late peas were abundant. He had two varieties this morning with pods bulging. He sold them at 3 quarts for 25c and had far more in his field than he expected to sell.

"They look as if they were running about 5 bushels to the acre," Mr. Johnston remarked.

Small Potatoes Yet.

New potatoes averaged 9c a peck. They were generally of small size, but this crop has also been suffering for want of meisture.

Beans at 10c a quart, carrots and beets at 5c a bunch and two for 15c, according to size, lettuce, onions and other garden products sold at the usual prices. Black currants weer quoted at two boxes for 55c.

Upstairs eggs brought from 25 to 27c and butter ranged from 35c to 40c, and was inclined to spread itself and run away with or from the heat. The liveliest business seemed to hive around an ice cream stand.

SYDNEY, N.S., July 21.—(Canadian Press).—Inverness town is menaced by a big fire. Telephone messages state the town hall and Grand Central Hotel have already been destroyed.

Buck Dies Charging Motor to Save Doe

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 21.—J. H. Grant of Collinsville driving toward Hartford to-day had just reached a turn in the road when a young doe dashed onto the road. Bewildered, it stood directly in the path of the machine. Mr Grant was trying to avoid hitting the animal when suddenly the automobile was pushed around by a terrific jolt in the rear, accompanied by a loud crash and a heavy, queer sounding groan. The doe by this time had recovered from its fright, and, crossing the road, had disappeared into the woods. Mr. Grant found a buck deer with broken antlers lying dead on the ground behind his car.

THE CITIZENS PAYING TAXES

Majority of Them Pay Taxes Like Little Heroes —Three Instalment Plan.

Tax collections in the city are equally good with other years and are a little better than last year Tax Collector W. J. Green said to-day This is the second year that three installments have been allowed in the city, and there is not much room for comparison.

Mr. Green said that about 40 per cent of the full amount of taxes has been paid in the first installment. This installment only called for 33 1-3 per cent of the total assessment, and the amount paid indicates that some classes of citizens prefer to pay the entire assessment in one installment.

The fact that more banks are making collections than last year is given as a reason for the improved payments.

Mayor W. H. Taylor expressed himself as being greatly pleased with the success of the new plan. The prompt and full payment of the first installment indicates, he said, that prosperity is returning and that the three payment system of collection has met with the approval of the citizens.

FURNITURE AND HOUSE AWARDED TO ISRAEL PAYNE

Court of Appeal Reverses Judgment in Action for Possession of House and Chattels.

WIN FOR PLAINTIFF

The Court of Appeal has reversed the judgment of the Peterborough County Court in the action of Payne vs. Payne. Chief Justice Meredith announced the finding of the Appelate Court on July 12, allowing the claim of the appellant, Israel Payne, who was represented by Mr. Joseph Wearing, against Mrs. Hester Payne, the respondent, who was represented by Mr. J. A. O'Brien.

The Court awarded Mr. Payne possession of the house and furniture in dispute on Aylmer Street, and dismissed Mrs. Payne's counter-claim with costs.

Judge Huycke had given her $1,500 for alleged breach of contract.

The judgment follows:

This is an appeal by the plaintiff from the judgment of the County Court of the County of Peterborough, dated 20th April, 1923, which was directed to be entered by the Judge of that Court after the trial before him, sitting without a jury, on the 7th day of that month.

The action, as originally framed, was brought to recover possession of a house and lot in the City of Peterborough, and certain household furniture and effects to which the appellant claimed to be entitled under the will of his wife, Isabella. The statement of claim was afterwards amended by claiming, in addition to possession, damages for the wrongful detention of the house and lot and the household furniture and effects, and by adding a claim for a declaration that any agreement made by the appellant to allow the respondent to retain possession "of the said furnished house rent free," was not in writing as required by the Statute of Frauds, and was an improvident act on the part of the appellant, and for rent at the rate of $50 per month from April 4, 1921, until judgment.

The Alleged Agreement.

By the statement of defence it is alleged that pursuant to an agreement between the respondent and the appellant she, at his request, left her residence in California, and gave up a lucrative business, and came to Peterborough:

"Upon the representation of the plaintiff that as long as she and her daughter should live they should be provided for by him with a home and with the necessities of life."

It is also alleged that the appellant also represented to the respondent that he had a life interest in the lands of which he claims possession, and that the respondent and her daughter "were to have the use and enjoyment thereof with the said plaintiff so long as the said defendant should live."

It is also alleged that after residing in other premises for about a year the respondent with her infant daughter, at the appellant's request, moved into the house in question, and that thereupon the appellant "again repeated to the defendant and promised her that as long as the defendant should live she should have the use of the said lands and premises and the household goods, chattels and effects therein contained as a home for herself and her said infant daughter, and the said plaintiff," and that these arrangements were carried out until about the 4th April, 1921, when Mr. Payne voluntarily left the premises and left the respondent and her infant daughter, being influenced to do this by his relatives.

It is also alleged that when the appellant left he again agreed with the respondent "that she should at all times hereafter, and during her natural life, be entitled to use, occupy and enjoy the said lands and premises, goods and effects as her home for herself and her said daughter, who is a grand-daughter of the said plaintiff and the said defendant has pursuant to the said contract continued to reside on the said lands and premises."

It is further alleged that the respondent has for the purposes of maintaining the household and of renovating the premises spent for the benefit of the appellant at least $900.

Mrs. Payne's Counter Claim.

The respondent counter claims for damages for breach of contract, and for money advanced $3,000.

The learned Judge upheld the respondent's claim to the furniture and household effects basing his judgment on the finding that when the appellant left the house he gave the furniture to her.

The testimony of the respondent and her daughter was that the appelant left on the 5th April, 1921, according to the daughter's testimony, the appellant said: "I am going to leave you right here. You can have the house and furniture and do whatever you want with it."

The testimony of the respondent is that the appellant said: "I am going to leave you right here. You can have this house and the furniture and

BOY SCOUTS OF CAMPBELLFORD

Enjoying Their Annual Outing at Percy Boom on Trent River— by Company.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 21. — The Boy Scouts that are organized as part of the work which the members of Christ church are carrying on among the young people of the congregation are enjoying their annual eight day outing at Percy Boom, an ideal spot for the purpose. The members of the troop are fortunate in the fact that they have been trained by a schoolmaster with a long military career, Major J. M. Bygott, who however, has not yet been able on account of his duties here to visit the boys in their summer camp. Jack Free and Hilton Beatty, assistant scoutmasters, are in command of the troop and the boys in camp are as follows: Alden Baker, Staunton Archer, Earle Fox, John Gledhill, Edwin Gledhill, Pat Archer, James Hinds, Howard Peckett, Harry Bennett, Charles Bennett, Ernest Flint, Daniel Flint, Alfred Stocker, Ralph Sperry, William Scott, Floyd, Copperthwaite, James Heppinstall, Eric Douglas, and Garnet Soule.

The troop pitched their tents some distance down the river from the cottages, in the midst of a thick wood, but one night's experience in those surroundings sufficed. Owing to the hot weather there is a plague of mosquitoes, unusual at this advanced season of the year, so that the boys are obliged to come by boat every evening to find respite from the insect pests among the resorters. They return to their own forest fastness every morning, and spend the day in playing baseball, bathing and other pastimes that go with an outing. All enjoy camp life immensely and are showing the benefits of life in the open air. Each boy is required to prepare his own camp fire and to keep his tent and equipment in first class order. Every evening they engage in a game of baseball which is much enjoyed by the resorters at the Boom.

Up to last evening, only one accident had been reported. Earle Fox had one of his fingers broken while playing baseball on Wednesday evening. After his fellow Scouts had practiced first aid upon him, Earle was taken by T. S. Baker, one of the resorters, to Campbellford, where a doctor set his broken finger. He returned to camp and is now going around with his hand in a sling, apparently enjoying himself as well as any one of his companions.

Among the visitors at the Scout camp during the week were Mrs. D. M. Douglas and Dr. E. S. Free, both of whom have sons there. It is expected that a large number of parents and friends of the boys will call on them on Sunday. The camp opened Monday, and will end on Wedesday of ext week.

10-YEAR-OLD BOY KILLED BY TRUCK

Distressing Fatality When He Attempted to Board Moving Vehicle.

LINDSAY, July 21. (Special.) — A distressing fatality occurred on Wednesday at Gamebridge, when Ino Vicars, the ten year old son of Chas. Vicars, C. N. R. section hand, met death by being run over by the cream gathering motor truck of the Eldon (Victoria County) Creamery Association.

The little lad attempted to board the moving truck to have a ride, when he missed his hold and became entangled in the wheel. The driver knew nothing of the affair until hearing the last scream. Mr. P. White of Lindsay picked up the unconscious youth, who died a minute afterwards, his neck having been broken.

The family of which the deceased was a member consists of the parents, and nine children, has been sorely afflicted of late years, one little daughter having become blind after an attack of measles, while the father is just recovering from a long illness.

COUNSEL FOR CROWN SAYS PRIEST WAS THE MURDERER OF RAOUL

Case of the Crown Was Forcibly Outlined By R. L. Calder—Circumstantial Evidence.

CASE OUTLINED.

MONTREAL, JULY 21—(Canadian Press).— R. L. Calder K.C., crown prosecutor began his address to the jury yesterday afternoon in the trial of Rev. Father Delorme charged with the murder of his half-brother, Raoul Delorme.

He pointed out that besides the jury everyone in the case had sacrificed something. In his own case, he appeared before the jury from the very first with a temperature of 102 to 104 and after the trial he was going to undergo an operation. He declared that the burden was on the crown to prove the guilt of the accused and he was there to deliver the truth as he knew it. His view of the crime was that it was "a premeditated, cold-blooded, carefully calculated and hidden murder." His proof as necessarily circumstantial in the circumstances since the murderer would be careful to hide the preparations of his crime the circumstances around the crime and the circumstances after the crime.

He then proceeded to discuss the various kinds of proof that could be brought. First, confession and second direct evidence. There was in addition to these "just ordinary. common, inanimate facts."

Also there were witnesses who testified to facts the value of which they did not know. It was upon these last two classes of evidence that he intended to dwell. Mr. Calder then went on to put a series of questions to the jury. "The answer to which if you are with me means that the accused is guilty, and the answer to which if you say no to question is that the accused is innocent."

Cause of Death

He asked what caused the death of Raoul Delorme physically. The answer to this was furnished by the expert autopsist evidence which showed that one of three bullets found in the body struck the vagus nerve and immediately stopped the action of the heart from preventing any pumping of blood from the wounds. This bullet alone caused death.

The next question was: Out of what revolver were the bullets fired?

To answer this, Mr. Calder took for the time being the evidence of the Detective Lajoie who swore he fired a test bullet from the abbe's revolver. The jury had seen with their own eyes similar scratches on this test bullet and on the bullets extracted from the victim's body. The defence had asked how it was known that the bullet in the body was not from a different gun. They had had tests made with different types of revolvers and of the eight bullets thus fired there was only one that was marked like bullets in the body. Therefore the bullets which were fired into the body could be fired out of only one revolver instead of two—either out of the abbe's weapon or out of a revolver belonging to the gunsmith Haynes from whom the abbe bought his weapon. There was no possibility that Haynes shot Raoul.

Hamilton Not Called

William A. Jones the New York fire arms expert brought in by the defence had handled the bullets but shortly before Jones came here the bullets were in the hands of a man called Hamilton. "I will say no more of Hamilton than this that the defence were afraid to put him in the box."

Their own expert (Jones) had said he would not recommend Hamilton, knowing what he did about him. There was nothing easier than to anipulate those bullets. "Mr. Hamilton, I say it on the responsibility of counsel, has been kicked out of almost every court of the United States as a rogue. This is the man who handled the bullets before Jones." Mr. Calder then proceeded to deny that he had ever objected to the defence making experiments with the abbe's revolver. He had only pointed out that the experiments would be of doubtful value because he revolver had more or less rusted. It was open to the defence at any time to get an order of he court. However the experiments were made by the defenc and he asked where were the bullets from these experiments? The defence had not shown any of the bullets so fired, Colonel Gaudet was then called, the crown's biggest fire arms expert. He would have called him earlier in the case but he thought "and I still think," that he was retained by the defence. He examined the bullets and came to court saying they were fired out of the abbe's revolver. He wanted to ask why, but the defence objected that it was too late the crown was in rebuttal. Yet he had not objected when the defence had re-opened the whole enquiry at the last moment to put in two witnesses.

Place Determined

Another thing which went to show that the revolver had been used was its excessive oiling. Another curious point was the unnecessary lie when the abbe had said he got it from his father.

He then asked where was the shot fired that killed Raoul. He maintained the crime was committed at the abbe's residence at that time, 190 St. Hubert street. The evidence showed that Raoul's rubbers were in the house. That had been proven by his sisters. Consequently the victim had not been out of the house. Secondly, the victim was not wearing his overcoat. The lapels of an overcoat are over those of a coat and no bullet could go through the lapel of a coat without piercing the lapel of an overcoat.

Yet another point was that the victim had had his best suit pressed prior to returning to Ottawa. It had been suggested he had a girl's address in his pocket and was going out for the night. Yet the body was found dressed in an old suit and old boots. If he were going out as suggested. he would have dressed in his best.

Further, the victim was found with his head wrapped up in a bed quilt or pad. Two bed pads similar were found in the house. They had been there as long as Rosa Delorme could remember. What was the possible chance of a strong automobile containing a bed pad exactly similar to the one made by some relatives or servant nearly 30 years ago

"On account of the rubbers, on accounts of the boots, on account of the old clothing, on account of the bed pads around the boy's head, I say he was killed at 190 St. Huebrt street." There was only one person in that house that could have committed that murder.

As to in what part of the house the murder was committed, he admitted that was a matter of conjecture. But the exact location in the house was unimportant.

No Trace of Bullets

As to the bullets that went in and out of the victim and of which no trace was found, Mr. Calder pointed to the fact that the abbe's house had not been thoroughly examined until January 21, 15 days after the murder. In that time there was ample time to conceal the traces of bullets. It was an easy matter to carry the body from the house to the garage and he drew attention to the square-shouldered muscular form of the abbe to show that it would be no physical impossibility to him.

He then traced the probable course of the abbe in the automobile.

Consider Verdict To-day.

Addresses to the Jury by both defence and crown have now been completed in the trial of Rev. Father Delorme charged with murder of his half-brother, Raoul Delorme.

This morning, Chief Justice Sir Francois Lemieux, will sum up and jury will then consider their verdict It is thought the summing up will be finished by mid-day and there is a fair possibility that the verdict will be rendered some time in the afternoon.

ARMENIANS BANNED.

LAUSANNE, July 21. — (Canadian Press.)— Dr. Riza Nour Bey, one of the chief Turkish delegates to the Near East Conference, is quoted by the Swiss newspapers yesterday as declaring that Turkey's best interests will be served by the Armenians not returning to five in Turkish territory.

The antagonism between the Turks and Armenians is not essentially religious but political, he said. The Angora government wants Turkey to be for the Turks, who then can rally about the national banner in unity.

HEROIC BATTLE WITH FLAMES SAVED VILLAGE

A Heavy Rain Turned the Tide in Favor of the Fire Fighters Just in the Nick of Time.

SERIOUS DAMAGE.

VANCOUVER, B.C., July 21. — (Canadian Press.)—The terrific fire in the mining town of Anyox, B.C., which last Sunday imperilled hundreds of men, women and children, and millions of dollars worth of property, caused a loss of $200,000, according to passengers arriving here on the steamship Cardina from Anyox yesterday. Graphic accounts of struggles to save the town are given and the fight for the final relief of the community will go down as an epic in the extensive history of forest fires on this coast. Blackened and burned, battling hopelessly against an ever-gaining element, the men of the big camp fought desperately and doggedly with buckets, hose lines, axes, earth barriers and every other known method available in their effort to save lives and property, but the roaring of the flames gained headway and the smoke pall increased. Brands were whirled by the wind to distant parts of the forest to start new outbreaks. The explosion of the powder magazine when the flames reached it, broke hundreds of windows, wrecking two mine buildings, but did not affect the great oil tanks nearby. Had they done so, the vast quantity of oil would have swept in a blazing flood across Anyox.

Then came the miracle— a hard rain which is thought by some to have been brought on by the explosion—and the town was saved.

Anyox, according to passengers off the ship, looked like a town which had been devastated by an enemy which swept through and over it before the inhabitants could flee. Outside the doors of the residences were pile sof bedding and household goods which were left there when the heat forced the inhabitants to the fire lines or the mines.

Some of the heaps were smouldering wrecks, houses charred and blackened, stood here and there on the outskirts of the town.

MOSCOW, July 21.—One Princess, one Countess and ninteen other girls having no titles but mostly members of former Russian aristocratic families, are on their way, or some day will go, to the United States as brides of Americans in consequence of the two years' stay in Russian of the American Relief Administration.

Germany Now Hails Arbuckle As a Hero.

BERLIN, July 21.—Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle has been engaged to act for a big German film company, and is coming to Germany to do a series of pictures, according to an announcement made yesterday in "Zwoelfuhrblatt."

This paper commends the rotund American comedian warmly to the German public, saying that he is not only a great artist, but that he deserves special sympathy because of his recent troubles in America which have driven him out of the American movie field. "The German film industry should be congratulated upon the acquisition of this great artist." says the paper, denouncing the campaign against him in the United States.

VILLA SHOT BY HIS SECRETARY

More Than 100 Casualties Follow and Battle Continues.

CHIHUAHUA CITY. Mexico, July 21.—(Associated Press).—General Francisco (Pancho) Villa, commander of rebel armies in northern Mexico for ten years, was shot and killed this morning at 8.30 o'clock at his big ranch at Canutillo, Durango, by Miguel Trillo, his secretary.

A battle followed, in which Trillo was killed by men loyal to their slain chieftain. According to latest advices received from the ranch, the fight is still in progress.

More than 100 casualties have occurred in the sanguinary fighting which followed the shooting of Villa by Trillo.

The latter is said to have become incensed at the former bandit leader and to have fired at him suddenly. The bullets took fatal effect and Villa died almost instantly.

Trillo was fired upon by other men near the scene of the shooting and was killed a few minutes later.

Men who had rallied behind Trillo then engaged the loyal Villa troops and a general battle occurred within the ranch. Villa had about 800 men on the ranch and all were trained in the handling of firearms, having followed the chieftain in his campaigns against the Obregon Government just prior to his surrender and signing of the armistice with Obregon.

COMPETES WITH MOVIES

LAPORTE, Ind. (United Press)—The church is competing with the motion picture theaters and beating them at their own game in Laporte.

The Rev. F. W. Bostick, pastor of the First Baptist church, shows educational films to crowds of 800 to 1,000 every Sunday night, while the regular picture houses are practically deserted.

Musical numbers and short religious talks, couched in baseball terms, are included in Rev. Bosticks' programs.

The performances are staged in a public square, the screen being on the side of a building. Collections and donations pay the expenses.

PLAN TO KEEP WHEAT PRICE AT HIGH MARK

Two Hundred Million Bushels Would Be Withdrawn From the Market and Stored.

WAIT FOR PRICE.

CHICAGO, July 21. —(Canadian Press.)—A plan to withdraw 200,000,000 bushels of wheat from the market and store it on farms until prices advance, was announced yesterday by President O. E. Bradfute, of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The Farm Bureau plan provides for financing the project under the new intermediate credit act, by which Mr. Bradfute estimated $660,000,000 could be made available to lend to farmers their surpluses. He estimated that $150,000,000 would be ample to store 200,000,000 bushels of wheat and thereby remove it from the market.

Mr. Bradfute declared that farm wheat bins, under the Intermediate Credit Act, might be designated as Government bonded warehouses for which bonded warehouse receipts could be issued against wheat stored on the farm.

The withdrawal of 200,000,000 bushels of wheat from the market and the locking it up under Government seals in farm warehouses, President Bradfute said, would have an immediate effect on prices.

MAY BUILD BRIDGE OVER PIGEON LAKE.

Proposition Is Laid Before Local Secretary Chamber of Commerce.

Proposals to build a bridge across Pigeon Lake to connect Peterborough and Victoria Counties and thus increase the attendance at Peterborough markets and give residents in that section access to the business facilities here, were brought before Leon Frazer, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, yesterday.

Mr. J. C. O'Leary, a 75-year-old resident of King's Wharf, with Alderman Maher and Fife, laid the proposition before Mr. Frazer, advocating it as a big boost to both counties.

Mr. O'Leary said the city is losing heavily through not having the bridge, hundreds of people who formerly traded here are being compelled to go elsewhere, although they would prefer dealing in Peterborough.

Affidavits are in existence, he said, proving that some sixty years ago people crossed at the point in question on a plank fourteen feet long. Since then the Government has developed water power and built locks and dams, backing the water up until the stretch is now a mile wide. The people whose lands were drowned received compensation, and that, in Mr. O'Leary's opinion, shows the liability of the Government to erect the required bridge. The opening up of this route would make Peterborough the market for an extensive district, he said.

People Enthusiastic.

A meeting was arranged between the Peterborough County Council and the residents in the district affected, and Mr. O'Leary said the gathering was so enthusiastic that a bridge would have been erected that night if it had been possible. An election was pending at the time and the proposal was consequently shelved.

The old bridge which formerly spanned the lake at this point was destroyed, and part of it was given to the Indians at Curve Lake. Only the old stone piers now remain. The site of the former bridge is the most logical, Mr. O'Leary said, as the approach roads are already built and in good condition.

It was pointed out by Mr. Frazer that the proposal should interest the merchants of Peterborough because of the enlarged market which would be opened up, and it should also interest the county of Victoria and the town of Lindsay because of the increased tourist traffic. Many parties are detained on this side of the lake because of the inaccessibility of the district beyond. With a bridge across Pigeon Lake tourists could go from Peterborough to Bobcaygeon and thence to Lindsay and the surrounding lake district.

Mr. Frazer promised that the matter would be brought before the Chamber of Commerce.

No Trace Found of Inhuman Murderer.

COCHRANE, Ont., July 21. — (Canadian Press)—Police Officers in charge of the murder case stated that there had been no fresh developments in the investigation and the slayer of Monica Foster was still at large yesterday. The saplings in the bush in which the girl's body was found have been cut down and the finger prints found on the trees will be examined by the authorities.

About two years ago, two children of the same family were enticed into the same bush by a stranger but a woman passing at the time was suspicious and gave the alarm, the result being the arrest of the men who subsequently was ordered to leave the town.

Vancouver Making Bid For Grain Traffic.

ST. JOHN, N.B., July 21.—(Canadian Press.)—Vancouver's bid for the Trans-Atlantic grain shipments from Canada is receiving the attention of both the local board and T. H. Bullock, commissioner of harbors. Mr. Bullock said yesterday morning that he was investigating differentials, etc., in an effort to see what cold be done to insure the port receiving fair treatment in the matter of the grain traffic from the west.

According to information received from the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., the ocean rates from St. John last winter averaged one shilling and nine pence a quarter, or about eight shillings and two pence a ton from Vancouver. Rail charges from central and western points, however, showed the through charge, via St. John about those via Vancouver as the following comaprisons will show.

FOUND DEAD IN SHALLOW CREEK.

Sad Death of Mariposa Farmer—Body Discovered By Son.

LINDSAY, July 21.—(Special)—Andrew McKay of the Glen, Mariposa, one of the best known farmers in the district, was found dead in eighteen inches of water in a creek back of his farm at eight o'clock yesterday morning.

The attention of his son was attracted to the spot by the actions of a dog, and on investigation he found his father's body. It is supposed the deceased started out in search of the cows early this morning. His wife died some months ago and he had been worrying considerably since then.

Coroner Dr. Clarke of Lindsay decided that an iquest was unnecessary.

NOT TO SUPPORT POOL.

EDMONTON, July 21.— (Canadian Press.)—Reports to the effect that the Alberta government has pledged its support to the Sapiro wheat pool scheme for the marketing of the 1923 crop and that arrangements have already been made for Mr. Sapiro to come to Alberta in connection therewith are given a straight denial by Premier Greenfield, who returned yesterday from Drumheller.

PASSIVE RESISTANCE WILL BE GIVEN FIRST REAL TRYOUT IN RUHR

From Now On People Will Suffer Real Hardships and Privations If Resistance Is Continued.

PRICES INCREASE.

DUESSELDORF, July 21. Canadian Press. — The Ruhr occupation is entering the stage in which passive resistance is to be given its first real test, in the opinion of observers here. Hitherto they say passive resistance has been productive of only slight annoyance and inconvenience, but now the gradual application of stricter measures by the French and the Belgians is beginning to involve read hardship and privation.

The Germans claim their people will never yield; but the French point to Thursday's increased train movements as proof of a decisive weakening in passive resistance.

Indications of a real test may be seen in the tremendous increase in prices and the perceptibie decrease in the stocks .The prices of many commodities have more than doubled within three days and shopkeepers are opening their doors for only a few hours daily and selling in limited amounts to each customer.

In the face of the depletion in stocks shopkeepers are confronted with three alternatives: first to impcr by paying the French customs, which passive resistance precludes; second, to smuggle, which obviously is impossible on a sufficient scale, and third to close their shops which would spell ultimate privation.

The increase in prices is seen not only in general commodities but in foodstuffs which are allowed to enter the occupied territory duty free. This is due to the refusal of the Germans to use French trains distribute the food. They are endeavoring to employ exclusively trucks and the interurban car lines for food distribution, and these are insufficient for the purpose. Under this method it is impossible to distribute milk and butter in the necessary quantities. During the hot weather more than half the milk sours before it reaches the towns, and as a consequence the whole area is being almost deprived of fresh dairy products.

The same applies to the industries which have imported virtually no raw materials and exported practically no finished products since occupation began because the industrialists refused to pay duty.

Up to recently most of the factories had continued to run on their large reserve stocks but now many of them have been forced to close since the French began to seize their coal stocks for the reparations account.

Factories which are unable to continue production are employing their men in repairing and cleaning up their plants so as to be ready to start with a maximum of efficiency when ocupation ends. Many of the industrialists, including the Krupps, are paying off their men in their own special issues of emergency money, owing to the shortage in Germany's currency.

Notwithstanding the conditions, the Germans persist in their optimism over the situation. One Krupp official told the correspondent today that while he was sorry to say that some Germans were beginning to patronize the French trains, he was sure the rank and file of the population was ready to endure as terrible privations as during the war before doing anything to make French occupation succeed.

In reply to a question of the correspondent this official said that the minimum demands of the population before it would think of ceasing passive resistance were:

First: To bring back all expelled persons.

Second: Cancel all courtmartial sentences.

Third: Return the railroads, telegraphs and telephones.

Fourth: Give up the customs frontier; and Fifth: Agree to make occupation "invisible."

"In short," the official added, "the territory must be restored to complete German sovereignty, and that before passive resistance ceases, and not as a promise after its cessation."

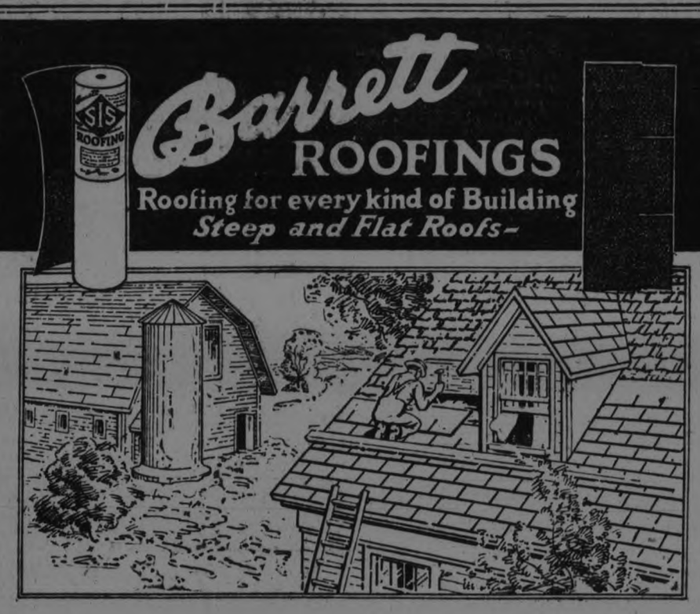
Barrett ROOFINGS

Roofing for every kind of Building

Steep and Flat Roofs—



Barrett Everlastic Giant Shingles

Lay Them Right Over the Old Roof

These sturdy shingles are made and laid 3 to a strip. Thanks to their extra weight, thickness, and rigidity, they can be laid right over the old roof. (Use 1¼" galvanized roofing nails). This means big savings in money, labor and trouble.

You can rely on these shingles to stand staunch and tight against storm and blizzard throughout the years. Their base is of extra-heavy, best grade roofing-felt, saturated with high grade waterproofing material.

These "Giants" for service are strikingly handsome. Their surface is of everlasting mineral in artistic shades of red, green or blue-black. Because of this mineral surface they are highly fire-resistant—never need painting or staining.

Come in. See these modern roofings. Get our estimate on a complete roof of Barrett Everlastic Giant Shingles. Prices are extremely moderate.

S. I. S. Roll Roofing
(Seventeen Inch Selvage-Edge Roofing)

Total width of roll 32 inches. 15⅝ of the width of roll is mineral-surfaced. 17⅜ of the width is plain surfaced to insure firm cementing of the overlap. A roof of S. I. S. is double thickness throughout with weather-proof, fire-resisting mineral surface in red or green.

HELP FOR THE WEST.

It is estimated by railway officials that the harvesting of the wheat crop in the Prairie Provinces will require at least 50,000 harvest hands. The crop is a record-breaker, and the labour involved in harvesting will be beyond any previous year's record.

Where is this army of helpers to come from?

That is a problem that will require some attention, for there is no unemployment in the East, and unless efforts are made to mobilize those who could be of service and to bring before them the opportunities for profit that are certain in the harvest fields, there may be considerable difficulty in securing enough help.

The railways will, as usual, co-operate by providing cheap transportation for harvest hands, and in advertising the needs of the Western farmers, but something more than this will perhaps be necessary in view of conditions in the East and having regard to the fact that the crop is greater and the acreage larger than ever before.

It looks as if the Prairie Provinces will need the assistance of every helper that the East can spare for this most important work; and special efforts will have to be made to ensure an adequate supply of labour during the harvesting operations.

ADVICE TO FARMERS.

The Dominion Department of Agriculture is to be commended upon the series of articles to farmers which it has been publishing in the newspapers of Canada.

The advice which the department considers as essential is distributed in this way much more effectively and with much more speed than by any other method that could have been adopted, and there is need for a lot of this "Have Faith in Canada" propaganda at the present time.

The articles are frank in their attitude and should be all the more beneficial on that account.

The farmers are being told that the old methods will not do, that to make farming pay and to enable the farmer to meet his share of the increased burden of taxation, as he must do, it is necessary for him to increase his revenue.

Hard work and plodding alone will not make this possible — too many farmers are trying to get along by "jogging away" when their only chance of success is to plan ahead and co-ordinate head and hand.

The department points out that farming pays on many farms today, and can be made to pay on almost every farm with good management.

And one way of ensuring this is, consult the Department of Agriculture about your problems. There is no need of any farmer killing his chances by wrong methods when the best experts in Canada are ready to assist him with the advice that he requires.

TOO MUCH DANCING.

The Toronto Health Department, which each summer issues a warning to citizens of the Queen City who are departing upon their vacation as to what they should or should not do while they are away, has a few new "don'ts" in its list this year.

One of the most necessary of these is as follows:

"Don't dance every night during your holidays and expect to come back rested and refreshed for your next week's work."

Unfortunately, there is need of such advice at the resorts around Peterborough, and even more, unfortunately, there is not the slightest chance of this admonition being observed.

During recent years a change has come over the activities at river and lake resorts.

Formerly young folks were satisfied with an occasional corn or marshmallow roast or a jolly bonfire party as the main social function of a summer holiday, while the days were given over to paddling, fishing, swimming and other outdoor exercises that produced health and brawn.

Nowadays the chief amusement with many of them is dancing.

Each night until the early hours the music throbs, and the dancers glide or jump or stumble according to their method and skill through the curious evolutions considered to be dancing.

And half the days are taken up in endeavouring to regain the sleep lost the night before.

The result is that many visitors go home when it is all over more weary and less fit for work than when their vacation started.

JAY-WALKERS.

The jay-walker is a person who is given to crossing busy city streets at other than the regular crossing places, says the Ottawa Journal.

The jay-walker is a person who is liable when crossing a busy city street at the regular crossing place to be looking at the roofs of the adjoining buildings or at some pretty girl who is passing on the other side, instead of keeping an eye closely about him.

The jay-walker is a person who steps on to a busy city street anywhere or at any time without watching out.

The jay-walker is a person who gets out on to the roadway at a street corner to wait for a street car which is still about a quarter of a mile away.

A jay-walker is a person who after getting off a street car walks around behind the back of it to cross the street without going mighty slow.

A Detroit newspaper recently offered a prize of $2,000 for the best "Safety First" suggestion. The prize was awarded to a chap who wrote suggestions that the City Council should pass a bylaw prohibiting jay-walkers. The City Council took this up seriously and a bylaw is to be submitted to a plebiscite which if carried would considerably restrict the practices of jay-walkers. We don't suppose the bylaw will carry, but the discussion on it will probably wake people up a good deal to the fact that pedestrians on the streets can exercise a good deal more care than they do.

At the same time a sensible comment is made by the Toronto Star as follows:

"But neither in Detroit nor in Toronto must motorists be given the impression that the carelessness or stupidity of pedestrians relieves the driver of a car from exercising the maximum caution. People who 'jay-walk' are not the motorist's 'legitimate prey.' They are, on the contrary, an additional reason for careful and sane driving."

THE RIGHT FLAG.

Without any intention to discuss the merits of responsibility for the plight of British immigrants brought to the United States in excess of the quota admissible, it is pertinent to inquire as to the causes leading up to that regrettable situation and to endeavor to ascertain if there are not means by which it can be avoided entirely by simple action on the part of the immigrants themselves. The United States has set a limit on the number of immigrants it will receive each year from European countries, including the British Isles. The very establishment of that limit ought to make intending immigrants think hard before they buy their tickets. Are they going in the right direction? Is their choice of a new flag the right choice, the best choice, they could make?

The dominating influence that lies behind the impulse to emigrate is the hope of success in any given field. The larger proportion of the emigrants from England consists of artizans who are lured by the noise of higher wages. But the market for skilled labor in the United States is limited. The existing supply is sufficiently large to enable the Steel Trust to reduce their twelve-hour-day. What the United States wants—and that want is temporary and fluctuating—is unskilled labor, and for this the supply is overwhelming from various sources outside the British Isles at the present time. What advantages lie ahead for the British emigrant in the United States as compared to Canada or the other self-governing British Dominions? If he goes to America, sooner or later he will find it convenient to change his allegiance, and that means inevitably the severance of many ties and the loss of something intangible but precious which can never be replaced.

The Dominions have many substantial advantages to offer the British immigrant that he will not find in any other country to which he turns his steps. Canada today is the richest land of opportunity in the world. Even the leading thinkers of the United States admit this. They point repeatedly to this country as the hope of tomorrow. Is there nothing in that fact to strike the imagination of the British emigrant? He would, if he came to Canada, remain under the British flag, with all the unchallenged advantages that British citizenship confers. He would find himself among ideals and a mental atmosphere infinitely more sympathetic to his own tastes than is possible elsewhere. Best of all, he would find that the man who is not afraid of work and who can work can get all the work he wants if he attacks it in the right way. Living costs constitute another sound argument. The balance is not in favor of the United States when the high wages are set off against the higher cost of living, as compared with the United States, as many a Canadian artizan and skilled mechanic has found to his cost within the past year.

Canada needs immigrants. But Canada does not want a single immigrant lured here on specious misrepresentations or false hopes. A cold-blooded comparison of the relative advantages derivable from immigration to the U. S. A. and to this country will convince any sound British citizen that his destiny lies under his own flag within the Empire, given normal conditions. Canada has the room. It has the substantial attraction of unlimited opportunity under conditions not hampered by mushroom growth in the past. And Canada can give the British immigrant who is worthy of her care a practical welcome in the shape of speedy and convincing proof that his choice has been in the right direction; that he has remained under the right flag.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The law against the publishing of racing information is to be enforced from Monday on. It is a bad jolt for the hand-book men.

It is rather sweet revenge to gaze upon the wilted collar of the chap who said we would have no summer this year.

The Nova Scotia miners will learn sooner or later that they can't alienate themselves from everybody and still win out.

Feminine visitors in hiking costumes add variety to the landscape these days. And occasionally one of them adds a little charm as well.

Up in London the favourite topic for discussion is whether or not the civic swimming pools should be open on Sunday. The "drys" are leading in the controversy at present.

The London Advertiser knew a man who thought he could drive over a crossing in front of an express train with a second and a half to spare. His widow came into the office the other day to get a copy of the paper containing the report of the coroner's inquest.

A typographical error caused this column the other night to say: "President Tom Moore of the Trades and Labour Congress is the latest leader to condemn the Nova Scotia strike, as we advised." The Examiner does not presume to advise Mr. Moore. The sentence should have concluded "as ill-advised."

In driving, a good motto to remember is live and let live. Many motorists, however, do not.

A Belleville mob chased an evangelist out of town the other night. They take their religion as seriously as their baseball in the Bay of Quinte city.

Peterborough's bathing beaches are the most popular spots in the city during these red-hot days, and the accommodation scarcely meets the demand.

Pictures of the new Cabinet indicate that the members are apparently not dismayed by the problems before them, for everybody is shown with a smile.

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, July 21.—With a heavy run of close upon 7,000 cattle offering in the market on Monday, besides some 700 cattle billed through, the market opened weak and prices lower. Farmers in some districts are evidently beginning to feel the usual midsummer effects scarcity of grass and water, either anticipatory or real, and consequently are getting rid of their cattle regardless of marketing conditions. The result is of course a congested market, added to the usual smaller meat consumption during the height of the summer hot months, and the inevitable lowering of market values. The sudden slackening in the demand for heavy beef cattle for the export trade also was an important factor in the general lowering of prices this week. In explanation of the present export situation, it is pointed out that phenomenal heat this summer in the Old Country, together with certain labor troubles, dockyard strikes, etc., has resulted in a temporary hold up in the demand for export cattle. It is confidently believed, however, that present conditions are but transitory, and that is only a matter of a few weeks when there will be renewed activity in the export movement, and that there will be ample demand for all the cattle Canada can supply. For these reasons the leading men in the trade are still advising farmers and shippers not to be in too great a hurry to bring their unfinished cattle to market during the hot months unless forced to do so on account of real shortage of grass and water. It is believed that conditions and prices in the fall months will amply reward those cattle feeders who hold back their shipments at the present unfavourable time.

In Monday's market of this week, in view of the large number of cattle in the market, trade opened very slow, and before there was any decided movement towards the scales, prices all round had declined from 25c to 50c lower. Later in the week, for certain classes of green half fat cattle, prices were 75c lower. Towards the close for the week, for the very few and choicest of the butcher offerings prices had firmed up slightly, but the general tone of the market was weak, and lower, with a slow and difficult clean up.

Heavy fat cattle, equally with the unfinished, thin kind were in poor demand all through the week, and these suffered the most in the general price decline. Medium heavy cattle around 1200 lbs. sold for export from $7.25 to $7.50, a few extra choice fetching $7.75. The demand for these was limited to about 600 cattle in the first two market days and after these were supplied there was practically no export business for the balance of the week.

In the butcher classes prices ranged from $6.75 to $7.25 for a small proportion of extra choice at $7.50. Medium and common ranged from $5.50 to $6.25, and a fair kind at $6.50.

Choice fat cows held fairly steady around $5 to $5.25.

Export bulls easier at $4 to $4.50.

Calves generally held about steady around $10 for choice tops.

There was a heavy slump of from $2 to $3 in spring lambs, the market closing weak at $12 to $12.50, tops.

Hogs were firmer the latter end of the week, closing 25c higher at $8.25 f.o.b., and $8.25 fed and watered.

SPANISH EYES TOO MUCH FOR JUDGE.

So Husband and Wife Trot Cheerily Out of Court.

CHICAGO, July 21.—A judge, three bailiffs, 14 policemen, one court clerk, two stenographers and a husband were willing to take an oath Wednesday that Mrs. Geraldine Emmanuela Cortez Prettyman could get just about anything on earth she wished if she fox-trotted her eyes enough.

When Lieutenant Lee T. Prettyman of Chicago, formerly a naval air pilot, got in their range in Barcelona, Spain, where her wealthy parents live, he took a combination nose-dive and tail spin into romance and they were married.

Wednesday they were in court, charged with cashing a bogus draft for $50. When the Spanish eyes and Spanish lips and Spanish features entered the room, the heart of every one from Judge O'Toole down went "bump, bump, bump, bang!"

The judge dipped his pen in the ink and prepared to be awfully generous. He frowned at a tubby policeman who slicked back his hair and tried to look fascinating.

"Oh, honey, I love you so much, so very much," said the senora to he r husband. Everything went foggy in front of his honor. He didn't hear the lieutenant explaining that the draft was against his father, a Maryland clergyman. He couldn't read the telegram from the minister saying the $50 would be remitted.

"The prisoners are released on their own recognizance," he said. "and this case is continued."

Out went Prettyman and his bride.

CHOLERA INFANTUM

A FATAL DISEASE OF CHILDREN

Cholera Infantum or summer complaint of children is one of the most dangerous bowel complaints during the summer months.

It begins with a profuse diarrhoea, the stomach becomes irritated, very often accompanied by vomiting and purging and the matter excreted from the stomach has a bilious appearance. The child rapidly loses flesh, is soon reduced to languor and prostration, and in a great many cases death ensues.

Mothers, if any of your children become sick with cholera infantum do not endanger their health, perhaps their life, by experimenting with some new and untried remedy; get one that has stood the test of time; one that will quickly offset the vomiting, purging and the diarohea. This you will find in Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, a remedy that has been on the market for the past 78 years.

Mrs. W. A. Harrison, 10 Elevator Court, Halifax, N.S., writes:—"Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry saved the lives of three of my children when all other remedies failed. It stopped the vomiting and terrible diarrhoea with which they were troubled. I always keep a bottle of it on hand in case of emergency."

"Dr. Fowler's" is 50c. a bottle; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE BRITISH NOTE SENT TO ALLIES

Canada May Be Called Into Consultation on Britain's Policy.

LONDON, July 21. — (Canadian Press).—British note in reply to the German Repartions communication has been delivered to Allied Ambassadors and all members of the British Cabinet have dispersed to the country for the week-end. It is understood that the French Cabinet meets to- morrow.

Canada may be called into consultation regarding the British Reparations Policy, according to diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Telegraph.

This writer, who is considered to be in particularly close touch with events in connection with the reparations controversy, in an article published in this mornings Telegraph speculates upon the possibility of failure of agreement by Allies on the text of the note to Germany, which has just been drafted by the British Government. and the Inter-Allied crisis that consequently would folow. He declares that the question of evoloiv tianrntl olshriihfypgBk Canadag ving frankly the British policy would then come to the front. In such circumstances he believes that Canada and other British Dominions that were signatories to the treaty of Versailles would be called into conference by the British Government to frame a policy for the Empire.

BARN DESTROYED

OMEMEE, July 21.—Fire destroyed a large frame barn with its contents of hay, grain, live-stock and implements, on the farm of Samuel Fee, near Omemee, late last night. The cause is not known, and the loss is only partly covered by insurance.

The blaze was noticed about 9 o'clock, at which time Mr. Fee and his son were both away from home. It spread so rapidly that great difficulty was experienced in rescuing the horses, and it was impossible to save the remainder of the live stock sheltered in the barn and outbuildings.

A calf, at least two pigs, and all the fowl were lost.

The year's hay crop, consisting of over 50 loads, was consumed, together with a large amount of last year's grain.

Five men and two teams were busy yesterday storing the hay in the barn putting in about 30 loads. A large number of farm inplemnts some harness, and the dairy machinery also were destroyed in the ruin of the barn.

Owing to the good work of neighbours and the fact that the wind blew in the opposite direction, the house escaped uninjured. Only the cement foundations of the barn remain this morning.

It is thought that a spark from the gasoline engine which was used for separating the milk last night may have started the fire.

ACTION FOR DAMAGE BY POLICE OFFICER

Provincial Police Officer Brings Action Against Chief of Police For Trespass.

OTTAWA, July 21. — (Canadian Press).— Action for $5,00 damages has been taken in the Supreme Court of Ontario by Albert Ulrie St. Pierre of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police against Mrs. J. B. Berthelette Mrs. Armand Beauvais, and Richard Manion, chief of police of the town of Eastville. The writ commencing the action was filed Thursday at the court house and this morning copies of the writ were served on the three defendents.

The claim for damages is for trespassing on the property of St. Pierre and for defamation of character.

It is claimed that on June 26, Mrs. Berthelette, the landlord of the premises occupied by St. Pierre together with Mrs. Beauvais and Chief Manion visited St. Pierre's home and entered it, it is claimed without proper authority or a warrant. It is alleged that the two female defendants claimed that the cause of their inspection of St. Pierre's home was to ascertain if it was kept in a sanitary condition.

St. Pierre also claims that the chiief of police represented himself to be local medical health officer.

Chief Manion, it is said, takes the ground that he had all the authority which was required for his visit, vested in him under the public health act.

PLEASING EV NT OMEMEE VILLAGE

Rev. J. Black Inducted Into Presbyterian Pastorate—Inspiring Ceremony

OMEMEE, July 21. — A very pleasing event took place in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Omemee, on Thursday, evening where a large representation from both Mt. Pleasant and Omemee congregations and many visitors had gathered for the purpose of inducting the Rev. J Black into the pastorate here.

Sweet peas and roses were the floral decorations and presented an inviting appearance.

The service which was held in he auditorium of the church opened with a rousing hymn followed by prayer, after which the Rev. Mr. Archibald of Keene delivered a most impressive address. After another hymn the Moderator of the Presbytery, Rev. Mr. Jull of Lakefield,who was the acting chairman, called on the Rev. Mr. Rollins of Peterboro, to relate the steps leading to the call of the Rev. Mr. Black, which he did in a most able manner. The Moderator then proceeded with the form of induction and the members of the session and the visiting clergymen warmly welcomed Mr. Black into his new charge here by a hearty shake of the hand.

Rev. Mr. MaConachie of Centreville, then delivered a short address to the newly elected pastor, and also asked the people to not only support him by their givings, their attendance at church, but by their kind words of appreciation, and at all times uphold him.

Rev. Mr. Rollins then added a few words, and welcomed the Rev. Mr. Black to the Peterborough Presbytery, and in doing so he was welcoming an old university chum and a warm friend. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Mr. Jull after which he made a few brief remarks and wished Mr. Black every success in his new charge. The singing of the doxology brought a most impressive service to a close.

All repaired to the Sunday school room where after being introduced to Mr. and Mrs. Black refreshments were served and a social half hour was enjoyed.

REGINA, July 21. — (Canadian Press.)—If plans for the formation of an inter-provincial voluntary wheat pool of the three prairie provinces fail to materialize at a conference to be held here Monday next, Saskatchewan will have its own selling organization for the handling of this year's crop, according to information obtained here yesterday.

There is also a possibility of separate pools being established in each province with a central marketing agency.

Plans for Saskatchewan's pool are well under way and should the conference fail to reach a decision Monday, it will be put into operation immediately, according to J. A. Maharg, president of the Saskatchewan grain growers' association.

WAGE INCREASES.

CINCINNATI, O., July 21. — (Canadian Press.)—Wage increases of from one to three cents an hour for shop employees of the Southern Railway have been authorized as the result of conferences in Washington, it was stated at the General Manager's office of the road here yesterday.

According to word received here, metal trades workers in shop crafts are to receive increases of three cents an hour; car repairers two cents, and apprentices and helpers are to recive one cent an hour raise in pay. It was said that from 18,000 to 20,000 men will share in the increases.

Split in Belgium Threatened By Dispute Over Languages

(By J. W. T. MASON)

NEW YORK, July 21 (United Press)—Disruption of Belgium, like the disruption of Austro-Hungary and Ireland, is being seriously threatened by a violent outbreak of language hostility between the Walloon and Flemish populations. The split is so grave that Belgium is becoming a dual kingdom, divided by language-loyalty to France by one-half of the population and language-loyalty to the Teutonic races by the other half.

The break in Ireland between the southern and northern counties is being used by many Belgians as an argument for splitting Belgium into two areas, each professing loyalty to a single monarch, but otherwise independent. The Flemish population of Belgium speak a language closely akin to Dutch. The Walloons speak French. French also is the language of all Belgian intellectuals, while Flemish is a provincial tongue, and is not in common use among the Flemish intellectuals themselves.

The Tension Increased

The sharp division of culture and agriculture between the partisans of the Flemish and the Walloon languages has increased the tension. The Flemish population declare an effort is being made to subordinate them as inferiors, to the self-patronizing Walloons.

Another grave complication is the fact that during the war, while the Germans occupied Belgium, they encouraged the Flemish people by every possible means. In return, German propaganda among the Flemish soldiers at the front was successful in many instances, though carefully concealed by the allies at the time. To the charge of disloyalty made against some of the Flemish pro-Germans, the answer is returned that the Walloons didn't do their military duty and left the Flemish troops to do most of the fighting.

There is just enough truth in this charge to make it hurt, for the Walloon area of Belgium was first overrun by the Germans, preventing the retract of large numbers of Walloons, but allowing the Flemsh people to get away.

Bar to Education

The Flemish language partisans are now demanding that the curriculum of Ghent University be made Flemish. They declare that large numbers of Flemish people do not understand French and are kept from a higher education by the fact that all of the Belgian universities teach only in French.

Ghent is the center of the Flemish area and it is declared that one-half of the Belgian population is entitled to control at least one of Belgium's four higher institutions of learning.

The Walloons assert it would be fatal to scholarship to make Flemish the language of a great university. Flemish isn't of value to reaearch or intellectual development. Another language is absolutely necessary for proper educational growth, and among Belgians seeking a higher education, French ought to be compulsory.

The Flemish are answering that this attitude represents the superiority complex from which the Walloons are suffering. They declare they will not accept an inferior position for themselves or their culture. So strongly do they feel the slight put upon them by the intellectuals that the Ghent university question threatens to become the gravest domestic question since Belgium became independent in 1831.

CAMERA 60 FEET LONG TO PHOTOGRAPH ECLIPSE

TUCSON, Ariz., July 21 (Associated Press).—Immense telescopic cameras 40 and 60 feet long, gigantic reflectors and a number of smaller instruments will be moved into Mexico for the purpose of photographing the sun during its total eclipse next September, according to plans announced here by Dr. A. E. Douglas of the University of Arizona.

Dr. Douglas will head an expedition while a second will be conducted by Professor W. A. Cogshall of the University of Indiana.

The Douglas expedition will take with it a 40-foot focus camera which will reproduce the sun with a five-inch diameter. An even larger camera with a sixty-foot focus will be taken by the Cogshall expedition.

These cameras will be held in position by means of specially constructed towers.

San Gelipe, 144 miles south of the international boundary, has been selected as the site of the Cogshall expedition's observations. Dr. Douglas has not definitely selected his location.

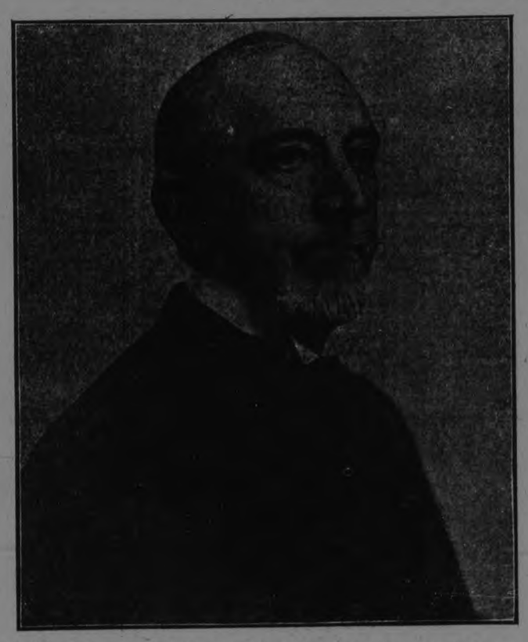
SIXTY-ONE YEARS IN BUSINESS HERE



Richard Hall, Head of Richard Hall & Son, Limited

The first of the write-ups in connection with the 89th anniversary centres around the activities of the present senior member of the firm who for sixty-years has taken an active part in the conduct of the business Mr. Richard Hall was born Oct. 22nd., 1843, son of John Hall, pioneer of township of Smith, educated at the rural schools and at the early age of fifteen entered the employ of Nichols and Hall, whose place of business was in a small log building at the corner of Water and Simcoe streets, (now the site of the Bank of Montreal). Walking three and one-half miles from his home near the Third Line School, Smith Township, returning after business hours, ten, eleven and often later at night, through the sparsely lighted streets (lighted by occasional lamp posts the lamps of which burned elephant oil instead of kerosene) out through the heavily wooded single trail road, excepting when driven back and forward by his elder brother, Mr. John Hall, now residing at 776 Water street, who drove in during the winter months with old Fan and the home-made spoon cutter, Mr. Hall was afterward employed at a salary which included his board with the family of Miss Scott, sister of Mr. Wm. Hall. The surviving member of the firm, Mr. Nichols, having many other interests to attend to, naturally turned to those whom he knew and trusted to find someone to associate with him and take the burden of local business off his shoulders. The assistance was at hand, and recognized in the person of Mr. Richard Hall brought up under the eye of Mr. Nicholls in his own business with a most intricate and thorough knowledge of the intricacies of the departments, unusual skill and judgment in the art of buying and conduct of the stores and with a knowledge of values in regard to goods then on the market and goods coming into use as the woollen and weaving trades developed. So Richard Hall came into the business and the old title of the firm changed not at all but continued as of yore, Nicholls and Hall still carrying on. Mr. Hall continued with the old firm until the business was divided and disposed of by the owners in 1873. Growing up with the store was another young man, Mr. Robert Innes also an experienced, well qualified business man and when the business was to be disposed of Mr. Hall and Mr. Innes combined their resources and acquired the dry goods department taking over the entire stock and good will and carried on under the name of Hall, Innes and Co. The firm had also associated with them Mr. Robert Hall, now collector of customs, Peterborough.

Firm Re-Organized

Mr. Innes remained in active connection for many years and on his retirement Mr. Hall had with him for a time Mr. John Gilchrist, the new firm comprising Mr. Richard Hall, Mr. Dickson Hall and Mr. John Gilchrist. Eventually Mr. Gilchrist withdrew to enter the manufacturing firm of the Crompton Corset Co., Toronto, and the firm name was changed to Richard Hall and Son Limited, the members of the firm being Mr. Richard Hall and his son, Mr. Dickson Hall, the firm remaining as heretofore, the leading dry goods firm of the town and retaining the prestige resulting from the years of honorable merchandising and the high class of goods carried in stock. The advantage of personally visiting the European markets was appreciated and Mr. Robert Innes crossed the Atlantic over thirty times visiting all the leading markets in his capacity of manager and buyer for the Richard Hall & Son Ltd. In 1858 a commodious and well appointed three story brick store was erected on the corner of Water and Simcoe streets, to replace the log structure in which the business had its early beginning but now the time had come when it was recognized, that the old location had to a great extent dropped out of the line of travel and always alert to meet new conditions, the firm found a new location and took the premises in west side of George street, near Simcoe, where the business is still conducted and where it has expanded until it now stands well in the fore front with the larger business places in Eastern Ontario. Outside the business Mr. Richard Hall has had many interests. Recognizing his responsibilities as a citizen and in response to the call of his fellow citizens he assumed various positions of trust and influence in the affairs of the community. A chairman of the Nicholls Hospital Board he has been in touch with the institution since its very beginning when it occupied the residence near the corner of Monaghan Road and Charlottle street up to the present. Enjoying the confidence of the late Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls he was ever during the later years of her life, in consultation in regard to the several benefactions made by that lady and which have given to the city, the fine hospital that bears her name, as well as the larger part of the several parks that adorn the city.

Community Services

Mr. Hall may well claim to have been the originator of the project to bring into being the Nicholls Hospital and working assiduously has seen it grow from a small structure to the magnificiently appointed and equipped premises in which it is now established. He was appointed one of the original Board of Trustees in recognition of his services and will remain a Trustee during his life time. Mr. Hall was also appointed executor of the Nichols Estate, a position of large responsibility, which he has well discharged.

President of the Peterboro Real Estate Investment Co., until it was merged in the Central Canada Loan Co., of the board of which he is a member, member of the Board of the Protestant Homes and active in its interests, chairman of the Nichol Park Commission and instrumental in the care and attention involved in the upkeep of the several parks under the supervision of the Parks Board.

Director of the Street Railway and Light and Power Co. For some years manager of the Dickson Company, following the death of the late Mr. Hazlitt. In addition to his many activities, Mr. Hall on the request of his friends contested the constituency for the Dominion House in 1896 but was not successful. Still retaining an active interest in business and able to look back and note, as few indeed may, the long muster roll of men who have come, entered into local trade, survived for a time and passed away. He is able to felicitate himself as others frequently do, in recognition of his years of service and to realize that the enterprise to which he set his his hand in 1858, as a boy of fifteen and with which he has been connected as student, assistant, proprietor for over sixty years stands to-day one of the substantial prosperous, business establishments of the country.

BATTLE SCARS ARE VANISHING

France Is Making Effort to Restore Ravages of War

LONDON, July 21 (Associated Press)—France of today, like the France of 1871, is making a magnificent effort by hard work to restore the ravages of war, according to an official report to the British Department of Overseas Trade. The report is the work of the Commercial Counsellor of the British Embassy in Paris, J. R. Cahaill, and is painstaking and exhaustive. The general conclusions of the report are:

The present economic position of France is strong.

Her industrial population is fully employed, and her output in most fields of production is only limited by shortage of man-power.

The industrial reconstruction of the devastated areas is fast approaching completion.

The report states that the destroyed or damaged coal mines are increasing their output with improved technical equipment. The great woolen and cotton works are kept going to the full extent of the labor at their disposal. The great agricultural areas of wheat and beet root, the chief crops of northern France, will soon approximate the pre-war areas.

Ports, waterways, railways, and roads have been and are being improved. Water power, the report continues, is being systematically turned to account. New resources in ores, coal, potash, and oil have been developed. There has been advance in industrial organization in a marked fashion in the chemical, electrical, metallurgical, engineering, aluminum, and other industries, discernible through French industry as a whole. French foreign trade in weight has already surpassed pre-war figures.

Fine results have been obtained by hard work in the devastated regions. Of 8,166,684 devastated acres, 7,447,297 have been cleared of projectiles, trench work, and barbed wire; 19,920 factories have been rebuilt out of 22,160. Of nearly 4,941,000 acres of devastated agricultural land, more than 1,235,00 have been put under the plough.

The main railway system has been repaired, nearly all the waterways have been made navigable, and of the 36,450 miles of devastated roads, 19,743 have been restored to traffic and 8,671 have been improved.

MARRY EARLY TO LIVE A CENTURY.

Insurance Company Says Married Men Live Longer Than Bachelors.

CHICAGO, July 21 (Associated Press).—One who desires to live 100 years should marry early, refrain from indoor dancing, should not be a college athlete and be neither rich nor poor according to an address made here tonight by Albert M. Johnson, president of the National Life Insurance Company, before several hundred boy scouts. Mr. Johnson said these maxims were reached by his company following statistical computation of results from a survey of longevity under modern conditions.

The long list of "don'ts" which Mr. Johnson said the survey suggested in order to attain this age contained a few "do's" chief among which was "religion in a true way." Mild exercise daily and a "straight neck" in walking, were others.

"Our statistics show, when compiled and averaged, that to reach five score years one should marry early, be neither rich nor poor, should not be a professional or college athlete or an actor, should refrain from indoor dancing and never drink intoxicating liquors." Mr. Johnson said. "Husbands, we find, live longer than bachelors because of their more regular habits. Stage people are handicapped by long and hard hours. Heart strain is too common in the athlete.

"Persons earning between $2,000 and $6,000 a year live longer. This probably is due to the fact that moderate incomes do not give a person enough for dissipation but are adequate for comfort and sensible living.

"Be religious in a true way. Religious people are happier as a rule and going to church tends to make them regular in their habits. Do not drink liquor and do not smoke, if you must, until you are beyond 21 years of age. One of the most emphatic results of our survey was the evidence that the practices cannot be indulged in temperately by enough people to give you much of a chance to win.

"Stretch your neck up. Short-necked people are better subjects of apoplexy. Stretching your neck gives the blood vessels there less chance to clog. Take mild exercise daily, regularly, and not intermittently or savagely."

Encouraging Report on Coal Situation

More coal is coming into Peterborough than at this time last year. This encouraging report in an otherwise dark outlook is given by Mr. A. MacNab, local agent of the Canadian National Railway.

The district around Peterborough has received a good supply of coal during the summer, and many happy citizens in the city have their cellars full. On the street and in stores such remarks as "I have eight tons in" are heard frequently.

Many factories in the city, including the Canadian General Electric Co. and the Canadian Packing Company, are bringing in coal for their employees. All of these conditions point to an easier demand on the coal dealers during the winter.

Institute Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Seymour West Women's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon July 19th at the beautiful home of Mrs. John Fairman. One of the largest gatherings ever assembled at an institute meeting was inattendance. The meeting opened at 2.30 p.m. with the president Mrs. George Vanvolkenburg, presiding and an excellent programme was rendered. Mrs. John Ivey made a very efficient accompanist for the meeting which was opened by the singing of the Institute Ode, followed by all repeating in unison the Lord's Prayer. The minutes of last regular meeting were read and adopted. The Seymour West Institute have decided to raise funds to augment the cemetery fund, which is being used to fix up the cemetery. With this in view, Mrs. Charles Longmuir was appointed to interview Rev. M. L. Hinton, chairman of the Cemetery Board, re plans for improving the appearance of the cemetery.

The Institute also decided to hold their annual garden party on Thursday evening, August 2nd on the spacious grounds of Mr. Charles Macoun the proceeds to be devoted to the Cemetery fund. Committees were appointed to make full arrangements as they are desirous of making this event the best yet. An excellent programme was then rendered. The opening number was "The Maple Leaf Forever," followed by a reading entitled "The Dancing Doll" by little Miss Mary Murphy, which was heartily applauded. Miss Jessie Wilcox rendered a couple of solos in a sweet voice, which merited hearty encores.

Miss Margaret Anderson gave a very instructive reading on the artist "Millet" selected from the book 'Pictures every child should know." Little Miss Mary Murphy again gave a recitation "Mud Cakes," which was much enjoyed. The meeting closed by the singing of the National Anthem, after which the hostess, served an abundance of very dainty refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake.

The next meeting will be held on August 16th at the home of the president, Mrs. George Vanvolkenburg.

Send Writing Over the Wire

(By JOHN O'BRIEN)

PARIS, July 21 (United Press).—Absolute facsimiles of telegraph messages in the original handwriting of the schder are now being sent every day over the French Government lines by the Belin system, which is an adaptation of the inventor's method of transmitting photographs by wire.

The sender of the telegram writes it on ordinary paper which is placed on a revolving cylinder and by the play of lights and mirrors, as in the case of transmission of photographs, the exact script is sent over the wire. It is much cheaper than the ordinary telegram at least for messages of more than one hundred words, for the cost of the telegram is a flat rate of twenty francs, the number of words being limited only by the size of the writing.

For instance in one case a stenographer sent from Lyons to Paris a message of 1,453 words, in shorthand notes, which was written on the cylinder of about the same size as an ordinary telegraph blank. In this way about one column of a newspaper could be sent for about $1.25. The system is very fast. The operation of sending the stenographic message from Lyons took only six minutes.

If the telegram had been written in ordinary script and sent by a fast telegrapher it would have required twenty-five minutes, at the rate of sixty words a minute, and the cost, at the current rate, would have been about $16. This method of automatic transmission of telegrams is now open to the public, the necessary apparatus having been installed in the government telegraph offices of the larger cities. There is no reason why a person could not actually send his own photograph with an inscription in his own handwriting over the wire.

DIVIDENDS IN HEALTH

MADISON, Wis., July 21 (United Press).—A corporation which pays dividends in health, not in wealth, has been formed at the University of Wisconsin.

Members of W. A. A., women's athletic association at the University have organized a non-profit stock company to build a bungalow on Lake Mendota, where they may rest and play. The cottage will cost $3,000 of which about half has already been subscribed by members of the organization, faculty members and alumnæ who will be entitled to use the club house.

There will be a large living room with fireplace. A balcony surrounding the whole house, and will provide 36 open air bunks for tired athletes. A kitchen and a bedroom for the chaperone will be the only other rooms in the cottage.

Field hockey, swimming, volley ball, bowling, basketball, indoor and outdoor baseball, track, dancing and tennis are some of the sports that Wisconsin's coeds take part in. Interclass contests are held at frequent intervals and a "telegraphic meet" in all track events is run off with Northwestern University's fair speedsters, annually.

FRANCE AND GREAT BRITAIN RENEW AGE-OLD BATTLE FOR SUPREMACY

Development of Air Power Puts Continental Power Again Within Grasp of French After Century of Submission—Rivalry 1,000 Years Old.

BY J. W. T. MASON.

NEW YORK, July 21. (United Press.) — Europe is back to the condition of diplomatic hostilities that existed in the years before the war. Expectation of effective international good will will not be realized because nationalistic ambitions are conflicting as bitterly as in the period antedating 1914.

The break between Great Britain and France over German reparations is in reality only an incident. Eventually the reparations issue must be settled, but no settlement is probable of Anglo-French rivalries. The two nations are beginning to face each other in bellicose attitude in the Mediterranean, while their interests in the Near East cannot be reconciled without a grave retreat by one or the other.

There can be no doubt but that the world is in for a constant series of crises between Great Britain and France, such as put Europe on the uneasy seat many times in the past century. On the German menace against both France and Great Britain caused the "Entente Cordiale" to be created by the late Edward VII for mutual protection.

There is no longer a German menace directed against Great Britain, and the French Government is determined there shall be none against France for the rest of this century.

France and England at Odds.

With Germany down and out, France and Great Britain are threatening each other as has been their customary attitude since the time of William the Conqueror, nearly a thousand years ago, when French rulers governed England only to lose in turn their French domains.

The persistent major enmity in Europe does not centre about the Germans but about Franco-British rivalries. The French are dreaming of the time when the glories of Louis XIV will be restored, and when France once more will dominate the Eropean continent, and will force Great Britain to occupy the secondary place. That has been the French international creed ever since the downfall of French influence, dating from the time of the Revolution.

Never before has the time for its realization been as bright as now. The persistent obstinancy of France during the present cirisis in the Ruhr, the risks French industry and finance are running, the refusal of the Poincare government to agree to any compromise, even though suggested by America, as a neutral nation — all these strange developments can be explained only by the nationalistic ambitions of the French leaders.

France's Opportunity.

When the German army was supreme, France had no chance to become dominant in Europe. Likewise when the British navy vastly outstripped France's strength at sea, France had to stifle her ambitions for the moment.

But now armies and navies appear to be passing before the advent of airships and bombing planes. That is to say future mastery in war is less and less likely to depend on vast expenditures for instruments of destruction and on military manpower.

Two men in a cheaply built aeroplane may do more damage in the future than many regiments or batteries of field guns, or thirty million dollar battleships. Therefore France can look forward hopefully to a recovery of her ancient glories though her man-power and her treasury are depleted. This is the fundamental factor, dominating all others, in the European situation as it now exists.

FURNITURE AND HOUSE AWARDED

sell it and do whatever you like with it."

This is not satisfatcory evidence upon which to find that a gift of the furniture was made, and it is directly contradicted by the appellant.

In Cochrane v. Moore, (1890), 25 Q.B.D. & 57, it was held that: "A gift of a chattel capable of delivery made per verba de presenti by a donor to a donee, and assented to by the donee whose assent is communicated to the donor does not pass the property in the chattel without delivery."

In the subsequent case of In re Stoneham, (1919) 1 Ch. 149, it was held, by P. O. Lawrence, J, that the principle of the decision in Cochrane v. Moore was not applicable where the chattel is at the time of the gift of it in the possession of the donee.

Not Valid Gift.

I am unable to see that what occurred according to the testimony of the respondent and her daughter was a delivery of the furniture to the respondent within the meaniing of that term as used in Cochrane v. Moore and she was certainly not in possession of it within the meaning of the decision in the latter case.

See also Kingsmill v. Kingsmill, (1917), 41 O.L.R., 238, and cases there cited.

While I think that, assuming the fact to be as testified by the respondent and her daughter, a valid gift has not been established, I am also of opinion that the evidence is not sufficient to establish the fact of the gift having been made. I have mentioned that this evidence was flatly contradicted by the appellant, and there is the additional fact that in the lease that was drawn by Mr. Dixon as part of a proposed settlement of the difference between parties, which fell through, the furniture is treated as the property of the appellant and is demised with the land for the term of the appellant's life. Although the proposed settlement fell through, the respondent knew and approved of the lease.

The other claims for damages for breach of contract, which was allowed by the learned Judge at $1500, cannot in my opinion be supported. The evidence as to the alleged promise, such as it was, is by no means satisfactory, and consists practically of the uncorroborated testimony of the respondent, which was met by the denial of the appellant.

Not Tied For Life.

Assuming that the testimony of the respondent is to be accepted, the most it establishes is that she came with her daughter from California to Peterborough, and that the appellant's expense, to become a member of his household, and subject to the condition that they should continue members of it as long as they should agree to live together. It was most unlikely that the appellant who, as far as appears from the evidence, did not know by personal contact with them the respondent and her daughter, would have tied himself by such an agreement as it has been found he entered into, and it would be surprising if the respondent intended to tie herself for his life to take charge of his household knowing little or nothing of the kind of household she was about to enter into.

It was not quite fair to the appellant for the learned Judge, as he did, to put into the respondent's mouth, page 36, lines 34, 35, the only statement that has any appearance of a contractual relationship having been entered into. After a rather rambling statement by her the following occurred:

"His Honour: You were to take care of him and he was to support you; was that it?"

"That was the understanding."

Appeal Allowed.

For those reasons I am of the opinion that the appeal should be allowed and the judgment appealed from be reversed, and that there should be substituted for it judgment for the appellant for possession of the land and chattels, and dismissing the counter claim, and I see no reason for departing from the ordinary rule as to costs, and I would direct that the costs throughout be paid by the respondent.

I may point out that the learned judge has allowed a claim that the household furniture was given to the respondent though all that she claimed by her pleadings was that the gift was to her for life only.

Thinks New Bridge Would Help Buyers

Mayor W. H. Taylor who was interviewed yesterday by Mr. J. C. O'Leary regarding the proposed bridge over Pigeon Lake, said to-day he believes the project, if carried out, would bring a number of buyers to Peterboro.

Although the bridge has been missing for many years, the people have not been accustomed to its absence, and in the Mayor's opinion its construction would mean a great deal of business men in the city.

ONTARIO FARMERS GET SMALL PRICE

One of Them Thinks American Produce Should Be Shut Out of Local Market.

Ontario farmers in several districts are complaining bitterly over the large quantity of early American produce that is being retailed in Canadian centres ahead of the home-grown produce. Especially is this true of early-grown potatoes. It is claimed by some farmers that American early potatoes are shipped into Canada in carload lots and that when the Canadian potatoes are ready for sale, the farmers have no market for some time.

The wholesalers buy the first potatoes that come in, and as no tariff is charged on potates, lettuce and certain other vegetables coming from over the border the wholesalers are able to turn them over at a price as low as the home grown product.

Farmers in the Peterborough district seem to accept the situation more philosophically than their fellow agriculturists elsewhere, judging by their remarks to the Examiner this morning.

One man who had a big load of un sold potatoes on the market square, said: "It has always been the same. The weather is better down there. We can't help it." Another went even further. "If I can't raise potatoes and sell them at a price to compete with the Americans I won't kick," he said. "They have to ship their potatoes a longer distance, and that should give us a chance."

A third who was selling new potatoes at 90 cents a peck, expressed the view that something should be done to protect the Canadian farmer, who is two weeks behind the American competitor because of weather conditions. When he does reach the market with early vegetables, Canadian must accept a lower price, this man said. "The people will naturally buy the first potatoes they see, without asking, where they come from.

If there was a tariff to protect us, it would keep the Americans out of the market until our potatoes are ready."

TEXAS UNIVERSITY MAY BECOME RICH.

Oil on School Lands May Be Magic That Will Rejuvenate Old School.

AUSTIN, Tex., July 21 (Associated Press).—Students and officials of the University of Texas who for several years have dreamed of extensive improvements for the school may have their dream fulfilled by the magic of oil. A $6,000,000 improvement programme has been outlined for some time. The board of regents had taken steps to obtain loans for the improvements, but it was not until a few weeks ago that hope developed for other sources of revenue.

It is admitted by university officials that should a producing oil field be opened on the school's lands in West Texas it probably would be one of the richest schools in the nation. Reports of a gusher in Reagan county were made recently, but it remains for the field to be proven.

University officials are reluctant to express themselves regarding the probable income of the school from the field. On returning from an inspection of the Santa Rita well which has caused much discussion, Dr. J. A. Udden, head of the university geology department, declared that prospects are favorable for a producer, although he would not hazard a guess as to the value of the field. All permits on the university block have been taken up as a result of the Santa Rita prospects.

The state university holds title to 72 sections of land in the Reagan county district. The income from the land under state law, is used for perament improvements. The state legislature probably would make provision for other uses in case a large income is derived.

Fat That Shows Soon Disappear

Prominent fat that comes and stays where it is not needed is a burden, a hindrance to activity, a curb upon pleasure. You can take off the fat where it shows by taking after each meal and at bedtime, one Marmola Prescription Tablet. These little tablets are as effective and harmless as the famous prescription from which they take their name. Buy and try a case to-day. All druggists the world over sell them at one dollar for a case or you can order them direct from the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich. You can thus say good-bye to dieting, exercise and fat.

HIGH TENSION LINE CAUSED MAN'S DEATH.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 21. —(Canadian Press).—Bayard Beverley Lundy, aged 64, of Lundy's Lane, was killed late last night when a wire fell from a high tension line on to his wire fence. A bush was set on fire, and Lundy was trying to put it out when he touched the fence. He was found with his feet sticking through the fence. The men who tried to rescue him received a slight shock.

CHOLERA INFANTUM

Cholera infantum is one of the fatal ailments of childhood. It is a trouble that comes on suddenly, especially during the summer months, and unless prompt action is taken the little one may soon be beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets are an ideal medicine in warding off this trouble. They regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus prevent all the dreaded summer complaints. They are an absolutely safe medicine, being guaranteed by a government analyist to contain no opiates or narcotics or other harmful drugs. They cannot possibly do harm—they always do good. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DEATH AND WRECKAGE IN PATH OF HURRICANE.

REGINA, July 21. — (Canadian Press).—Neil McLennon, farmer, of Harptree, near Bengough, was killed, several buildings were raized to the ground, hundreds of acres of crops were damaged and machinery and implements blown about by a hurricane and hail storm which struck Bengough, Vicery, Ceylon and Harptree districts Thursday morning, became known here late last night. From the meagre details obtained, it is estimated that property damage will run into thousands, and hundreds of acres of crops were laid low by hail and dislodged by wind.

GIVES TIMELY TIPS FOR TOURING
By E. H. SCOTT

The Tools and Spares to Carry on Your Tour

Previous articles have described just how to go over your car and make sure that mechanically it is in good condition. Now we are ready to make the final preparations and get our equipment together ready for the road.

With all the precautions you can take, little troubles are liable to occur even with the finest car made, and there is nothing more annoying than to have something go wrong on the road which could be fixed up on a minute or so, if only you had the tools to do the job with. There are also one or two accessories that should be carried.

Taking the accessories first, have you a spot light? If not, get one. For the tourist, the spot light is invaluable. Suppose you have tire or engine trouble on the road at night, the spot light can be turned around and directed so that you can perform the work necessary in a good light. When driving at night, the headlights will rarely illuminate the cross road signs, but with a spot light, you can focus the beam and read the sign without difficulty, in most cases without stopping the car. Then again, when you have to dim the headlights to pass another car, the spot light beam can be directed down and across the car in such a way that it does not dazzle those in the approaching car, yet lights up the road in front of you.

Last, but not least, the spot light will furnish you all the light you need for the tent. Be sure to get a light with at least 12 feet of extra cord or cable, so that you can carry it around to any part of the car where you need light.

Now take out the tool kit and go over it carefully. In addition to the special tools for certain parts, such as the wrench for the hub caps, etc., you will be wise to see that you have those listed below. With these you will be in a position to make any repair or adjustment on the road that is within the power of the average owner.

One large and one small adjustable wrench. Set of wrenches to fit all nuts on car. Special box spanner to fit the spark plugs. One medium sized hammer. One large and one small screw driver. Pair of cutting plyers. One medium sized pipe wrench. Hack saw blade. One each cold chisel, round punch, and centre punch. One flat file, square file, half round file, and one special magneto type file. Three good strong tire levers. Tire pump. Good lifting jack. Grease and oil gun. Small portable vice that will clamp to running board. Wire tow rope.

Your spares should include the following: At least one good spare time mounted on wheel or rim. Two spare tubes in bags. Reserve supply of half a gallon of oil and half a gallon of gasoline. Small can of grease. Three or four tested spark plugs. One box of assorted split pins, washers, nuts and bolts. Spool of copper wire about 20 ga., and spool of picture frame wire. Length of insulated spark plug cable about 10 feet long. Cake of American Family soap. Supply of rags of waste. Set of electric light bulbs and fuses. Fan belt.

All of these tools and spares can be packed away very compactly. Have your tools arranged in a canvas or leather roll and placed under the seat or where they can be gotten at easily when you need them. If tools are placed where they are hard to get at, it tempts you to put off tightening up nuts and bolts or making some small repair, and perhaps results in some part breaking or working loose, causing serious damage. Tools like the screw driver, plyers and adjustable wrench should be carried in the pocket of a door or where they can be reached at once when you need them.

Don't forget to carry a good supply of rags or waste or the soap. The soap comes in useful not only for washing purposes, but will also help you to make a temporary repair if you are unfortunate enough to crack a gasoline pipe or have a leaking connection. Soften the soap and plaster it around the crack or connection, then wind a strip of rag or some insulating tape all around. The rags will enable you to pack the tools so that they will not rattle about.

The tow rope is not absolutely necessary unless you are going on a long trip, but in any case it is a handy thing to have on a car. You never know when you will have to make a detour or strike a muddy stretch of road, and the tow rope might be just the thing about all others that you need. If you are not carrying mud chains (and you should) the tow rope can be used to wrap around the tire and pull you out.

Be sure about your spare spark plugs. Take new ones preferably, or if the plugs have been used, be sure that they are clean and test them to see that they are all right. Most owners think they have spare plugs, but when they come to look for them in time of trouble, they discover that what they really have is half a dozen oily, fouled up, defective plugs that have never been cleaned, and which you cannot depend upon. Make sure that the spares you are going to carry are GOOD plugs.

Always use a box spanner to remove the spark plugs. If you use an open end wrench it is always liable to slip off and break the porcelain. It is a good policy also to use one particular make of spark plugs. Some plugs suit one engine better than another. It is always best to stick to the make and type of plug supplied by the manufacturer of your car. He knows better than anyone else what plugs suits his particular engine.

ONCE YOU OVERCOME FEAR OF THE WATER YOU CAN SWIM WITH BUT LITTLE PRACTICE—TRY THESE STUNTS

HOW TO SWIM THE CRAWL

MISS SHEFFIELD DEMONSTRATING CORRECT ARM MOTION FOR THE ELEMENTARY CRAWL, OR DOG PADDLE—THE STROKE SHE ADVISES FOR BEGINNERS.

(By Lyba M. Sheffield)

SAN FRANSISCO, July 21.—When you can breathe correctly and keep your balance in the water, you are ready to learn how to swim.

In all the exercises I outlined yesterday, you kept hold of some support. Now you are ready to "push off" from such support.

Stand with your back to the side of the tank, arms extended in front of you, palms on the water's surface.

Place the sole of your left foot against the side of the tank behind you, bending your left knee to a right angle.

Next lower the body, bending slightly forward, until the shoulders are under water.

Now take a deep breath, hold it, quickly submerge your face, and forcibly push yourself forward through the water with the left leg.

Glide forward until forced to come up for air. Then regain standing position in the manner described yesterday.

The Pushoff.

This is technically known as the "face-submerged pushoff," and it is well to practice it until it comes as naturally to you as walking.

When the face-submerged pushoff is correctly combined with leg and arm motion, you will be swimming.

The stroke which comes most naturally to the majority of beginners is the elementary crawl, also known as the "dog paddle."

To achieve the correct leg motion, face the side of the tank and grasp some support slightly above the surface of the water.

Keeping hold of the support, take the face-down floating position described yesterday, but keep the nostrils above water by turning the head so that the right side only is in the water.

With the legs extended, kick your feet up and down alternately, never having a greater distance than eight to ten inches between the ankles. The up stroke of each foot is easy, the power being on the down stroke.

After practicing this for about two minutes, combine it with the face-submerged pushoff.

To learn the elemetary crawl arm stroke, stand erect, either on land or in water about waist deep, with the right arm extended straight in front of you, palm down, and the left arm down and toward the rear, palm down.

Bend your body slightly forward from the waist and start an alternating paddle motion with the arms, always keeping them the same distance apart.

Elementary Crawl.

You will notice from this motion that when swimming one arm always will be under water while the other is in the air. The one which is under water gives you your propelling power and should be pulled down and under forcibly. The other reaches slowly and steadily forward with a slight circling motion, forearm near the surface of the water.

When this arm motion is combined with the face submerged pushoff and the leg kick described above, you will be swimming the elementary crawl. Try it, but I advise that you begin with only four or five strokes before regaining standing position.

Practice on this stroke until you are its master. If you try to rush progress at this point you merely will learn many things which you will later have to unlearn. The elementary crawl, properly mastered, will give you a swimming foundation upon which you later can build other strokes; without it, you are most apt to copy incorrectly correct swimming of those about you. You must feel at home in the water before you can become proficient, and you will when you can swim the elementary crawl.

CROP REPORTS

The following is a summary of returns made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

The cutting of fall wheat was general in Kent during the latter part of the week, and the representative reports the crop stooking up better than was expected earlier in the season. Harvesting will be started in several other counties by the end of the present week, in some cases over-lapping hay cutting.

The spring grains are looking fairly promising, although the opinion is expressed that much of the straw will be short in length. Complaints of Hessian fly in wheat fields come from Waterloo and Welland.

Fewer farm laborers than usual are available, a scarcity of experienced men being reported in almost every county. Some farmers have been able to get along so far by exchanging work with neighbors.

Recent rains have been of great help to corn, beans and roots which have picked up wonderfully of late, and all of which were considered rather backward for the season.

Waterloo reports that some land has already been turned over for fall wheat.

Bruce states that sweet clover has not been used so much for hay as formerly, and that more of it is being plowed down. There has been a bumper yield of alfalfa in that county.

On the other hand, Elgin claims that sweet clover has done much to overcome the shortage of common pastures.

Leeds: Prices of strawberries have been as low as six cents a box with the average around ten cents a box. Some growers have been marketing their berries across the river in Ogdensburg, realizing from fifteen to seventeen cents per box.

Kenora, and Prescott and Russell, report splendid prospects for good yields of honey. New honey in Enlgin is bringing twenty cents per pound.

Dundas: Egg buyers through the country report receipts of eggs have fallen off at least fifty per cent. in the past two weeks.

Gray: Lambs are now going to market in large numbers. The uncastrated stock has not suffered a reduction, but it is expected at any time. Some joint ill in colts is reported from various sections. Some are asking for the serum produced by the Veterinary General's Department, Ottawa, as results where this material has been tried are quite encouraging.

Elgin: The heel fly was very bad for a time, but has apparently quit. Hogs are not going rapidly to market, but there is a steady improvement in quality.

Waterloo: The principal farm products being marketed at the present time consist of hogs, grass cattle and hay.

South Simcoe: Heavier shipments of livestock, particularly of hogs and lambs, were marketed this week than has been the case for some time past. Eight dollars per cwt. was paid for hogs on the thick smooth basis, while lambs ranged from $13.50 to $14.50 per cwt. Eight to nine dollars per cwt. was paid for calves. A few good quality cattle of the butcher class brought $7.25 per cwt. at point of shipment. Cattle prices ranged as low as $3.50 per cwt. which figure was paid for some very ordinary light stockers.

Bruce: It is expected that a number of carloads of export cattle will leave this county during the next two or three weeks. These cattle are in high finish, owing to the excellent condition of the pasture this season. It is noticeable that there are a larger number of colrs being raised this year than usually.

Lennox and Addington: Very few pigs are being marketed, but a considerable number of calves and some cattle were sold.z During the week, calves were sold at from 6c to 8c per lb.; cattle at from $30 to $35 per head. A large number of broilers are now being marketed by farmers for which they receive 30c per lb.live weight, and 40c per lb. scalded.

Kent: Considerable stock has been shipped from the country this week. Those farmers who have been finishing steers are disposing of the same.

Leeds: The quantity of milk being delivered to cheese factories is dropping off rapidly. One factory states that there has been a drop of 3,000 lbs. of milk in one week. Prices remain stationary for cream and butter at 32c and 33c respectively; whey butter 29c a lb.; cheese firmer at 17½c.

Efficient Housekeeping

The modern idea of efficiency extends into the household as well as into every branch of business. Most housewives pride themselves upon the fact that their homes are conducted in an efficient, business-like manner.

Every housewife knows, too, that the business of running a house, providing for the wants and needs of the different members of the family and meeting the almost daily emergencies is second to none.

The Want Ads. in the Examiner are a great boon to the efficient housewife. In securing helpers, in purchasing various articles of household equipment, disposing of discarded furniture, in fact in countless ways, the Want Ads. are the housewife's most valuable assistant.

BARNS BURNED IN SEYMOUR TOWNSHIP

Children Playing With Matches Supposed to Have Caused One Fire.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 21.—Two barns were destroyed by fire here Friday, both from causes that have not yet been discovered.

The first fire was on the farm of George Wallace, which lies just outside of the town limits on the sixth concession, the road leading to Burnbrae. The fire started on the side of the road, where it is supposed some passing traveller had thrown a ilghted cigar or cigarette stub, which set alight the dry grass. The Wallace family were all away from home at the time and before the neighbors noticed that anything was wrong the flames had crossed the field and caught on a hay stack from which it spread to the barn close by.

The Campbellford fire brigade was called out, but as the barn was beyond the town limits they were unable to tur nany water upon the fire. They used the chemical apparatus, however, with such good effect that the house, which caught fire several times, was saved. The barn contained seven laods of hay and there were 13 loads in the stack, all of which was wholly consumed.

Mr. Bibby's Barn Burned.

About 8 o'clock last night the brigade was called out to a fire in the barn of Robert Bibby, on Ranney street, oppdsite the new High school. Mr. Bibby, who runs a blacksmith shop on the west side of the river, was enjoying the half holiday with hisfamily at Bradley Bay, for which place they had left by auto at about 4 p.m.

It is supposed that the fire was caused by children playing in the building with matches. The barn was of frame and burned like tinder. The firemen made a quick run but the building was in flames before they reached it. The best they could do was to save the house, which caught fire several times, and the surrounding property, all frame buildings The brigade worked like Trojans, and prevented what might have been a serious conflagration, as there is no saying where the fire would have stopped had it once got beyond control.

The burned barn and the house in which Mr. Bibby resides belong to Richard Mahoney. Mr. Bibby lost two loads of hay, a cutter and cart, harness and other articles. He had no insurance. There was also stored in the barn upwards of 500 worn auto tires belonging to David Pettibone. Everything is a total loss, and nothing but the shell of the building is left standing.

While the fire was in progress some person telephoned to Mr. Bibby at Bradley Bay that his barn was in flames and that his house, too, was doomed. He made a record run to Campbellford to find that the firemen had saved his home. His wife, however, was almost prostrated by the shock.

Effects of Dry Weather.

The effects of the recent spell of hot and dry weather is apparent everywhere throughout this district. It is hard to realize the change that has come over the face of nature within the past few days. Fields of grain and hay are becoming prematurely ripe, and it is believed that the wheat and other crops will not fill properly on account of the hot wave. Pasture fields that only last week were as green as in the early spring are now burned brown, and the loss to the farmers will be serious if present conditions continue.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM CHOKING

Plum Stone Lodged in Throat of Samuel Mills, Omemee—Extracted By Lindsay Doctor.

OMEMEE, July 21.—Mr. Samuel Mills, a carpenter here, had a narrow escape from choking on Wednesday evening. He had completed his day's work, and was partaking of his supper, and while eating plums, he accidentally swallowed a stone, which lodged in his throat. He was hurried to the doctor's office in town, but unfortunately Dr. Earl was away, and he was rushed to a Lindsay physician, who extricated the stone. Mr. Mills has had several operations on his throat, and the stone lodged in a cavity left by one.

Mr. Mills is on duty again, none the worse for his experience.

Monthly Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Omemee branch of the East Victoria Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. R. J. Cornwall on Thursday afternoon, and took the form of a picnic. The lawn was beautifully decorated with flags and pennants, and presented a welcoming appearance. There were a goodly number present. The president, Mrs. E. MacPherson, occupied the chair.

After the opening exercises, a duet was given by the Misses Lang, of Millbrook, which was much appreciated. An important feature on the programme was a report of the district 'convention held recently in Lindsay, which was given by the delegates, Mrs. Widdis and Mrs. Cornwall. The morning session, and Mrs. Jenning's address on Confederation, was reported by the latter, and the afternoon session by Mrs. Widdis.

Mrs. (Dr.) Earle then contributed a reading.

Many items of business were discussed, such as the purchasing of awnings for the junior room of the Public School, to be decided at the August meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. A. Scott. The meeting closed with the National Anthem, after which refreshments were served.

SIR JAMES CRAIG WILL QUIT POST

BELFAST, July 21. — (Canadian Press).—It is persistently rumored that Sir James Craig will resign as Premier of Ulster, according to the Irish News, a Nationalist newspaper.

Reports are based apparently on the absence of the Premier from Belfast last week for the Orange demonstrations.

The Belfast News says that Sir James' name has been associated with the coming appointment to the Colonial Governorship. It is stated authoritatively that he was offered the Colonial post in 1921 but refused because it necessitated his withdrawal from Irish politics during that critical period.

Consider Favorably Reduced Grain Rates.

SASKATOON, July 21.—(Canadian Press).—Officials of the Canadian National Railways will consider favorably the possibilities of reducing the grain rate from Edmonton to Quebec by the all-rail route, Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, informthe Royal Grain Enquiry Commission here yesterday. As far as the present is concerned, however, there will be no reductions.

Sir Henry's figures for the proposed reduction would give Quebec an advantage of four cents over New York. He thought the Crow's Nest Pass agreement extending as far as Fort William could be easily extended to Quebec.

HOLY PLACES OCCUPIED

JERUSALEM, June 21. — (Associated Press). — The three most important "holy places" of the Armenian Catholic Church are now occupied by American relief units, according to the annual report of the Armenian Patriarch here. They are The St.James Monastery on Mount Zion, the official residence of the Armenian Patriarch, and the Convent of the Holy Cross.

St. James Monastery, built in the twelfth century, was formerly used for housing the thousands of Armenian pilgrims who came annually to Jerusalem. The extensive grounds of the monastery are now occupied by an American agricultural school for orphans, and the residence of the patriarch is a trade school supported by the American Near East Relief.

The Convent of the Holy Cross, standing on the traditional site of the tree from which the Cross was made, is an American hotel for girls. The building is more than a thousand years old.

HAS CROSSED FRONTIER.

BERLIN, July 21. — (Canadian Press.)—According to special newspaper despatches from Vienna, Captain Hermann Ehrhardt, leader of the Kapp Putsch of 1920, who escaped from prison at Leipzig July 13 has arrived in Hungary. The reports say that the fugitive succeeded in crossing the frontier concealed in a private automobile.

CHANGE OF LIFE LOSES TERRORS

For Women who Rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Pa.—"I took your medicine through the Change of Life and it did wonders for me. I was down in bed when I started to take it and weighed 96 pounds. I had hot flashes and was so nervous and weak that everything would get black and I could not see. I would sit and cry and did not know what I was crying for. Since I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel younger than I did ten years ago, and my friends all tell me I look younger, and I owe it all to the Vegetable Compound. I do all my housework for a family of seven now. I will be glad to answer any woman who writes me in regard to my case."—Mrs. JOHN MYERS, 55 Union St., Greenville, Pa.

Many letters similar to this have been published testifying to the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They are sincere expressions from women who describe as best they can their feelings before and after taking this well-known medicine.

UNMARRIED PARENTS' ACT BEING ENFORCED HERE

George Powell of the Children's Aid Society, who is charged with enforcing the Unmarried Parents' Act in Peterborough, reports that the number of cases brought to his attention under the act shows a decrease this year.

In almost all cases handled by the Inspector, satisfactory arrangements are made without bringing the offending parties into court. In some cases, however, it is necessary to invoke the assistance of the law, and in one case settled recently an allowance of $100 for expenses and a yearly allowance of $100 for 16 years were awarded.

SOLD GOODS UNDER FALSE PRETENCES

Peterborough Man Arrested at Whitby — Fined $10 and Costs.

LINDSAY, July 21.—(Special). — A Peterborough man, answering to the name of Knox, was arrested in Sunderland on July 12, and lodged in the jail at Whitby, on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences. Knox, it appears, was selling badges at the celebration in Sunderland, the proceeds of which, he claimed, were to be devoted to the Orange Orphans' Home.

It was found that he had no authority for such sale. He was doing a very lucrative business when the police stepped in, having disposed of $34.00 worth with a reserve of some two hundred. The money and badges were confiscated.

Knox came up before Police Magistrate Hamilton on Tuesday, and was fined $10 and costs. The proceeds from the sale of badges, it is understood, has been turned over to the Orphanage. He admitted he was selling as agent for another party in Peterborough.

Negotiations Depend on Firpo Himself.

NEW YORK, July 21.—(Canadian Press).— Negotiations for a Jack Dempsey-Luis Firpo heavyweight title match within the next few months, either in this country, or the Argentine, hinge upon the attitude of the Argentine battler, it developed yesterday.

Jack Kearns, the champion's manager, has practically agreed to Tex Rickard's terms, it was stated. Both Kearns and Rickard are now said to favor holding the battle in this country, possibly at Boyle's Thirty Acres, around Labor Day.

Firpo, however, was said to be weighing the desire to fight for the title before his countrymen, against the possibility of greater financial gain if the bout is staged here. Although confident of his ability to win h, i, said also to entertain some doubts as to his ability to reach his form within the few weeks remaining before the date for the proposed holiday match.

KINGSTON HOWLS AT COBOURG WIN

Torridity of Weather Reflected in "Standard's" Blast.

The Kingston "Big Four" team last evening practically extinguished itself as far as the C.O.B.L. is concerned by dropping a weird game to the tailend Cobourg team, which, scarcely more than forty-eight hours before had shown every indication of how not to play the game. By handing out support of the poorest kind to the pitchers, by practically handing the opponents runs, by failing to go after balls hit beyond the field in fact by doing things which are not baseball by any means, the locals succeeded in boosting the stock of the visitors, and in eliminating themselves as contenders in the C.O.B.L. Not all the players are included in this, a few of them, very few and these few, by the way, easily picked out, were out there trying while they were allowed to play, and their efforts received the hearty support of the interested fans. Of the others, well, the fans said enough at times yesterday evening. It was a pity to see the real players sacrifice their efforts, but they have the satisfaction of having done their best and of knowing that the real baseball critics have taken congnizance of their sterling efforts.

Those responsible for the team may as well make up their minds that they have not now, nor have they had for some time, a bunch of players all of whom were prepared to go out and do their best. On past performances some of those who went out last night should not have gone out, the team was not well balanced, at least not till it was too late, and all through the game there was on the part of some of the players a carelessness which should have sent them to the bench in short order. The team needs younger blood. That fact was again emphasized last night. The day of playing on past reputations is gone, and the sooner that this is clearly understood by all hands the better. Last night's game cost the team its chances in the running and it cost the team much of the support which has been handed out in the past, largely in the hope that the players would get together and play real baseball.—Kingston Standard.

LAKEVIEWS WON FROM BETHANY

Their Score Sheet Still Unblemished By a Defeat—Whitehouse Has 122 Strikeouts For Season.

Lou LeBarr's Lakeviews, junior city league champions went out to Bethany and added another victory to their string by the score of 18 runs to 6. It was an exhibition game with an argument or two thrown in but played throughout under the friendliest relations. After the game the Peterboro team were Bethany's guests at an al fresco supper served on a lawn. In the eight innings to which the game had to be limited Doug Moore and Frank Whitehouse distinguished themselves at bat, the former getting two triples and Whitehouse two doubles.

This was the Lakeview's eleventh game of the season improving their record of ten wins and one tie. The latter game was with the Adanacs and was scoreless. In the ten others they scored 107 runs while they held their opponents to a total of 14, and Frank Whitehouse their brilliant moundsman has a grand total of 122 strikeouts to his credit. The fans all recognize the performance of the team and especially of young Whitehouse, who has established a remarkable record on the rubber, as an outstanding achievement in local baseball.

Next Thursday night (July 26) the Lakeviews will play an exhibition game with the C.G.E. intermediate at Riverside Park beginning at 6 p.m. There will be no admission fee, but a silver collection will be taken up to help defray the expenses of the winning teams in the several city league series when they start their O.B.A.A. semi-finals games.

It is hoped that the fans will turn out for this game which should give both teams a good practice while they are waiting for the play-offs.

EVERY INFIELDER ON THE SICK LIST

Detroit Showed Great Form in Early Games But Has Had Hard Luck Since.

DETROIT, July 21.—It is always cusfomary for a losing ball club to have an alibi. The Detroit Tigers are no exception.

Picked by many to make all kinds of trouble for the New York Yankees, the Tigers have so far failed to come up to expectations. The club's showing has been a distinct disappointment.

It was figured that the deal which brought Second Baseman Pratt and Pitcher Collins from Boston to Detroit would make the Tigers. These two players so far have added no material strength to the club.

In the matter of injuries a jinx has been on the trail of the team since the opening of the season. Detroit has suffered more from injuries and illness than any other club in either major league circuit.

"For the first 16 games of the season we had our regular lineup," explains Manager Cobb. "Of those 16 games we won 11 and lost five. No club in the league played better ball during the first three or four weeks of the season.

"Then came a series of accidents in which every man on the infield has suffered. Third Baseman Jones and First Baseman Blue have been out for weeks.

"Since our sixteenth game of the season we have not once been able to place our regular team in the field. It seems the moment an ailing regular gets back, another one is forced out.

"Had we been able to keep our regular team in the field like the Yanks, we would now be pressing them hard for first place.

PETES BEATEN BY PONIES IN A WILD GAME AT KINGSTON

Extra Base Hits and Errors Feature Fixture in Which Solomon Crew Lose 16 to 11.

FOUR HOME RUNS.

In the wildest game that has been staged in the Central Ontario League this season the Petes were beaten 16 to 11 at Kingston last evening, after a contest replete with extra base hits, clusters of runs and an abundance of errors. Neither Gallagher, who twirled for the Ponies, nor Heckman, who was on the firing line during the greater part of the game for the Petes, had much on the ball and the batters had a field day, while the teams, especially the Petes, failed to rally to the defence of their pitchers. The Solomon crew had eight errors and the misplays, especially those made by the outfield, were very costly, the mistakes in the garden being responsible for six of the Kingston counters.

The Petes' hitting was the only redeeming feature about their play, Heckman leading the way with a home run and a triple, while Comolli and Helson also hit for the circuit. Kingston were swinging their bats with a vengeance, too, Evans having four hits and Batstone cashing in with a homer that put the game on ice when the Petes were threatening to overhaul the Ponies.

The Solomon crew took an early lead by scoring four in the second inning and they were ahead 5 to 2 until the fourth, when Kingston scored six runs after two men were out, the first three on hits and the balance on errors. Four more in the sixth ran the score up to 13 to 6, but the Petes bumped Gallagher for seven hits in the seventh, including a triple by Swanston and a homer by Comolli for a total of five runs and looked to be back in the hunt until Batstone hammered a home run with two on in Kingston's half.

Hutchinson relieved Heckman at this stage and stopped the scoring for the rest of the game, keeping the Ponies from hitting the ball out of the infield.

The condition of the Kingston grounds accounts largely for the big score. The outfield is baked as hard as a pavement and the ball bounces like a tennis ball when it hits the ground, the result being that hits that would be singles at Riverside park tear through for home runs. The grounders skip past the infielders at lightning speed and crazy hops result in easy hits.

After the hard ten inning game he pitched against Belleville on Wednesday, it was throwing a heavy load on Heckman's shoulders to shoot him in again last evening, and in addition he got little help from his team mates, who slumped badly on the defensive.

Playing the brand of ball they have been showing, and with Heckman in anything like his usual form, the Petes should have had an easy win, for Gallagher had nothing to stop them with.

Shaughnessy started the Petes off in the first with a single to centre and was sacrificed to second by Johnston. Cherry made a nice catch of Swanston's rap that looked like a homer, and Ansaldo was thrown out by Gallagher.

For Kingston, Twigg flied to Collins and Teeple to Wolfe. Rice doubled to left, but Heckman threw out Somerville.

The Petes got four in the second. Comolli started with a single to left and Helson followed with a homer to deep left, scoring two. Wolfe was safe on Evans' error, stole second and came home on Heckman's triple to right. Heckman remained on third while Collins was being thrownout by Evans and then scored when Shaughnessy beat out a hit to Daley. Johnston sacrificed Shag to second, but Swanston fanned to retire the side.

Kingston got one back in their half. Cherry flied to Shaughnessy, a nice catch by the left fielder. Batstone singled to right and when the ball rolled through Collins the hitter completed the circuit. Daley grounded to Comolli. Evans singled to right, but Comolli was under Gallagher's high one.

In the third Ansaldo singled to left, but Comolli struck out and Ansaldo was doubled off first when Helson lined into Evans hands.

The Ponies got another cheap run. Twigg popped to Johnston. Nicholson walked and stole second, going to third on Rice's tap to Ansaldo on which the batter was retired. Wolff muffed Somerville's easy fly to centre and Nicholson scored. Cherry singled past second but Batstone lined to Johnston.

A homer by Heckman featured the Petes' fourth. Wolfe rolled to Somerville. Heckman then hit over Somerville's head in deep centre field for the circuit. Gallagher threw out Collins and retired Shaughnessy on strikes.

The Kingston half was a nightmare for the Petes. Daley flied to Wolfe to start with, but Evans singled to right and Gallagher to centre, and when Heckman hit Twigg the bases were full. Nicholson fouled out to Comolli. With two strikes and three balls on Rice and all the runners in motion, Rice doubled to centre clearing the sacks and tying the score. Helson lost Somerville's bounder and when Ansaldo fumbled Cherry's roller the bases were full again. Then Wolfe dropped Batston's drive to centre and Rice, Somerville and Cherry scored and the batter reached second. Johnston threw out Daley to retire the side.

In the fifth Johnston grounded to Gallagher and Swanston to Evans. Ansaldo's grounder to Evans was fumbled and the batter was safe, but Rice grabbed Comolli's foul fly.

Kingston added another in their half. Evans singled to centre, Gallagher and Twigg fanned. Evans stole second and scored when Shaughnessy missed Nicholson's drive to left. Nicholson was forced by Rice, Helson to Johnston.

Helson, first up for the Petes, was safe on Evans' fumble and Wolfe was hit. Heckman out, Evans to Daley, advanced the runners, and Helson scored while Somerville was throwing out Collins. Shaughnessy flied to Nicholls.

The Limestone crew bagged four Somerville started with a single to left and Cherry singled through short. Batstone bunted to Heckman and everybody was safe when Helson dropped the pitcher's toss. Daley hit to Ansaldo and Cherry was called out for interference when he ran into the short stop. Evans cleared the bases with a triple. Gallagher hit to Comolli who threw Evans out at the plate. Singles by Twigg and Nicholson scored Gallagher after which Nicholson was caught off flirst base.

That left the score 13 to 6 for the Ponies but the Petes can back with a rally in the seventh that netted them five runs. Johnston started it with a single to left. Swanston scored him with a triple down the right field foul line. Ansaldo singled to left scoring Swanston and Comolli boomed a homer over Nicholson's head in centre scoring Ansaldo in front of him. Helson singled through short. Wolfe popped to Evans and Heckman flied to Twigg but Collins cut a single past Batstone sending Helson in. The tying runs were on the bases but Johnston up for the second time flied to Nicholson in centre.

The Petes still had a chance but Batstone killed it in Kingston's half of the same frame. Rice singled through short. Somerville flied to Wolfe. Cherry singled to left and obth scored in front of Batstone when the latter hit to right field for a homer. Hutchinson replaced Heckman at this stage and struck out Daley. Evans was safe on Ansaldo's miss and stole second but Johnston threw out Gallagher.

In the eighth Swanston obunced a single over third but was forced at second on Ansaldo's tap to Batstone. Twigg muffed Comolli's fly to right but Helson fouled out and Wolfe fanned.

Twigg bunted safely as start Kingstan's half but was out a yard when he tried to steal. Nicholson walked but was forced at second on Rice's tap to Ansaldo and Somerville rolled to Comolli for the third out.

For the first time in the game the side was returned in order in the ninth. Hutchinson fanned Collins popped to Batstone and Shaughnessy struck out.

INDUSTRIAL SPORTS ARE HERE TO STAY

Big Employers Looking to Athletics to Take the Place of the Corner Saloon.

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, July 21.—Big business is beginning to realize the worth of sports.

A few years ago employers in the major factories and business houses looked upon sport merely as a recreation and took no hand. Now it is considered a part of the business.

Baseball grounds, athletic tracks, football fields and tennis courts are being constructed by nearly every big plant, in the realization that such recreation may take the place of the old corner saloon. It increases the efficiency of the workers and holds them to their jobs.

Perhaps the largest undertaking of this kind has been launched by the Westinghouse Electric Company, which has organized what is known as "The Westinghouse Athletic Association. The company employs more than 30,000 persons and its monthly payroll averages over $4,250,000.

The organization pays for itself from admissions, which are carefully handled by a board of directors.

Girls' activities are under a separate association. They play baseball, tennis and basketball. At present they have one baseball team, two basketball teams and have arranged a tennis tournament.

Seven men baseball teams are formed into an intershop league where prizes are offered to the pennant winner and the team finishing in second place.

The success of the scheme indicates clearly that industrial athletics have come to stay.

LUCK BREAKS EVEN.

A lot of folks talk about the "luck of the game."

In most cases it about evens up in the long run. Walter Hoover, the Duluth sculling star, who won the Diamond Sculls last year, lost this year to the same man in the same manner that he had won.

When Hoover and D. H. L. Golan of Leanders were rowing the first heat in the race last year, Gollan's oar blade split and he was forced to drop out of the race, while Hoover continued on and won.

This year Hoover's oar split in the same heat.

TRADED PITCHERS.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., July 21. — (Canadian Press.)— Rochester and Reading swapped pitchers here yesterday, when it was announced by the local club that Ralph Judd would go to the Keys for Francis Karpp. Judd has won ten games this season and lost six, while Karpp has won six and lost seven. No cash was involved in the trade, it was said.

COMFORTS FOR ATHLETES

Speaking of the Olympiad, the word is given out by the American Olympic committee that a little village is being contructed outside the stadium at Colombes.

Practically all of the countries have agreed to take a number of the little villas which have four separate rooms, suitably furnished, with two bedrooms and lavatories. The houses taken by each country will be fenced off so that each nation will be a separate community.

In each section there will be fenced off so that each nation will be a separate community.

In each section there will be a large dining room and reading room with shower baths and massage rooms.

A big dance and reception hall will be erected in the center of the village and likewise a theatre, where productions will be staged for the athletes.

A practice running track and swimming pool also is being provided.

SHELBY WAS NOT.

OMAHA, Neb., July 21.—(Canadian Press.)—Mike Collins, St. Paul matchmaker for the Gibbons-Dempsey heavyweight championship fight at Shelby, Mont., in an interview with a Omaha World-Herald representative here yesterday, was quoted as declaring that citizens of Shelby "lost less than $82,00 all told," inconnection with the promotion of the Gibbons-Dempsey fight. He added that Tommy Gibbons made $23,000.

PITCHER LUQUE IS SENSATION OF YEAR

His Wonderful Work on the Mound Has Made Cincinnati a Menace to the Giants.

By BILLY EVANS.

CINCINNATI, July 21.—Often one pitcher going at top speed makes a ball club.

Adolfo Luque of the Cincinnato club is easily the pitching sensation of the major leagues. He has made the Reds a dangerous contender for the fast going New York Giants.

Last season Rixey, by his sensation work, kept the Reds in the race. This year Luque has supplanted Rixey and then some.

The jinx that pursued Luque last year seems to be on the trail of Rixey this season. Inability of Luque to win consistently last year was a big handicap to Pat Moran in his quest for the pennant.

Getting away to a bad start in the spring of 1922 Luque had his troubles winning no matter how well he pitched. The very best he could do was win 13 and lose 23 games for a percentage much lower than that recorded by his club.

When the 1923 campaign opened Manager Pat Moran had his doubts about Luque. Some of the experts on the National League circuit figured the Cuban was slipping. Luque immediately proceeded to upset the dope and has kept on doing it.

In the first 15 games that he has worked Luque has scored 13 victories and suffered only two defeats. Strangely enough the Chicago Cubs won both games by the scores of 2 to 1 and 2 to 0. Luque pitched brilliantly in the two defeats, the breaks of the game, which went against him, decided the issue.

Of the 13 games won by Luque, seven came in a row. Only 23 runs have been made off Luque's delivery in his remarkable pitching performances covering 20 games, in several of which he acted as relief pitcher. An additional proof of his effectiveness can be gleaned from the fact that he leads the National League in strikeouts.

CHANGE OF STYLE SAVED SCHLIEBNER

Was Slated For a Trip to the Minors Because He Couldn't Hit.

ST. LOUIS, July 21.—Substituting for George Sisler, voted the most valuable player in baseball last year, is just about the toughest assignment that could be handed an athlete.

"Dutch" Schliebner is essaying that role for the St. Louis Browns and doing a very good job of it. Schliebner was not considered good enough for the Brooklyn club.

A good fielder, Schliebner was not able to hit Nation League pitching. His troubles started on the spring training trip which the Brooklyn club played with the New York Yankees.

The crafty pitching staff of the Yankees soon observed that Schliebner was a right field hitter. They kept the ball on the inside, against his handle, and as a result he was practically helpless. National League pitchers soon got wise and it wasn't long after the opening of the season that Schliebner was adorning the bench. Manager Robinson was convinced that he couldn't hit major league pitching.

Lee Fohl, in dire need of a first sacker to bolster up the Browns, took a chance on Schliebner, despite the information he had that Schliebner was a weak hitter.

In the American League Schliebner has done very well at the bat. He now hits as many balls to left field as right. We will let Schliebner explain:

"Lee Fohl is responsible for my improved hitting. After my first game he told me I was pushing instead of swinging at the ball. He also said that my stance at the plate was wrong, that a strong fellow like me ought to hit to all fields. Inside of a week he had changed my style entirely and I am now reaping the benefits. From a dead right field hitter I can pull a ball to left field as good as the next fellow."

WHEN IT IS HOT.

Consider Mr. Shadrach,
Of fiery-furnace fame;
He didn't bleat about the heat,
Or fuss about the flame.
He didn't stew and worry,
And get his nerves in kinks,
Nor fill his skin with limes and gin
And other "cooling drinks."

Consider Mr. Meshach,
Who felt the furnace too;
He let is sizz, nor queried "Is
It hot enough for you?"
He didn't mop his forehead,
And hunt a shady spot;
Nor did he say, "Gee what a day!
Believe me, it's some hot!"

Consider, too, Abednego,
Who shared his comrades' plight:
He didn't shake his coat and make Himself a holy sight;
He didn't wear suspenders
Without a coat and vest;
Nor did he scowl and snort and howl
And make himself a pest.

Consider, friends, this trio—
How little fuss they made!
They didn't curse when it was worse
Than ninety in the shade.
They moved about serenely
Within the furnace bright,
And soon forgot that it was hot,
With "no relief in sight."

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — | New York Stock Exchange — And Curb Prices

To-Day's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, July 21 —(United Press)—Further decline hit the stock market after the opening to-day but the last ten minutes demonstrated the ability of the market to absorb traders raids and the last prices in some instances were the best of the day.

New York Central led the rail group selling at 99 3-4 up to 100.

Studebaker rallied 1 1-2 from low to 106 3-4 and even the oils which had been hammered, advance ranged from 1-4 to 1 point from the lows of the session.

Apparently the decline had spent itself by 11.30 for it was evidently that resistance had been met to the selling, this being particularly out in the case of the leading industrials and rails. Studebaker was bought every quarter point down. Steel was quiet only a few hundred shares changing hands from 92 3-8 down to 91 3-4. Unfortunately the break in the oils induced the few traders present to raid the market but they did not bring out much stock Stewart Warner sold at 94 5-8 soon after the opening of the stock market to-day, the price representing an advance of 1 1-4 points, Continental can opened at 47 unchanged and American Ice at 95 was up one.

Baldwin sold at 123 up 5-8 and Studebaker at 107. Rails were active with Reading at 74 3-8 up 5-8, New York Central at 98 7-8 up 1-8 and Atchison 99 5-8 up 1-8.

Marland opened at 40 1-8 unchanged. At the end of the first half hour the Market was strong, although not as active as on the previous day. There were also exceptions to the general advance, notably Phillips Petroleum which sold at 24 1-8 off 5-8 from the close and lowest price of the year. The street is talking of some financing for this company later on. Continental Can. sold at 47 1-4 a new high on the present advance and up 1-4 from the close, this and other $4 stock such as Pere Marquette selling around 43 and Cerro De Pasco around 47 1-4 are considered cheap and attracted bargain hunters recent decline.

Barrett Everlastic Giant Shingles

Lay Them Right Over the Old Roof

Before you order shingles for that new roof be sure to see Barrett Everlastic Giant Shingles—the last word in shingle roofing. They are made by The Barrett Company, Ltd., Canada's oldest and largest manufacturer of roofing materials. A roof of these sturdy shingles will stand staunch and tight against storm and blizzard throughout the years.

Barrett Everlastic Giant Shingles are made and laid 3 to a strip. This means big saving in laying costs

Their weather side is mineral-surfaced in beautiful shades of red, green or blue-black. This fadeless mineral surface resists fire and never needs painting. Their base is heavy roofing-felt thoroughly waterproofed.

Because of this extra-thick, extra-rigid base, these shingles can be laid right over the old roof—(use 1½" galvanized roofing nails)—a saving on re-roofing jobs.

Let us show you Barrett Everlastic Giant Shingles and give you an estimate on a complete roof. You'll like these sturdy shingles—prices are surprisingly moderate.

Plain Surface— Mineral Surface—

S. I. S. Roll Roofing (Seventeen Inch Selvage-Edge Roofing)

Total width of roll 32 inches. 15" of the width of roll is mineral-surfaced. 17" of the width is plain surfaced to insure firm cementing of the overlap. A roof of S. I. S. is double thickness throughout with weather-proof, fire-resisting mineral surface in red or green.

Everlastic Liquid Roofing Cement. Gives new durable surface to worn-out "rubber" and other prepared roofs—stops all leaks.

Plastic Elastigum Patching Cement. Stops leaks in roofs; repairs flashings, gutters, cisterns, etc. Sticks to wet or dry surfaces.

THRILLING AERIAL SCENES IN "THE GO-GETTER"

What are said to be some of the most remarkable night scenes ever filmed will be seen in "The Go-Getter," a Paramount-Cosmopolitan production based on Peter B. Kyne's popular story of the same name, directed by E. H. Griffith, which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. These particular scenes in the picture were filmed in Long Island, N. Y., from Mineola to Hicksville, and while they were being "shot" the company worked for three 'days' from sunset to sunrise.

One scene in particular is said to be a revelation in photography. This pictures a race at night between an aeroplane and a speeding express train, culminating when the plan forges ahead and lights alongside th railroad tracks several hundred yard in advance of the train. One of th most melodramatic incidents in th picture then takes place as T. Ro Barnes, featured in the picture, flag the oncoming express, which "shot" while going at the rate of fo ty miles an hour. The train used i this scene was chartered from th Long Island branch of the Pennsy vania railroad. Three huge moto generating sets were used in the film ing of these scenes, which wer photographed by Harold Wenstrom

Seena Owen is featured with M Barnes in "The Go-Getter," as als are William Norris, Tom Lewis an Louis Wolheim. Frederick Stanle John Carr and Frank Currier a included in an excellent cast.

Calvin Gray hates Colonel Henry Nelson, banker. Gray is in love with Barbara Parker and Nelson tells her father, Tom Parker, that Gray has been dishonorably discharged from the army. Gray and his friend, Gus Briskow, buy the controlling interest in Nelson's bank. At a meeting of the bank's directors, Gray declares that he was discharged from the army through the treachery of Henry Nelson and that later, having been found out, Nelson also was dismissed. Gray forces Nelson to admit the truth. Bud Briskow, son of Gus, meets Barbara Parker. Gray calls to propose marriage to Barbara.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

"Finest in the world! I claim responsibility for him, in a way. He's part mine." Gray laughed; his eyes sparkled.

"Him and 'Bob' are out there together. They've been together a lot, Mr. Gray. Both of 'em young, that-away—"

"Of course. I knew you'd both like—" Some quality in Tom's voice, some reluctant evasiveness to his eyes, bore a belated message to the younger man—snapped his chain of thought—dried the words upon his lips. Into his eyes leaped a sudden, strained incredulity. Sharply, he cried, "What do you mean?" Then, after an instant, "Why did he want to see me?" The two men gazed squarely at each other for the first time. "My God! Why—that's absurd! I—I brought him here. He's just a boy!"

"I didn't notice how things was going till it was too late. We might as well talk frankly, Mr. Gray. Probly it's well you saw me first, eh? Well, when I understood where they was heading, I worried a lot—after what you said that day, understand? But these two! Pshaw! It was like they had known each other always."

"Then they've settled it between them?"

Tom nodded gravely. "She told me last night. And from the way she told me, I know it's not just boy and girl love. She's been singing like a bird all day. And Buddy! He's breathless. I know how he feels. I couldn't draw a full breath for two weeks after 'Bob's' mother—"

Gray uttered a wordless, gasping cry. He moved unsteadily toward the door, then paused with his hand upon the knob. Tom Parker was surprised when, after a moment, he saw the man's shoulders shake and heard him utter a thin, cackling laugh. "Time is a grim old joker, isn't he? No way of beating him, none at all. Now I thought I was young, but— Lucky I found you here and spared my vanity."

CHAPTER XXX
Ma Says a Prayer

CALVIN GRAY did not return to the bank. He went straight to his hotel and, as soon as he could sufficiently control himself to do so, he telephoned Gus Briskow, telling him that he intended to leave town. Then he began mechanically to pack his bag. He moved like a man in a trance, for the blow had fallen so suddenly as to numb him; his only impulse was to escape, to hide himself from these people who, of a sudden, had become hateful.

When night came he took his bag and slunk out of the hotel, for it seemed that men must surely know what a fool he had made of himself. It would have been a relief to feel that he was leaving never to return; but even that was denied him, for, after his first panic, the truth had come home. He could not run away.

He thought of Ma Briskow, finally. She was human; she had a heart. He bought a ticket to Dallas.

Ma Briskow's eyes were dim; nevertheless, she saw the change in Calvin Gray when, late the following afternoon, he came to see her.

"Land sakes!" she exclaimed, in a shocked voice. "I've never said you was ailin', Why, Mr. Gray!"

"I'm not really ill," he told her, wearily, "just old. I've had a bad night." Seating himself beside her couch, he took her hand in his and made her tell him all about herself. He had brought her an armful of flowers, as usual, and extravagant gifts for her adornment—giving, it seemed, was his unconscious habit. While she admired them with ecstatic "Ohs!" and "Ahs!" he busied himself with bowls and vases, but his mood his fumbling unsteadiness of touch and evident effort with which he kept up his assumption of good cheer. She told him, finally:

ALLIE PLACED HER HAND UPON HIS FOREHEAD.

"Something mighty bad has happened to you, Mr. Gray."

He gazed at her mutely, then nodded.

"Is it something about the—the Princess of Wichita Falls?"

"Yes, Ma."

There was a long silence, then Ma inquired: "Would you like to tell me something about the little princess? Sometimes it helps, to talk."

"N—not yet."

"Won't you stay an' have supper with Allie an' me? We're awful lonesome with Pa gone. Allie's out somewhere, but—it would do me good to know you was here an' it'll do you good to stay. You can rest yourself while I take my nap."

Ma Briskow did not wish to take a nap, but she knew that Gray needed the solace of his own thoughts just now, so, when he agreed, she sent him downstairs.

Gray's brain, like his body, had grown tired and feverish. To be sure, little more than a day had gone by since he had sallied forth like a knight, but it seemed a year, an age, and every hour brought a new and keener distress. He found it possible now, for the first time, to relax a bit physically, so he closed his eyes and lay back in an easy chair while the twilight stole in upon him.

He heard Allie enter the house, but he did not stir. He would have to put on the mask soon enough, for, of course, she must never suspect, on Buddy's account. The room, which had grown agreeably dark, was suddenly illuminated, and he lurched to his feet to find the girl fleeing him from the door. She was neither startled nor surprised at his presence, and when he tried to smile and to greet her in his accustomed manner, she interrupted him by saying:

"I know you were here."

"No? Then Ma is awake again?"

Allie shook her head vaguely. "I knew you were here the minute I came in. I can 'most always tell." There had been a shadow of a smile upon her lips, but it vanished; a look of grieving concern crept over her face. "What's the matter? Whatever has happened, Mr. Gray?"

"Why, nothing. I was feeling tired, worn out. Indulging myself in a thoroughly enjoyable fit of the blues." His voice broke when he tried to laugh.

Allie uttered a quiet, low cry, a wordless, sympathetic sound. Her dark eyes widened, grew darker; she came forward a step or two, then she halted. "Would you rather be alone?" she asked. He signified his dissent, and she went on: "I know what the blues are like. I sit alone in the dark a good deal."

She busied herself about the room for a few moments, straightening things, adjusting the window shades. Allie had the knack of silence, blessed attribute in man or woman, and to Gray's surprise he found that her mere presence was comforting. She startled him by saying, suddenly:

"You're hurt! Hurt badly!"

He looked up at her with an instinctive denial upon his lips, but, realizing the futility of deceit, he nodded. "Yes, Allie."

The girl drew a deep breath, her strong hands clasped, hearty she said: "I could kill anybody that hurt you. I wanted to kill Buddy that time. Is it those Nelsons? Have they got you down?" There was something fierce and masterful in Allie's concern, and her inquiry carried with it even more than a proffer of help; she had, in fact, flung herself into a protective attitude. She suggested nothing so much as a lioness roused.

"No, no! It is nothing like that. I merely fooled myself—had a dream. You wouldn't understand, my dear."

Allie studied him soberly for a moment. "Oh yes, I would! I do! I understand perfectly. Nobody could understand so well as I do!"

"What do you mean by that?"

"I've been hurt, too." She laid a hand upon her breast. "That's why I sit in the dark."

"My dear child! I'm sorry. Gus said you were unhappy, but I thought it was merely—the new life. You're young; you can forget. It's only us old ones who can't forget. Sometime you must tell me all about it." The girl smiled faintly, but he scoffed, positively: "Oh, it's a relief to tell somebody! I feel better already for confiding in Ma. Yes, and your sympathy is mighty soothing, too. It seems almost as if I had come home." He closed his eyes and laid his head back.

Allie placed her hand upon his forehead and held it there for a moment before she moved away. It was a cool and tranquillizing palm and he wished she would hold it there for a long time, so that he could sleep, forget—

Allie Briskow went to her room, and there she studied her reflection in the mirror carefully, deliberately, before saying: "You can do it. You've got to do it, for he's hurt. When a girl is hurt like that, it makes a woman of her, but when a man's hurt it makes him a little boy. I—I guess it pays to keep on praying."

It was perhaps a half hour later that Ma Briskow heard a sound that caused her to rise upon her elbow and listen with astonishment. It was the sound of low, indistinct, but joyous singing; it came from Allie's room. Allie singing again! What could have happened? Slowly Ma's face became wistful, eager. "Oh, Mister Fairy King!" she whispered. "Please build up his castle again. You can do it. There's magic in the world. Make him a duke again, an' her a queen, for yours is the power an' the glory for ever an' ever. Amen!"

WALL MARKS.

Those marks on the wall made by careless people who scratch matches there may be removed by rubbing them with a piece of lemon.

DISCOLORED WATER.

If your drinking water seems discolored or dirty looking, tie a thick square of absorbent cotton over the mouth of the faucet. This will clear it nicely. Of course, the cotton must be changed daily.

SALADS AND DRESSINGS

CHEESE DRESSING

Two tablespoons smooth cream cheese, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons oil, 2 tablespoons vinegar, paprika.

Roquefort or one of the American combination cream cheeses can be used in this dressing.

Mash cheese with a fork and slowly add oil, beating constantly. Beat in vinegar and season with salt and paprika.

These dressings are quickly and easily made, requiring little beating. They are not rich and heavy for warm weather, but quite "tasty" and piquant enough to whet a jaded appetite.

The "French dressing" is delicious with any vegetable salad and far more acceptable with a dinner salad than mayonnaise.

The other two can be used with a tomato salad, but are not friendly with a combination salad.

The first requisite for a successful salad is crispness and coolness of all ingredients, of course, but to my mind the condition of the lettuce tells the story.

As soon as lettuce comes from either market or garden, put it into a large pan of clear cold water and let stand at least an hour. Shake the water from the leaves and toss into a cloth big enough to hold the lettuce loosely. If needed immediately gather the corners of the cloth firmly in one hand and whirl as vigorously as possible. If not needed for an hour pin the bundle of lettuce loosely on a line stretched in a shady, breezy spot. This makes delicious crisp lettuce that does not ruin the dressing.

If one is fortunate enough to own one of the wire baskets now on the market for this purpose so much the better.

If lettuce is allowed to stand on ice after washing for two or three hours to chill, it is just that much better in the salad.

These dressings are particularly good over head or leaf lettuce:

French Dressing.

One-half teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon powdered sugar, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ⅛ teaspoon mustard, 4 tablespoons olive or a good vegetable oil, 2 tablespoons vinegar.

Mix dry ingredients and stir in vinegar. Add oil slowly, beating constantly. All ingredients and utensils used in mixing the dressing should be thoroughly chilled. Serve immediately after mixing.

Russian Dressing.

One-half teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon black pepper, ⅛ teaspoon mustard, ⅛ teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 6 tablespoons oil, 2 hard boiled eggs, 1 teaspoon minced onion, ½ cup chili sauce, 1 medium-sized green sweet pepper (minced).

Chop whites of eggs and put aside. Mash yolks with a fork and add seasonings. Work in oil, mixing well. Add vinegar slowly. Add onion, pepper, egg whites and chili sauce and serve at once.

HINTS FOR THE MOTOR CAMPER

Comfortable Sleeping Quarters Are Important For Enjoyment of Trip.

The chief item in this game of motor-camping is the shelter— our portable house. It must have several qualifications. First, it must be proof against rain, mildew, and the elements. Any tent that rests upon the ground should have a floor, preferably a sewed-in-one. This simple thing keeps insects and crawling things out, makes a good floor to step upon and prevents moisture from coming up through the ground to the beds.

A well-built mosquito netting is an absolute necessity for summer. This doesn't mean any old piece of netting thrown over the tent entrance, but a close-mesh material so attached to the tent that small pests cannot get in. Most of the tent makers supply these things, built to fit their own tents.

Many Good Types.

The material for the shelter may be duck, sail drill, balloon silk or some of the special fabrics. Duck comes in many weights, but the medium one will probably answer all purposes very well. Whatever material is used, the main factor is its proof against rain, its toughness and thorough construction. A poorly stitched tent will go to pieces regardless of the quality of its cloth.

Nearly all tents made for the purpose of auto-camping are built to attach to the car in some way, generally with a flap which goes over the car-top. This type permits of the use of the car for dressing purposes and, if the flap is long enough, makes an additional room between the car and the tent. These tents are generally built on the Baker design which in shape resembles a lean-to, high in front, sloping down in the rear. The umbrella or pyramid tent is fast growing popular, owing to its good head room and neat lines. There are tents made to go without poles and some of these are good. But sectional poles are not bulky and makes the shelter once up quite rigid and wind-proof.

About Trailers.

The trailer costs more than the tent, but not as much as the built-on body. Undoubtedly its use makes the car more comfortable for driving as every needful thing can be carried in the trailer. It can be set up quickly and with little trouble. Once up, it is perhaps the most comfortable of all outfits, high above the ground and its fine beds are as easy as those at home.

Many object to the trailer on account of its extra weight, usually around 800 pounds, and the difficulty of maneuvering it in tight quarters. Despite this opinion, thousands of campers use them and would not change them for any other type of outfit. A good trailer can be bought for about $300. A built-on body, fully equipped, costs in the vicinity of $200 more than a trailer.

DID YOU?
By La Touche Hancock
(Illustration by Walter De Maris)

I took the boy on my knee one day,
And I said, "You've just turned four;
Will you laugh in the same light-hearted way,
When you've turned, say, thirty more?"
Then I thought of the part I'd fain evade—
More clouded skies than blue—
And anxiously pecred in his upturned face,
For he seemed to say,
"Did you?"

I touched my lips to his tiny own,
And I said to the boy, "Heigh ho
Those lips are as sweet as the hay new-mown,
Will you always keep them so?"
Then back from those fears came a rakish song
With a merry jest or two,
And I gazed on the child, as he sat on my knee,
And I thought he asked,
"Did you?"

I looked in his eyes, big, brown and clear,
And I said, "Oh, boy of mine,
Will you keep them true year after year?
Will you leave no heart to pine?"
Then out of the past came another's eyes,
Sad eyes of tear-dimmed blue.
Did he know whose eyes I was thinking of?
When he answered me,
"Did you?"

CHOKERS AGAIN

Choker furs are in demand as the season advances. Martens and foxes are the furs most in demand.

Get Sunburned all you wish

Rub Campana's Italian Balm on your face and arms each day. It won't prevent you getting sunburned; in fact, it assists the sun in giving the skin a clear, healthy, bronzed texture, instead of a coarse redness, but it will prevent the roughness and soreness and irritation that comes from sunburn, or excessive perspiration.

Be sure to take a good supply of Campana's Italian Balm away with you on your vacation—because you can't buy it conveniently at many summer resorts.

Campana's Italian Balm

RECIPES

Use mint in warm weather while it is in season. As a garnish or flavor its uses are legion.

For breakfast a tiny sprig of tender mint in a chilled grapefruit, a glass of orange juice or the half of a cantaloupe adds much to the taste and looks.

Sprigs of mint in ice tea or lemonade make a change that is delightful and refreshing.

As to the food value, mint stimulates the appetite and aids digestion.

Nearly every old garden has its bed of mint and the market always handle it. Wash carefully and always strip leaves from the stalk when using as a food.

Mint Sauce

Three tablespoons minced mint, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 5 tablespoons vinegar, 2 tablespoons water.

Wash carefully and strip leaves from stalks. Shake dry in a towel. Mince. Put in a heat-proof bowl and add sugar, salt, vinegar and water. Cover and let stand in a warm place for an hour. This sauce is delicious with roast lamb.

Some cooks prefer to serve mint jelly rather than sauce.

Mint Jelly.

Six tablespoons minced mint, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons sugar, 8 tablespoons vinegar, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatin, 4 tablespoons cold water, 1½ cups boiling water.

Prepare mint as in preceding recipe. Put in a smooth enamelware pan and add salt, sugar and vinegar. Heat slowly and let simmer, tightly covered, just below the boiling point for an hour. Soften gelatin in cold water. Pour boiling water over mint infusion. Strain through cheesecloth over gelatin. Stir until gelatin is dissolved and set aside to cool. When cool put on ice to set. Remove from mold and garnish with fresh mint tips to serve.

Mint Julep.

Two cups water, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup boiling water, 10 stalks mint, ½ cup strawberry juice, ½ cup raspberry juice, 4 lemons.

Boil sugar and water fifteen minutes. Wash mint and strip from stems. Cut mint fine with the kitchen scissors. Put in a bowl and pour over boiling water. Cover tightly and let stand fifteen minutes. Strain into sirup. Squeeze jiuce from lemons and strain lemon juice into first mixture. Add strawberry and raspberry juices and chill. Serve in glasses with crushed ice and sprigs of mint. All orange juice may be used in place of the combination of fruits. A maraschino cherry in each glass adds much.

KEENE DEFEATED MACKEY'S BY 3-2

East Peterborough League Has Developed Good Material in Keene.

KEENE, July 21.—Keene baseball team defeated Mackey's of Peterborough in the East Peterborough League by a score of 3-2, this being the tenth straight win for the Keene team.

Mackeys secured three safeties and Keene had five hits. Pitchers were: Clarke for Mackeys and Robertson for Keene. Both pitched good ball. Keene scored the winning run in the seventh inning with none out, when Clarke began to weaken. Robertson struck out six batters and should have scored a shut out, Mackey's two runs being scored when the side should have been retired. Robertson has only had five runs scored against him in five straight games of the second half, and has struck out 49. The team behind him has been giving him excellent support. McCarthy, the manager, has spared no pains in rounding the team into good shape, and there is absolute harmony on the team. Keene and vicinity are proud of the showing the team is making. The line-ups were:

MOVIE QUEENS FILM HEROES ARE STARTLED

Hurled From Beds and Fled to Lawns and Walks in Flimsy Nighties.

THE EARTH ROCKED

LOS ANGELES, Calif. July 23.—(Special).—Movie queens, and film heroes, and all the colorful Hollywood community were hurled from their beds and fled to lawns and sidewalks in flimsy night attire, shortly before midnight, when all Southern California was rocked by two earthquakes which lasted over six seconds.

Little damage was done in Los Angeles or vicinity, although the quake was the most severe in three years. At an early hour to-day no confirmation had been received of a report that four persons had been killed by the shock at San Bernardina. Beach cities suffered a particularly bad shaking up.

Panic in Jails

Prisoners in jails were thrown into a panic and shouted like madened caged animals as the walls rocked with a brief shock throughout the city.

Persons frightened by the quake rushed to the streets. Late pedestrians were in some instances thrown from their feet. The chief damage here and at Hollywood was to plaster and modesty.

Damage to Property

There have been no reports of deaths. Much damage was caused to property, building, on streets running east and west being the chief sufferers

No serious damage was done here. Long Beach. Glendale, Eagle Rock, Riverside, Monrovia, Pomona, Santa Ana, Ontario, Anaheim, San Jacinto, Hemet, Ventura, Redlands, Elcentro, Arrowhead Springs, Mojave and Needles were other places. where the sharp shocks were reported felt.

Th falling debris crashed through the roof of a rooming house, adjoining, critically injuring George R. Fisher, aged 56, who was sleeping.

Plate glass windows in a number of business establishments were shattered.

British Reparations Document Undergoing Close Scrutiny by Poincare.

PARIS, July 23.—(Canadian Press) — Premier Poincare, who gave the British reparation documents received from London late last week. careful reading on Saturday, began serious study to-day of the proposed reply to Germany. He went over the document with Count De Peretti De La Rocca, director of political affairs of the Foreign office, with a view to presenting the whole situation to the French Cabinet when it meets at the Quay D'Orsay, to-morrow.

Exchanges of views between Paris and Brussels are going on actively meanwhile. The reply to London will probably be made before the end of the week, possibly soon after the French Cabinet has passed on the question.

BERRYING TIME HAS ADVENTURE

An Experience Which Appeals With Great Force to Adults and Juveniles

Many cars sped country-wards yesterday and on Saturday bearing city folk on expeditions which had in them a great deal of adventure. There is a substantial reason for the expeditions, the cars returning late in the evening or at night laden with berries.

These trips are nearly always the result of scouting expeditions made several weeks before, with the object in view of ascertaining. where the wild berries are likely to be plentiful

"Berrying" is an experience which appeals with great force to many adults and the majority of juveniles. Of course there are obstacles to be encountered. It frequently happens that the obstacle is a conspicuous notice, warning trespassers to stay out of a certain berry patch, which is almost certain to be the very best in the district. This is especially trying when the notice has been put up after scouting party had found the spot a month or two ago and told their friends about the wonderful crop of berries that would mature there. Or failing the ntice there may be a doubtful looking cow, sheltering in the shade of the bushes, or a guardian of the herd majestically parading his beat along the fence. Again, there may be signs of snakes in the berry patch, and many timorous souls have been driven away by the fear of hornets.

The Zest of Berrying

Much of the zest of berrying time would be lost were it not for the spirit of adventure that is associated with these outings.

The rough flat country a few miles north of the city, usually plentiful in berries, catches the imagination of visitors with its wild, neglected appearance, and no pioneer ever stepped from his prairie schooner with a higher spirit of adventure than new comers have as they leap from their cars to this rocky, bushy ground. The appearance of a bear would not surprise some visitors so much as does the bear's absence.

Children's Time

Berrying time is children's time, and just now many of them are arising early, hurriedly packing lunches into pails or knapsacks, and going forth in the dewy morn in quest of the delicious berries which are to be found in many secluded spots in the environs of the city.

The absence of rain during the past few weeks has caused a great deal of the fruit to dry on the bushes, but there are lots of good quality berries still available.

TWENTY-THREE CONVICTS ARE STILL AT LIBERTY

CHESTER, Ills., July 23.—(Special).—Twenty-three of thirty convicts who escaped in wholesale delivery from State Hospital for Criminal Insane here last night, remain at large. In the melee which preceded the break for liberty, 227 prisoners in steel wire enclosed exercise stockade attacked ten unarmed guards stabbing two of them probably fatally. Several guards and hospital officers were beaten as they ran to quell the outbreak.

After overpowering the guards. the insane convicts used a wooden bench as a battering ram and quickly hammered a hole through the wire surrounding the stockade and fled in all directions.

Seven of escaped men were reported to have been recaptured early today.

ROUSES STORM BY ATTACKING STAGE MORALS

Prominent London Comedian Says Immorality is Appalling and Draws Several Heated Replies

LIKE BLOW IN FACE

(By Chas. McCann)

LONDON, July 23. — (United Press).—"Don't let your women go on the stage. Its immortality is appalling."

"It is almost impossible for a girl to be what she ought to be if she goes on the stage. Unless she has money, a man, or a manager to help her through, it is a terrible difficulty for her to get anywhere at all with her career.'

That is an actor's view of the British stage, given by "Wee Georgie" Wood, a famous comedian at a Rotary Club dinner at Manchester, when he was made a member of the club.

London actors, actresses, and managers say it is not true.

The accusation struck them lige a blow in the face. Wood is one of them—a veteran and a leader—but he is the least-liked man on the stage just now.

Cochran Says its Libel

"I never heard such a gross libel in my life." said Charles B. Cochran, England's greatest producer.

"Perhaps no man has had more experience of stage life than I have, and I can say definitely that there are only two things which will get a girl ahead on the stage—talent and hard work.

"A girl may go wrong and a man may, through influence, get a girl on the stage; but she won't stay there long in a good show without both talent and hard work. The audience are the judges, and no amount of booming or boosting will keep a girl in a big post unless she has talent.

" 'Wee Georgie' Woods statement is absolute rot, and wicked rot at that."

"It is talent, and nothing else, that counts on the stage to-day," said Miss Barabra Gott, leading lady in "Lilac Time" at the Lyric.

"I had neither influence nor money behind me, and have climbed from small parts to leads, and I know scores of actresses on both the variety and legitimate stage who have done as I have done.

"There are temptations on the stage as in all walks of life but to say that this is the rule rather than the exception is a wicked libel."

Playing and Being

Another of Wood's statements in his speech was:

"It is almost impossible for an actor night after night to play at love without feeling it. If you play with emotion it will play with you.'

He referred to the chorus girl, 'on $15 or less a week—a life in which bullying by a stage manager plays quite a prominent part."

"Don't tell me this isn't true,' he added: "I have seen too much of it."

It's a fact that a chorus girl gets around $15 a week in a London chorus. In the provinces she may get $7.50, and out of it she is supposed to keep herself in food and clothing and to pay for lodgings.

Some girls do it. A few support themselves entirely on it. Others, a good many, manage to buy food and pay for lodging and car-fare and depend on their families for clothes. A few have money of their own. Then there are the others.

There is no secret about the salaries. Anyone who goes around town knows girls who receive them, and support themselves or fail to support themselves on the money.

Those who keep themselves straight are taken out to dinner occasionally; not very often, on the road. They live in London mostly; when they are on tour they live together, three or four of them, in dingy rooms, and cook most of their own food.

DELORME LOOKS INDIFFERENT OF TRIAL RESULTS

Slightly Pale, He Shows No Sign Whatever of the Slightest Vestige of Nervousness.

JURY DISAGREES

MONTREAL, July 23.— (Special.)—After forty-five hours of deliberation, in which time it found itself unable to reach a verdict, the jury in the Delorme case was dismissed by Chief Justice Sir Francis Lemieux at 2.10 (standard time) this afternoon. Adelard Delorme, charged with the murder of his half brother Raoul, will be held for retrial.

MONTREAL, July 23.—(Special.) —"The jury have the honor to report to your Lordship that we cannot come to an agreement."

For the second time within forty hours this was the result of the deliberation of the twelve men upon whose verdict the fate of Rev. Adelard Delorme, charged with the murder of his half brother, Raoul Delorme, rests. The announcement was made at 10.23 this morning in the Court of King's Bench, and was immediately followed by a crisp statement from the Chief Justice, Sir Francois Lemieux, that he was not yet convinced that the jury could not come to an agreement; that disagreement would entail a new trial, with imprisonment for the accused in the meantime and also heavy additional cost to the defence and the province, beyond the $60,000 already expended, and that he would adjourn the court once more until 2 p.m. (3 p.m. daylight saving time) to give the jury an opportunity to avoid any public reproach for not having arrived at a verdict.

The whole proceedings did not take five minutes. The court was empty in three more. Outside the crowd hung around in hundreds, and the buzz of conversation sounded in all directions as the chance of a last minute agreement was debated with much energy and vehemence.

Took It Calmly.

Delorme took it all with the same astonishing calm he has shown throughout. Twenty minutes before the court opened, he was standing in the opening at the rear of the dock jumping upon his toes every now and then to see over the ledge of the dock front and the head of the counsel beyond it. Later he entered into an animated conversation with his chief counsel, Mr. Allen Taschereau, and that lasted for upwards of ten minutes. Thereafter he stood in the passage at the rear when the Judge entered at 10.20 Delorme took up his accustomed position in his customary attitude, facing the bench squarely, his shoulders back, his hands resting lightly on the dock ledge.

He was rather pale, but showed no sign whatever of the slightest vestige of nervousness or agitation. His expression was less grave than at the proceedings on Saturday. He had the appearnce of a man who has rested well and feels perfectly at ease.

Intense Silence.

When the clerk of the court put the customary questions to the jury Delorme reached forward slightly, his head turned to one side. A pause even longer than that which elapsed on Saturday between the question and the answer ensued, and it was intense silence that the forman made the announcement that the jury could not agree.

Delorme might have been listening to a debate on the cosmological implications on redemption, for all the effect the jury's disagreement had upon him, so far as one could see. He never moved an inch, save to look straight ahead at the Chief Justice.

Sir Francois, on his part, lost not a moment. He was ready for the announcement of a second disagreement. He spoke clearly, concisely, emphatically, leaving no doubt in the mind of anybody who heard him that he still hoped the jury will agree upon a verdict one way or the other.

Like Graven Images.

The jury stood like graven images, while their foreman made his statement. They did not move as the Chef Justice addressed them. They looked tired, but determined, very determined. Some of them looked as if they had not slept for many hours. They filed out silently, nobody making any comments, and the Judge stepped from his dais and through the double file of saluting police in the corridor to his chambers. Once more the closing act had been prolonged. It is the general expectation that this afternoon will see its end. Should the jury still disagree it is anticipated by counsel that the Chief Justice will discharge them and order a jury to be impanelled for a second trial at the next session of the Court of King's Bench.

Delorme seems indifferent over it all.

Another Long Wait

Adelard Delorme, charged with the murder of his half-brother, Raoul Delorme, will have to submit to a second trial at the next session of the court of King's Bench.

MANY USES FOR PRODUCTS FROM DE LAVAL PLANT

Rotarian Wren Tells How Centrifugal Industrial Department Has Grown.

THE BOYS' CAMP

The development of the centrifugal industrial department of the De Laval Company formed the basis of a brief but most interesting address by Rotarian Reid Wren at today's luncheon of the Peterboro Rotary Club, the information he imparted being a surprise to most of the members who ony knew the De Laval company as the manufacturers of separators to separate cream and nothing else.

Rotarian Wren after referring to the invention of the centrifugal separator by Dr. Laval and the development of the manufacture and use of these separators until they were known and operated in every country in the world where there were cows or goats passed on to the great change that had been effected by the discovery that these centrifugal machines could be used for many other purposes, for the clarifying of crude oil, for the reduction of exhaust steam, in the manufacture of face cream and of writing inks and other processes. The Leviathan for example was the one thousandth steamer to be outfitted with De Laval machines, and the Dodge Motor Car Company saved $80,000 a month in the re-use of oil from crank-cases n the test room through the instrumentality of De Laval centrifugal machines. In recent years 45 per cent of the company's business was accounted for by the centrifugal industrial department which was constantly discovering new uses for the De Laval machines.

Miss Cumming representing the Chautauqua addressed the members and outlined the programme which is to be given in Peterboro this year, many fine numbers were promised and Rotarians were assured that his year's programme would be perhaps the most attractive yet offered.

It was anounced that between 50 and 55 boys would attend the Rotary Boys' Camp which opens next Sunday the boys leaving the Y.M.C.A. at 10 o'clock. Volunteers to drive the youngsters to Clear Lake were called for and there were many responses so that the transportation which has been placed in charge of Rotarian Leon Frazer presents no difficulties.

Forty Rotarians have signified their intention of attending the big Rotary picnic at Cobourg tomorrow.

EGG-GRADING COMPLICATED

New Regulations Cause a Stir in Peterborough—Dealers Say They Are Impossible.

The new egg-grading regulations put into effect a fortnight ago by the Dominion government have caused a stir in Peterboro dealer circles, and some have gone so far as to describe them as impossible.

Little has been done here to comply with the new law, and indications are that nothing will be done until some government officials step around with information and directions.

The regulations as published in The Canada Gazette are so complicated that they are said to be impossible to follow without weeks of preparation. 'To do what the government wants done would require all big dealers like ourselves to put a man on the work nearly all of his time, and it wouldn't pay us'', one dealer said today. "We would give up handling eggs rather than take the loss the new system would mean" he declared.

One of the most prominent dealers in the city strongly advocates a system of trading in eggs by weight. "Why go to the trouble of grading eggs according to size" he asks. "when they can be sold by weight and the difference between large and small eggs taken up without injury to buyer or seller?"

SAYS POINCARE CANNOT ACCEPT BRITAIN'S NOTE

Note of Warning Sounded That Germany is Now "Playing Possum" Industrially.

WATCHFUL WAITING

PARIS, July 23. (United Press.)—Although negotiations concerning the British note are cloaked in secrecy, it is understood definitely that France has found the document unsatisfactory. Premier Poincare however is displaying anxiety to keep ier of Britain who warned the peoliest possible basis. The contents of the document and France's reply probably will not be made known until Thursday.

Speaking at Villers-Cotteret Poincaire on Saturday delivered a fighting speech in which he accused Germany of "playing possum industrially," awaiting the time when the allies should prove lenient.

Start an Industrial War.

Having obtained concessions Germany intends to rise and start an industrial war, the French Premier declared.

Poincare's speech was in a measure an answer to a recent utterance by David Lloyd George, ex-Premier of Britain, who warner the people that France contemplated a trade war on England. Poincare said it was Germany England had to fear, and not France.

The German nation, Poincare maintained, is in the grip of its industrialists. He urged investigation of the situation in the Ruhr.

Withdraw many Troops.

The British note is understood to propose the withdrawal by the French and Belgians of many of their troops in the occupied zones, conditionally upon the cessation of passive resistance by Germany.

Its main proposition however is the appointment by the reparations commission of an impartial body to fix upon Germany her ability to pay. This France finds not acceptable.

Summoned the Cabinet.

Premier Poincare to-day summoned the French cabinet to an extraordinary session to-morrow when the British note to Germany on the subject of reparations will be discussed.

The French Premier has an agreement with Premier Baldwin of Britain whereby neither government will permit the contents of the note or the tenor of the negotiations now under way, through secret diplomatic channels, to become known.

Impossible to Sign.

The Matin declared editorially it is impossible for France to sign the British note to Germany because Germany is in open rebellion against the treaty of Versailles.

"The English announcement is purely formal and does not modify the British policy," says the editorial which attempts to arbitrate conflicts with the treaty instead of making the signatory powers execute the treaty. This view point represents a large body of opinoins here.

BRITISH LABOR SEEKING PEACE

Will Debate Motion to Hold Another Disarmament Conference.

LONDON, July 23.—(Special)—A demand by the British Labor party for another disarmament conference, was up for debate in the House of Commons to-day. Ramsay McDonald, leader of the Parliamentary Labor group, was to introduce the reason, urging the government immediately to call an international conference to consider land disarmament. Three conservatives, speaking with officials representing their party, planned to offer amendments.

MacDonald's motion suggested that the government exert its influence through the League of Nations and by other means to prevent armomnt competition and bring about a general limitations. The motion is offered by the Laborite in his role as leader of the opposition in the Commons. His supporters will demand a vote on the question.

ENGLAND MAY STILL FACE A FOOD FAMINE

LONDON, July 23.—(Special)—England may still face wartime "rationing" of food stuffs, in the wholesale trades as the result of the continued dockers strike which is holding up provision ships at all ports.

Leaders of the Transport Union are in favor of reaching an agreement, but the workers have repudiated their attempted settlements on several occasions during the past week.

Two thousand men walked out of a meeting Sunday, refusing to listen to the leader's pleas for peace. They passed a resolution of lack of confidence and then left the speakers standing on the platform in the deserted hall.

AS GOVERNOR, "AL" SHOWS HE IS "SOME AUCTIONEER"

With Silver Gavel, He Disposes of Old State Arsenal Property for $1,350,000—Big Office and Loft Building to Be Erected

NEW YORK, July 23. — "Al" Smith showed that they spoiled a perfectly good aucitoneer when they made him a Governor. Running his job as if he had spent his lifetime at it, His Excellency displayed much ability as a 'how much am I offered' artist at Seventh avenue and Thirty fifth street on Saturday, where he knocked down the old State arsenal propetry for $1,350,000.

The price nearly knocked the governor and a group of city officials off their feet for no one had expected the bid would run into six figures. The successful bidder was Henry Greenberg of Louis Greenberg and Sons, dealers in electrical and plumbing supplies in the Governor's old home district on the East Side. Associated in the purchase are Louis Bienerstock, of 8 Fulton street, both Brooklyn builders. The arsenal will be torn down and a twenty five story office building erected.

The governor had the crowd of 500 prospective bidders in good humor from the moment that he jumped on the stand on the second oor of the old structure and announced that he wanted at least a million for the property .

"The State needs money badly," he announced, banging a silver gavel. "How much am I offered?" the governor shouted. The first bid was $700,000. In about two minutes it had jumped to $1,000,000, and the auctioneer was gasping but managed to keep up his cry for ...ore.

"Don't disappoint me; I have to get a million and a quarter," Al roared, but he wet his lips to say it. Two or three bids carried the offer to $1,120,000, and the governor clutched the desk for support when a $70,000 bid came and a few smaller jumps carried it to $1,250,000.

"We are not going to give away State property," the governor said. "Remember that the financial district will be right on this corner in a few years."

W. G. Crawford, realty dealer, raised the bid to $1,340,000. Joseph Durst added $5,000, and then came the Greenberg bid. The auctioneer pleaded for another ten thousand, and then shouted, "Once, twice, three times—sold!" and in a second was receiving scores of congratulations.

The property has a frontage of 98.9 feet on Seventh avenue and 208.4 feet on Thirty-fifth street. The site and the oringinal biulding were purchased by the State in 1857 from George and Elizabeth Youle for $29,900. At that time real estate above Fourteenth street was regarded as too far up town to be of any great value. To-day it is in the heart of the most rapidly growing section of the metropolis and the site was so valuable that the State could not afford to maintain an arsenal on it.

HUNTED PASTOR TO SEEK WORK HERE

Rev. T. C. Logan Will Try to Secure Work Alongside Fiancee.

TRENTON, July 23. — Rev. T. J. Logan, who was chased by a mob from Belleville last Sunday night, is through with the ministry.

Leastwise, that is what he told Mrs. Gainsborough, at whose house he took refuge after his summary departure from Belleville, hastened by a crowd of over a thousand people.

"He has gone away for six weeks and I should not be surprised if he should marry very soon," said Mrs. Gainsborough. "He has his fiancee in Peterboro. She works in a factory there and she is sticking by him through all this trouble. He told me when he comes back he is going to try out a job in the factory where she works, and show the people of Belleville that he is not as bad as he is painted."

Logan had appeared in court on a charge laid under the Lamarried Parents' Act, and was ordered to pay $100 in cash and $5 a week to the mother of his babe. It is said that the girl in question has since married another, and has gone to live elsewhere. In any event Logan endeavored to retain the pastorate of the United Christian Workers' Church at Belleville, following the case and until upwards of 1000 people forcibly showed him after last Sunday's service, that he was not wanted.

"Let him who is without sin cast the first stone," he is quoted as having told those opposed to him on that occasion.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I remember reading some time ago in your paper a warning to us all about using milk bottles for any other purpose than milk. Wel I am prepared to say that there is some guilty person stil around that does not take hed of that notice, for only on last Friday morning I found a small cream milk bottle on my lettuce bed that had been thrown or kicked there, by the user I suppose, and it had been used for coal oil. Yesterday morning I felt it only my duty to show it to one of the milkmen. He said you ought to speak about it, if it was my own bottle I would soon find out who had used it for that purpose. So I think that your paper is the very best thing to use for trying to stop such. I have the bottle still here as it was found, stil smelling of the oil. Its owner will know his bottle, it bears a round O and number 2. No other mark as I can see, and maybe he can trace the guilty person for I think it only fair to all that if a person be so mean as to use a milk bottle for such, they should be punished. I for one would not care to mix on my porridge or anything else, milk coming out of a bottle that had been used for coal oil.

Thanking you very much if you will do me the favor of putting it in print. I am no scholar, so would you kindly put it your way, hoping that it will have the desired effect on the guilty person.

Yours faithfully,
MRS. PARTICULAR

270 Dublin street, City,
July 22, 1923.

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Dear Sir,—Kindly grant me a little space in your columns to air again an old-time grievance, on behalf of the music-lovers and also the band members. Last night's concert in the park was the worst in every way from a listener's standpoint, that any band ever played before. The bass solo and also the vocal solo. was accompanied by the sounds of the youngsters running wild around the bandstand. Some of these children, who were with their parents, were worse than others, who seemed to think that a band concert was the place to play school games. What about the police? Not one to be seen last night. When P. C. Grange was on the job we had a perfect hearing and order was kept all through. It is not fair and just to the citizens, and the musicians themselves to have solo parts to play, with soft passages that are lost in a humdrum of noise that could be prevented, by having the police on hand to keep order. I repeat that the concert all through the evening was the worst the band has played to in ten years. So if the parents will kindly co-operate with those who are in authority to restore law and order the band will be able to play some of its best programmes that could be understood and appreciated by all true lovers of music.

Thanking you Mr. Editor, on behalf of the band of the Peterboro Rangers.

GEO. H. BENSON,
Sec-Treas

QUIZ CORNER

THE NATIONAL GEODETIC SURVEY.

Q. — What is the National Geodetic Survey

A.—The National Geodetic Survey of Canada was organized in 1905. By means of its primary triangulation nets and lunes of precise levelling, both of which are connected with corresponding systems in the United States, it furnishes the positions and elevations of primary control points with the greatest possible accuracy. From its primary point the same same survey determines the position of secondary points which are spaced much more closely than the primary, and also such primary objects as lighthouses and church spires; by connecting with these, any detailed survey is enabed to complete its work. When the International Union of Geodsy and Geophysics met last year in Rome, of all the reports presented, that of the Geodic Survey of Canada was considered one of the most scientic and complete.

INDIANS IN CANADA.

Q.—How many Indians are there in Canada?

A.—The The Indian population of Canada numbers 105,998, on 1625 reserves.

BRITISH NOTE WAS RECEIVED AT BRUSSELS

Optimistic Feeling Prevails in Belgian Official Quarters that Agreement May Be Reached

GREAT ACTIVITY

BRUSSELS, July 23. Canadian Press. — The British note on reparations on its arrival here by a special courier, was immediately examined by Premier Theunis, and Foreign Minister Jaspar, and then translated. Both ministers studied it thoroughly and drew up points to constitute a basis for discussion at a cabinet council, which was specially called for this purpose. The feeling in official quarters can be described as still optimistic.

If the British view, as expressed in the note, were regarded as unchangeable and not open to modification after due discussion, it is believed that the optimistic feeling would not exist as some of the points in the document are not comprehensible to the Belgian mind.

It is thought that the diplomatic conversations which now are entering upon a period of great activity, will be aided by developments in the situation in Germany which are considered to be evolving rapidly in a direction favorable to the Fanco Belgian policy. No immediate conversations between the French and the Belgian ministers are contemplated at present but the discussions will be continued through diplomatic channels.

MIXING WHEAT IS CAUSE CONFUSION

High Quality of Canadian Wheat Not Fully Recognized by British Buyers

SASKATOON, Sash., July 23. — (Canadian Press).— British buyers have vague ideas of the quality of Canadian wheat because of the mixing of the grades in Canadian and United States ports it was declared by witnesses tesifying before the Royal Grain Inquiry Commission here Saturday. One witness produced a letter from Broomhalls, the Liverpool wheat buyers, stating that a sample of No. 1 Northern submitted was considerably above the usual Canadian No. 1 and sold overseas. Legislation to improve marketing for the farmers was difficult a witness declared, because officers farmers organizations were too apathetic regarding improved marketing conditions.

Complaints of alleged crooked selling of grain were made by W. Armstrong, a former elevator buyer at Provost, Alta. who said he was verbally instructed to weigh by balancing the beam both ways, to give a little short weight when possible.

COAL FROM MEXICO FOR THE DOMINION

Mexican Government Offers Canada Coal at Cost of $9 Ton.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—(Canadian Press.)— The Mexican Government has advised the Mexican Trade Commissioner at Montreal that Mexico would be willing to furnish coal to Canada at a cost of $9 a ton. The Mexican Embassy made this announcement to-day.

A Canadian syndicate offered to purchase 200,000 tons of coal in Mexico at $8.00 a ton.

Most Enjoyable Time At Lakefield Picnic

LAKEFIELD, July 23.— In connection with the picnic held for the children of St. John's Sunday school it might be mentioned that about 35 children were present under the supervision of Mrs. Mahood, Miss M. Hampton and Rev. C. G. King and a most enjoyable time was spent. Contributions in cash and kind were generously made by Mrs. A. E. Dawson, Mrs. A. W. Mackenzie, Mr. and Mrs. Graham and others. After tea was served the children had races and games and at 7 p.m. a start was made for home, the children being tired but very happy. As has been previously stated this is in no way a substitute for the usual picnic held on the steamer to some point in the upper lake.

OHIO MAN IS KILLED IN MOTOR CAR ACCIDENT

ST. CATHARINES, July 23.—(Canadian Press.)— S. Thomas McBrier of Akron, Ohio, was killed outright, and Frank Becker and Harry Miller, also of Akron, were seriously injured last night, when a motor car in which they were driving homeward from a fishing trip to Northern Onatrio, went into the ditch between Vineland and Beamsville.

LONDON PAPER CRITICIZES THE CANADIAN GOVT.

Action Regarding Grand Trunk Debentures Is Strongly Condemned by Sunday Observer.

FUTURE VALUE

LONDON, July 23.—(Canadian Press Cable)—The London Sunday Observer's financial editor characterizes the reply of the Canadian government to the representations of Grand Trunk Pacific four percent debenture stockholders for compensation as an evasive document. He says it does not give any satisfactory explanation of how the Canadian government could assume entire responsibility for the four percent guaranteed stock of the Grand Trunk while entirely ignoring the claims of the four percent debenture holders for the Grand Trunk Pacific interest which is guaranteed by the Grand Trunk thus making it a charge prior to the Grand Trunk four percent guaranteed issue.

"Perhaps the real explanation is that the voting power of the guaranteed stockholders was required to enable the government to complete its scheme for acquiring the railways, it being assumed that the Grand Trunk Pacific debenture stockholders, having no voting power, could be disregarded."

"To argue that the line was insolvent and that the Canadian government made huge losses in operating the national railways is quite beside the point" continues the Observer. "If Grand Trunk railway was worth taking over at all it was worth something. The actual and potential value of the railways was recognized by the government in assuming responsibility for the guaranteed and the other securities of the Grand Trunk railway. Evidently the Canadian Government does not realize what is due in common equity to those who found the large sums for the building of their railways which in the future must become of very great value. The fact that the railways of Canada have been made the sport of politics and that enormous sums have been spent on the building of unprofitable lines cannot be regarded as an excuse for abrogating legal and moral claims."

CHEMICALS TAKE LIVES OF 3 MEN

Were Locked in New York Mills While Premises Were Fumigated.

NEW YORK, July 23. — (Canadian Press.)—Three men are known to be dead and a rescue squad is working in quick relief shifts, wearing gas masks, are searching through the huge Hecker-Jones-Jewel Milling Company's mills for more bodies, employees of the plant trapped in the building since Saturday, who were killed by chemicals. Early Saturday evening the plant was closed that it might be fumigated. Notice was posted and it was supposed that all the employees had left before the doors were locked that the fumigators might flood the place with chemicals.

Late yesterday a sobbing woman pointed to the door of the plant and attracted so much attention that an official of the company was notified. Dr. Kahn responded and putting on a gas mask, entered the building.

Just inside the door he found the bodies of 3 men lying in grotesque postures, one of them hanging head downward on a flight of stairs.

Francis E. Henderson, who witnessed the accident, while passing in his car, failed in attempts to liberate one of the fliers.

JURY FAILS TO AGREE IN THE DELORME CASE AND WILL RECONSIDER

If They Fail to Reach a Verdict by Three O'clock This Afternoon They Will Be Dismissed—How the Jury Spent Week-end

MONTREAL, July 23. — At ten forty-five this morning the jury in the Delorme case fyled into court and the foreman announced they could not agree. The jury was sent back until three o'clock this afternoon. If they fail to agree by that time they will be dismissed.

MONTREAL, July 23.—(Canadian Press).—The jury deliberated all yesterday in their effort to arrive at a verdict in the trial of Rev. Father Delorme, charged with the murder of his half-brother, Raoul. The Chief Justice, Sir Francois Lemieux, counsel for the defence and the crown, and all court officials held themselves ready to meet again at the court house in the event of the jury reaching a verdict. The case was put into their hands at 5.25 Saturday afternoon aier the chief justice had spoken for five hours and twenty minutes.

In his summing up of the evidence in the trial his lordship laid stress upon the questions:

By whom was Raoul Delorme killed; when was he killed, by whom was he killed.

These were questions necessarily left to the decision of the jury, but he pointed out that the victim was killed by six bullets of which three had been extracted from his body. Were those three bullets fired by the Bayard pistol bought by the accused a few days prior to the murder? Perhaps that was the dominating question of the case. He pointed out that the accused had told three lies. One, as to where he got the Bayard revolver, one as to having shot at a dog with it while on a trip to the United States, and one as to disclaim ing knowledge of the whereabouts of Raoul's will. Was it reasonable to suppose that he told all these lies to the police for no reason?

As to the reason for the crime: The accused was the heir to an estate between $125,000 and $150,000. His Lordship concluded by saying: Gentlemen of the jury: The accused man, is he guilty?

If he were guilty, he could understand their fears and their disquietude. Thos, sentiments denoted in the jury the special and legitimate respect which was due to the clergy. "For you, a priest, when he is good, when he is just and virtuous, he is the consoler of afflicted souls, the counsellor of Christian homes. I understand, gentlemen. I understand, my friends with your profound respect for all that pertains to the Christian Catholic Church, your horror to have before you a priest accused of a vile, hideous crime.'

But he pointed out that the Church of Christ was in a perilous position here if she could notf urnish in a district like Montreal jurors suffigiently clear-minded, conscientious and faithful to the discharge of their duty to convict the accused if though he was a priest they believed he was guilty.

But, said His Lordship, the accused had also the right to all the privileges and all the advantages that the law gives a British subject. He had the right to ask his liberation if the proof was not conclusive.

"Justice, that great word, the finest of words, the most solemn, the finest word in all the dictionary. —Justice, the equivalent of charity, —and the mission of Christ on earth would have been of no avail but for charity.

"Justice and truth, gentlemen, I know you will stand for these, in this case. You will give your verdict I know, so that these two great virtues will not be swept away from the face of the earth.

"I hope the Angel of Divine Justice will float over the rooms in which you hold your deliberations— that the Angel of Justic will envelop these halls of justice and that the same Angel will envelop and direct and fill your conscience and will enable you in your hearts to render your verdict according to your hearts and conscience and in conformity with the evidence put before you.

"And may God be with you and help you."

Prefacing his address in English, Sir Francois said:

"The judge directs as to law, the jury decides fact. This is the rule followed by the great judges in England who have been in criminal matters my guide, and a good guide, too. I am not going to deal at great length with questions of law and I will tell you why. I know. after having administered justice in English-speaking districts of the province for a great many years, you have, so to speak, an intuitive notion of criminal law, but I am in duty bound to give you the explanation as though you had no such notion. Yes, it has been my privilege many times in my life— and I am a French-Canadian—to address English juries, and I am proud to say that, as a rule, they have got the same justice and responsibility as jurymen. Never in my life as a judge have I seen an English jury composed of citizens like you, reaching a false disagreement.

Could Not Agree.

Announcement later of the Jury in the trial of Rev. Father Delorme charged with fratiride after short deliberation on Saturday night that they had not agreed on a verdict and "furthermore do not believe we will be able to agree" was met by a stern rebuke on the part of Chief Justtice Sir Francis Lemieux who pointed out that their attitude was imperilling the whole jury system. This appears to have had an effect, since on Sunday evening, twenty-four hours later they applied to the deputy clerk of court for permission to view whole of the exhibits in the case. Whatever result this may have upon their final decision this morning will be seen for it is confidently thought that the deadlock will then be broken and that either a definite verdict will be returned or again inability to reach a unanimous verdict recorded. In view of the attitude of Chief Justice it is fairly certain that in the latter event the jury will not be dismissed but it will be sent back once more to consider their verdict and to see if no matter how long may be the delay they cannot at least arrive at a conclusion of guilty or not guilty.

The accused Priest is showing effects of the strain. He is obviously nervous and under mental pressure. Throughout trial his bearing has been erect and confident and save at one or two moments of tension, he has never abandoned his debonair attitude. Saturday night when called into court to hear the decision of the Jury his figure was bent and he walked with bowed head into court. For a mement he would have to be supported but on hearing the annoucement of no decision he recovered something of his old aplomb.

GRAND ORANGE LODGE ASKED ENVOY RECALL

Envoy to the Vatican a Grave Menace to the Welfare of the British Empire.

OFFICERS ELECTED

WINNIPEG, July 23.—(Canadian Press.)—Demanding the immediate recall of the British envoy to the Vatican, the eighteenth triennial convention of the Imperial Grand Orange Council of the world, at its closing session Saturday endorsed the resolution forwarded to it by McLeod Lodge, of Govan, Scotland, the council believing it embodied the unanimous and emphatic opinion of universal Orangeism. The Imperial Grand President was instructed to forward the resolution to the proper authorities.

Following is the text of the resolution:

That this great meeting, representative of all the Grand Orange Lodge Lodges of the British Empire, demand His Majesty's government to withdraw immediately the British envoy to the Vatican in view of the fact that diplomatic relations with the Pope are an infringement of the constitution and a grave menace to the welfare of the British Empire.

London, England, was chosen as the venue for the 1926 sessions of the council, a cordial invitation having been extended by the Imperial Grand Lodge of England. The whole slate of officers was elected by acclamation: Sir James H. Strong, of Ireland, being elected Imperial Grand Master, and Frederick Dane, of Toronto, formerly Imperial Grand Vice-president, succeeding Rev. David Ness, M.A., of Whiteinch, Glasgow, Scitland, as the Imperial Grand President.

Other officers of the council are:

Past Imperial Grand Presidents: Robert Burns, of Toronto; Col. R. H. Wallace, C. B. Downpatrick, Ireland; Judge J. H. Scott, of Perth, Ont.

First Imperial vice-president—William Coote, M.P., of Belfast, Ireland.

Second Imperial vice-president — T. R. Lavery, M.P., Newtonards, Ireland.

Imperial Grand Chaplain—Rev. F. C. Ward-Whate, Lunenburg, N.S.

Imperial Deputy Grand Chaplain—Rev. T. J. Williams-Fisher, D.D., of Birmingham, England.

Imperial Grand Secretary—John Easton, of Winnipeg, (re-elected).

Imperial Grand Treasurer—James Rive, of Glasgow, Scotland.

Imperial Grand Auditors: Joseph Cloughley, of Glasgow, Scotland; J. Tulk, of Vancouver, B.C.; Benjamin Alexander, of London, England.

Imperial Grand Lecturers—Robert Dawson, of Regina, Sask.; W. N Cross, of Belfast, Ireland.

Imperial Grand Director of Ceremonies—Col. Tom A. Duff, of Toronto.

Imperial Deputy Grand Secretary —Loftus H. Reid, of Toronto, (re-elected.)

Following the installation of the newly-elected Imperial Grand President by Judge Scott, Frederick Dane and Rev. David Ness were presented with collars by the triennial council. David Gatt, of London, Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge of England, was made an honorary vice-president and was cheered heartily by the delegates, this being the first in the history of the triennial council.

Showing a balance of £215 to the credit of the council, the report of the Imperial Grand Treasurer, submitted by Joseph Cloughley, of Glasgow, Scotland, the deputy treasurer called for the notice of motion by Sir James Outram, Bart., of Calgary, Alta., that at the next meeting of the council, in 1926, he would suggest the raising of the tax from five cents to eight cents. The per capita tax, he said, was insufficient to meet expenses and carry on useful and necessary work.

Italy Changes Whole System of Elections

ROME, Jply 23—(Canadian Press) —The Chamber of Deputies Saturday night passed the electoral reform law, 223 votes to 123. It then adjourned sine die.

Debate on the electoral reform bill began in the Chamber a week ago, Premier Mussolini making an impassioned speech in its defense against strong attacks by the opposition. Later he won a vote of confidence with a margin of 163 votes. The bill changes the system under which the present Chamber is chosen. By it proportional representation is abolised and the party receiving the most votes will be given two-thirds, or 365 of the seats in the chamber. The effect is to make one constituency out of the entire country instead of 55.

LONDON, July 23.—(Canadian Press Cable)—The News of the World says 225,000 pounds is being paid by the Canadian government for the crown lease which has 38 years to run of the premises in Trafalgar Square which has been acquird to house the Canadian official staff in London. The government is also negotiating with the crown for the freehold. The yearly ground rent is 2,000 pounds.

According to this newspaper the Canadian government will probably acquire the adjacent premises occupied by the Royal College of Physicians.

The mill was fumigated on Saturday afternoon, it was said, after orders had been issued for all the employees to leave the plant.

RECORD HARVEST FOR RED RUSSIA NEW PREDICTED

Export Figures Will Approach Those of Pre-War Days. Cermany Has Agreement To Buy Wheat.

OIL EXPORTS

MOSCOW, July 23.—(Canadian Press).— The coming harvest, according to official figures based on information obtained from seven thousand rural communities is expected to yield more than three billion poods, (a pood is approximately 36 pounds) which is 800 million poods over the 1922 harvest. The total sowing area is 60,000,000 dessiatins, (a dessiatin is 2.70 acres), compared with 82 million dessiatins sown in 1916.

The surplus over the country's needs is estimated at 500,000,000 poods, of which more than 200,000,000 poods are destined for export. The total agricultural production for 1923 is valued at 4,500,000,000 gold rubles as against 6,500,000,000 in the year before the war.

Official statistics show Russian oil exports for the six months from October to March totalled 8,500,000 poods, which is only 30 per cent. of the pre-war exports. The chief importers were Great Britain and Germany. The total yield of the Baku Grozeny and Ural oil fields for the nine months from October to June was 228,000,000 poods, or fifty per cent. of the pre-war yield.

BERLIN, July 23.— (Canadian Press).—The German government officially announces an agreement between the government's grain bureau and commercial representatives of Soviet Russia by which Russia will deliver 400,000 tons of gran to Germany befor November, part payment for which will be taken in German industrial products.

Leonid Krassin, Soviet Minister of Foreign Trade and Commerce, estimates Russia's exports of grain from the coming harvest at 2,500,000 tons. Leon Trotzky, the Soviet war minister estimates them at 500,000 tons higher. Roughly speaking, Russia has exported 400,000 tons betwn th last harvest and the present time.

The Bolshevid say the prospects for a big grain crop this year are excellent, and American relief administration officials who are coming out of Russia daily, confirm this.

FRENCH PAPER LAUDS CANADA RECALLS WAR

Paris Temps Says Canadian Heroism in France One of the Finest Pages of History.

PLEA FOR UNITY

PARIS, July 23.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—Apropos of the visit to France of the delegation of Canadian school masters and school mistresses and the recent ratification by the French Chamber of Deputies of the agreement conceding Vimy Ridge to Canada the Paris Temps publishes a leader headed "Entente Cordiale" paying tribute to Canadian heroism in the war which, says the paper, is one of the finest pages of the history of Great Britain and France.

"From the outset of the war Canadians of British and French origin united in a solidarity eloquently expressed in the formula, 'Two Flags, One Heart'," says the Temps, which also recalls the speech of the Canadian minister calling Canadians to arms.

"According to Canadian custom," proceeds the Temps, "the speech had an immediate effect. Over there promise and fulfilment are one and the same thing and the first Canadian contingents embarked for Europe."

The Temps concludes: "Such minutes are decisive in the life of peoples. Canada's example is a living lesson for two great nations united in war by the glorious brotherhood of arms and whom the memory of those fallen on the battlefield under the British and the French flags ought to continue united for the tasks of peace."

A PLEDGE FOR MOTORISTS.

A minister in an American church not long ago asked members of his congregation who were motorists to stand as a pledge that they would drive in accordance with the Golden Rule.

The incident calls attention to the growth of a movement in motor leagues and other organizations to endeavour to make conditions safer and more pleasant, not only for those who own cars, but for those who do not.

The Examiner believes that there is every need of such a movement in view of the astounding growth in the numbers of cars in commission, and because of the steadily increasing traffic in city streets and along the highways.

The Golden Rule is a good rule to follow, even in automobiling. If it were remembered by the motoring fraternity generally there would be far fewer accidents and motoring would be a much more enjoyable recreation than it is at present.

Here is a pledge that has been suggested, and the Examiner passes it on to readers who are owners or drivers of cars:

"As one interested in better automotive conditions, I pledge myself to be courteously considerate of others, both motorists and pedestrians, to discourage all practices which tend to jeopardize human life and property, and to help support all movements which will make for greater usefulness and enjoyment of automobiles.

Nothing idealistic or impracticable in that, is there?

A simple pledge, but one that would revolutionize motoring if it were generally followed.

A CLEAR ANSWER.

The Government's reply to the holders of Grand Trunk 4 per cent. debentures, who have been demanding interest charges, is a model of lucidity, says the Ottawa Journal. Briefly, it points out:

1.—That the debentures in question are an income liability, but that at no time since 1916 has the Grand Trunk Pacific earned even operating expenses, let alone interest on fixed charges.

2.—That the Grand Trunk Railway, as guarantor, did not itself make these interest payments, this despite the debenture holders' claim that there was a sufficiency of pre-war net surplus to meet the obligation.

3.—That there is obligation on the part of the G.T.P. and Grand Trunk to meet the debenture interest charges when there are sufficient earnings, but that there is no legal or moral claim against the Government, there being no Government guarantee.

4.—That the Grand Trunk Pacific debenture holders appear to forget that the company into which they put their money long since became defunct; that it is still in receivership; and that in the ordinary processes of law their equity would have been extinguished.

5.—But that, notwithstanding all of this, the obligation of the G.T.P. and Grand Trunk to meet debenture interest charges when there are sufficient earnings, will be recognized, and as a consequence, and with such end in view, the earnings of these roads will be kept separately from the rest of the National Railway.

Nothing could be clearer, or fairer, than this. Summed up in a sentence, it is that the debenture holders will get their interest when interest is earned. That is all they could ever have expected under private ownership.

TRAFFIC CONDITIONS.

A correspondent does not agree with the Examiner's recent editorial in regard to the protection of pedestrians at corners where traffic officers are on duty.

Speaking of the conditions at the corner of George and Charlotte streets, he says: "If you wait there until you get a signal that it is safe to cross, you will be there all night. The only protection the foot passengers have is being clever enough to duck between autos."

The Examiner's article did not suggest that the traffic officer should signal to pedestrians when it was safe to cross, but merely pointed out that the tendency at present was to ignore the signals altogether and to attempt a crossing regardless of whether or not the traffic was being held back.

It is the usual thing to see a number of people on foot step into the street just as the officer has given the signal to motor cars to come ahead, and this practice makes it difficult for drivers to avoid an accident.

With our correspondent's argument that "so long as motor vehicles are allowed to turn to the left at the busy corners, such as Charlotte and George streets and Hunter and George streets, the same condition of affairs will exist," the Examiner thoroughly agrees.

Left-hand turning at such corners negatives to considerable degree control of traffic and adds to the danger of an accident, and the amendment of the traffic regulations to prevent such turning would make conditions much safer for pedestrians, and at the same time would not inflict any particular hardship upon motorists.

The busy corners need some such form of protection if accidents are to be avoided.

MR. LIVINGSTONE SEES THE LIGHT.

Mr. Dan Livingstone, the mainspring of the discord and disagreement in the Cape Breton coal area, does not intend to let the strike fizzle out without issuing his last tirade of protest. Now that all the gunpowder in the rocket has been spent, the "Little Disturber" continues to shake his charred stick wildly in the hope that some small splutter may still emerge. Mr. Livingstone knows perfectly well that the strike is over. He knows that the strike was doomed to failure on the day that Mr. Lewis advised him that the men had been called out without sanction or authority. He knew he was promoting an "outlaw" strike and that the strikers could expect no moral or financial support from the International Union, and he persisted in his agitations and fomentings for the glorification of Mr. Dan Livingstone and the satisfaction of that small group of satellites surrounding him who boast of their radicalism and their defiance of established authority.

Yet Mr. Livingstone has undergone a change of heart. The man who at Indianapolis was preaching methods of direct action now recommends the overthrow of the present system of government by the ballot. If he is sincere in his newly found creed, the leader of the strike at Sydney is to be warmly congratulated. There is only one right way by which changes in the government of a country can be brought about, and that is by the suffrages of the citizens. If instead of preaching direct action and revolution those men who are responsible for the strike at Sydney will use their acknowledged persuasiveness in reasoning their followers into a new frame of mind, an altered outlook on the machinery and the functions of government, they will be doing an invaluable service.

If Communism or that particular form of atrophied Marxism which was fabricated and elaborated by Lenin and his group in Russia, and which is called Sovietism, is to take root in the country it can only be when the people are ready to accept the teachings of the school. No change of government can be imposed upon this people by force and continue for any length of time.

The trouble with the Communism of Russia is that it was rammed down the throats of the people and it is a strange perversity that those who advocate Communism in our own industrial centres fail to grasp the fact that in Russia, the only country in which it has been tried on the grand scale, Communism has proved an utter failure and has been abandoned. Whatever may have been the ideals of the revolutionaries of Russia in 1917 it is an indisputable fact that the Soviet form of government which Lenin and Trotzky preached six years ago has been forced to give way before the pressure of stern fact.

Human nature has proved once more too strong for an artificial form of government. In its place Russia has substituted a tyrannical dictatorship of oligarchical plan, and this in its turn must dissolve before the acid test of stubborn common sense.

Mr. Livingstone, so lately the advocate of red revolution and of direct action, has seen a great light. "The ballot's the thing." If the Sydney strike has brought suffering, anxiety and distress, it will be compensated for in some measure if Mr. Livingstone can persuade his brother "Reds" that the only permanent way of assuring a change in methods of government is by the will of the people.—Montreal Star.

A SERIOUS PROBLEM.

Reading of the huge wheat crop that is about to be harvested in the West, the average city man is apt to be carried away by the figures of the unprecedented yield and to imagine that the farmer is coming into his own again.

Unfortunately, both for the farmer himself and for Canada generally, the rosy picture does not stand inspection.

Huge crops mean nothing if the products cannot be sold at a price that not only meets operating expenses, but leaves a fair profit.

And just now the farmer has to face the fact that the price of wheat is lower than at any time since before the war.

The serious position of the Canadian farmer is that he claims the costs of production are higher than the returns, leaving nothing, except perhaps a deficit in place of interest on capital.

As one authority puts it, he is "in the position of a railway with huge capital which must be kept at work, but which cannot earn enough to pay operating expenses.

Canada has a huge crop of wheat—that in itself is most satisfactory—but when the farmer of this country surveys world conditions he finds that wheat is falling in price because there was a carry-over of 300,000,000 bushels for the entire world at the beginning of the present year and because European countries have returned to production.

Across the line the outlook is also alarming. One report says: "With the cost of producing wheat ranging from $1.20 to $1.60 and the farm price per bushel now quoted throughout the wheat belt at 80c to 85c, with prospects of it growing lower, economists say that farmers this year will have to take a loss from 35c to 60c per bushel, unless means are found to hold the crop.

"Based on the estimated crop of 821,000,000 bushels, less 90,000,000 bushels for seed, or a net crop of 731,000,000 bushels, at 35c loss would amount to $250,000,000, while the 60c loss would aggregate the ruinous figure of $600,000,000 for the entire wheat belt.

"The sole element of hope in the situation, many leaders say, is the warehousing of much of the present crop until the conditions for its disposal are better, the shortage to be financed by the new agricultural credit machinery provided by the last Congress."

The conditions as pictured in this survey of the situation are duplicated in Canada, and the problem is serious enough to justify the Government in earnestly considering all angles of the question with a view to affording what assistance can be offered.

Canada's prosperity is bound up in the prosperity of the Dominion's basic industry.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

If bumper prices accompanied the bumper wheat crop, the year 1923 would most certainly be Canada's banner one.

Fortunately, the Montreal Star seems to be the only paper in Canada worrying about "The Thing."

A boy was drowned at the Kingston bathing beach the other day and no one went to his assistance because the boat kept there for such emergencies was secured by a chain and padlock. Peterborough's beaches are not much better protected.

The new Minister of Public Works announces that a survey is to be made of the detours on Provincial highways. He will have no difficulty in hearing a lot of things about said detours from the army of disgruntled motorists.

In fact, motoring has come to be in some parts of Ontario this year just one detour after another.

Constituencies which precipitate a contest in the Ontario by-elections will be going contrary to the mass of public opinion throughout the Proince.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE!

What were you paying, Madam, for EGGS?

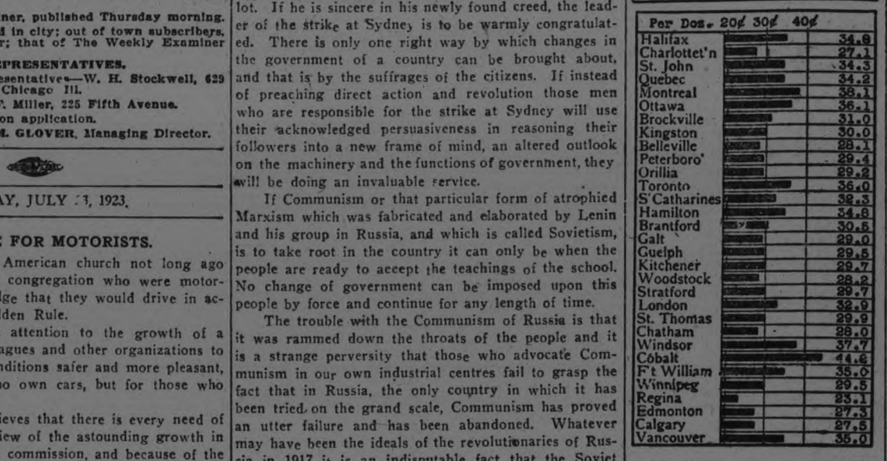
The Department of Labor at Ottawa says these were the average prices for May.



How do prices in your locality compare with other cities? Are you paying more or less than average? These prices are for average good quality "delivered" goods. Watch for the changes in this chart next month.

PERCY BOOM AN IDEAL RESORT

Beauty Spot Six Miles Below Campbellford Has Many Visitors This Summer.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 23.—Percy Boom, which is situated on the banks of the Trent River, six miles below Campbellford, and about two miles from Meyersburg, is becoming one of the most popular summer resorts of the many in the Trent Valley. The boating, fishing and bathing are excellent. The resort commands a view of No. 8 Dam, where the new Hydro power house is to be erected and the sound of the water rushing over that obstruction is plainly heard at all hours. The cottages are handsome and comfortable.

This resort as started about 15 years ago by W. H. Boyce, who owns a 20 acre farm there and who produces everything that is required by picnic parties and the occupants of his cottages. He keeps a large store, where all sorts of supplies may be purchased and a boat house with a stock of 25 rowboats and canoes.

Just at present every one of Mr. Boyce's cottages are occupied by residents from Campbellford and other places and he has carried on the same thriving trade since the opening of the season with orders ahead until the cold weather sets in.

No. 9 cottage is occupied by Mr. Boyce's brother, Rev. W. S. Boyce, with his wife and daughters, Misses Dorothy and Eleanor of Bowmanville. Rev. Mr. Boyce was elected secretary of the Bay of Quinte conference at the recent annual meeting and was at the same time placed on the superannuation list. His daughter Eleanor is a teacher and Miss Dorothy has just been successful in passing an examination for the same profession. Next week the family expect to entertain their son and brother. Egerton Boyce, who is organist of the Presbyterian church in Port Hope.

Two couples who were married in Belleville, recently spent their honeymoon in this cottage.

T. S. Baker and family of Campbellford are in No. 8 cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Haig and family of Campbellford, are in No. 7 and both parties will remain for two weeks.

Rev. E. Butcher, Baptist minister of Brighton is in No. 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Williams of Campbellford, with their family and a visitor from Toronto, are spending a month in No. 4 cottage.

Among the resorters who are expected to arrive in a short time are G. W. Wood of Toronto, Donald Barron and R. Hoijball of the Dominion Express Company, Toronto and Mr. Hoijball's sister.

S. J. Moore and family, the former manager of the Campbellford Cloth Company, who has been granted leave of absence on account of failing health, is in No. 2 cottage. Mr. Moore goes into town frequently as business requires his presence in the large industry, which he has successfully managed for years.

Charles P. Winter and family of Cobourg, will occupy No. 1 cottage for the balance of the season.

One of the distinguished resorters earlier in the season was T. J. Griffith, mayor of Jersey City, in the state that is famous the continent over, thanks to the comic papers and paragraphers, for the size and ferocity of its mosquitoes. After his home experience Mr. Griffith regarded the Canadian species as mere household pets.

The Picnic Ground.

The Campbellford Oddfellows have engaged the picnic grounds at this resort for an outing on August 6, Civic Holiday, and it is likely that the annual picnic of the St. Andrew's Sunday school will be held at the same place on Friday of next week.

Your Home Town

What causes the Scotsmen's eye to kindle when he hears the accent of a brither exile?

It's the home-town feeling.

The voice tells its own story. It carries him back home. All the longings, be they for the purple hills, the green fields or the murky streets of a city, are quickened. The sympathy between speaker and listener becomes complete.

Remember, when your thoughts drift back to your home town and its people, that many old friends who would like to hear your voice are listed in the telephone directories.

STRUCK BY A CAR MILLBROOK VILLAGE

Eight-Year-Old Geraldine Wood Suffers Severe Wounds About Her Head.

MILLBROK, July 3.—A serious accident occurred here at 10 o'clock Saturday night, when Geraldine Wood, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Wood, Cavanville, was knocked down by an automobile on King street.

The little one, when crossing the road, apparently did not see the approaching car and she was struck by his radiator, which tore off all the har from one side of her head, the wheels, however, fortunately not passing over her body. She also suffered severe wounds about the head, and Dr H. A. Turner, to whose private hospital in Millbrook, the injured child was conveyed, is not yet sure whether her skull is slightly fractured or not.

Little Geraldine was taken home to Cavanvlle later in the night, and this morning's reports of her condition are reassuring.

The automobile was driven by a young man named Davis, farm help of Austin Sutton on the Falls Line.

Eye witnesses of the accident say no blame can be attributed to Davis, who was driving at quite a reasonable rate of speed and did his best to avoid impact with the child.

NEWS WARKWORTH AND THE DISTRICT

Charging Ball Team Rent For Grounds Creates Surprise ---- Social At Norham.

WARKWORTH, July 23. — The anouncement in the Examiner on Friday to the effect that the board of directors of the Percy Agricultural Society had decided to charge the Veterans Baseball Club, members of the Northumberland League, a rental of $50 a year for the use of the fair grounds, and that not even further practice would be allowed until the money was paid, was received with considerable surprise. It was always understood that there was an agreement for two years standing between the board and the team by which the latter was to have the use of the grounds without cost. It was also understood that the grants voted by the Percy Township Council to the board were given on this condition.

At the June session of the Council of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham the Fair boards were voted an additional grant of $1500, an increase of $500. One of the arguments used by those who supported the increase was that the grounds owned by the different Fairs were used by the different municipalities for athletic grounds free of cost. Warkworth Fair will receive its proportion of the increase in the county grant and now it is charged that the board broke its agreement with the people.

Two Sides to Question.

Deputy Reeve Nelson, who is also a prominent member of the Fair Board, said to the Examiner that there are two sides to this question. Two years ago the Board agreed to let the ball club use the grounds rent free provided they would play a game with some other team at any special event put on by the Board.

The Exhibition will hold a race meet on the 8th of August, and asked the ball team to play their scheduled game with Brighton on that date. The team asekd a bonus of $50 for doing so, and this the directors refused to pay. Hence the bill for rent of grounds which has just been sent in.

Deputy Reeve Neyson says that if any agreement has been broken it has not been the fault of the directors.

It is hoped that the matter will yet be amicably adjusted between the two parties concerned. The ball team last year made a creditable showing; its finish in the league, and this year is almost certain to figure in the playoff among the leaders.

Social at Norham.

The annual lawn social of the Norham Methodist church was held Friday night on the parsonage grounds and the event was one of the most successful ever held. This anual function is given under the auspices of the Ladies Aid, an organization which has for years been one of the main supports of the congregation. The officers are, Mrs Clarence Brinton, president; Mrs. Charles Pearson, vice-president, and Miss Olive Evans, secretary-treas. These with the other 30 members of the society formed the executive and management committee, whose energy made the last social a success financially and otherwise.

Campbellford sent a large quota of guests who thoroughly enjoyed the hospitality of their entertainers.

A supper such as those for which the ladies of the society are famous, was served during the evening. There was no set programme except that which was furnished by the Campbellford band, out in full force under the leadership of R. T. Cowell.

Rev. A. W. Cafley is pastor of the Norham circuit which includes the churches at Meyersburg, Mount Olivet and Bethany, the latter having been added to the charge at the recent meeting of the conference. Mr. Cafley, who is in his second year on the circuit, is ably assisted by his wife, who is one of the most active members of the Ladies Aid, and to whose efforts the success of the late gathering was in no small measure due.

Norham and its sister churches are among the oldest in the district. They are outstanding examples of rural congregations that have held their own in spite of the general trend of the present day population from the rural to the urban centres. The Norham congregation celebrated their Jubilee several years ago, and the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the church at Mount Olivet will be observed with appropriate ceremonies on the 23rd and 24th of September next.

The annual lawn social of the church at Meversburg will be held on Friday evening next week.

The Musical Program.

As usual the selections provided by the Campbellford band were the attraction of the evening and their excellent rendition of popular and classical airs, attracting favorable comment from all sides. The following was the programme:

March—Palatinus, by R. B. Hall.

Waltz—Sweetheart for You, by Lockwood Moore.

March—American Belle, by R. B. Hall.

Selection—Sounds from Erin, by C. W. Bennett.

March—Tenth Regiment, by R.B. Hall.

Waltz, Sunset on St. Lawrence, by Helers.

Selection—Garden of Eden, by G. D. Barnard.

March—Gardes Du Corps, by R. B. Hall.

God Save the King.

Have Called Pastor..

The members and adherents of the Warkworth Presbyterian church have extended a call to Rev. Mr. Hammond of Preston. If Mr. Hammands accepts the invitation his induction will be arranged for later.

Y. W. C. A. CAMP HAPPENINGS

KAWARTHA LAKES, July 23.—The Y.M.C.A. boys called at the camp on Saturday, July 15, with their launch and towed the girls over to Kawartha Beach, then the girls walked through the field to Burleigh. Owing to pleasant memories of the former camp, Burleigh is always a favorite place with the "Y" girls. The time was spent in exploring Perry's Creek, a place always popular with picnic parties and watching a boat lock through the double locks. Some time was spent in the fascinating occupation of watching the lumber jacks run the logs over the old dam. There is an never failing attraction about logs and their manipulation which always grips the Canadian heart and the girls enjoyed their visit so much that it was planned to spend a day at Burleigh in the very near future.

Attended church

On Sunday morning, the manager of the store at Juniper Island took the girls there to church and Mr. Henderson kindly took them home to "Gladhalken" afterwards. In the evening the girls went down to the "Y.M.C.A." camp bon fire, and as the Sabbath calm on the lake shore, they heard the reading of the old, old story of Christ's trial before Pilate and a talk on the ambition of Pilate, which dominated his life and was the real secret of his action in that greatest of all trial scenes. After this Mr. McNeely told the story of the "Forty Roman Wrestlers." An interesting story well told to a group round a camp fire, is an ideal way of spending an evening at the lake especially Sunday evening.

Camp had been increased on Friday by the arrival of Misses Flossie Paumett and Mary Louise Loescher and on Saturday Miss Rose Puddick of Peterobro, Miss Myrtle Lambe of Toronto, and Mrs. Morrison and her neice, Miss Littlefield and her neice and Miss Saunders of Peterboro and Miss Mollie Thomson of Lakefield, were week end guests.

Group Personnel Changed

On Monday, the group at the camp was changed by the arrival and departure of girls. Miss Outram returned to Toronto and Miss Margaret McCullough and the week end visitors went back and the Misses Chevrill and Misses J. and G. Nicholls of Peterobro and Miss Dorothy Clarke arrived and on Tuesday, the group reecived another addition in the person of Miss Marie Pappas of Peterobro. On Tuesday evening the older girls were invited to the George Street Camp at Sandy Point, for a bonfire and spent a delightful evening. On Wednesday, Mrs. King visited her daughter at the camp. On Wednesday morning, the party left soon after nine o'clock, headed for Burleigh and Perry's Creek and what a happy day was spent. Perry's Creek was explored and a lively party of thirty-eight sat down to dinner on the lake shore and what appetites everyone had. Anyone who has picniced at the lakes, knows that ample provision is necessary. After lunch was enlivened by picking berries. The girls arrived at camp, tired but, oh, so happy.

Bathing at the Beach

The bathing at Kawartha beach is a never failing joy and nearly every afternoon the girls go over to bathe, swim and do stunts. The latter is a special diversion and shrieks of laughter announce the various attempts to perform feats which would rival Annette Kellerman, if successful. Another attraction which receives its full share of use, is the piano.

The cottages in the neighborhood have proved real "neighbors" (in the best sense of the word), and on several occasions have sent offerings of fish, which are always appreciated.

Girls Were Hostesses

On Friday evening of last week the girls were hostesses to the "Y" boys and several others who came from the cottages near by and enjoyed the bonfire which was built on the end of the island. The ever popular sing song was held round the camp fire, after which a taffy pull was held. There is no need to say that the taffy pull was a success, the only word to describe it seems to be "scrumptuous." The girls one little lad found the taffy so alluring that not only did he eat his own share, but also the remains of the large fellows' candy, some of the girls had fears for the results but the digestion of the small boy is not upset easily and he was as chipper as ever next day. On Saturday, the Junior boys went home, after a wonderful time and there will be a brief lull till the seniors arrive, on Monday. On Sunday the girls attended service at St. Peter's and spent the remainder of the day quietly.

Those registered at the week end were: Misses Phemia Hendry, Mary Dunlop, Jean King, Marie Pappas, Dorothy Clarke, Julia Nicholls, Grace Nicholls, Ted Cheverill, Marian Cheverill, Rose Puddick, Evelyn Raynsford and for the week end, Misses Grace Evans, Agnes Horsfield and Gertrude Kirn.

During the coming week several trips are planned, one being an afternoon trip on the Islinda around the upper lake.

It suggests good times and is most attractive, especially when the dances are in progress with the pretty young girls in their dainty frocks moving about.

Rev. and Mrs. J. Lancaster Hughes, of Young's Point, held a picnic at Kawartha Beach for the younger children of St. Aidan's Sunday school on Wednesday of this week. The youngsters had a happy time and went home very much pleased with their outing.

The Y.M.C.A. senior boys are at the Rotary camp under the leadership of Mr. Douglas Loomis. The juniors had a wonderful fortnight and the sennors are prepared to do the same. This camp is doing a great deal for the boys, and the Rotarians deserve credit for their enterprise.

The domestic touch is added to many cottages by the appearance of a clothes line bearing its burden of the family laundry. It suggests that "blue Monday" follows the housewife even on the vacation.

A wedding, which is of considerable interest to most of the cottagers in the vicinity of Juniper, is announced to take place during the summer, it being that of Miss Marjorie Eakins to Keith G. Lech, of Peterborough. The young people are well known on the lake and are receiving good wishes from many friends.

Mr. R. J. Colville of Toronto, was in charge of the services at Juniper Island on Sunday morning.

The dates have been settled for practically all the regattas, viz.:

Crowe's Landing—July 30th.
McCracken's Landing—Aug. 2nd.
Kawartha Park—August 6th.
Viamede—August 9th.
Juniper Island—August 13th.

The following guests are registered at "The Park Hotel," Burleigh Falls, during the week: J. R. Williams, K. R. Townsend, C. Murdick and wife, M. Carter and wife, A. Neidemeyer, A. S. Russell, all of Hamilton; William Price, W. F. Connor, J. Raymond Price, S. S. Klein, all of Pittsburg, Pa.; O. S. Andres, Toronto; L. Murwell, Toronto; B. Panter, Toronto; Morris Lempert, Eugene L[illegible] Toledo, Ohio; A. M. Calbrey, H. H. Mucard, Toronto; Max L. Holtz, J. L. Levy, Milton Nustain, Rochester; G. A. Salisbury, Jas. P. Pitts and wife, Cleveland; E. M. Frost, Fitchburg, Mass.; Artie Montgomery, Lakefield; N. A. Friedman, Rochester; G. Jordon, Newcastle, Pa.; J. M. Edwards, J. L. Ferriman, N. E. Anderson, Toronto; Mrs. Geo. Nicholls, J. H. Ferguson, R. Fair, Dr. and Mrs. Sutton, Peterborough; A. P. Burke, Cincinnati; Herbert Frankell, J. M. Weil, Sam Flick, H. S. Lowenthal, New York; L. McGill, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Galbraith, Hamilton; Ira Joole, Lindsay; Fred Halward, Port Hope; Jas. H. Farrell, B. R. Tinney, Rochester.

SLEEVELESS SWEATERS

The sleeveless sweater is the boon companion of the pleated skirt as it does away with the unlovely line where the shirt waist and the skirt meet.

SPORTS COATS

Sleeveless sport coats of emerald green or bright orange colored velveteen are very effective with white sports costumes.

The Two Balloonists

INDIANAPOLIS, July 23.—Number 9 did it.

That's what friends say about the fate of Lieutenants L. J. Roth (left) Lakehurst, N.J., pilot of the navy balloon A-6698, which fell into Lake Erie while in the national balloon race.

Lieutenant Roth told newspaper men just before he and his aide, Lieutenant Telford B. Null (right), also of Lakehurst, entered the basket, that he did not exactly relish having his entry numbered "9."

"I had that number in the national race from Birmingham, Ala., two years ago and early in the race I ran into one of the worst storms I ever encountered and was forced out.

"Oh, well, maybe numbered 9 will bring me luck this time. Maybe I have a wonderful chance to win." Lieutenant Roth's body was found in Lake Erie July 9.

WALL STREET

Do you know how Wall Street got its name? Back in 1653, when New York City was known as New Amsterdam and was owned by the Dutch, it feared an attack from nearby English colonies. To keep out invaders, the inhabitants built a wall of logs and thick planks. The highway that gradually came into existence inside this stockade was called Wall Street.

The wooden wall was only 12 feet high, with sharp points along the top. To withstand battering-rams, it was braced on the south or inner side by banked-up earth.

New Amsterdam finally was captured by the forces of the Duke of York and renamed New York in honor of the captor. It wasn't much of a military victory, at the time, only 208 defenders surrendering.

The 208 might have done some tall fighting if they had known the future value of the dirt road inside the wooden wall.

It gives you an idea of how primitive things were, less than 300 years ago, when you stop to consider that a stockade 12 feet high was considered a reasonable defense against an attacking army.

Compare with modern fortifications and you realize the progress made by the devilish ingenuity of man in the matter of military devices.

One large bomb, dropped from a modern airplane, would have annihilated the old wall and most of the village it protected.

By another two years France expects to have 7,000 military airplanes of high-power battle type. She already has 1,250, against England's 600, America's 455 and Japan's 250.

The whole scheme and also the futility of armaments is graphically illustrated by the comparison of modern armaments with the wooden stockade from which Wall Street got its name.

Go back in history and you find men inventing shields that were impenetrable by spear or arrow. Then came gunpowder and the bullet that would pierce shields. It's a merry-go-round system, alternately working out a means of protection, then a means to counteract the protection.

The steel industry one year perfects a battleship armorplate that no shell can penetrate. Then comes a shell that penetrates anything existing to date. Then a stronger armorplate, next a more powerful shell . . . . so on, generation after generation.

The armaments race goes on now, as in the past, thinly disguised. Somehow humanity cannot get the fact through its dense brain, that there is no perfect protection or defense and no last word in offensive weapons.

No matter what any one invents for offense or defense, some one soon discovers a device that counteracts it. Of all stupid and asinine follies, the armaments race is easily the leader. And will be, until the people strip their politicians of the power to declare war.

Don't Change Your Furnitrre

(By HEDDA HOYT)

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 23 (United Press)—Men like changes The only thing a man doesn't want to see changed about his home is the furniture. He could relish his wife in a different dress and a different hair-do every day.

Women must constantly adjust themselves to style changes if they wish to appear perpetually adorable in their husbands' eyes. Many women would rather alter their homes than alter their hems to suit the current fashion. It is far safer to let the old armchair remain in its accustomed place near the hearth than let one's hair-do date back to 1900.

When a man comes home after a hard day's work at the office and finds his wife with her hair combed in some new way, a bargain counter bow refreshing an old gown or some such thing, he takes a new interest in life for he realises that his wife is still keeping up with things—that she isn't tired of the game.

Women Are Different

Women differ from men in this respect. A woman would be completely disturbed if her husband appeared at the door minus his mustache. Many a man has returned home from a camping trip with a month's beard on his chin to be met by an irate wife. Women like men to stay "as is." Any altering from the accustomed route sets them on edge.

It takes a clever woman to appear fascinating in her husband's eyes these days. I have in mind a little middle-aged woman whose one ambition in life is to hold the love of her handsome husband—a peculiar aim in this [illegible] of equal rights. This woman is not attractive and many women wonder what her husband sees in her.

But those who see her every day could learn the art of "husband holding" from her. In the first place, she realizes that she can't compete with the well groomed women her husband meets in his daily life, because of her age and because of financial restrictions. His stenographer spends more on her clothes than she can.

Just a Little Different

So she tries to be just a little different from the run of women who fill the subways and offices—women who spend a large sum for one dress and wear it until it is completely worn out before buying another. She buys clothes that are on sale because they are not exactly what women are wearing—just a trifle off the mode. Then she alters them so that they will be becoming to her particular style, always adding some little touch that is decidedly new. She is a perpetual remodeler. Her gowns undergo many changes before they are cast aside.

Her husband never knows when he leaves her in the morning what she will be wearing at night. She has a hat for every day in the week—old hats that have been held over from year to year and refreshened with new bows, ribbons and dyes.

I once heard a gentleman say that a wife was a bride as long as she kept fresh ribbons in her garments and I believe there is some sense to his theory. "Men may not chase after street cars after they have caught them" but it pays a woman running nowadays to [illegible] her husband's attention

WALKED MILES TO SAVE PENNY

Romantic Story of Publisher Who Died Recently.

Herbert Jenkins, who died the other day in London, was a remarkable man. He began humbly at the age of 15 in a bookseller's shop. As he was proud to tell, the humiliating experience of finding himself tongue tied on a social occasion made him determined to "furnish his mind" since "nothing can come out of nothing." To this end he used to sit up half the night with another boy devouring books supplied by a neighbor.

Both those lads struggling to improve themselves rose to fame, for the friend's name was John Masefield. Years later Jenkins became manager of John Lane, Ltd., at the noted Bodley Head, a considerable jump from the bookseller's shop, and all the more praiseworthy since he had burdened himself while still very young with the support of relatives. Walking to save a penny omnibus fare, refusing an invitation to a river picnic because of a sixpenny railroad fare, lunching on a bun—this is the picture of his early twenties, as he many times described it to me. All the time the unquenchable ambition burned in his soul to produce books for himself. Lack of capital and the weight of the aforesaid responsibilities seemed insuperable obstacles.

First Book at 36

In 1911, when he was about 36, his extremely able "Life of George Borrow," published by Murray, first led him into the public view and gained the critics' praise. Then by a romantic turn of Fate's wheel, which I have no space to describe here, his chance came. He started as a publisher with a daringly small capital in three rooms. Two years later the outbreak of war might well have engulfed the struggling enterprise, but the extraordinary energy and organizing genius of Jenkins surmounted everything. He never looked back. His unique advertising made him known all over the world, his business swelled into large premises, his three rooms turned into seven floors, and that in less than seven years from his start.

In addition to all his other work, he found time to write many novels, including the celebrated "Bindle" series, which brought laughter to thousands in the trenches as well as a considerable fortune to its author.

I remember selling a short story for him in 1911 for $25 and being enthusiastically thanked and called "a wonder." Last year he told me he had just sold the magazine rights of ten stories for $7,500. "I'd gladly have done the lot for $75 in the old days," he laughed.

A heartening story for young writers? Yes, but it must be remembered that Herbert Jenkins had an amazing capacity for work. His business was his idol and he was happiest when in it. His favorite evening companion was his dictaphone, his idea of a holiday a fortnight at Folkestone with two secretaries.

"Work Secret of Success"

"Congenial work is the secret of happiness, I am quite convinced," he recently wrote me. "I can see it in the staff that I have about me. I think they are all happy in their work, and if anyone can be happy working with me in command, then they could be happy in hades!" As a matter of fact, his staff was devoted to him, for he was not only the kindest man, but also gifted with great personal charm.

His most salient point, after his passion for work, was his generosity, and did space permit, I could tell many lovely stories of his openhandedness and thought for others. One of his wishes "before I die" was to endow "some sort of green place where little street urchins could play cricket, all accessories provided." This he told me at out last little dinner together, when neither of us dreamed his days were numbered.

Some women can smoke as well as men, but just the same they can't spit across the sidewalk.

Remove the Film

If you wish pearly teeth

You see prettier teeth now wherever you look. They glisten, they look clean.

The reason lies in a new cleaning method. Millions now fight film.

You want the attraction, the added protection that it brings. Then won't you make this simple test to prove that you can get them?

You must fight film

It is film that makes teeth cloudy. It is film that ruins teeth. If you want prettier teeth and safer teeth you must fight that film.

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. It becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Under old methods, few escaped those troubles. And beautiful teeth were seen less often than now.

A new situation

Now there's a new situation. Dental science has found two ways to fight film. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Able authorities proved those methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. And those two methods were embodied in it.

That tooth paste is called Pepsodent. Dentists the world over now urge its adoption. And to careful people of some 50 nations it has brought a new dental era.

Other essentials

Dental research proved other things essential. So Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids. Thus every use gives manifold power to these great natural tooth-protecting agents.

See what it does

In fairness to yourself, see and feel these Pepsodent effects. Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

You will be amazed and delighted. And you will want those benefits continued to the people in your home. Cut out the coupon now.

Why The New Overland WON INSTANT FAVOR

Sweeping Canada into a furore of enthusiasm—Overland Model 91 has justified our every claim and surpassed our strongest predictions. The insistent demand is taxing factory capacity to the uttermost. The explanation of this instant success is found, not in any one advantage, but in a combination of important features that are exclusively Overland.

Do you seek beauty? The Overland looks like a car many times its price. Its hood is high, its lines long. Its radiator is imposing. Drum head lights set off to advantage the full crown fenders.

Do you demand dependability? Consider the ruggedness of this car's construction. As one instance of this sturdiness note the "rear-end"—the strongest ever put into a light car, the axle shaft 27% heavier than in any other car of Overland's price and weight class.

Do you require power? Overland has it, in abundance. Its motor responds like a trigger, never fails you.

Do you look for comfort? Overland's Triplex Springs eliminate jolt and sideway—deeply cushioned seats and roomy interior add to the riding ease.

Of course you want economy. Overland is the thrift car—with great mileage, few repairs, long life.

TWO WOMEN MAY PAY THE FULL PENALTY FOR FEMININE DEMAND OF EQUAL RIGHTS

MRS. SABILA NATTI CRUDELLE (ON LEFT) WAS SENTENCED IN CHICAGO. ON RIGHT, IS MRS. ANNA BUZZI OF NEW YORK WHO UNLESS A COMMUTATION IS GRANTED, MUST DIE IN THE ELECTRIC CHAIR at SING SING FOR MURDER.

CHICAGO, — The feminist movement has given women equal rights.

But it has also made them equally responsible for their wrongs.

Such is the interpretation placed upon the action of New York and Chicago juries and judges in sentencing two women to death.

A jury of men in New York reached a verdict condemning Mrs. Anna Buzzi to the electric chair. A jury of men here convicted Mrs. Sabila Natti Crudelle of first degree murder —with hanging as the penalty.

Women Wept.

Five years ago this woud be an unheard of proceeding.

Society's erring daughter was wont in other days, to weep— and be freed of murder charges by juries of men. The jurors' chivalry was appealed to, and they were swayed by the inbred tradition that women needed protection, not punishment.

Old Sir Walter Raleigh chivalry which once elevated thefair sex to a pedestal high above the male seems to be as passe as the older belief that women are inferior. And women themselves are held responsible for the change, say psychologists.

They Are Passing.

Demand for equal rights in politics was followed by more women entering political, industrial and business life. Here, in the struggle for their livelihoods, men found themselves in competition with women—and in self - protection, they had to begin considering women on a plane of strict equality—as competitors.

This sentiment has unconsciously spread until even the courtesies man was wont to show to woman in the latter Victorian days have almost disappeared . Once men eagerly arose to give street car seats to women. Now the woman gets a seat if one is vacant.

Once men doffed their hats in elevators when women entered. In some buildings now, there even is a ruling against this.

Gone, too, seems to be the exaggerated gallantry that entirely absolved her or at least mitigated punishment when she broke the law.

Feminine Power.

If women kills, she also must die, decree statutes in exery state where capital punishment is in force. But these edicts—ever applied to man—rarely have guided either verdict or sentence in a woman'scase.

"Women are more clever than men in arousing sympathy,' declares Florence E. Allen of the Ohio Sujudge in America. She presided over preme Court, first woman criminal many murder trials.

"Juries instinctively shrink from holding women accountable for their misdeeds. Usuall, too, it is only circumstantial evidence that winds itself around a woman slayer.'

Mrs. Buzzi convicted of the murder of her common-law husband Frederick Schneider, is the first woman to be given the extreme penalty by a New York court. She is the second woman to be sentenced to die in Sing Sing. The other woman was executed 35 years ago.

Here in Chicago, Mrs. Crudelle awaits in terror the hangman's coming. She and Frank Crudelle, now her husband, formerly a boarder at her home, were sentenced to the gallows, convicted of the brutal slaying of her first husband, Frank Nitti.

Interest Aroused.

If the death sentence is carried out, Mrs. Nitti will be the first of her sex to go tothe gallows in Illinois. Twenty - five years ago, a negress was condemned to die here, but her sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

If the New York and Illinois women are executed, criminologists, psychologists and pathologists the yorld over are going to watch the result with intense interest.

Prosecutors have contended that it has been too easy for women to committ murder and then go scot free. They contend that a few executions will cause women to think twice before pulling the trigger.

Whether this theory is correct may soon be given the test.

Meantime, womankind seems to have lost as well as gained in the achievement of equal rights.

SWIMMING ON YOUR BACK IS EASY ONCE YOU'VE MASTERED THE CRAWL

(By LYBA M. SHEFFIELD)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—Swimming on the back is one of the most restful strokes, and at the same time easy to learn. The beginner will do well to master it after he has learned the elementary crawl before he tries any other face-down swimming strokes.

To get the proper arm motion, stand in shallow water (three or four feet) with your arms straight down on each side of the body, palms touching the thighs.

Next raise your hands upward, fingers pointing down, elbows back keeping the fingers constantly in contact with the seams of your bathing suit.

When your hands reach the armpits, extend them slowly to the sides, hands about the level of the shoulders, and palms down.

Extend Legs

Then pull the hands down forcibly to the starting position.

While doing this exercise, breathe naturally.

The leg stroke for back swimming can be practiced either at home lying on a bed, or at the tank. I will explain it for practice at the tank, but you will have no trouble adapting it should you prefer to practice at home.

Sit on the edge of the tank, legs straight and extended well out over the water, ankles and knees touching.

Then, always keeping the heels touching, slowly bring the feet up by slightly bending and separating the knees—about three or four inches.

Next, slowly separate the feet about 12 inches, at the same time straightening the knees. Finish the stroke by forcibly bringing the legs together, legs straight and ankles touching.

To complete the back swimming stroke, this arm and leg motion must be combined with the correct push-off.

Face the side of the tank, grasping a support near the water's surface with both hands, about shoulder-width apart.

Place the soles of both feet flat against the side of the tank between the hands and close to the surface of the water.

May Get Ducking

Lower your head backward until the ears are submerged and slowly push away, holding your breath. Don't push away forcibly or you are likely to give yourself a ducking. As you push away, your body straightens so that you finish with your head lying back in the water, your body extended and your arms along the side seams of your bathing suit.

Try the pushoff several times, regaining standing position as from floating, then combine it with the arm stroke, and finally with the arm and leg stroke.

If you ever get exhausted while swimming and do not want to stop forward progress by floating, use this stroke. It is so easy to execute that it will give you the necessary opportunity to rest while still going forward in the water.

ALL SAINTS' HAD PLEASANT OUTING

Sunday School Picnic Down River One of the Best Yet.

Sun-kissed skies and ideal weather generally smiled upon the happy crowd which constituted All Saints' Sunday School excursion.

Loaded to capacity with little folks, their parents and friends, the boat steamed through the sparkling waters of the Otonabe river and across beautiful Rice Lake to Gore's Landing for dinner. Returning, the merry party landed at Wallace's Point for sports and supper, the former having been arranged for by the athletic association, to whom the fullest credit is due for a programme of races and other picnic amusements which really left nothing wanting in one of the very best outings in the church's history.

Races and Winners

The sports were acceptably run off under the supervision of Rev. R. B. Grobb and Mr. Price as starters, with Messrs. Wandby and Smith end men, and Mr. Ashmore called off. The prizes provided by the congregation and friends, were worth while, and the Sunday School executive and teachers return their heartiest thanks for that thoughtfulness which made suitable awards for athletic endeavor possible and thus contributed to a perfect day.

The list of races and their successful entrants follow:

Ladies' race—Mrs. Hill.

Teachers' race—Mr. Price.

Married men's race—1 Mr. Smith, 2 Mr. Wandby.

Other Sports.

Following the races the little tots found their hearts delight in a candy scramble, which in turn was followed by the event of the outing—a baseball match between the married and the single men resulting after a keenly contested clash in victory for the former by a score of 10 to 6. A baseball match between the girls and the boys terminated in the boys' favor by 6 to 5.

Prizes of delectable chocolates for the ladies and cigars for the men were supplied by the athletic association, and much appreciated by the winners.

After supper and a social hour, the tired but happy company started on the last leg of their return trip, reaching home at 8.30, and carrying with them pleasant memories of a Sunday school outing which it would be difficult to excel.

Financially and in every way the day was truly an unqualified success.

THE FALL WHEAT IS LOOKING FINE

Result of the Field Crop Competitions in West Peterborough and Otonabee.

The prizewinners in the standing field crop competition for fall wheat in West Peterborough resulted as follows:

H. Webber, W. Roxborough, Gordon Mann, George Simpson, W. Steinkrauss, Albert Armstrong and R. A. Wilson.

A similar competition in Otonabee Township, resulted as follows: Charles McIntyre, William Stewart, R. A. Nelson, Robert Plunkett, John E. Manley, R. E. Drummond and H. Manley.

Mr. D. J. Gibson of Bowmanville, who judged the grain stated that the quality of the fall wheat in the Keene district was exceptionally good. The land, he reports, appears to be well adapted for the production of wheat. Fall wheat is standing up fine against the dry spell, but the spring-sown grains are not faring so well.

EFFECTS ARREST CHARGE IS FRAUD

Say Larkin and Pal Wanted In Several Ontario Towns.

LINDSAY, July 23.—The Hamilton police have effected the arrest of one William Larkin, of Montreal, who, with another pal, is wanted in Lindsay, Bobcaygeon and other centres in the province and in Quebec on the charge of obtaining money under false pretences. The two men, one of whom is a former Peterborough resident, it is said, represented themselves as the representatives of the Phonograph Cabinet and Needle Co., with offices at Toronto, and the police declare no such company exists. The men are alleged by the police to have taken orders for phonographs which have not been delivered and on which no cash was paid, and to have sold needles for these machines in different parts of the country.

Walkerville Woman Gets a Big Surprise

"Tanlac gave me health and happiness a year ago, after it looked like I never would be well again, and I haven't stopped praising it since," declared Mrs. Maude Whitehead, 20 Victoria Road, Walkerville, Ont.

"My appetite was so poor I often went all day without food and was so weak and run-down a few steps over to the store would exhaust me and get me out of breath until I thought I would drop in my tracks. I feared a nervous breakdown, too, for I would tremble all over if the door bell rang and at night little noises like a curtain rustling would keep me wide awake.

"I felt an improvement with my very first dose of Tanlac and now I am always hungry, eat like a farm hand, am never nervous, sleep all night long and am so strong I could walk the mile and a half to Windsor and hardly notice it. Tanlac is simply grand."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.

CHILDREN'S WEAR EXCLUSIVELY

New York Women Do Not Dress In Way to Please Sterner Sex

(By HEDDA HOYT)

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 23 (United Press).—Fifth Avenue on a hot summer's day certainly can't be called a fashion center Most of the "birds of fine feather" have flocked together and flown to cooler climates and those that remain in the city seem very much in doubt as to what to wear on a summer's day.

With the thermometer at 96 degrees, we see women gowned in conventional silk crepes and satins, with inevitable little furpieces about their throats to cover the bare-looking neckline; women carrying gloves because custom tells them that it is unconventional to go without them; women with eyes squinting under brimless turbans and women in heavy sports suits. There are no summer dresses, nor are there parasols to shield one from the sun.

Women of New York, afraid of looking "countryfied," shy from the sheer bastistes, organdies and voiles. They would rather be miserable in heavy silks than be unfashionable in cottons. Now and then we see some brave soul in a cotton dress, but we mark her as coming from the country.

But does she look less smart than the city woman sweltering under a fur neckpiece, less smart than the woman who wears a sleeveless dinner gown on the street in preference to an honest-to-goodness summer dress, less smart than the permanently waved person who carries her felt hat in her hand rather than wear a straw one?

Men Like Dainty Dress

What has become of all the lovely organdies and voiles that were sold in the shops this season? What a treat it would be to see a real summer dress on a real summer's day on Fifth Avenue Women certainly don't dress to please men—in the summer time. For where is the man who doesn't prefer a girl in a dainty pink dress that looks like a dish of strawberry ice-cream to a black-draped, heat-withered fashionplate.

A glimpse at the veranda of the Westchester Biltmore Country Club would acquaint one with garments suitable for warm weather. There are many gowns that would be just as suitable for town wear as they are at this fashionable country club. For instance, the ecru, lace-trimmed bastiste frocks worn over black slips could be worn on Fifth Avenue beautifully. The short-sleeved crepe de chene frocks in pastel shades are so simple in cut that they could be worn anywhere.

There are numerous dotted swisses, organdies and voilles in grays, tans, dark blues and subdued shades which are as lovely as they are cool. Hem stitched handkerchief linen frocks in such shades as delft blue, bottle-green and grey are so much prettier than the heavy silk frocks we wear in the city. One sees many of these at the Country Club of an afternoon worn with wide-brimmed leghorns or simple trimmed horse-hair hats.

Beige, blond, wood and tobacco shades are favored by the fashionable this season and all of these are shades that can be worn in the city. One need not select summer fabrics in such shades as pink or baby blue for street wear. A material of summer texture in a subdued color can be worn on Fifth Avenue as well as at a resort.

INDIAN TRIBES FIGHT.

PESHAWAR, July 23.—(Canadian Press).—Indian fighting has broken out among tribesmen of Nawabs in Amb and Miangul, near the African frontier, following a dispute. The tribesmen of Amb occupied part of the territory of the Mianguls by a surprise attack, killing fifty men to which the Mianguls retaliated ruthlessly. Refugees are streaming into Peshawar.

AERIAL CANNON TO REPLACE MACHINE GUNS IN PLANES

Plans For Reorganization of France's Army Distributed Among the Deputies—Must Be Ready.

AVIATION AND GAS.

PARIS, July 23 (Associated Press).—The plan for the reorganization of France's army of 660,000 men was distributed among the members of Parliament today. It contemplates a modernized force based on the lessons of the Great War, with serious attention to new developments in aviation and war materials.

Aviation and gas, the report says, are menaces of the future. Germany by force of circumstances must seek her field of action in air; therefore, France must be strong there.

"We are preparing the army for war, which we are resolved to prevent," continues the report, "but must be ready to strike the first blow. France is now superior to other nations in aviation, except, perhaps, bombing planes, but she cannot rest satisfied and must not be content with machine guns in the air, for perhaps the time is near when aerial cannon will appear."

M. Fabrey presents three conclusions:—

1. "France, so long as she bases her existence and respect for her rights upon the prestige of her strength, must, because of her will for peace, maintain a strong army."

2. "That the army, solidly constructed upon the lessons of the war, ought to be definitely guided toward the utilization of the search for more perfected armaments than those with which the enemy can be equipped so that the army may retain the preponderance of force we are going to give it."

3. "The time may come when those who must decide whether to refuse or accept, or even anticipate, war will have to bear a heavy responsibility, and because of the very brutality and efficiency of the first blow struck, it is important to give them, instead of receiving them."

32 Divisions of Infantry

The plan, which is the third and final stage in the reorganization of national land and air defence, provides for thirty-two divisions of infantry, each with four regiments and detachments of cavalry, engineers and artillery, the cavalry being reduced to five divisions. Reserves would be formed by thirty regiments of cavalry and forty-eight regiments of artillery. The army would include also a great number of technical units.

The aviation force would be composed of 132 combat squadrons, 76 observation squadrons and 34 auxiliary service squadrons, with a personnel of about 33,000.

The plan is based on eighteen months' service, each class of conscripts furnishing about 250,000 men, with 100,000 professional soldiers constantly in the army.

The officers would be reduced about one-fifth from the period before the war, there remaining 107 generals of division and a total of about 30,000 officers.

A table, comparing the proposed organization with the army at the end of the war shows a slightly less percentage in the infantry, hospital service and administrative employes and a greater percentage of tanks, artillery and aviation. The cavalry numbers more than at the time of the armistice, but is reduced from what had been originally intended.

The total army will number 660,000 and will be composed of 461,000 French troops, 189,000 colonials and 10,000 foreign legionaries. It is proposed to have these colonial forces more closely interwoven with the French troops.

ITALIAN LEADER BLAMES FRENCH.

General Luigi Cadorna Declares Marshal Foch Refused Help at Prave.

NEW YORK, July 23.—General Luigi Cadorna, former Commander-in-Chief of the Italian Army, declares in a statement made public yesterday by Foreign Affairs, a quarterly review, that Marshal Foch refused to send four French divisions into the line for the defense of the Piave, despite Cadorna's request that he do so. Therefore, Cadorna adds, the burden of the defense fell on the Italian army and the glory of the victory belongs to the Italians.

General Cadorna's statement is a reply to an article contributed to a recent number of Foreign Affairs by General Tasker H. Bliss, who was the American representative on the Supreme War Council and who has been carrying on a controversy with General Cadorna for some time. In his recent article General Bliss asserted that the Caporetto disaster, preceding the victory at the Piave resulted in a "very serious disorganization" of the Italian army. This General Cadorna denies, saying that the disaster was limited to the left wing of the Second Army and that a wholly disorganized command could not have won the victory of the Piave. General Bliss's article contained the following statements:

"No one can deny that the Caporetto disaster occurred. Its first effect was a very serious disorganization. Three days before the Italians victoriously and unaided met the renewed Austro-German attack on Nov. 10, the three Prime Ministers of Italy, France and Great Britain, with their military advisers, met at Rapallo and, in their belief that there had been a disaster and a serious disorganization, created the Supreme War Council.

Allied Front Depleted

"Only a few days before they had believed it necessary to strip one part of the allied front of troops and send them with some of their principal military men to another part of that line. If, as stated by General Cadorna, they arrived too late to be of any good, it was even more necessary to attempt some sort of unified control that would prevent in future such an unnecessary waste of military energy."

General Cadorna's reply reads as follows:

"General Bliss says it cannot be denied that the Caporetto disaster occurred. Certainly not. Only it was not a general disaster along all the Isonzo front. The disaster was limited to the left wing of the Second Army, which was the first point of attack by the enemy. As soon as the gap was opened there I ordered the Second and Third Armies to be withdrawn on the Tagliamento. And it would have gone badly with us if we had waited, for the Third Army and the right wing of the Second Army would probably have been surrounded and pushed into the sea.

"The left wing of the Second Army was really disorganized; but the Third Army, which had retreated in time and in good order, protected by strong rear guards, was able first to get behind the Tagliamento and then to pass the Piave without being really seriously damaged by the enemy. This army, together with the Fourth Army, which had retreated from the Cadore in perfect order, was able to cover the line Piave-Monte Grappa and make the strenuous and victorious attack beginning Nov. 10. That is why I was able to affirm that the army of the defense on the Piave was not disorganized. If it had been disorganized, how could it have victoriously defended that line?

Says Meeting Was Political

"I was not present at the Rapallo meeting of which General Bliss also speaks. I therefore am ignorant of how the military situation was presented there. But if it was said then that there existed a serious disorganization of the Italian army, it was certainly because in a meeting which had primarily a political nature it was sufficient to refer to the army in general terms and not at all necessary to state precisely which parts of the army were disorganized and which were still intact.

"But the truth is what I have stated above. The conference at Rapallo took place in order to institute an Inter-allied Council of War, and it is very much to be deplored that the necessity of forming a central organ for the direction of military operations had not been recognized earlier, even as no need was then felt for the Supreme Unified Command. This only came into being in 1918, following the first reverses of that year.

"Finally, I would observe, that the Franco-English troops arrived for the most part too late to take part in the defense of the Piave. On Oct. 30, however, when General Foch arrived at the Italian headquarters, four French divisions of the Tenth Army were arriving. I asked General Foch to have his divisions enter into line on the Piave. He opposed my request, probably because of his lack of confidence that we would resist (as later we did actually resist) on that line. The French divisions were therefore halted on the Lago di Garda, between Brescia and Verona, more than 100 kilometer from the battle front. As a result the burden of the victorious defense of the Piave fell exclusively on the Italian army. To it, also, belongs the honor."

WORLD PRINTERS UNITE FOR MUTUAL BENEFIT

GOTHENBURG, Sweden, July 23 (Associated Press).—The establishment of an international bureau of master printers in Sweden is one of the results of the world congress of master printers which has just ended in Gothenburg. This meeting of expert printers was attended by one hundred and fifty delegates from eighteen countries, including the United States, England, France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Sweden, Denmark and Norway.

It was set forth that a central bureau was needed in order to collect and distribute information regarding industrial disputes and settlement, means of combating unemployment, new methods of cost accounting, development of standardization of paper presses, etc., the establishment of unit prices, and similar topics of general interest to the trade. The meeting passed a resolution that the Swedish Association of Master Printers be invited to open such a central bureau, and the invitation was accepted.

A bulletin will be issued in English, French, and German, and the financial support of the central bureau will come from the various national bodies of printers who avail themselves of its service.

BANK HAS $100,000 BOK PEACE AWARD.

Securities Deposited in Philadelphia By Donor to Await the Prize-Winner.

PHILADELPHIA, July 23.—Edward W. Bok deposited yesterday with the Girard Trust Company, as his financial representative, securities to cover the $100,000 American Peace Award and its subsidiary awards.

"This should be a convincing argument," said Mr. Bok, "that the Award Committee means business. The money is beyond my control and is now at the call of the committee whenever it is needed."

Mr. Bok expressed confidence that the award would bring forth a plan.

"The American people have been doing far more thinking along the lines of our foreign relations than some people imagine," he said. "A research which I conducted from New York to San Francisco before I made the award showed that where three years ago there were three in every ten in favor of some sort of a League of Nations, the percentage is now seven in every ten. Public opinion is swinging completely around in this matter. There is, therefore, a widespread public opinion on the question of what the United States Government should do, and this is the psychological time to crystallize it and offer it an avenue for expression."

Believes People Have the Gift

"Do you believe that the people can do what the legislators at Washington have failed to do?" he was asked.

"Most assuredly," Mr. Bok replied. "I believe firmly in the creative adaptability of the American people. They have a natural gift for the creative. But you must provide them an avenue for expression. This is all I am doing. The people have never had a direct chance to accept this problem of a foreign policy of their own. They have never been asked to solve it. I believe they have distinct ideas on this subject.

"Theodore Roosevelt once said to me: 'It's a big job to awaken the American public, but when it awakes you want to get from under.' This matter has reached this point. It has taken three years. But the people have, I am sure, now reached certain conclusions on what should be done by their Government to help Europe. This award offers them a chance to express those conclusions."

"And a fortune?" interjected the correspondent.

"Well, yes," replied Mr. Bok. "But the offer is not so remarkable as some think. It has novelty about it, of course, and it is a generous amount. But men of means have thought little of giving $100,000 to hospitals. Why shouldn't I offer $100,000 to try to help a sick world? Besides, I do not look upon this money as giving it or spending it: I consider it as a patriotic investment to try to solve a question that has been hanging all too long in the air and which involves the integrity of the people of the United States."

Says America Must Do Its Part

"You believe, then, that it is a question of integrity?"

"Emphatically," was the answer. "It is distinctly up to us as a people to do our part to prevent another war. We don't want another experience such as the last one, and we have said, through President Harding, that such a thing shall not happen again. But we have done nothing in a concrete sense to make our word good. This award is the search for an idea to show that we mean what we say.

"Naturally, we do not want to get mixed up in the political questions of Europe: they are different from ours, and we have no business in or with them. Nor do we want to be compelled to send our boys across the Atlantic every time a war cloud appears on the European horizon. Those ideas are repellant to all of us, and they were not in my mind when I offered the award. My idea, singly and solely, is to search the American mind for an idea whereby the American people can do their part with the other nations to avert another war, an idea born not of politics or of partisanship, but of the straight-thinking, ideal-loving and fair-minded American.

"The idea may be something entirely new, or it may take the form of modifications of the Covenant of the League of Nations. We have got to live in a friendly world, and we are too important a nation and too direct a part of the world to insist upon our former policy of 'splendid isolation.' We can no longer stand aloof while the rest of the world is suffering from present problems or in danger of future wars. We must decidedly do our share. That duty we cannot shirk. And I believe, in my heart, that some one, somewhere in America, has that idea and will point the way. The idea will be cheap at $100,000."

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, July 23.—Some orchardists in the district, which is considered the banner apple producing area of Ontario, are looking forward to a good big yield from their orchards. Others are not expecting more than fifty per cent. of last year's crop. The set appears to be varied. In one orchard it will be light and perhaps on an adjoining farm, or over a hill it will be good, hence there is a marked discrepancy. Also, in some orchards the apples are quite spotted, in others clear, nice fruit is noticed. The apple producing area of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham extends along the lake front from Newcastle to Trenton. Messrs. Gibson, Lovekin and others have fine orchards around Newcastle. There are one or two more between Port Hope and Cobourg, and at the latter place Messrs. Leonard Bros. have one of the best, clean-kept orchards in the district. Mrs. Rogers has a good-sized orchard near Grafton, around Wicklow there are several Colborne is in the centre of one of the best apple producing areas. At the orchards of the late John Brown, near Brighton, a western apple, the Delicious, has been tried out with very good success. Mr. A. O. Maybee, on his premises near Brighton, has a total acreage of about 30. Charles Drecap owns another good orchard in that locality. Mr. E. Hendricks manages the Ferley orchard north of Smithfield. He is a firm believer in plenty of spraying and is doing it for the fourth time.

ENGINEERS SEEK A NEW ALPHABET FOR RADIO USE.

Leading the Peoples of the Earth Toward One Common Language — To Expedite Transmission.

NEW YORK, July 23 (Associated Press).—The establishment of a universal telegraphic alphabet is urged in a statement issued today by the Engineering Foundation. Radio engineering is leading the peoples of the earth toward a common language, the foundation asserts.

Methods to simplify and expedite the electrical transmission of messages should be evolved through national legislation and international conferences. Science and commerce will not hesitate; is statecraft ready to perform its function? the foundation asks.

"There are ship lanes in the northern Atlantic," the statement continues. Crowding automobiles in city streets have necessitated traffic lanes. Aviation is establishing lanes in the air. Allotting of lanes in the ether has become urgent."

General Squier in 1913 commenced investigations for improving transmission of the telegraph aophabet, according to the foundation, as the old Morse system failed to meet the needs of present day transmission. In the Morse code the current is interrupted between signals; with the redesigned system the current flows uninterruptedly.

"The new continuous wave system designed by General Squier," the foundation states, "can be applied to radio telegraphy. Variations for dots, dashes and spaces are reduced to the minimum on the theory that the least practicable change of the fundamental wave should be made. For easier reading the waves have been made square-topped.

"The modulating frequencies employed in the new method being of low order, it should be simple to devise instrumentalities to differentiate between them and the higher frequencies of 'static' or other natural disturbances. This new plan proposes to enter the unused infra-audio range, not only adding a useful band of frequencies, but on below the range of the human ear. If employed for telegraphy this band could not interfere with radio telephony receiving.

"National legislation and international conferences are now in order," the foundation declares in conclusion, "to put into use these methods of relief to establish this simple universal alphabet. Radio engineering is leading the peoples of the earth toward a common language, a mutual understanding."

CANADA REPRESENTED.

NEW YORK, July 23.—(Canadian Press).—That Canada will be represented in the Masters Tournament to be held in connection with the ninth American Chess Congress at the Hotel Alamac, Lake Hopatoong, Aug. 6-20, was made certain by the receipt Saturday of the entry of J. S. Morrison of Toronto, Canadian Champion, who made such a fine showing against Capablanca, world's champion, in the international tournament in London, last year.

Morrison is recognized as the Dominion's best player and his participation, together with that of D. Janowski, French champion, will add an international flavor to the forthcoming contest.

CAVAN LADIES HELD A LAWN SOCIAL

CAVAN, July 23.—On Thursday evening the ladies of Cavan Church held a lawn social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Douglas. The evening was ideal and a good crowd was present. This was an opportunity for meeting the new pastor and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Richards. A pleasing feature was the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Rorke, Mrs. Cross and George Rorke. It is not often that the people have an opportunity at the first social gathering in the new conference year of entertaining both their new and former pastors, and the gathering appreciated the occasion immensely. A good programme was enjoyed; also an interesting ball game between George Street, Peterborough, and Fairmount teams. The score was 8 to 7 in favour of Fairmount. Mr. Rorke and family motored here from Peterborough, and took George back with them. He had just left Dr. Turner's Private Hospital after his recent operation.

HAWAII WILL FIGHT FOR RIGHTS AT U.S. STATE

HONOLULU, July 23 (Associated Press).—A concerted campaign to obtain recognition of Hawaii's status as a territory and its rights to the benefits and privileges enjoyed by states, as set forth in the measure adopted by the recent legislation, which is known as "Hawaii's Bill of Rights," is being waged by Governor Wallace R. Farring on and other territorial officials.

The territorial government is mailing to the governors of all the states and to each member of Congress a copy of the "Bill of Rights," which was approved April 26. A letter requesting aid in obtaining the recognition sought accompanies each copy.

The bill, ontaining 16 printed pages, reviews the history of the islands from 1833, when annexation to the United States was considered for the first time, until the present day.

"This declaration and its method of promulgation are extraordinary, unique in the history of legislation," the document says. "The reason for this procedure is that an extraordinary and critical situation faces Hawaii—one unique in history."

"For a quarter of a century Hawaii has occupied the legal status of full and complete political union with the United States as an integral part thereof, but a misunderstanding appears to exist in the Congress and in some of the executive departments of the federal government as to the status, which has at times resulted in the classification or treatment of Hawaii as if it were an 'insular possession' in a derogatory manner to the dignity of this territory."

The document declares that "Hawaii is in no sense the 'property' of the United States, inasmuch as Hawaii became a part of the union by voluntary agreement as an independent nation, having sovereign powers co-equal with those of the United States." By the manner of its entrance "Hawaii acquired certain inalienable rights, contractual, equitable and moral, to the maintenance of which the good faith of the United States is pledged," the measure asserts.

"DEATH VALLEY SCOTTY" HEADED NORTH PURSUING ELUSIVE YELLOW METAL

Had Fortune of $240,000 and Travelled the World —Likes Best to Camp on the Trail.

70 YEARS OF AGE.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 23 (United Press).—Riding in a light spring wagon hitched to a team of excellent horses, "Death Valley Scotty," known to gold miners the country over, is traveling north through Oregon, bound for another mine and a fresh start.

Up in the British Columbia country "Scotty" will spend the summer and fall months, working a claim with Al. Tigard, for 30 years his partner in the mining game.

He's pratically "broke" now, is "Scotty," and he is past 70 years of age, although he doesn't look more than 50.

And being out of money doesn't bother him, either. More than one fortune has "Scotty" made and spent soon after the making.

He first came into prominence in 1906, when he emerged from the depths of Death Valley, California, with "dust" which netted him over $240,000.

It was the largest sum "Scotty" had ever owned at one time. But he soon found a way to spend it.

Hiring a special passenger train, the miner rode in state to New York City. There he saw everything there was to see which money could afford. Then he went to Europe and visited all the important cities on the continent.

18 Months Spending

In 18 months "Death Valley Scotty" was back in the desert—the $240,000 gone, but with the recollection of sights well seen, and with no regrets for the money he had spent.

"Scotty" still has his claims in Death Valley, but admits that the heat there is more than he can now stand. He bears seven bullet wounds as the result of different scraps with bandits. Some of the bullets have never been removed from his body, and these, he says, bother him at times.

So "Scotty" is bound north to British Columbia, up where it is cooler and where the chances for bringing out a "stake" are just as good, he believes, as the valley which gave him his nickname.

Can Get Work

And if he fails to find gold, there wil' be no worries for "Scotty," either. His horses are strong, and so is he, and a man with a team can always get work, "Scotty" knows.

In fact, he is working his way north through Oregon by stopping from time to time and hiring out, with his team, to road gangs or to farmers who need a little extra help.

"I've been on both sides and the top of the fence," says "Scotty." "I've dined with millionaires and with tramps, but I like it best like this, camped by the side of the trail."

ANOTHER EARTHQUAKE.

Washington, July 23. Canadian Press. — An earthquake of severe intensity and of two hours duration (estimated to have occurred 4900 miles from Washington) was recorded yesterday on the Georgetown Univesity seismograph. The disturbance continued from 9.29 to 11.30 a.m., with the greatest intensity between 10 o'clock and 10.10.

GERMANY LOST 187 SUBMARINES.

The Report of Great War Losses Just Published—Men Numbered 5,364.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (Associated Press).—One hundred and seventy-eight German submarines were "lost in action" during the war, according to an official report just received by the Navy Department. The loss in personnel is given as 5,364, of whom 515 were officers. These figures are believed by officials here to be the first authentic information on this subject to be obtained. Four years were consumed, the author of the report asserts, in checking official records and interviewing members of the German admiralty who had charge of under-sea craft.

Depth charges accounted for 37 submarines, fixed mines for 36, fights with enemy submarines 20, engine and other trouble 14, torpedo boats, destroyers and subchasers 13, accidental ramming eight, armed fishing craft six, airplane (bombing) six, and submarine nets six. Twenty-one submarines were demolished or otherwise disposed of to prevent their capture by the enemy. Three were sunk by regular patrol vessels of the enemy, three by armed auxiliaries, two by cruisers and two by artillery fire from the shore. One was sunk by a liner at the entrance to the British main base of Scapa Flow, the famous U-29 under Capt. Weddigen.

A chart accompanying the report shows that 56 of the under-sea boats were lost in the English channel, 26 in the North Sea, 16 in the Mediterranean, 16 on the East Coast of England, 12 off the Dutch Coast, three near Heligoland, two in Scapa Flow, and the remainder in far-separated spots in the world's oceans.

Of the boats interned before the German fleet was delivered to the allies, the report says, five were sold to Spain and two to Holland while 14 were demolished.

Inspection of the boats of shipbuilding firms, holding contracts showed that 281 submarines had been delivered and 197 were under construction when the armistice was signed.

THE BIG FOUR TEAMS NOW ON HOME STRETCH

What Happens in the Next Two Weeks Will Decide the Argument.

The Central Ontario League race so far as the B section teams are concerned enters the home stretch with this week's games. The teams have completed half of the schedule in the second section and with six more games for each team to play, Belleville and Peterboro are tied for first place and Kingston are but a game behind, Cobourg being the only club of the four to be out of the running.

The Petes have two big games on their hands this week, playing in Belleville on Wednesday and meeting Kingston here on Saturday. If they can get away with victories in these clashes they would be in a very favourable position to win the second half of the race and qualify for a play off with Belleville the first half winners for the B section championship. Next week they play in Kingston and meet Belleville at Riverside Park and the last week of the schedule they have two games with Cobourg who have only beaten the Petes once in six starts this season. The four games schedule for this week and next will decide the argument and should productive of some great baseball.

PARIS, July 23.—(Canadian Press)—The annual bicycle race known as "The Tour of France" which lasts a month ended yesterday, when forty-seven of the 140 competitors who left Paris, June 23, came in from Dunkirk on the final stage of the contest.

"The Tour of France" is literally a correct description of the contest for the riders pass through all parts of the country, along the seas and over the mountains, a distance of nearly 3,400 miles. VETS TRIMMED SCOTS IN ELIMINATION GAME SATURDAY AFTERNOON

G.W.V.A. Team Will Represent Peterboro in the Ontario Cup Series —Outplayed Thistles

SCORE WAS 3 TO 0

The Vets played rings around the Thistles and effectively eliminated the Scots from the running for the Ontario Cup by defeating them 3 to 0 at Riverside Park, Saturday afternoon The game was played as the second installment of the baseball-football double header. Warm weather prevailed and the grounds were in excellent condition for a fast game. The Vets were the superior team throughout and after scoring three goals in the first half took things easy for the remainder of the game, relying on a defensive play to hold the Thistles in check. The Thistle players were sadly off their form and gave one of the poorest exhibitions of soccer that they have shown this year.

Both teams were at full strength, Hardie replacing Ralston on the Scots line up, Ralston having broken his leg in a game last week. The Thistles won the toss and started playing south. In the first few minutes of play the Scots had a little the better of the play but both teams seemed at sea on the strange field. Griffin was early called upon to make a save and Bishop also came through with a good clearance. He passed the ball to Hurle who in turn gave it to Sharman. Sharman carried the ball up the field and made a great pass to Monks. Stott ran out to clear but Monks tapped the ball into the net for the first score.

Encouraged by their success the Vets kept the Scots hemmed in for the next ten minutes until a foul against Sharman relieved the pressure and sent the play in the G.W.V.A. territory. Williams got a shot at goal but sent the ball over the bar. J. Wade and Sharman then carried the ball into Thistle territory again and Sharman made a great pass to Dyer who beat Stott with a fast grounder. A free kick for the Scots again brought the play to the vicinity of the Vets goal but Burrows cleared nicely. Williams was injured but remained in the game. Two successive corners were of no avail to the Scots. Hurle cleared to Burrows who in turn passed to F. Wade. He carried the ball down the line and centered to his brother James who beat Stott with a soft shot from twenty yards out. Half time came with the Vets three goals in the lead.

The Vets started off with a dash for the second period but the Scots came back strong and Richmond gave Griffin a hard one to clear. With less than five minutes of the second half gone F. E. Wade twisted his knee and had to be helped off the field. The Vets went the remainder of the game with but ten men until with about ten minutes to play J. Wade was also injured and forced to retired.

The Scots made temporary progress on the wings but met with a stonewall defence. The Scots managed to force a corner but it went for nothing. Mackay got a good shot on the Vets' goal but Griffin made a great stop in the corner of the upright. The play was carried into the Scots' territory and J. Wade shot past the upright when he was close in with no one to beat but the goal keeper. The Thistles tried to force the play for the last ten minutes but Richmond was the only man to get a shot at the goal and Griffin handled it with ease.

Goal scorerers—Monks, Dyer, F. Wade.

The players were:

G.W.V.A.—Griffin, goal; Crowe and Bishop, backs; Burrows, Hurle and Blowers, half backs; F. E. Wade, T. Monks, Jas. Wade, Dyer and Sharman, forwards.

Thistles—Stott, goal; Rae and Hardie, backs; Jackson, McMillan and McAlpine, half backs; Mackay, Hutton, Richmond, Williams and Burgess, forwards.

J. Russell, referee.

J. Cairns and J. Clark, linesmen.

Ulster Lost First Game For the Connaught Cup

MONTREAL, July 23.—(Canadian Press)—First blood in the elimination series for the Connaught Cup, emblematic of the soccer championship of Canada was drawn by Montreal C.P.R., champions of Quebec when they defeated the Ontario champions, Ulster, at Alexandra Grounds here Saturday afternoon by the score of 2 to 1. The game lacked spectacular feature but was interesting enough to arouse the enthusiasm of three thousand spectators who sweltered under a broiling sun.

R. Lavery, for Ulster, Angel and Beaks for C.P.R. were the registrants. All the scoring came in the latter part of the second half. During the first period Ulster had the better of the Montrealers, but the home team came back strong in the second half and had not Stansfield shown some excellent judgment the score would have looked different.

LEONARD-TENDLER BOUT THIS EVENING

Tendler Logical Challenger for the Lightweight Championship —Second Fight Within a Year.

NEW YORK, July 23.—(Canadian Press)—Benny Leonard, lightweight king, will battle his logical and most dangerous contender, in the opinion of the ring critics when he meets Lew Tendler, Philadelphia, southpaw in a 15-round title match tonight at the Yankee stadium.

The Leonard-Tendler go is one of the few "natural matches" for a championship that have been arranged in any boxing division this year. Leading contenders in other classes have been forced for the most part to remain in the back ground. Tendler, however, is getting his second chance within a year at the 135-lb. crown.

Leonard, who has held the lightweight throne against all comers for the past six years, will face his rival with the backing of a majority of experts but there is no less confidence of victory in the challenger's camp.

According to their handlers, both men will enter the ring at the top of their form. Leonard, despite his comparative inactivity for the past year, has displayed old-time form in training. Tendler with the knowledge that he gave the, title-holder one of the hardst fights of his career whn they met in a 12-round engagement at Jersey City last summer, believes that he will turn the tables in decisive fashion this time.

Both boxers rested yesterday at their homes after several weeks of preparation. They will weigh in this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Weight forfeits of $10,000 have been deposited by each pugilist.

Arrangements have been made by Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker of the Cromwell A.C., which is promoting the fight to handle a throng of 80,000. With the advance sale nearing the $400,000 mark in receipts, a new record for a lightweight title match was assured, Johnston said. The previous high mark was set at Boyle's Thrity Acres last July when Tendler and Leonard attracted a "gate" of nearly $375,000 and an attendance of about 60,000.

Four other bouts are on the card, the first starting at 8 o'clock Eastern Daylight Saving Time, with the main contest scheduled to begin at 10 o'clock. In the two principal preliminaries, Babe Herman San Francisco lightweight is matched with Joey Fox, of England for 8 rounds, while Jack Zivic, Pittsburgh lightweight, is matched with Johnny D'Arcy, local pugilist, in the 10-round semi-final.

SEASON'S LONGEST HIT IS MAIN FEATURE OF FIXTURE WITH DELORO

Petes With a Make-Shift Line-up Beat Trent Valley Leaguers 11 to 10 After a Ragged Game.

BOUDIEUX'S HOMER

Saturday's exhibition game between the Deloro Trent Valley League team and the Peterboro Central Leaguers at Riverside Park which was won by the Petes 11 to 10 was a listless affair.

The local crew had a makeshift line up in action, Heckman and Swanston taking a well earned holiday while Helson was out with an injured fingers and Comolli retired in the third after making two doubles in succession and driving in three runs. The game gave Manager Solomon a chance to try out some of his new junior recruits and "Hap" Wilgar of the Adanacs was behind the bat and "Lefty" Turner in right field.

James who started for Deloro had nothing but a slow curve and when he retired at the end of the third the Petes had bumped him for nine hits and as many runs. Leal who finished the game for the visitors made an excellent showing, allowing the Central Leaguers but two runs and three hits for the balance of the fixture.

Meanwhile the miners after being down 9 to 1 at one stage began to take a liking to the offerings of Scott Hutchinson and they pounded away to such good effect that assisted by the Petes' errors they tied the score in the sixth.

McElroy went to the mound in the seventh and blanked the Trent Valley crew for the rest of the game and the Petes, one run in the sixth was enough to give them the decision.

The chief feature of the game was the long wallop for a homer delivered by Catcher Boudreaux of the visitors in the sixth. The backstop drove the ball a mile deep into left centre and it rolled past the score board into the creek, easily the longest hit of the season at Riverside Park. Boudreaux deservedly got a big hand from the fans as he trotted across the plate.

The Deloro team after their first stage fright had disappeared played good ball in the field and had they started Leal on the rubber the Petes would have had to step much livelier than they did to win the verdict.

Legon's single, a pass to Ansaldo and Comolli's double to left accounted for the Petes first two runs in the first inning.

Deloro got one back with two out in the second when Regan doubled and scored when Johnston lost James' roller.

The third inning saw the finish of James. Ansaldo started with a single past the box and Comolli doubled over third to score Ansaldo. A passed ball and C. Brown's miss of a throw on Collins' roller to second sent in Comolli. Another passed ball and Shaughnessy's single scored Collins. Wilgar walked. Turner's sacrifice fly allowed Shaughnessy to register. Hutchinson hit to James and Wilgar was out at third but Legon singled through the box and Johnston to right, filling the bases and Ansaldo unloaded them with a double to left. Ansaldo was caught off third to end the inning.

The miners bagged four in the fourth. Leal singled to left and went to second on Johnston's tap fielded by Wilgar. Regan's single past Collins scored the run. James was safe on Hutchinson's error and stole second. Brady scored the pair with a single over second and came home on Ada's infield out and A. Brown's hit. Boudreaux's fly to Ansaldo ended the inning.

Leal was on the rubber for Deloro in the Petes' half. Wolfe was hit and went to third on Collins' infield out, scoring on Shaughnessy's sacrifice fly. Wilgar's strike out ended the inning.

Hits by Johnston and Regan with two out in Deloro's fifth gave the visitors another counter and they tied the count up in the sixth. A. Brown singled through short and Boudreaux's mighty homer made the figures read 10 to 8. C. brown got a life on Hutchinson's miss, Leal singled to right and Brown scored on Johnston's double over third. Regan hit to Ansaldo and Leal scored when Wolfe playing first dropped the throw. Johnston also tried to score but Wolfe threw him out at the plate.

The Petes won out in their half when with one down Wolfe tripled to centre, Ada making a nice stab for the ball and scored on Collins' hit past third.

McElroy pitched the last two innings for the Petes and held the visitors safe. There was a peculiar double play to end the game. With Boudreaux on first, C. Brown raised a pop fly to Ansaldo who dropped the ball and then threw to second forcing Boudreaux. The latter remained on first and Brown who was entitled to the base walked back towards the bench, Johnston tagging him out. Had Brown remained on first Boudreaux would, of course, have been the only man out.

OSHAWA PLAYERS WON 3 CONTESTS

Baseball, Football and Lacrosse Teams Were All Winners Saturday

OSHAWA, July 23.—(Special)—Oshawa had three wins out of as many starts at Alexandra Park here today. The Central League ball team handed Leaside their first defeat in the Division A. The Oshawa Football Club won the Toronto and District Associated fixture from the Sons of England Club of Toronto and the Shamrock Junior Lacrosse team won an O.A.L.A. group game from the Danforths of Toronto.

Leaside and Oshawa clashed in the first of the home and home games for first place in the second section of Division A of the Central Ontario League at Alexandria Park here at 2.15 Saturday afternoon. Manager Henderson of Leaside chose Maguire to serve them up with Hoose doing the receiving, while Manager Shultz of the locals relied on his southpaw Dainty to stop the Toronto winning streak with Tyson as his battery mate. When Umpire Dick Butler of Lindsay announced the batteries not a seat was left in the grand stand and the overflow took to the side lines. The Oshawa team was given a shakeup, W. Fair going to the outfield and Jacobi covering the third station, which brought good results the infield giving Dainty errorless support while in the outer garden some wonderful catches were pulled off. Leaside only had two men on until the fifth when they chased their first run across. They speezed one as far as second in the next two frames while in the eighth two runs went over when Jones hit to centre. Hoose doubled down the third base line, Jones scoring. Curzon sacrificed Hoose to third and he scored on a pass ball. In the ninth they were blanked. Oshawa scored their first in the second innings when Tyson hit for two bases, Dainty hit a slow one to Maguire who heaved it to the track, Tyson crossing the plate. Walter Fair the first man up in the fourth hit a homer down the first base line for run number two and they added a brace of runs in the seventh when Morrison hit for two bases, Rowden cracked a single and Wilson out guessed the Leaside infield by placing one just beyond reach and both runners scored. The teams lined up as follows:

Leaside—Jones, rf; Hoose, c; Curzon, cf; Mahoney, 2b; Dillon, 1b; Culliton, lf; Murray, 3b; Lemmon, ss; Maguire, p.

Oshawa—Roddick, lf; J. Roddick, rf; W. Fair, cf; Tyson, c; Dainty, p; Jacobi, 3b; Morrison, ss; Rowden, 2b; Wilson, 1b.

Smith batted for Lemmon in the ninth.

Umpires—Butler, Lindsay at the plate; Large, Bowmanville on the bases.

Score by innings:

Leaside	0	0	0010020—3 5 3
Oshawa	0	1	0100020x—4 7 0

MRS. MALLORY TO PLAY.

NEW YORK, July 23.—(Canadian Press)—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, national women's tennis champion, who has just returned from a disastrous tour of European courts, heads the list of stars to compete in the New York state women's lawn tennis championship which opens the women's tennis season at the Westchester-Biltmore country club in Rye.

The Peterboro Gun Club held their weekly shoot Friday evening and some pretty good scores were turned in.

COBOURG LOST TO BELLEVILLE

Belleville is Now on Even Terms With Petes—A Good Game.

BELLEVILLE, July 23'—Belleville is now one even terms with Peterborough in the second half of the C.O.B.L. by virtue of their win over the Cobourg team on Saturday afternoon, at the Agricultural field by a score of 5-3. The visitors used Jahren and Derry on the mound. The latter fared much better than the former. Cobourg bunched their hits in the seventh and coupled with a trio of errors scored their three runs. Both Harry Mills and Ross of the locals made home runs both of which were clean cracks to the race track. Both Brownscomb, and Jack Williams walloped out three baggers. Oulette went the route for the homesters and with the exception of the seventh inning was fairly steady. He struck out 5, passed two and allowed but six hits. Jahren issued 5 passes and failed to strike out a man. T. Kenney, the Cobourg first baseman injured his ankle in sliding into second, was assisted off the field. Turpin, Ross and Harry Mills supplied the fielding features. Weir had two errors, while Meagher was credited with on bobble. The winners executed a pretty play, Weir to Meagher to Mills double killing. Alex. Ray of Peterborough, officiated behind the bat, while George Sullivan of Kingston handled the base. Both were impartial in their decisions. Wednesday's game with Peterborough should draw a big crowd. Batting order:—Cobourg. Butler, lf; Thompson rf; Turpin 3b; Skitch 2b; J. Kenney, cf; T. Kenney, 1b; Drennon, ss; Jackson c; Jahren p; Derry p; Payne cf.— Belleville—Ross cf; Meagher 2b; Weir ss; H. Mills 1b; Williams 3b; Casey rf; Brownscombe lf; Hagerman c; Oulette p.

FIRST ROUND IN TENNIS TOURNEY

Results in Men's Doubles at Peterborough Tennis Club's New Courts on Monaghan Road.

The Peterboro Tennis Club which was organized this summer has a membership of sixty with a waiting list of twenty and an additional twenty daytime members. The clay courts are located on the Monaghan Road between the ends of King and Bolivar strets, and are entirely enclosed by eight-foot wire netting. Extra courts will be built up as soon as the membership and new applicants warrant further enlargement.

Th Club is having a successful season with the courts occupied every evening and also at other hours of the day. Any persons interested n tennis who wish to join the club are invited to visit the grounds and get in touch with Mr. F. Bowness, treasurer, or Mr. H. A. Cranfield, secrtary, 504 Bolivar street, phone 1236.

Tennis shoud occupy a larger place of importance in Peterboro's sporting activities than it has held for some years. Dr. A. W. McPherson advocated public courts at Riverside, but there is a feeling that any move in that direction will not soon materialize.

The results of the first round of the men's doubles tournament were as folows with the winners named first:

G. C. Scott and W. E. Ross vs A. Cranfild and H. Henry, 6-1, 8-10 and 6-1.

F. Bowness and Ted Jackson vs V. S. Foster and J. G. Stephenson, 6-2, 6-2.

Walter Jackson and Bill Jackson vs E. Maybee and D. V. Canning, 6-2, 6-3.

J. McKee and A. McLeish vs M. Metherel and B. Ottewel, 1-6, 6-2, 6-1.

H. Foster and W. English vs A. B. Gates and C. S. MacLean, 6-1, 6-2.

W. Cruthers and H. R. Sills vs I. A. LeBlanc and B. Burgess, 6-2, 6-4.

The second round games will be played as follows:

Walter and Bill Jackson vs F. Bowness and Ted Jackson.

W. Cruthers and H. R. Sills vs J. McKee and A. McLeish.

H. Foster and W. English vs G. S. Scott and W. Ross.

DELORME LOOKS

The jury after having been sent back twice by the Chief Justice, Sir Francois Lemieux, to deliberate, returned for the third time this afternoon with the same answer—they were unable to come to an agreement and there was no prospect of any agreement. They were discharged after His Lordship had expressed his regret and disappointment at their inability to reach a verdict.

Thus, after a trial that has lasted twenty eight days, has cost the province alone, over sixty thousand dollars, and is unparalleled in the criminal annals of Quebec, alike for its dramatic features and the widespread public interest it has aroused the mystery of Raoul Delorme's murder on the night of January 6, 1922, still remains unsolved. The prisoner returns to his cell at Bordeaux goal there to await his second trial. The failure of the jury to agree on a verdict leaves justice still undone, and the whole intricate and expensive machinery of commercial jurisdiction and procedure will have to be set in motion in the case again.

Delorme obviously was not surprised nor did he manifest any indication of disappointment or relief. He took the decision, which means more weary months of imprisonment to him with stony calmness throughout.

GAMES BILLED FOR THIS WEEK

Teams Should Be on the Field Ready to Start at 6.10 p.m.

Belmonts and Kiwanis Bantams complete their games in the first half of the series this week, these two teams being a game ahead of Belmonts and Curlers by reason of an early start.

The Midgets are now on the second lap of the first half and if the Hillcrests are unable to round out a team (as was the case last Friday evening) a winner for the first half will soon be decided.

It has been found necessary to play one Juvenile game at the Sacred Heart grounds this week. If Hillcrest Midgets are unable to play on Friday evening, the Curlers-Maple Leafs' game will be transferred to the King Edward school grounds.

Teams in all the divisions should make an extra effort to be on the field, ready to start at 6.10 p.m. The schedule for the week follows:

King Edward Grounds:

Tuesday—Bantam, Belmonts vs. Rotary.

Wednesday—Bantam, Curlers vs. Kiwanis.

Thursday—Juvenile, Lock Works vs. Maple Leafs.

Friday—Midget, Hillcrests vs. Sacred Heart.

Sacred Heart Grounds:

Tuesday—Juvenile, Hillcrests vs. Sacred Heart.

Friday—Curlers vs. Maple Leafs.

Tendler Will Plug His Ears Monday.

By HENRY L. FARRELL.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Benny Leonard and Lew Tendler, who are to battle here Monday night for the world's lightweight championship, will knock off their training tonight.

Some concern is being felt about Leonard's ability to make the weight, but Billy Gibson, his manager, said today, that the champion was under 135 pounds now and that he would not fill out too much before the day of the fight.

There is no press agent stuff in the story that there is little love lost between Tendler and Leonard. The falling out came when Tendler grabbed a $5,000 forfeit after Leonard had broken his hand and could not go through with a bout scheduled in Philadelphia some time back.

It is understood that Tendler returned the forfeit moner recently.

All of the experts who have looked over the champion in training say that he seems to be in perfect condition. His two fights with Pinky Mitchell and Alexander Hart practically got him back on edge after his "hitch" on the stage last winter.

Tendler, according to those who have seen the challenger, is also in good physical and mental condition. He claims that while Leonard may have found out a lot about his left-handed fighting in their last meeting that he himself has learned how to close his ears and hear nothing when Benny starts his monologue in the ring.

"I was talked out of that title once and it will never happen again," Tendler said.

From all indications the fight will establish a record gate for a lightweight battle and may come close to the Firpo-Willard and Dempsey-Carpentier crowd records.

RUBBER FOR COFFEE. HOW BRAZIL TRADED

East Indies Coffee Blight Fifty Years Ago Made Change Possible.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Credit for the discovery of rubber is given to Christopher Columbus, who discovered so many new things in the Western Hemisphere. It was in 1493, on his second voyage to America, says Fred B. Pitney, writing on the romance of rubber in Durant's Standard. Columbus saw some Indian boys playing a game with a bouncing ball on the hard sand of the beach and the ball was made of rubber.

"In 1839," says Mr. Pitney, "Charles Goodyear accidentally dropped some rubber mixed with sulphur and white lead on the kitchen stove. So was discovered the process of vulcanizing, which made rubber a commercial article. Columbus was thrown into prison for bringing rubber instead of gold from America. Charles Goodyear died in 1860 in debt because of his faith in rubber. Not a very encouraging start for a new industry which was destined to assume such an important industrial position.

It will doubtless surprise many persons to learn that nearly 500 plants, vines and trees produce rubber. They grow in a belt extending for thirty degrees north and south of the Equator. Only a small number of these plants provide rubber in sufficient quantity or quality to make it commercially valuable. The hevea tree is the best of all, and it so far surpasses all the rest that practically 99 per cent. of the world's supply of crude rubber comes from heave trees. The home of these valuable trees is in a belt extending ten degrees on either side of the Equator, and this is known as the india rubber belt. The hevea tree is a native of Brazil, and until 1900 nearly the entire world's supply of raw rubber came from the swamps and jungles where these trees flourish.

"The story of the development of the rubber industry," says Mr. Pitney, "is the story of the discovery of the great American oil fields, the invention of the automobile and the blight of the East Indies coffee plantations. The greatest factor was the automobile, for it made the pneumatic tire a necessity. After Goodyear's discovery the industry proceeded slowly. So much antagonism and skepticism had been developed toward rubber in the years before the discovery of vulcanization that it was extremely difficult to overcome popular feeling and gain a favorable place for it. In 1850 Brazilian exports of raw rubber amounted to only 1,467 tons. But by 1879 the annual volume of the American rubber business exceeded $25,000,000.

"At this time Henry A. Wickham, a Britisher, had the vision to see the possibilities in rubber. He had spent several years in Brazil and when, in the middle '70s of the last century, a blight fell upon the East Indies coffee plantations and ruined them, he proposed to the British Government that the cultivation of rubber be substituted in the Far East.

"He returned to Brazil and made a long and dangerous trip into the Amazon jungles, gathering seed. It was his good fortune to find on his return to the borders of civilization a British ship lying in the river in ballast. Though he had neither cash nor credit, Wickham chartered the ship to carry him and his precious burden to England. Speed was vital to success, for the seed decomposes with unusual rapidity. The vessel arrived at Liverpool in June, 1876. A special train conveyed Wickham and his seed to London, where a fortnight later 7,000 hevea trees had sprouted at Kew. The seedlings were forthwith shipped to Ceylon and the rubber plantations of the East Indies and the Malay Peninsula were born.

"Curiously enough, in this affair, the Far East and Brazil really merely traded industries. Rubber was substituted for coffe in the East, while Brazil imported coffee plants from the East and is today the greatest coffee producing country in the world.

"As though waiting on the energetic Wickham, the industry which was to lean so heavily on an adequate rubber supply now began to come into being. First, there was the development of the American oil fields, from which later would come gasoline. Then came the bicycle, with its fine facilities for the study of tire making. And in the late '90s, at just about the time that the rubber plantations of the East were emerging from their period of cultivation and experiment, the first successful American automobile was designed. The automobile and the successful rubber plantation arrived simultaneously.

"In 1900 the world's supply of plantation rubber amounted to four tons. Last year plantation rubber production was in excess of 360,000 tons. Three-fourths of the world's supply of rubber is now used in America."

BACK TO THE EIGHTIES.

There is a suggestion of the "eighties" in the bustle draperies and bouffant effects of the present day, but fashion experts say the high collars, rigid stays and many petticoats are in danger of returning.

SPAIN DISTURBED OVER NEW DOSSES.

Moroccan Campaign Unpopular in Many Quarters—Lost Territory.

LONDON, July 23. — (Associated Press).—Spain is facing a grave crisis over the Moroccan situation, says a Reuter dispatch from Madrid. The problem appears every day to be farther from a solution. The situation is extremely delicate, and the abortive attempts which have been made to arrive at a bloodless settlement have only aggravated it.

The Moroccan campaign is unpopular in many quarters, the correspondent continues, and the vacillating policy which has been the outcome of many recent changes of government has so far produced no definite results. The territory lost in 1921 has never been entirely reconquered and the civil protectorate which was declared last February exists in little more than name, inasmuch as the Riff leader, Abdelkrim, is still in possession of a large portion of the zone and has been able to make his own terms with the Spanish in regard to the release of prisoners.

The government's policy was to reorganize the army and make a determined bid for the conquest of the zone, but the recurring demands in the press for the cessation of hostilities and the punishment of those responsible for former defeats forced it, for a time, to abandon the idea of further aggressive action. The army was, however, reorganized and newly equipped with tanks, aeroplanes and other modern instruments of war.

Following the appointment of a new civil governor of Morocco, a friendly Moorish chief, Dris Er Riffi, was in April appointed native governor of the Riff Province. But Abdelkrim was still in undisputed authority over half of the province, and the government decided to withdraw a large number of the troops. This decision was never translated into action and, in spite of protests from the press, the Spanish troops continued to occupy advanced positions at considerable risk of attack. On May 31 a Spanish convoy was attacked by a large body of the enemy and sustained nearly 200 casualties.

It has for long been felt, the correspondent concludes, that the Moroccan problem ought to be settled without further bloodshed, and the news of this disaster cannot but give further impetus to the demand for a cessation of hostilities, and that without delay.

CALVERT'S VALLEY—WILLIAM FOX PRODUCTION.

LOVE AND MYSTERY IN FOX CALVERT'S VALLEY

"Calvert's Valley," a William Fox production starring John Gilbert, wil be the attraction at the Royal Theatre for three days, starting tonight.

The story, 'Calvert's Valley," was written by Margaret P. Montague and the scenario by Jules Furthman. Jack Dillon directed the picture. In addition to the star the cast contains such well-known names as Sylvia Breamer, Philo McCullough, Herschel Mayall and Lulu Warrenton.

While mystery is one of the main elements of the picture, the spectator being kept in suspense until the very end, it also carries the golden thread of a charming love story. According to reports received, the photography is an outstanding triumph.

The many recent successes of John Gilbert in Fox pictures, notably "Monte Cristo" is an omen of great promise for "Calvert's Valley."

Apprentices Scarce in Plumbing Trade.

In 15 years only 15 apprentices had entered the plumbing trade in San Francisco. The union delentless enforced the rule that only a son of a plumber coud become a plumber. Sounds ridiculous Well, it's a fact. It fits perfectly into the details which have been narrated at length in these pages in the last two years as to conditions in union - ruled and almost union-ruined San Francisco. In no city in the world were conditions worse. How the city smashed its shackles is almost a fairy tale. And now, in one year ending the first of June last, San Francisco has maintained a school for plumbers from which there have been graduated 210 apprentices. Sounds like another fairy tale. And from the free trade schools maintained by the Industrial Association for plasterers, iron and brass moulders, and tailors, there have been graduated in all in the same period, 750 boys and young men who have gone into these several trades and are making good.

Some of these schools operate at night, most of them by day. Intensive training is the rule. The Association means business and expects every trade school pupil to take his training seriously. The ages of most of the pupil range from 18 to 25. The condition under which work in the several trades is done on the job are faithfully reproduced in the training quarters. Expert instruction is provided. Materials are furnished for all practical uss. A class may set 10.00 bricks in a day and the next class the next day finds the wall down and sets to work to build it again.

LOCAL SECRETARY TO BOOST THE WATERWAY

Mr. Leon Frazer, secretary of the Trent Waterway Development Association, has been requested by the Provincial Government to go to Detroit in the interests of the development of tourist traffic on the Waterway. Sometime ago Mr. Frazer was successful in attrating many members of the Rochester Yacht Club, to take the trip, and it is expected that even greater success will attend his visit to the Detroit Club.

A new million dollar club house has just been completed by Detroit club, which is the largest club in the world. Arrangements are being made to address the club on Friday, when the films depicting the waterway will be shown. The expenses of the publicity are being paid by the Provincial Government.

MAKE YOUR WORK A STEPPING STONE.

Men Who Made History Were Driven Away By Dogs When They Started Work.

Napoleon in his youth was a book salesman. Early in his career he found his lieutenant's pay too meager. To provide himself with extra money, he canvassed from house to house, taking orders for a book "L'Histoire de la Revolution."

When you visit the Louvre in Paris, make enquiries and you will be shown Napoleon's book-selling outfit, including a list with 200 names of subscribers who were induced to sign on the dotted line by Napoleon's eloquence.

You picture young Napoleon, slender, with burning eyes, knocking at a door in Paris. The housewife meets him with a scowl. Her poodle barks at the salesman destined to be the future master of Europe.

It was nearly as hard to sell some of those books as to win victories later on the battlefield. Napoleon made good as a salesman. He "had the stuff in him"—the fighting spirit.

George Washington also was a book salesman, canvassing from house to house, in his early days. At 20 he sold a volume Blydell's "American Savage." It cost him $2 a copy and he sold it for $3. His sales, as recorded in his diary, totalled over 500 copies.

Washington had to make his own deliveries, galloping long distances with the books in his saddle-bags.

For these salesmanship angles on Napoleon and Washington, we are indebted to a speech by R. S. Branch of Chicago, before a convention of subscription book publishers.

Branch's comments cannot be improved upon:

"As a book salesman. Washington learned the lessons every house-to-house saleman learns to-day—courage, determination, patience and resourcefulness that helped him in after life to win battles and achieve the independence of the American colonies.

"There were lessons in selling books, even for Napoleon. He learned what every subscription book salesman learns to-day * * * * courage, determination, patience. resourcefulness and skill in dealing with men and problems. These qualities do not always make a Napoleon, but they are the foundation stones of success in every line of work."

All of us should find new courage and inspiration as we ponder these two famous book agents. Washington was an aristocrat, but he did not think the work beneath him. Napolen was a genius, with ambitions for world power, but he was sensible enough to make the most of every opportunity for advancement. however small as it came.

Future Napleons and George Washingtons, now in 1923, are also struggling for a start—selling books, clerking, keeping accounts. studying at nights * * * * in short, toiling at the humble tasks of life. Whether we later will have a bigger job to handle depends to large extent on how well we handle the present job.

Every job can be made a stepping-stone to better things.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — | New York Stock Exchange — And Curb Prices —

To-Day's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

New York, July 23. (Special.) — Opening prices in stock exchange to-day showed but fractional changes from Saturday's close with advances and declines about evenly divided. Rails were the most active with Baltimore and Ohio at 50¼—the best price in the recovery. N. Y. C. was off 5- at 99 3-4, and shortly after sold at 100. Steel was off ¼ and Beth. Steel 1-4, while Republic was 3-4 higher at 46 3-8. Sterling exchange was slightly lower. On realizing sales the market turned dull, a characteristic which has been usual in a number of recent sessions when profit taking on short selling appeared.

The oils reflected their reactionary tendency of some of the independent houses notably Phillips Petroleum which went to a new low of 21 5-8. Pan Americans were both off ¼ point and Marland 1 3-8; Sinclair and Cobden were fractionally lower. The rails appeared to be supported on fractional declines with New York Central slightly under par while Southern Railway was firm at 34.

Steel was inactive selling slightly under 92; Studebaker slumped down 1 1-8 at 105 3-4 but rallied ⅜ from that level on a light trade. Amer. Can was higher at 91 7-8. A bullish demonstration in this issue is being predicted in some quarters to occur this week. The copper issues were strong.

A buying movement in American Locomotive common shortly before 11 a.m. caused it to advance sharply above 70 to less than 1 point under its best previous price of the year. Under the rally Studebaker came within a fraction of 107 while N. Y. C. sold above par.

Baltimore and Ohio got to a new high at 50 5-8 and Baldwin rallied more than a point to 123. Opening prices included:

Studebaker 107 up 1-8; Baltimore and Ohio 50¼ up 1-4; General Electric 174 3-4 up 3-4; Beth Steel 48½ off ¼; Westinghouse 56 7-8 up 1-4; Sinclair 24 7-8 off 1-8; New York Central 99 3-4 off 5-8; United States Steel 92 off ½; Cosden 39 3-4; 4 General Motors 13 3-4 off 1-8; Reading 75½; Pan Petroleum 62 3-4 off ¼; Southern Railway 34 1-4; Erie 12 3-8; North American 21 3-4; California, 22 5-8 off 1-8; North Pac. 66 3-4 up 5-8; Phillip Petroleum, 22 5-8 up 1-8; American Locomotive 60.

THE CITY IS FREE FROM BOOTLEGGING

Inspector J. Stewart is Keeping a Watchful Eye on Situation.

Peterborough is comparitively clean as regards bootlegging and drinking, License Inspector Joe Stewart said to-day.

"I have been told that there is some drinking going on under cover, but I haven't seen it."

Inspector Stewart said he had only seen one drunk man lately, and that was in the first part of the month. "If there is any going on, I am the one who would see it," he said.

The condition of the city as regards the enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Law is considered very satisfactory.

THE WEATHER.

Saturday with a temperature of 91 degrees in the shade, proved to be the last day of the recent heated spell. Sunday's highest was but 83 degrees. Last night the thermometer was down to 41 degrees, and not far from the frost line, and we will probably later hear of white frost having been seen.—W.P.

J. BACON'S RINK THREE SHOTS UP

Close Game in the Play-off in Bowling Schedule

J. Bacon's rink won a close game in the play off between A. and B. schedules in the city bowling contest on Friday night, defeating Geo. Cairns' rink by three shots in an extra end.

This was the final in the interfink contest and was considered the stiffest game of the season. The contestants tied nearly every end and an extra end was necessary to decide the game. J. C. Seymour succeeded in turning the trick for his rink in the last play.

The rinks were: H. Hair, G. Boucher; C. J. Seymour; J. Bacon, skip.

Cairns' rink: Carr; Glover; Hendry, Cairns, skip.

Since last night there have been no clashes with the police or other demonstrations. At the United Mine Workers Head-quarters word has been received that the Stellarton miners went back to work today.

TORONTO BANDITS GOT AWAY WITH BIG HAUL IN BANK ROBBERY

CLAIM GERMAN RESISTANCE IS NEAR ITS END

Inspection, in the Ruhr Valley Reveals That a Collapse is Due Shortly.

PAPERS GUARDED

(By Webb Miller, U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, July 24. — Recommendations for a counter proposition to the British note to Germany were to be submitted to the French Cabinet to-day by Premier Poincaire.

Second in importance only to this was a report to the Premiers by M. Letroquer, Minister of Public Works, who has returned from an inspection of the Ruhr, to the effect that German resistance is weakening and will collapse eventually. Although official proceedings still remained cloaked in great secrecy, the inference was that Premier Poincaire and his aides had found the British draft inaccetpable, just as the press and unofficial spokesmen have predicted.

Powerful Argument.

The counter proposal, which was sent to London by way of opening Inter-Allied pour parlers on the subject of reparations, is understood to contain French suggestions for modification of the British note. Those of the Government who insist that French and Belgium troops withdraw, found M. Le Troquer's report a powerful argument in their favor. The minister was understood to be convinced that heavy pressure is wearing down resistance.

While the morning papers are extremely guarded in their comments, pursuant to the Government's request, a majority intimate France cannot do otherwise than disapprove the draft.

Pertinax, writing in the Echo De Paris, says: "France cannot let it be said that occupation of the Ruhr has proved a failure because such an assertion is contrary to the facts. Our English friends, too, evidently are inclined to say it is useless to continue longer in the Ruhr. Your policy has condemned you."

Cabinet Met

The Cabinet met shortly before noon, and Premier Poincare first outlined the French position in connection with Belgium, on the subject of a joint attitude towards reparations. The Cabinet approved the Premier's action.

Yves Le Troquer, minister of Public Works, told the ministers there is in the Ruhr at the present time, a distinct impression of relaxaion of resistance on the part of the German people. Transportation conditions are greatly improved, he said.

PRAYER IS LEGAL HEALING METHOD

Measure in Effect in Ontario Allows Healing by Spiritual Methods.

TORONTO, July 24. — An act was passed at the last session of theOntario legislature, to come into effect on July 1st, giving legal status to those who endeavor to heal the sick by prayer or spiritual means. Ontario thus becomes the second legislature in the British empire to pass such legislation.

Advocates of the measure urge that spiritual healing to-day is being adopted, slowly but surely, by all the churches. For the last half century Christian Science has persistently maintained healing the sick to be part of the Christian religion. In the early days without specific laws to protect them they were subjected to the persecution of interests identified with other methods of healing. Gradually through education and results laws have been pasesd in most of the United States protecting those who practice spiritual healing. One of the early exemption clauses in acts defining medical practice, was as follows:

"But this Act shall not apply to the practice of Christian Science."

This clause was and is effective and not objectionable, but in order that it might not seem restrictive, and so that all churches and individuals could practive to their highest understanding spiritual healing, the Christian Science adherents, believe that the clause which they have been instrumental in securing in the Ontario legislation is one of the best formulated for this purpose viz.:

"Nothing in this act contained, shall apply to or affect persons treating human ailments by prayer or spiritual means, as an enjoyment or exercise of religious freedom."

CROW LAKE IS POPULAR CAMP

Many From Peterborough Are Frequent Visitors—Thirty-five Cottages.

MARMORA, July 24.—Another of the many summer resorts in Central Ontario that is growing in popularity with the tourists from both sides of the border, is the one at Crow Lake, about two miles from this village and which now has a population of over 200, each one of the 35 cottages on the beach being occupied and the two summer hotels being filled to capacity.

The first thing that attracts the attention of autoists as they leave Marmora for Crow Lake is the novelty in the highway which leads from the village to that resort. For over half the distance the surface of the road is as smooth as asphalt, consisting as it does of natural flat rock. It is an easy matter to build a road there. All that is necessary is to remove the soil to a depth of about one foot, when the solid foundation that will last forever, without the expenditure of a cent for repairs, is laid bare. For the construction of the rest of the thoroughfare the Provincial Government has made a substantial grant which has been supplemented by local funds. All this money will be laid out on this highway during the year so that the road to the resort will be one of the main attractions for visiting autoists.

A New Hotel

The Crow Lake resort has been popularized this year through the energy and enterprise of A. T. Neal, who, on the 1st of May started the construction of a summer hotel which he has completed and which is now in commission. Visitors to Crow Lake who have travelled extensively over the continent and who are familiar with all of the leading watering places, pronounce this new hotel one of the most complete in location and design of any that has come under their notice.

Mr. Neal, before his latest venture, was well known to the travelling public as the owner of the Royal Hotel in Marmora, a place of entertainment that is modern in all its appointments, a credit to the village in which it stands. In the construction of this new building at Crow Lake he has shown the same taste in the arrangement of all the details.

The hotel is situated on the shore of the lake, a fine body of water seven miles long by three in width. It is two storeys in height, the dining-room, kitchen and other departments of the hotel proper, every room commanding a splendid view of the lake, being on the ground floor, while the spacious upper storey, reached by a handsome rustic stairway, is a handsomely arranged dancing pavillion. The dancing floor is railed off and on the outside of the railing are easy chairs for the accommodation of those not taking part in the dance. On both sides of the building are large windows—the walls being really composed of nothing else—all of which are covered with wire netting. The ventilation of the place is perfect, and at night the entire building is lighted by an electric plant which Mr. Neal has installed and which he operates at his own expense, another recent innovation at Crow Lake.

The music for the dancing is furnished by the Myers' Orchestra of Toronto. This consists of three pieces, Wynn Myers being the conductor and violinist; his brother, H. Meyers, pianist, and Fred Boland, drummer. The work of this trio has been so satisfactory to the patrons of the pavillion that they have been engaged for the entire season.

Besides the week night dances a concert is given in the pavillion every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock and it is nothing unusual to house over 300 guests at these affairs. Besides the instrumental music furnished by the orchestra, well-known violinists frequently appear on the programme.

Many of the guests at the hotel are lodged in cottages owned by Mr. Neal and situated in a beautiful grove on a high hill overlooking the lake. From one end of the resort to the other there is a beautiful avenue lined by tall trees. The lake is unexcelled for boating and bathing and the fishing is excellent. The place is growing in popularity every season with tourists from all parts of the United States and Canada. Only the other day Mr. Neal received a telegram from a well-known resident of Toronto asking him to secure a desirable location as he proposed to begin at once the erection of a summer cottage.

There are ample playgrounds at the resort, plenty of space for tennis, bowling, lacrosse and baseball. It is the natural holiday resort for Marmora, and on Wednesday afternoons all those who can get out of the village head for Crow Lake. On Sunday afternoon the concerts are a never-failing source of relaxation for the people here.

Mr. Neal has made a heavy investment but he has the advantage of an established record as a successful and popular hotelkeeper, so that it is only a question of time in the matter of realizing on his outlay.

OPPOSED TO THE AMENDMENTS BY CANADIAN BODY

Replies to Questionaire by Members of the League of Nations Are Disappointing.

NO NEW PRINCIPLE

OTTAWA, July 24. Canadian Press. — The Canadian proposed amendments to article 10 of the covenant of the League of Nations have been made the subject of a questionaire addressed to member-nations in anticipation of the assembly next September, and the League of Nations Society in Canada has received copies of replies made by several governments outlining their attitude. The majority oppose the amendments.

By article 10 as it now stands each member guarantees the territory and existing independence of all other member-nations against external aggression. The Canadian representaties at first proposed that this article be entirely eliminated Last year however the representatives who were Hon. W. S. Fielding and John E. Lapointe, moved that the article be re-drafted to ensure that the geographical situation of all countries expected to take up arms should be taken into consideration, and that no nation should be called upon to go to war before its parliament had approved.

Mutual Guarantees.

Italy's reply signed by Mussolini, is summed up in the statement that her government considers the amendments should only be examined, if at all, when decisions had been taken respecting the treaties of mutual guarantees and reduction of armaments .

The Polish government is of the opinion that article ten should be retained as it now stands. They claim that the amendments are superfluous as they introduce no new principle.

GRADING EGGS SLOW PROCESS

Canadian Packing Company and Other Local Firms are Carrying Out New Regulations.

In an article in yesterday's Examiner dealing with the grading of eggs, under the new Government regulations reference was made solely to the dealers in the city. The Canadian Packing Company, and it is believed others, who handle eggs in a large way, are conforming to the requirements of the law in regard to the grading of eggs.

The regulations which have now been in force for some three weeks do not meet with approval generally among dealers or packers. The opinion of Flavelles Ltd., of Lindsay, is gives by Mr. H. S. Johnston as follows:—"This question of grading eggs is a very disturbing one, and although we do not believe in it, yet we are endeavoring to live up to the new regulations and are doing every thing we can consistently do to help along the situation." Some of Lindsay grocers are sending their eggs to the grading station at the packing plant for candling. Of this Mr. Johnston remarked that he had watched men candling eggs for nineteen years and he could not yet do it properly. It requires months of careful study, he said.

Flavelle, Ltd., anticipate a cost of at least one cent a dozen more on account of the extra men needed for the candling, and also considering the fact that a man will not grade as many eggs as under the old system.

The new regulation will mean this authority says, that customers will pay two cents a dozen extra for the guarantee that the eggs are according to grade.

The Princess was found guilty of assisting the royal officer famed for his Kapp Putsch exploits, to evade the authorities of Republican Germany, who hunted him for months, after breaking up the attempted coup d'etat.

BANDITS BATTLE BANK RUNNERS IN TORONTO ESCAPED WITH $82,000

Three Bank Messengers Seriously Injured in a Gun Fight Near the Corner of Jordan and Melinda — Six Raiders Made Quick Getaway in Big Car.

CYCLE SQUAD PURSUES

TORONTO, July 24.— (Canadian Press and Special Correspondence). —One man is at the point of death and two others are suffering from serious bullet wounds following a spectacular and sensational pistol battle betwen six bandits and four bank messengers at Melinda and Jordan Streets at 10 o'clock this morning, which ended with the robbers making good their escape with a sum of money estimated by the Police at between $75,000 and $100,000.

Hundreds of persons on the streets and in doorways and windows witnessed the battle between the bandits and the messengers who put up a plucky fight until assistance arrived when the robbers jumped into a large touring car and made their escape. The car is described by the Police as being a stolen studebaker bearing the license number of 26936 Ontario and is deep maroon in color. The license number is also stolen and was not issued for the car used by the bandits.

The Police state that the robbers were last-seen proceeding at a great rate of speed on the Hamilton Highway and have sent the motor cycle squad in pursuit. The radio was brought into use in the hold up and the license number of the car and its description were broadcasted to all points of Ontario and the United States Border.

It was at first stated that messengers of the bank of Commerce, Bank of Nova Scotia, Sterling Bank and Standard Bank had been robbed but the Police have been notined of losses only by the Bank of Nova Scotia and the Sterling Bank.

The messengers were returning from the Clearing House with numerous bags of money.

W. S. Dick, 30 Gough Avenue, Sterling Bank Messenger, was shot and seriously injured, and James W. Harris, 4 Luttrell Avenue, Standard Bank Messenger, was shot in the abdomen and thigh but bravely returned the robbers' fire.

Near McKinnon Building.

The six robers had a motor car and made their getaway safely with a bag of the Sterling Bank money. The Sterling Bank men were on foot, and the messengers for the other banks were in cars as the Sterling men came into Jordon St. at Melinda, two men from the bandit car aproached them and fired.

In a moment the men were grappling in hand to hand fashion. The two shots were folowed by a fusilade as the other bank mesengers and the other robbers engaged in a revolver battle.

Harris Fought Back.

Harris proved the hero of the affair. He jumped from the Standard Bank car and opened fire on the bandits. Lying flat in the road he aimed at the bandits who were carrying a Sterling Bank bag of money across the road to their car.

Allan Lord, elevator operator in the McKinnon Building at Jordan and Melinda streets, was an eye-witness to the whole affair. The calls on the elevator being momentarily slack, he was standing at the front door of the building.

Story of Eye-witness.

"I noticed four men, one standing on each corner, but there was nothing peculair in that. I started back within the building and heard a shot. I thought that it was somebody's auto tire blowing out, and paid little attention to it, until I heard four more shots. I ran out, and there was one bandit grappling with a bank messenger on the northwest corner.

"The bandit had a shotgun and the messenger was in the very act of trying to draw his revolver.

(Here Lord had to sit down as he was wounded, and obviously very nervous.)

"I rushed over to the messenger's assistance. Just as I got there another of the holdup gang took careful aim, and the messenger sank helplessly still clutching his revolver.

"I grabbed the bandit, and another man struck me over the back and shoulders with the stock of a large new shot gun. He was swearing terribly, and telling me he'd knocked my ——— brains out if I did not let go.

"I did let go but they fired four at me. One of them got me in the leg. I thought it was over as I fell like a ton of lead, but that is probably what saved me. I crawled underneath an auto standing close by and the buckshot simply riddled the body and the windows of the car.

"The bandits then ran to a large red automobile. There was no one in the driver's seat that I could see but the car started on the second.

"A crowd was gathering now and one policeman came running up from Wellington street. He drew a gun but hesitated to use it, fearing to shoot some one in the crowd. That is all that I can tell you now. I am very weak. I am going to the hospital."

Injured may Recover.

The bandits' haul is estimated at $80,000 belonging to the Sterling Bank and the Bank of Nova Scotia. The loss is said to be covered by insurance. The Sterling Bank's loss will not exceed $35,000.

Duck and Harris, the wounded messengers, were in a critical condition this afternoon at one o'clock, but hopes were held out for the recovery of both men. Notification of the robbery was broadcasted by the Toronto authorities to the police throughout Ontario and in American border cities.

A red Studebaker, similar to that in which the bandits made their get-away, was reported to have been sighted near Mimico, westward bound shortly after the hold-up.

Hamilton Helps

HAMILTON, July 24.— Chief of Police Whatley and several parties of police were sent out in autos to watch all entrances to the city, this morning, as soon as the news was received here, of the hold-up in Toronto, they have been given the license number and description of the bandit's car.

Still at Lrage

TORONTO, July 24—At 3 o'clock this afternoon bandits, who shot three bank messengers and an elevator operator and escaped with three large money bags containing approximately $82000 cash were still at large. Three of their victims are in serious condition with David Campbell, Sterling Bank messenger, most serious. The other two messenegrs, James Harris of Standard Bank and A. F. Duck of Canadian Bank of Commerce, are expected to recover.

Of J. W. Harris and A. Duck, the General Hosptial report says: "Their condition is serious; there has been no change at all either way so far." Regarding David Campbell, the third man, who is in St. Michael's Hospital, the authorities there say: "He is very serious, that is all we can say yet."

Drag Net Spreads Out.

'As soon as I heard about the robbery, I phoned Deputy Chief Geddes of the Toronto Police Force and offered our assistance," stated General V. A. S. Williams, Head of the Provincial Police for Ontario.

"He accepted our help and at once all our Provincial Inspectors were notified by Long Distance Telephone. These various Inspectors at once got in touch with every Provincial Constable in the Districts to notify them to watch out for the bandits.

"The dragnet is out for the bandits and the boundaries are closed to them. We are doing every thing possible to co-operate with City Police and are making every effort in our power," stated General Williams.

The Investigators of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company affected by the loss are watching in all the large cities on the Continent for traces of the crime.

The Secretary of the Canadian BankersAssociation at Montreal will make an important announcement regarding rewards this afternoon.

TO AGAIN TEST THE SANITY OF ABBE DELORME

Consensus of Opinion Declares Such Will Be Next Step in Quebec Murder Case.

SPECULATION RIFE

MONTREAL, July 24.— (Canadian Press.)—Speculation was going the rounds of the court house as to the next move in the Delorme case. Concensus of opinion was that the next step will be fresh efforts to secure another insanity test. While the Abbe was found insane by a special jury last year, at the trial just concluded, beyond rejection of an application on behalf of the curator of the Delorme estate that alienists be allowed to examine the prisoner, the sanity issue did not, however, enter into the trial. It is thought that Delorme himself will move to have the judgment interdicting him in the civil courts set aside now that he has been released from the asylum on the certificate of its superintendent that he is sane. In this event the whole sanity issue might be fought out again, and the decision would have an important bearing on the next action to be taken by the Crown.

Trial in October.

It was freely stated in Quebec today that the second trial of Abbe Delorme will likely take place in Quebec at the October term of the criminal court, which opens on the tenth of that month. The difficulty in finding a judge to preside over the case which arose in the first instance will again occur, this time the added burden of finding a jury after the trial has caused such widespread interest.

Rural districts might be found suitable for the hearing of the case as far as the formation of an independent jury is concerned, but the fact that the murder was committed in a city and under conditions alleged to be more suitable for a city jury, will likely prevent such a step being taken, and Quebec, a short distance from St. Michel Asylum, where the accused priest spent nearly a year, will likely be the scene of the new trial.

A Doll Worth a Million

The opening chapters of a truly brilliant novel entitled "The Million Dollar Doll" and written especially for serialization will be found in The Examiner of Saturday, July 28. This is unquestionably one of the best fiction productions of the day and eminates from the pens of C. N. and A. M. Williamson a sufficient guarantee that the story ranks in the excelling class.

Replete with thrilling, climaxes incidents and suspense "The Million Dollar Doll" is the romance of one little girl and two big ones not forgetting the hero who plays Prince Magnificent to a charming little fairy-believing Cinderella of tender years and named "Terry" Desmond. The other principals are "Juliet" Divine Terry's half-sister who rides in a gorgeous car and talks of a millionaire; Terrence Desmond their father caretaker of an estate in Long Island; Mary Desmond, Terry's mother and Julia's stepmother who fears disgrace in the latter's stage career; Mrs. Parmalee owner of the Long Island estate; Betty Sheen her granddaughter and Miles Sheridan, Betty's fiance. And around these characters the authors have created a story which arrests and holds the reader's interest with irresistible force.

Remember that starting next Saturday "The Million Dollar Doll" will continue day by day in The Examiner until completed. Don't miss a single word of this perfectly delightful narrative in which innocence ultimately triumphs and Virtue finds its reward all the sweeter perhaps for having been somewhat belated.

The Rain of Today a Welcome Visitor Berries are Saved

To-day's rain probably saved the situation for city housewives in assuring them of a good raspberry crop, according to a local grower. This man has nine acres of excellent plants, and the prospects were bright for a big yield before the excessively dry weather of last week burned the plants.

Given suitable weather for the next few days the local raspberry crop should be ready by the end of the week, and there should be a good quantity of berries.

Farmers and gardeners generally will have looked on their crops with great satisfaction this morning when the much looked for rain appeared. Farmers who visited the market on Saturday were not optimistic about the crop prospects in the absence of rain.

RELIEVE STING OF POISON IVY

City Health Officer Gives Information About Antidotes—Prompt Attention Necessary.

Poison Ivy is the terror of the camper and of everyone who wanders in the great out-of-doors, and for many who are not actually hurt by it the holiday is spoiled by the fear of coming in contact with it.

Asked to-day for a cure for the poison, Dr. T. W. H. Young, City Medical Officer of Health, told of two applications to relieve the inflammation and allay the pain. These are Extract of Lobelia and Lead Lotion, either of which will give relief.

Another weed, Virginia Creeper, closely resembles poison ivy in appearance, and though quite innocent of harm in itself is the cause of many being injured through confounding the two plants. They are easy to distinguish if it is remembered that the harmless Virginia Creeper has five leaflets in a group where as the poison ivy has only three. To prevent confusion, Dr. Young points out that "ivy" has three letters and the poison ivy has three leaves.

Other Antidotes.

Several home-made, or first aid remedies are advised in the absence of the drugs recommended by Dr. Young. Among them is the juice of Jewel Weed which is said to be quickest antidote available. Jewel Weed is a plant whcih grows in low marshy places or shaded ground. It has a pale green and very juicy stalk with orange coloured flowers with brown spots. These flowers hang gracefully from the upper part of the plant, which grows to a The flower has been named 'Touch-me-not" because of a peculiarity of the seed pods. When nearly ripe these pods burst on the slightest touch, and the miniature explosion is startling to one not accustomed to the eccentricities of the plant.

In the absence of the foregoing remedis, a fairly strong alkaline solution, even the ordinary kitchen laundry soap, applied freely, will often prevent irritation. The secret of these antidotes is prompt application.

CARD OF THANKS.

FLOUR HAS NOT FOLLOWED DROP IN WHEAT COST

Very Big Reduction Needed Before Price of Bread Can be Reduced—Other Factors in Manufacture

LOCAL BAKERS

Although local bakers are chary about being too optimistic and it is rather early in the season to make predictions, there are several indications that when the fall wheat crop begins to find its way into loaves of bread these leaves will cost a little less than they do at present.

No change has yet taken place in the price of flour as sold to the bakeries, and all the other ingredients that go to make up a loaf of bread remain at the high prices. Peterborough bakers are of the opinion that it will take more than a general drop in the price of wheat to lower the price of bread. It is claimed that, considering the quality, prices of bread in this city are as low as any in the province, and local bakers are continually on the look out for ways to allow the customer the benefit of every saving.

Not only the price of wheat has to be considered, according to the baker. The overhead expenses are so muh more now, and incidental items so great that it would need a very big drop in the price of flour to enable them to cut even one cent off a loaf. Worked out on a per loaf basis the cost of material is about 4 3-4 cents; the baking and making of the loaf costs about 1 3-4 cents; delivery costs 2 1-4 cents; and other expenses such as the percentage paid to the Workmen's Compensation fund on behalf of the employees, lighting, heating, and other incidental expenses, amount to 1 cent. This total, 9 3-4 cents, leaving a profit of 1-4 cents for the baker.

High Standard Here

Mr. J. Dutton, secretary treasurer, Stock's Bread Ltd, said to be the largest plant between Toronto and Montreal, told the Examiner to-day that the bread made in Peterborough has an enviable reputation for high quality throughout the district. The bakers are endeavoring to maintain that high standard, and are directing their efforts towards that end rather than towards reducing prices. Asked regarding the possibility of a decrease, he said the drop in the price of wheat has not yet communicated ihself to flour, and it will take a very great decrease to enable the bread maker to reduce his price. Other raw materials, such as malt, sugar, shortening, and milk, continue at the high prices. His bakery, he said, uses about 1700 tins of condensed milk every week; the sugar, of which they use a great deal, costs 4 cents a pound more than it did some months ago, and shortening has advanced 2 1-4 cents. In Peterborough, wages are better than in most other centres, and Mr. Dutton expressed his satisfaction with this item. The baker has a difficult job, working at night in very trying circumstances.

Referring to the price of flour, Mr. Dutton said he expected a reduction on som, which he ordered yesterday, in view of the fall in wheat prices, but the account showed the same rate as weeks ago. Delivery costs are high in Peterborough.

Considering all these factors, Mr. Dutton does not anticipate a drop in the price of bread, at least until a very substantial decrease is made in the cost of flour.

Local bakers are hoping that this condition may materialize, as they point out that the cheaper the bread, the greater their sales will be

ELOQUENT PUBLIC TRIBUTE TO LATE NORWOOD DOCTOR

Funeral Of Doctor Samuel Payne Ford Larges: In Memory Of Living Villagers.

NORWOOD, July 24.—The funeral of Doctor Samuel Payne Ford here yesterday afternoon was an eloquent public testimony of respect and affection to the memory of him who in his later years was referred to by his fellow citizens as "the grand old man of Norwood."

Never had the village witnessed so large a funeral, men said, and never indeed had the death of any other townsman evoked such profound feeling of loss and regret. The Methodist church where the public service was held was crowded beyond its normal accomodation by a congregation diverse in its denominational affiliations but united in its admiration and esteem for the surviving personality and splendid character of him who had been their common friend and inspiration.

Sliding partitions between the auditorium of the church and the Sunday school were raised to relieve the overflow of men and women who had come from near and far, not only the hundreds from Norwood itself but the other hundreds who had motored in from the country sections of East Peterboro.

The coffin rested on its bier, banked with flowers, below the pastor's platform and lecturn. Around it in the nearets seat ranged the gentlemen of the local lodge of Masons together with visiting Brothers from the district. Back of them sat members of the Peterboro Medical Association and other doctors from Lindsay, Havelock and Lakefield. And beyond them to the last seat were the men and women and children who had been bound to Doctor Ford by that powerful attachment and understanding that had traditionally existed between the family physician of the old school, such as Doctor Ford was preeminently in this part of the county, and his patients. There was perhaps a significant and touching tribute in the presence of infant children whose parents brought them to this service of parting, and had to carry them out when their fretful crying broke the reverent requiem hush.

Order of Service.

Rev. W. P. Rogers, pastor of the church, was assisted by Rev. W. B. Tucker, B.A., B.D. of Toronto, Rev. Dr. Shorey of Picton and Rev. E. W. Pickford, B.A., Brighton, former Anglican rector at Norwood.

The service opened with the hymn, "Come for All Things Are Now Ready", followed by prayer by Rev. Mr. Tucker, and the choir's singing of "Abide With Me."

Rev. Mr. Pickford read the 23rd Psalm and also from St. Paul to Timothy, second epistle 4-7, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."

And after the old hymn "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," eulogies were addressed by Rev. Dr. Shorey and Rev. Mr. Rogers, concluding with the hymn "Jesus Lover of My Soul."

During the service beams of sunlight, filtering through the coloured glass in the west windows, fell across the caket and its fragrant burden of flowers in the very place where Doctor Ford for so many years had been a worshipper, and, according to the high tribute paid to his memory by Rev. Mr. Rogers, had been an exemplary member of the church, actively engaging himself in the work of the Sunday School, attending regularly the prayer meetings, and in every possible way taking a large interest in all the affairs of the congregation.

The Participants.

The public service was preceded by a short private service at the house. The pall-bearers were Col. R. J. Stuart of Toronto, George J. Sherry of Peterborough, both formerly of this place, also J. G. Keefer, E. C. Squire, J. Fred Pearce, and George Duffield.

Among the mourners were Professor Harry E. Ford, Ph.D., of Toronto University, son of Dr. Ford, his wife and little son Walter, who was the doctor's only grandchild; Rev. James Ford of Goderich, brother of the deceased; Mrs. B. Shortly, of Peterborough, and Mrs. R. D. P. Davidson, of Cobourg, nieces.

The representatives of the Peterborough Medical Society were Dr. M. Yelland, president; Dr. W. D. Scott, Dr. F. C. Neal, Dr. DeC. King, Dr. N. D. Buchanan, Dr. J. H. Eastwood, Dr. Carmichael, Dr. E. Wood, Dr. N. H. Sutton, Dr. Munroe of Warsaw, Dr. Fraser of Lakefield, Dr. Devlin of Indian River, Dr. Harrison of Keene, Dr. Holderoft of Havelock, Dr. Sutton of Norwood, also Dr. Wm. Clarke and Dr. Sam Clarke of Lindsay.

Others from out of town were Rev. Mr. Hinton and Rev. D. A. Thompson of Hastings, and Rev. Mr. Seymour of Havelock, Mrs. J. P. Bond of Peterborough, Mr. R. D. P. Davidson, B.A., of Cobourg, Mr. James Thompson, ex-M.L.A., of Toronto, formerly of Havelock, Mr. Walter Fowlds of Hastings, and Peterborough Masons were represented by Messrs. W. A. Logan, R. L. Dobbin, W. D. Campbell, and Alderman W. Stocker; and from Lakefield Mr. H. G. Fitzgerald and F. J. Lillicrap.

Telegrams of condolence were received from Mr. Arthur Ford of the London Free Press, a nephew of Dr. Ford, also from Dr. H. B. Anderson of Toronto, Dr. J. M. Jory of St. Catharines, and from Walter Baker of Washington, a brother of Mrs. Harry Ford.

Among the many floral tokens were wreaths from the Peterborough Medical Society, the Masonic Lodge in Norwood, and the Northern Life Insurance Company.

The obsequies at the cemetery were conducted by the Masonic Lodge of which Dr. Ford was Chaplain.

Of the Old School.

In the eulogy he delivered at the church, Rev. Mr. Rogers referred to the many activities of the late Dr. Ford, religious, professional, literary, educational, municipal, and fraternal. As a physician he belonged to the old school now disappearing, and giving place to the practice of specialists. Dr. Ford never refused to go to any place to which he was called. He gave equal attention to rich and poor, and in responding to sick calls was not concerned about the fee he might or might not collect.

In his professional life he embodied the highest ideals of the medical profession in his service to humanity. For sixty years he had practiced in Norwood, travelling to all parts of East Peterborough to help those who needed his skill and care. Just before his death he recalled in a sort of delirium a long trip of sixty miles he made years ago in the depth of winter when the roads were blocked with snow and he had only a rough lumber trail to follow. He ministered not only to the physical needs of the community but to the spiritual also, Rev. Mr. Rogers said, and his Christianity found expression not only in prayer and church work, but by the bedside of those to whom he ministered.

Dr. Ford had been a member of the Methodist Church for seventy-two years, having joined it when he was eleven years old, presumably in Peterborough, where he was born on 18th April, 1840, in a house at the corner of London and Aylmer Streets. His fraternal, political, and municipal activities have already been mentioned in connection with the report of his death, which oc-

No Black Rust Found In Sashatchewan Wheat

SASKATOON, July 24.—(Canadian Press)—A questionnaire telegraphed to country correspondents of the Saskatoon Daily Star yesterday morning brought information that only in a few isolated lcoalities has rust appeared on growing grain. Most of this is read leaf rust and may not result in any damage whatever. Prince Albert district reports absolutely no rust or grasshoppers and crop prospects better than in any year since 1915. Some red rust has appeared on a few patches of rye between Rosetown and Kindersley, but Goose Lake country crops are generally flourishing.

Black rust was discovered on a sample of grain received by the field crops department from the Maiden district. Battleford reported slight signs of rust but nothing serious. Gallivan was hit by a severe hail storm Saturday night. Many farmers were said to have suffered loss. Cutting in Melfort territory will be general in the second week of August.

BANK OF ENGLAND UNDER CRITICISM

Raising Of Discount Rate Has Had a Satisfactory Influence

LONDON, July 24.—(Canadian Press).—The recent policy of the Bank of England in raising its discount rate, apparently with a view to arresting the depreciation of the Pound Sterling as compared with the United States Dollar, is extensively criticized by the business community on the ground that, although such deflation is praiseworthy, it reacts greatly on the industrial situation, involving further fall in prices and consequent stagnation of trade and excessive unemployment.

The Federation of British industries, which represents the great trading and business interests, has issued a manifesto emphasizing these views and urging the Government to appoint a commission representing finance, industry, commerce and labor to review the whole position and make recommendations as to the future monetary policies. The manifesto, which has been forwarded to Premier Baldwin points out that, in view of the annual payments of account of the debt to the United States it is very doubtful whether the parity of sterling, even if regained, could long be maintained.

Good Crops Are The Order In Ontario.

TORONTO, July 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Fall wheat is turning out better in the cutting than was expected, both in yield and quality, although not up to the average, according to the report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture yesterday.

The hay crop is a good one, taking the province over and eastern Ontario is at least realizing some big yields, after many years of light cuttings. Pastures are failing considerable in many counties, although some districts report the flow of milk as being exceptionally good for the time of year.

HAIL DOES DAMAGE

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., July 24.—(Canadian Press).—Hail cut a strip about eight miles by two miles, north west of Taber Saturday night. From Taber east, there was a further strip five miles by one, damaged. The crop was damaged about fifty per cent. Rain at Taber fell in torrents over three inches being recorded in five hours.

OPEN VERDICT WAS RETURNED AT COCHRANE

Cause Of The Death Of Six - Year - Old Monica Foster Still Remains A Mystery.

STORIES CONFLICT

COCHRANE, July 24. Canadian Press. — With the jurors at Coroner Tucker's adjourned inquest into the death of six year old Monica Foster returning an open verdict late yesterday afternoon, the Cochrane murder case remained a baffling problem last night. Fifteen witnesses including the father, and three sisters of the dead girl gave evidence at the hearing which lasted practically all day, and last evening the provincial officers in charge of the investigation declared that the solution of the mystery appeared no nearer.

Conflicting testimony regarding the blood stained stone found near the bushes in which the child's body had been hidden was given at the inquest. Olga and Jessie Fotser, older sisters of the victim were positive that this stone had been observed by them on their way to town about half past four on Tuesday afternoon, Jessie having kicked it, and drawing her sisters attention to its condition.

Against this another sister, Thelma, and most of the other witnesses swore that when the stone was first noticed the following morning the blood seemed to be comparatively fresh, and Coroner Tucker addressing the jury at the conclusion of the evidence said that he felt justified in asking them to disregard the evidence of the two girls on this point.

There was also considerable difference of opinion regarding the time that Monica was last seen alive —Jessie Foster told of having seen her sister standing at the front door of their house about 4.20 on Tuesday afternon, but the other members of the family had no recollection of having noticed her since dinner time. Alfred Thomas Foster, the father, said that he was not certain whether she had been playing about the house when he left for work at 3.30 p.m., and Mrs. Mary Lebarron, a neighbor, and two of her daughters, declared that Monica had been on the swing at their home at late as 6.40 that evening. They fixed the time because they had found her there after they had eaten supper. Dr. Paul thought that she had been dead not more than 18 hours prior to the time he saw the body Wednesday morning.

The girl had died from henior-rhages which followed the wounds inflicted upon her throat with a sharp instrument, the doctor said, and the injury to the left temple was not in itself fatal. There had been no fracture of the skull. He thought that the stone produced in court might have caused the blow upon the head.

None of the witnesses from the neighborhood of the Foster home could swear to having seen any persons in the vicinty of the scene of the crime during Tuesday afternoon although Jessie Foster declared she had noticed a strange man near an old log shack. He was medium sized and broad, she said. Denis Carr, the 14 year old boy, who first saw the body, told of having noticed a foot print apparently from an "old leather shoe" in the sand near the bushes, but it had not struck him as significant in view of the number of persons who had been searching in that neighborhood for the missing girl.

William Verner, a call boy for the T. and N. O., had spoken to a man in the station at 3.30 on Wednesday morning, and this man had asked if there was a train going out soon. The boy described the stranger's appearance and said that he seemed to be "half a nigger, with curly hair cut short," while he said also that he might have been an Italian. Inspector Miller produced the photograph of a man about whom the police have been making inquiries but none of the witnesses to whom it was shown could identify it.

SERIOUS LOSS FOR A SCUGOG FARMER

Barn, Team of Horse, and Thoroughbred Cattle Destroyed By Fire.

NORWOOD, July 24—Mr. Thomas Clark, left on Saturday morning, for Scugog Island, to assist his son, in taking off his harvest. In the afternoon, the barn in which they were putting the crop, took fire and is a total loss, together with a team of fine horses, some thoroughbred cattle and other goods.

Next Sunday Will Be Peace Sunday.

OTTAWA, July 24.—(Canadian Press).—Sunday next, July 29, will be observed in Canada as Peace Sunday. The League of Nations Society in Canada has received a large number of requests for literature during the past week, so that there is no doubt that the league's work will be deal with quite extensively in the pulpits.

ALBERTA COAL WILL BE SOLD AT $12 TON

EDMONTON, July 24.— (Canadian Press.) —A freight rate of $7 per ton has been fixed, it is stated by Premier Greenfield, for experimental shipments of Alberta coal to Ontario over the Canadian National lines. Agreement to this effect has been reached by the government and the railway authorities and arrangements will be made at once for the first shipments.

The coal will be sent from Drumheller, Brazos and other mines on the Canadian National Railway lines and will be billed through to various points in Ontario. It is expected that between 4,000 and 6,000 tons will be shipped on this basis.

Under this arrangement the operators will make a price of about $4.50 per ton, which will enable the coal to be sold in Toronto and other Ontario cities at $12.00 or thereabouts.

HIGH TEMPERATURE PREVAILS IN WEST

Weekly Report Shows Wheat Crop of the West To Be In First Class Condition.

WINNIPEG, July 24. — (Canadian Press.)— Unusually high temperatures have prevailed over Saskatchewan and Alberta with rain fairly general in these provinces as well as Manitoba, according to the weekly crop report issued here yesterday by the agricultural department of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Black rust is in evidence over scattered areas of the three prairie provinces and some reduction in yield may be expected. With favorable weather between now and harvest this trouble, however, should be minimized. Live stock is thriving on excellent pasture and harvesting of rye is becoming general.

Rust is in evidence in the southern and central areas of Manitoba the report says. There has been no damage from hail and wheat is now in head and shows very good stand.

There has been considerable damage by hail in Saskatchewan, but on the whole conditions remain very favorable. Seventy-five to ninety per cent. of wheat crop is now headed with promise of a fairly early harvest.

Conditions are generally favorable in the province of Alberta and apart from some hail damage, nothing of an adverse nature has been reported. The present outlook is very promising. About seventy-five per cent. of wheat is in head.

Crops are making excellent progress along the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway. There have been heavy showers during the week and no damage from any cause is reported.

Tree fruits in British Columbia promise to exceed any previous year's. Cutting of a very heavy hay crop is now in progress as well as a yield of fall wheat and oats.

LEADER OF OPPOSITION MOVED RESOLUTIOD TO HOLD BIG CONFERENCE

Ramsay MacDonald's Motion To Convene International Conference On Limitation Of Armaments Was Lost.

TIME NOT RIPE.

LONDON, July 24.— (Canadian Press)—J. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, moved a resolution yesterday in favor of convening an international conference to discuss the limitation of armaments, but the House rejected this proposal 286 to 169.

No vote was taken on an amendment introduced by R. W O'Neill, which had been accepted by the Government, inviting the Government to take the earliest favorable opportunity to attain the object desired through the agency of the League of Nations. This amendment was talked out.

The Opposition leader explained that no mention had been made of his resolution because the League of Nations had not yet won the confidence of all the most important nations of the world. It was most desirable that the United States should come into such a conference and he wanted to make it perfectly clear to the people of the United States that there was no wish to make it difficult for them to come in.

The debate on Mr. MacDonald's resolution in favor of a disarmament conference turned less on the ideal to be attained than on the manner of attaining. The Government could not meet the Labor resolution with a simple negative, because, as R. W. O'Neill, who moved an amendment accepted by the Government, confessed, such a course would create misunderstanding abroad and would not represent the real feelings of the mass of the people.

Briefly Mr. O'Neill's amendment was to the effect that the House views with alarm the danger of renewed competition in armaments and considers that the Government should at the earliest favorable opportunity uses it utmost influence through the League of Nations to bring about general limitation of armaments.

Denounced Simpson

Mr. MacDonald had represented the world as sitting under the dark gloom of threatened war and reverting to its 1914 frame of mind. He denounced the Singapore project as colossal folly on the part of the Government and invited the nation to take the lead in international disarmament.

In moving his amendment, Mr. O'Neill argued that an immediate disarmament conference was impracticable, and, until the Ruhr difficulty was settled, undesirable.

He advocated direct negotiations with France for disarmament and also urged that Great Britain should offer France an unconditional guarantee against aggression, to replace the abortive Anglo-American convention.

Herbert H. Asquith agreed fully with the substance of Mr. MacDonald resolution and speech, and only regretted its implication of ignoring the League of Nations as the proper vehicles to attain disarmament. He again appealed to the Government to stay its hand with regard to Singapore until the Imperial conference had considered the question.

Might Not Respond

Sir Samuel Hoare, the Air Minister emphasizing the Government's difficulties, contended that even were the Government to summon such a conference there was no reason to suppose that Russia or France would respond. He asserted that the whole history of the past four or five years proved the extreme danger of starting international conferences until there was some definite measure of agreement and a progrmme had been prepared.

Premier Baldwin, replying on the debate, emphasized the difficulties of carrying out a policy with which everybody was in sympathy. The mistake must not be made of thinking that what might be war weariness was necessarily an access of innate goodwill.

Alluding to the growth in Europe since the war of feelings of extreme nationalism, which, unless corrected might bear the seeds of peril to peace, he said the Government believed that any attempt now to convene an international conference would not only not lead to success, but would lead to indefinite postponement of any possibility of achieving the end all desired. It was hopeless to approach the question until the problems of reparations and security of frontiers were settled.

Reparations First

The Prime Minister felt that it would be hopeless to expect a favorable answer from France until these questions were disposed of, or from Poland until she could feel that her frontiers were secure against gigantic and powerful neighbor along her eastern border. The first step to be taken was the one which the Government was now taking—an attempt to settle the problem of reparations.

One of the greatest difficulties facing the Government was the inherent fighting instinct of man; it was the instinct of the tiger and dated from his creation. This instinct was to be found even among men whose political vniews would class them as pacifists. He would remind the House that for thirty years preceding the

SECRECY WILL BE MAINTAINED IN BRITISH NOTE

It Is Expected That Ten Days Wil Elapse Before A Reply Is Received From France.

DEBATE POSTPONDED

LONDON, July 24. — (Canadian Press)—The secrecy agreed upon by the British and French Governments concerning the reparation document forwarded to the Allies is being closely maintained, and it is expected that another ten days will elapse before any reply is received from the French Government, owing to the delay in the meeting of Premier Poincare and Premier Theunis to consult over the British draft note to Germany. It had been arranged to discuss the Ruhr questions in the House of Commons Thursday, when the Foreign Office estimates came up for consideration, but the Government, in the belief that such discussion at the present moment would not be helpful to the delicate negotiations has decided to postpone the debate indefinitely.

BERLIN, July 24. — (Canadian Press). — Ordinary wisdom would seem to suggest that the best thing for the Germans to do in the present situation is to meddle the least possible in current Anglo-French conversations, is the advice Theodor Wolff gives to-day in the Tageblatt.

Official and political circles appear to share his conviction, as German interest in the fate of the British note may be said to be wholly passive. The newspapers are confining themselves to a reproduction of the London and Paris editorial comment on the note.

Premier Poincare, however, again was given his customary Monday grilling in the newspapers, most of the editors laying stress on "his custom of parading the French devastated regions for propaganda purposes" referring to his speech at Villers Cotterets, Sunday.

The representatives of the Peterborough Medical Society were Dr. M. Yelland, president; Dr. W. D. Scott, Dr. F. C. Neal, Dr. DeC. King, Dr. N. D. Buchanan, Dr. J. H. Eastwood, Dr. Carmichael, Dr. E. Wood, Dr. N. H. Sutton, Dr. Munroe of Warsaw, Dr. Fraser of Lakefield, Dr. Devlin of Indian River, Dr. Harrison of Keene, Dr. Holdcroft of Havelock, Dr. Sutton of Norwood, also Dr. Wm. Clarke and Dr. Sam Clarke of Lindsay.

Others from out of town were Rev. Mr. Hinton and Rev. D. A. Thompson of Hastings, and Rev. Mr. Seymour of Havelock, Mrs. J. P. Bond of Peterborough, Mr. R. D. P. Davidson, B.A., of Cobourg, Mr. James Thompson, ex-M.L.A., of Toronto, formerly of Havelock, Mr. Walter Fowlds of Hastings, and Peterborough Masons were represented by Messrs. W. A. Logan, R. L. Dobbin, W. D. Campbell, and Alderman W. Stocker; and from Lakefield Mr. H. G. Fitzgerald and F. J. Lillicrap.

Telegrams of condolence were received from Mr. Arthur Ford of the London Free Press, a nephew of Dr. Ford, also from Dr. H. B. Anderson of Toronto, Dr. J. M. Jory of St. Catharines, and from Walter Baker of Washington, a brother of Mrs. Harry Ford.

Among the many floral tokens were wreaths from the Peterborough Medical Society, the Masonic Lodge in Norwood, and the Northern Life Insurance Company.

The obsequies at the cemetery were conducted by the Masonic Lodge of which Dr. Ford was Chaplain.

Of the Old School.

In the eulogy he delivered at the church, Rev. Mr. Rogers referred to the many activities of the late Dr. Ford, religious, professional, literary, educational, municipal, and fraternal. As a physician he belonged to the old school now disappearing, and giving place to the practice of specialists. Dr. Ford never refused to go to any place to which he was called. He gave equal attention to rich and poor, and in responding to sick calls was not concerned about the fee he might or might not collect.

In his professional life he embodied the highest ideals of the medical profession in his service to humanity. For sixty years he had practiced in Norwood, travelling to all parts of East Peterborough to help those who needed his skill and care. Just before his death he recalled in a sort of delirium a long trip of sixty miles he made years ago in the depth of winter when the roads were blocked with snow and he had only a rough lumber trail to follow. He ministered not only to the physical needs of the community but to the spiritual also. Rev. Mr. Rogers said, and his Christianity found expression not only in prayer and church work, but by the bedside of those to whom he ministered.

Dr. Ford had been a member of the Methodist Church for seventy-two years, having joined it when he was eleven years old, presumably in Peterborough, where he was born on 18th April, 1840, in a house at the corner of London and Aylmer Streets. His fraternal, political, and municipal activities have already been mentioned in connection with the report of his death, which oc-

No Black Rust Found In Sashatchewan Wheat

SASKATOON, July 24.—(Canadian Press)—A questionnaire telegraphed to country correspondents of the Saskatoon Daily Star yesterday morning brought information that only in a few isolated lcoalities has rust appeared on growing grain. Most of this is read leaf rust and may not result in any damage whatever. Prince Albert district reports absolutely no rust or grasshoppers and crop prospects better than in any year since 1915. Some red rust has appeared on a few patches of rye between Rosetown and Kindersley, but Goose Lake country crops are generally flourishing.

Black rust was discovered on a sample of grain received by the field crops department from the Maiden district. Battleford reported slight signs of rust but nothing serious. Gallivan was hit by a severe hail storm Saturday night. Many farmers were said to have suffered loss. Cutting in Melfort territory will be general in the second week of August.

BANK OF ENGLAND UNDER CRITICISM

Raising Of Discount Rate Has Had a Satisfactory Influence

LONDON, July 24.—(Canadian Press).—The recent policy of the Bank of England in raising its discount rate, apparently with a view to arresting the depreciation of the Pound Sterling as compared with the United States Dollar, is extensively criticized by the business community on the ground that, although such deflation is praiseworthy, it reacts greatly on the industrial situation, involving further fall in prices and consequent stagnation of trade and excessive unemployment.

The Federation of British industries, which represents the great trading and business interests, has issued a manifesto emphasizing these views and urging the Government to appoint a commission representing finance, industry, commerce and labor to review the whole position and make recommendations as to the future monetary policies. The manifesto, which has been forwarded to Premier Baldwin points out that, in view of the annual payments of account of the debt to the United States it is very doubtful whether the parity of sterling, even if regained, could long be maintained.

Good Crops Are The Order In Ontario.

TORONTO, July 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Fall wheat is turning out better in the cutting than was expected, both in yield and quality, although not up to the average, according to the report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture yesterday.

The hay crop is a good one, taking the province over and eastern Ontario is at least realizing some big yields, after many years of light cuttings. Pastures are failing considerable in many counties, although some districts report the flow of milk as being exceptionally good for the time of year.

HAIL DOES DAMAGE

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., July 24.—(Canadian Press).—Hail cut a strip about eight miles by two miles, north west of Taber Saturday night. From Taber east, there was a further strip five miles by one, damaged. The crop was damaged about fifty per cent. Rain at Taber fell in torrents over three inches being recorded in five hours.

OPEN VERDICT WAS RETURNED AT COCHRANE

Cause Of The Death Of Six - Year - Old Monica Foster Still Remains A Mystery.

STORIES CONFLICT

COCHRANE, July 24. Canadian Press. — With the jurors at Coroner Tucker's adjourned inquest into the death of six year old Monica Foster returning an open verdict late yesterday afternoon, the Cochrane murder case remained a baffling problem last night. Fifteen witnesses including the father, and three sisters of the dead girl gave evidence at the hearing which lasted practically all day, and last evening the provincial officers in charge of the investigation declared that the solution of the mystery appeared no nearer.

Conflicting testimony regarding the blood stained stone found near the bushes in which the child's body had been hidden was given at the inquest. Olga and Jessie Fotser, older sisters of the victim were positive that this stone had been observed by them on their way to town about half past four on Tuesday afternoon, Jessie having kicked it, and drawing her sisters attention to its condition.

Against this another sister, Thelma, and most of the other witnesses swore that when the stone was first noticed the following morning the blood seemed to be comparatively fresh, and Coroner Tucker addressing the jury at the conclusion of the evidence said that he felt justified in asking them to disregard the evidence of the two girls on this point.

There was also considerable difference of opinion regarding the time that Monica was last seen alive —Jessie Foster told of having seen her sister standing at the front door of their house about 4.20 on Tuesday afternon, but the other members of the family had no recollection of having noticed her since dinner time. Alfred Thomas Foster, the father, said that he was not certain whether she had been playing about the house when he left for work at 3.30 p.m., and Mrs. Mary Lebarron, a neighbor, and two of her daughters, declared that Monica had been on the swing at their home at late as 6.40 that evening. They fixed the time because they had found her there after they had eaten supper. Dr. Paul thought that she had been dead not more than 18 hours prior to the time he saw the body Wednesday morning.

The girl had died from hemorrhages which followed the wounds inflicted upon her throat with a sharp instrument, the doctor said, and the injury to the left temple was not in itself fatal. There had been no fracture of the skull. He thought that the stone produced in court might have caused the blow upon the head.

None of the witnesses from the neighborhood of the Foster home could swear to having seen any persons in the vicinty of the scene of the crime during Tuesday afternoon although Jessie Foster declared she had noticed a strange man near an old log shack. He was medium sized and broad, she said. Denis Carr, the 14 year old boy, who first saw the body, told of having noticed a foot print apparently from an "old leather shoe" in the sand near the bushes, but it had not struck him as significant in view of the number of persons who had been searching in that neighborhood for the missing girl.

William Verner, a call boy for the T. and N. O., had spoken to a man in the station at 3.30 on Wednesday morning, and this man had asked if there was a train going out soon. The boy described the stranger's appearance and said that he seemed to be "half a nigger, with curly hair cut short," while he said also that he might have been an Italian. Inspector Miller produced the photograph of a man about whom the police have been making inquiries but none of the witnesses to whom it was shown could identify it.

SERIOUS LOSS FOR A SCUGOG FARMER

NORWOOD, July 24—Mr. Thomas Clark, left on Saturday morning, for Scugog Island, to assist his son, in taking off his harvest. OTTAWA, July 24.—(Canadian Press).—Sunday next, July 29, will be observed in Canada as Peace Sunday. The League of Nations Society in Canada has received a large number of requests for literature during the past week, so that there is no doubt that the league's work will be deal with quite extensively in the pulpits.

ALBERTA COAL WILL BE SOLD AT $12 TON

EDMONTON, July 24.— (Canadian Press.) —A freight rate of $7 per ton has been fixed, it is stated by Premier Greenfield, for experimental shipments of Alberta coal to Ontario over the Canadian National lines. Agreement to this effect has been reached by the government and the railway authorities and arrangements will be made at once for the first shipments.

The coal will be sent from Drumheller, Brazos and other mines on the Canadian National Railway lines and will be billed through to various points in Ontario. It is expected that between 4,000 and 6,000 tons will be shipped on this basis.

Under this arrangement the operators will make a price of about $4.50 per ton, which will enable the coal to be sold in Toronto and other Ontario cities at $12.00 or thereabouts.

HIGH TEMPERATURE PREVAILS IN WEST

Weekly Report Shows Wheat Crop of the West To Be In First Class Condition.

WINNIPEG, July 24. — (Canadian Press.)— Unusually high temperatures have prevailed over Saskatchewan and Alberta with rain fairly general in these provinces as well as Manitoba, according to the weekly crop report issued here yesterday by the agricultural department of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Black rust is in evidence over scattered areas of the three prairie provinces and some reduction in yield may be expected. With favorable weather between now and harvest this trouble, however, should be minimized. Live stock is thriving on excellent pasture and harvesting of rye is becoming general.

Rust is in evidence in the southern and central areas of Manitoba the report says. There has been no damage from hail and wheat is now in head and shows very good stand.

There has been considerable damage by hail in Saskatchewan, but on the whole conditions remain very favorable. Seventy-five to ninety per cent. of wheat crop is now headed with promise of a fairly early harvest.

Conditions are generally favorable in the province of Alberta and apart from some hail damage, nothing of an adverse nature has been reported. The present outlook is very promising. About seventy-five per cent. of wheat is in head.

Crops are making excellent progress along the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway. There have been heavy showers during the week and no damage from any cause is reported.

Tree fruits in British Columbia promise to exceed any previous year's. Cutting of a very heavy hay crop is now in progress as well as a yield of fall wheat and oats.

LEADER OF OPPOSITION MOVED RESOLUTIOD TO HOLD BIG CONFERENCE

Ramsay MacDonald's Motion To Convene International Conference On Limitation Of Armaments Was Lost.

TIME NOT RIPE.

LONDON, July 24.— (Canadian Press)—J. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, moved a resolution yesterday in favor of convening an international conference to discuss the limitation of armaments, but the House rejected this proposal 286 to 169.

No vote was taken on an amendment introduced by R. W O'Neill, which had been accepted by the Government, inviting the Government to take the earliest favorable opportunity to attain the object desired through the agency of the League of Nations. This amendment was talked out.

The Opposition leader explained that no mention had been made of his resolution because the League of Nations had not yet won the confidence of all the most important nations of the world. It was most desirable that the United States should come into such a conference and he wanted to make it perfectly clear to the people of the United States that there was no wish to make it difficult for them to come in.

The debate on Mr. MacDonald's resolution in favor of a disarmament conference turned less on the ideal to be attained than on the manner of attaining. The Government could not meet the Labor resolution with a simple negative, because, as R. W. O'Neill, who moved an amendment accepted by the Government, confessed, such a course would creat misunderstanding abroad and would not represent the real feelings of the mass of the people.

Briefly Mr. O'Neill's amendment was to the effect that the House views with alarm the danger of renewed competition in armaments and considers that the Government should at the earliest favorable opportunity uses it utmost influence through the League of Nations to bring about general limitation of armaments.

Denounced Simpson

Mr. MacDonald had represented the world as sitting under the dark gloom of threatened war and reverting to its 1914 frame of mind. He denounced the Singapore project as colossal folly on the part of the Government and invited the nation to take the lead in international disarmament.

In moving his amendment, Mr. O'Neill argued that an immediate disarmament conference was impracticable, and, until the Ruhr difficulty was settled, undesirable.

He advocated direct negotiations with France for disarmament and also urged that Great Britain should offer France an unconditional guarantee against aggression, to replace the abortive Anglo-American convention.

Herbert H. Asquith agreed fully with the substance of Mr. MacDonald resolution and speech, and only regretted its implication of ignoring the League of Nations as the proper vehicles to attain disarmament. He again appealed to the Government to stay its hand with regard to Singapore until the Imperial conference had considered the question.

Might Not Respond

Sir Samuel Hoare, the Air Minister emphasizing the Government's difficulties, contended that even were the Government to summon such a conference there was no reason to suppose that Russia or France would respond. He asserted that the whole history of the past four or five years proved the extreme danger of starting international conferences until there was some definite measure of agreement and a progrmme had been prepared.

Premier Baldwin, replying on the debate, emphasized the difficulties of carrying out a policy with which everybody was in sympathy. The mistake must not be made of thinking that what might be war weariness was necessarily an access of in nate goodwill.

Alluding to the growth in Europe since the war of feelings of extreme nationalism, which, unless corrected might bear the seeds of peril to peace, he said the Government believed that any attempt now to convene an international conference would not only not lead to success, but would lead to indefinite postponement of any possibility of achieving the end all desired. It was hopeless to approach the question until the problems of reparations and security of frontiers were settled.

Reparation, First

The Prime Minister felt that it would be hopeless to expect a favorable answer from France until these questions were disposed of, or from Poland until she could feel that her frontiers were secure against gigantic and powerful neighbor along her eastern border. The first step to be taken was the one which the Government was now taking—an attempt to settle the problem of reparations.

One of the greatest difficulties facing the Government was the inherent fighting instinct of man; it was the instinct of the tiger and dated from his creation. This instinct was to be found even among men whose political vniews would class them as pacifists. He would remind the House that for thirty years preceding the

It Is Expected That Ten Days Wil Elapse Before A Reply Is Received From France.

DEBATE POSTPONDED

LONDON, July 24. — (Canadian Press)—The secrecy agreed upon by the British and French Governments concerning the reparation document forwarded to the Allies is being closely maintained, and it is expected that another ten days will elapse before any reply is received from the French Government, owing to the delay in the meeting of Premier Poincare and Premier Theunis to consult over the British draft note to Germany. It had been arranged to discuss the Ruhr questions in the House of Commons Thursday, when the Foreign Office estimates came up for consideration, but the Government, in the belief that such discussion at the present moment would not be helpful to the delicate negotiations has decided to postpone the debate indefinitely.

BERLIN, July 24. — (Canadian Press). — Ordinary wisdom would seem to suggest that the best thing for the Germans to do in the present situation is to meddle the least possible in current Anglo-French conversations, is the advice Theodor Wolff gives to-day in the Tageblatt.

Official and political circles appear to share his conviction, as German interest in the fate of the British note may be said to be wholly passive. The newspapers are confining themselves to a reproduction of the London and Paris editorial comment on the note.

Premier Poincare, however, again was given his customary Monday grilling in the newspapers, most of the editors laying stress on "his custom of parading the French devastated regions for propaganda purposes" referring to his speech at Villers Cotterets, Sunday.

TUESDAY, JULY 24, 1923.

A VETERAN PHYSICIAN.

One of the oustanding figures in the history of Peterborough County was laid to rest at Norwood yesterday in the person of Dr. Samuel Payne Ford, who for almost sixty years had carried on the practice of medicine in Norwood.

A native of the city and educated here, Dr. Ford settled in Norwood in 1864, and had practised his profession there until his death.

The part he has played in the life of the community can be easily visualized by every one who appreciates the great role enacted in a rural district by the resident physician.

Dr. Ford in an article prepared for his fellow doctors declared not long ago that nothing gave him greater pleasure than to assist in ushering a new life into the world and he took pride in the fact that he had officiated successfully at over 3,000 maternity cases.

For well over half a century his skill and his knowledge were at the service of the community of which he was a distinguished member. For many miles around Norwood during those long years, in good weather or in bad he had travelled on his mission of bringing new hope to those in ill health.

Every home knew him, every family had learned to love and admire him.

No wonder the funeral yesterday was a remarkable tribute, an outpouring of affection and regard in which the whole district shared.

Samuel Payne Ford's life was a long, consistent record of faithful service on behalf of suffering humanity.

A RED DEFEAT.

The collapse of the Sydney strike is not unexpected, for not only was public opinion strongly against the action of the miners but the fact that the strike was pronounced by union leaders as an outlaw movement doomed it to failure.

This unjustifiable walkout which began at the end of last month cost the miners a daily wage loss of some $80,000,000 and the coal mining subsidiaries of the British Empire Steel Corporation a loss in production of some 300,000 tons.

No good end was served—except that the Red element among the miners was forced to show its hand and to suffer a crushing defeat.

James B. MacLachlan the most dangerous radical leader among the miners who was openly in accord with the programme of the Red Internationale and tried to line up the Nova Scotia workers with the Moscow organization has been completely vanquished by the developments during the last few days.

Communism may have only been scotched and not killed but it is to be imagined that it will be some time before the miners are again in a mood receptive enough to let them be convinced that the Soviet plan can be successfully launched in this country.

Moderate labor leaders who fought against the radicals and checked their Red scheming deserve the thanks of the community generally for their sanity and courage in standing out against the agitators who were willing to substitute the Red Flag for the Union Jack.

It has been proven once more as it was proven in Winnipeg and elsewhere that Bolshevism cannot thrive in the pure air of the Dominion.

NEXT WINTER'S COAL.

Not every municipality is viewing the coal situation as calmly as Peterborough where in spite of warnings from fuel control authorities as to the likelihood of a scarcity next winter, there is to be no action taken by the council to mitigate the effects of the possible emergency.

In the Border cities, for example, the Chamber of Commerce is endeavouring to obtain coal from Alberta, believing that the available supply of anthracite next winter will be, if anything, smaller than it was during the last.

Householders everywhere are being warned to put in their supply of coal during the summer but the advice is worthless for the simple reason that there is not enough coal in sight to meet a general demand, and many people could not afford to buy a winter's supply of coal now, if there was plenty of anthracite available.

It gets back to the necessity of supplementing the shipments of American anthracite with domestic fuel and the tests that have been made indicate that the Alberta coal makes a very reliable and satisfactory substitute.

At present transportation difficulties are keeping the Alberta product away from the Eastern market, but the situation is not hopeless and a determined effort by the municipalities of Ontario to secure a supply of Alberta coal might do much to overcome the freight handicap.

At least the attempt started in Windsor is much more likely to succeed than the Peterborough policy of sitting down and waiting like Mr. Micawber for "something to turn up."

GEDDES AND PROHIBITION.

Prohibition being an issue in Great Britain no doubt led Lord Curzon to request Sir Auckland Geddes to make a report upon the results of it in the United States as naturally from his position as British Ambassador to that country he would be able to obtain valuable information concerning these, says the Kingston Standard. From the brief report of the statement submitted by Sir Auckland, it is evident that he examined the subject from every point of view and obtained the views of those, both for and against prohibition, likely to give information such as he desired.

The crux of his whole statement lies in his opinion "that so many factors have contributed to restore economic conditions in the United States since the war that it is impossible to form any estimate of the extent to which prohibition has contributed or otherwise."

This is a point which is often overlooked, but when a keen and experienced man like Sir Auckland lays stress upon it, it assumes additional importance, and it should not be lost sight of. Overlooking this, he evidently thinks accounts for the divergence between the opinions and the figures given by the supporters and the opponents of prohibition.

Sir Auckland touches upon an interesting point when he declares that according to associations opposed to prohibition the very fact that the consumption of intoxicating liquor is illegal, has, in itself, been enough to lead many Americans, who, before drank little or nothing, to carry pocket flasks of bootleg or imported spirits, simply for the sake of tasting that which is forbidden. This statement has also been heard in Canada. He also mentions the hip-pocket habit, and home-brew, which shows how thoroughly he has studied his subject. We do not wish to express any opinions upon this report; but call attention to it as evidently one which deserves thought in this most controversial subject.

MUSIC VS. NOISE.

The band of the 57th Regiment in its weekly concerts at Victoria Park has been providing programmes of a high standard under disadvantageous circumstances, especially as was the case on Sunday evening when there were no police on hand to maintain order.

The usual automobile chorus was augmented by the uproar caused by scores of children who took advantage of the absence of the blue-coats and the neglect of their parents to riot at their own sweet will.

The result was that the members of the band found it difficult to concentrate on the score before them, while music-lovers in the audience heard the band in fitful snatches during the few moments when there was a lull in the noise.

At previous concerts the situation has been handled by the police, and doubtless the failure of an officer to appear on Sunday night was due to a misunderstanding that is not likely to occur again.

In the case of the majority of the youthful offenders there should be no need of a policeman to keep them quiet were the parents alive to their responsibility.

The trouble is that most of the youngsters are allowed to do just as they please, and naturally childlike, their feelings are expressed in noisome play, which, pleasing though it may be under other conditions, is decidedly out of harmony with a band concert.

So far as listening to the music is concerned, many of those who go to Victoria Park on band nights might just as well take their families to Jackson Park and turn them loose there where they could make all the noise they like without disturbing those who go to band concerts because, curious though it may appear, they really want to hear the band.

PURPLE MEADOWS.

Do you remember Marjorie Pickthall's lines?

Over the field where the grass is cool,
(Follow the road who must)!
With a song for the beech and the brown pool,
And the noiseless tread in the dust,
With a laugh for the lazy hours that go,
And the folk who pass us by.
(The trees they grow so broad, so low.
They shut me from the sky).

This is the time of year to be a gypsy. You need not stain your face with walnut juice—that in itself might prove an inseparable obstacle, for probably walnut juice is not sold in the stores. In old fashioned tales of kidnapped children their faces were always stained with walnut juice, of which the gypsies presumably kept a fair supply. The sun will tan your cheeks fast enough and give you an appetite that is the first step to a good complexion. And whether you walk or whether you ride, don't hurry. If only a day is before you, don't try to use it up too fast, be inefficient for once and don't accomplish all you have planned. Better still, don't plan at all.

If you can find a meadow in which the clover is almost over, and great patches of purple vetch are providing nectar for bees, don't walk by thinking that there will be something lovelier farther on. There may be lovelier individual flowers than the vetch, but taken as a whole, few flowers are so lavish with their blooms in one place. Not one flower, but thousands, plenty of leaves to show up the flowers, but unselfishly letting the blossoms having the best of it. Their common name of "tare" holds no reproach, for these plants which bear the name of the tare of Scripture, are quite unlike it. The bearded darnel of Mediterranean regions, whose leaves deceive one by simulating those of wheat, and whose smaller seeds, instead of nourishing man, poison him, are unknown in America.

Only a few miles from Ottawa there is a stretch of meadow with such a wealth of color that it is worth walking miles to see. At one time it must have been a well cultivated pasture, someone cut down trees and built rail fences that for all their age are strong and serviceable still. Along their straggling sides all sorts of wild flowers abound in season, moon-white anemones, great tufts of ribbon grass that was sown long ago either by some careful gardener or more likely by the birds of the air, and at present the edge of the field is fragrant with milkweed. A few short weeks ago the clover perfumed the passing breeze, but now it has died down, and in lovely purple patches the green of the timothy is brightened with the vetch.

Woods fringe these meadows on three sides, great towering pines in places, balsams and elms, some very old, others very young, but all lending a half air of enchantment to the scene. A very few miles away lies the city, but here one can forget civilization. In the far disfance the hills are blue with haze, in the softly-rising slopes of the field the purple of the flowers is almost lovely enough to be heather, and for a short space one can forget the tiresome round of duties that await one on the morrow, or perhaps the coming week.

Someone said the other day that the country was all very well to look at, but where people got real enjoyment out of staying in it for months at a time, was quite beyond him. Personally he could get all he wanted in an hour or two's run up the Gatineau, and anyhow the scenery wasn't anything wonderful. We quite agree. Anything more trying to watch from the steering wheel than a Gatineau road, is hard to imagine. Dust and rocks and holes, and then more dust and holes and rocks, the watching of these making anything more than a casual glance at the passing fields, a difficult task.

The person who merely takes a run here and there misses utterly and completely the real message of the summer. The beauty of the hillsides is there for all, but the passerby who rushes by in a car has few chances to discover it. The birds sing sweetly in the shade, but the only song the hustler ever hears is the "caw, caw" of the crows, and who wants to hear the crow calling? There may be good points in crows, and blackbirds are supposed to make good pies, but they do not add to the enjoyment of life.—Ottawa Journal.

MILLBROOK AND THE DISTRICT

Sunday School Picnic A Huge Success—Delightful Social Personals.

MILLBROOK, July 24.—The picnic in connection with the Sunday School and A.Y.P.A. of St. Thomas' church which was held at Wallace's Point on Thursday afternoon, July 19, was the most successful of these annual events in the history of these two organizations. About one hundred and twenty took advantage of the fine afternoon to enjoy the outing at this delightful picnic ground on the Otonabee river. Games, races, etc., were arranged for and heartily entered into, not forgetting the baseball which was particularly enjoyed. The entire programme of sports was successfully carried out under the capable management of the following committee: Rev. M. Williams, curate of the parish, Messrs. J. A. Vance, H. J. Grassett, R. Stone, president of the A.Y.P.A. and G. Fowler, superintendent of the Sunday school. Winners in the races were:

Girls' race (under 6 years)—1 Henrietta Grassett, 2 Elizabeth Raper.

Tug-of-war (older boys)—David Fowler, Wilfird Whyte, Stanford Sloan, Linden Russell, Piercy Pitt.

At the conclusion of the sports' programme, the rector, Rev. Canon Allen, distributed the prizes, which this year were given in cash, and afterwards all sat down to a bountiful supper—needless to say this part of the afternoon's proceedings, in which both adults and young folks generously paritcipated, was not the least enjoyable feature of the occasion. The thanks of those present were tendered to the lady teachers, and others, who had so liberally provided the good things to satisfy the hungry guests, and the return journey, by motor, was likewise an enjoyable part of an outing during the hours of which nothing had occurred to mar the pleasure of the occasion.

Delightful Social.

A delightful social gathering, in the form of a lawn social, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs James Douglas, Cavanville, on Thursday afternoon, the congregations of the circuit taking this way of welcoming their pastor and his wife, Rev. R. T. and Mrs. Richards, to their new charge. Among the many guests none were more warmly welcomed than the former pastor, and his family, Rev. S. G. and Mrs. Rorke, Mrs. Cross and Mr. George Rorke, now of Peterboro, who by special invitation motored over and were present for the occasion. The teatables were attractively arranged upon the lawn and offered a most appetizing menu, including as it did, pressed chicken, cold meats, berries and cream, cake, etc., to which full justice was done, the members of the ball teams coming in good and hungry about 8 p.m. The game, between Scott's Corners, and George Street, Peterboro, resulted in a victory for the latter, the score being 8-5.

During the course of the program, the new pastor, Rev. Mr. Richards, gave an address which appealed strongly to his people, the musical numbers being duets by Muriel Matchett and Margaret Lang, by Mrs. Sandfield Staples and Mr. R. Matchett, and Mrs. A. Kennedy and Mrs. S. Staples, and a vocal solo by Miss Annie Tinney. Every selection was thoroughly appreciated by the audience. Ice cream found a ready sale during the afternoon and evening, the total receipts which were in the neighborhood of $40, the amount being a pleasant surprise as the entire affair was planned and carried through in a very limited time.

Personals.

Miss Jacques, of Rochester, is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. William O'Brian, Marshal street.

(Toilet Tips)

A safe, certain method for ridding the skin of ugly, hairy growths is as follows: Mix a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface about 2 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is entirely harmless and seldom requires repeating, but to avoid disappointment it is advisable to see that you get genuine delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, July 24.—Provincial Constable Boyd has been at Colborne, in connection with the automobile accident there, whereby Mrs. Frank Weech of New Toronto lost her life and her daughter, Miss Hilda Weech, thirteen years of age, had a limb broken. Mr. William Craig of Toronto was driving the car and the party were going to Belleville to spend a week or ten days at the home of Mr. W. J. Craig, as has been their custom for the past five years. The accident happened on Wednesday and Mr. Weech, husband of deceased, came down to Colborne, where his wife's remains were lying in an undertaker's apartment and arranged for their removal to Toronto. He then went on to Belleville to visit his daughter who is in a hospital there. Mr. Weech is a railroad man and had only two children, a son and a daughter.

The party visited for a short time with friends in Port Hope on Wednesday, it is stated, en route to Belleville.

The story of the accident, as now stated, is that the automobile was travelling at a moderate rate of speed, when it ran into some fresh heavy gravel. Control of the machine, which was a Liberty six, was lost, apparently. The car slid off the highway turned turtle and struck a telephone pole. This was snapped off and fell on top of the car and struck Mrs. Weech on the head. Death was instantaneous and she was thrown into the back, it is stated, against her daughter. Mr. Craig was thrown clear of the car, but received cuts on his hands and was badly shaken up. He and the injured girl reached Belleville about 10.30 o'clock on Wednesday night.

Injured Man Home.

Wiliam John Clarke, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Clarke of this town is recovering nicely from effects of the injuries which he received at the hands of a thug, who attempted to rob Stanner's Jewelry store, Queen street, Toronto, one night last week. Mr. Clarke came down to Cobourg on Tuesday night and has been recuperating since at the family home. He received three blows on the head with the long army revolver which the burglar carried and the last left him in a dazed condition and concussion of the brain was first feared. However he is getting along nicely now, although considerably shaken.

Yacht Races July 29.

The cruising yact races for the Freeman Cup, from Toronto to Cobourg, will be held on Monday, July 29, weather permitting. The yachts will race to Cobourg from here to Belleville for the annual regatta which takes place August 1, 2 and 3.

Will Represent Cobourg.

Mrs. F. Navin left on Saturday for Winnipeg where she will represent the Cobourg L.O.B.A. Maple Leaf, at the Orange Grand Lodge of British North America.

Three Months For Fraud.

James A. Farewell was brought to the counties jail here this week to serve a three months' sentence on a charge of fraud. It is alleged that Farewell went to the Standard Bank at Bowmanville, where he passed a cheque drawn on the Bank of Nova Scotia here, which proved to be worthless. He was arrested and came before the Police Magistrate at Bowmanville who sentenced him to three months in jail. Farewell had previously been employed on farms in this district.

Going to Oshawa.

Miss Cora Cruse of Bewdley, a highly esteemed teacher on the Cobourg Public school staff the past year, has tendered her resignation and has accepted a position at Oshawa, it is understood, where she has friends. Miss Cruse was popular with the teaching staff, who regret that she is not returning to Cobourg.

Rogers Was Honorably Acquitted.

In the County Judges Court here John A. Roger of Whitby was honorably acquitted. He is a commercial traveller and was charged with the theft of samples from the Durham Glove Company at Bowmanville. It appears that a letter asking Rogers to return the samples had not been mailed, although it was supposed that it had been. He therefore did not receive the instructions.

Charlie Counter Won.

The fourth Old Birds' Race, which was flown from Chatham to Cobourg 220 miles air line resulted as follows: 1st, C. J. Counter; 2nd, Geo. Manton; 3 and 4, W. May; 5, Kent Payne; 6, Geo. Manton; T. C. Laing; 8, T. Leonard.

The fifth race from Windsor, 269 miles, resulted as follows: 1, C. J. Counter; 2, Geo. Manton; 3, W. May; 4, C. J. Coonter; 5, T. Leonard.

Funeral of Miss White.

The funeral of Miss Annie White who passed away in Toronto took place here yesterday from the depot to the family plot in the Cobourg Union cemetery. Miss White was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Christopher White of this town. She has resided for some years in Toronto. She was in poor health for some months prior to her death. She is survived by one brother, Mr. Geo. White, Brandon, and by two sisters, Miss L. White on the staff of the Oshawa schools and Miss Margaret White, nurse of Brandon.

Missionary Gave Address.

Miss Brimston, who has spent over twenty years in missionary work in China and is thoroughly versed in her subject, gave an address last night in the schoolroom of the Port Hope Methodist church.

Don't Squeeze Black-Heads—Dissolve Them

Squeezing and pinching out blackheads make the pores large and cause irritation. Blackheads are caused by accumulations of dust and dirt and secretions from the skin, and there is only one safe and sure way and one that never fails to get rid of them—a simple way, too—that is to dissolve them. Just get from any drug store about two ounces of peroxine powder—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—wash off, and you'll be surprised to see that every blackhead has disappeared, and the skin will be left soft and the pores in their natural condition.

Three sisters and one brother also survive. They are Mrs. Dunsford, Lakefield; Mrs. Creary, Burleigh; Mrs. Dinsdale, Lang, and John Hamblin, Peterboro.

MEASURE FOOD VALUES

VIENNA, July 24.—(Associated Press)—Austrian government employees, fighting to gain payment for their labors sufficient to maintain their families, have presented their case in a novel way. Instead of relating that in the old days they could buy for five crowns what now costs them 50,000, they have used minutes of labor as a measuring unit, and produced an interesting table.

In 1914 a loaf of bread cost 12⅗ minutes of labor; today the cost is 49 minutes. A measure of sugar that cost 26 minutes nine years ago, now calls for 102 minutes. Coal has risen from 1 hour and 18 minutes to 12 hours and 36 minutes, and a pair of shoes from 6 hours and 18 minutes to 19 hours and 30 minutes.

You might as well varnish your skin as have clogged inactive pores.

LEADER OF OPPOSITION

Civil War in the United States, the anti-slavery agitation in the north-eastern States was largely, if not entirely, in the hands of professed pacifists and anti-militarists, and when the agitation brought men to the point of either surrendering the principle of anti-slavery or going to war, the pacifists, quite rightly, in his belief, said it shall be war.

Remarking that the dark days following upon the war had brought three valuable Washington agreements, which all statesmen would previously have thought impossible of attainment the Prime Ministers expressed great hope for the future through the exploratory work of the League of Nations, now engaged in province o flimitation of armaments and security, and he declared there was one great instrument of peace already in the world, namely, the British Empire.

The difference between the resolution and the amendment was really a difference of time, and the Government believed that any attempt to act immediately would only lead to failure.

STARTS ON LONG CRUISE.

KINGSTOWN, Ireland, July 24.—(Associated Press)—Amid hearty cheers and escorted by a fleet of yachts, the 25-ton yacht "Saorise" recently left Kingstown on a trip around the world.

The crew, composed of Conor O'Brien, owner and captain; H. S. Hodges, mate, and S. D. Lavelle, hope to complete the journey under canvas by way of New Zealand, which they anticipated reaching before Christmas. From there they will proceed by Cape Horn to several Argentine ports, and expect to reach Ireland again by September, 1924.

GERMANY AND INDIA.

BERLIN (United Press)— Dr. Sherwood Eddy, of New York, general secretary of the international Y.M.C.A., declared in an address here that the passive resistance in the Ruhr had many similarities to the passive resistance of the Indian people against England. Dr. Eddy has been in India for fifteen years and stopped here en route to America.

All the diamonds in the world would fill an eight-foot cube.

CANADIAN SENATOR ROBBED IN FRANCE

Senator Beaubieu Lost Letters of Credit To The Amount of One Milion Francs While On Train

PARIS, July 24.—(Canadian Press Cable.)— The Lille Echo du Nord publishes an account of a robbery of which Senator Beaubien of Montreal, who is accompanying the Canadian trade exhibition train now touring France was the victim.

The theft, which occurred at Douai station was of a particularly audacious nature. Senator Beaubien left Lille to go to Arras and took a seat in an express which calls at Douai. He was seated in the last compartment of a first class coach and had placed two leather valises in a rack. One contained linen and other personal effects and the other $125 in gold and letters of credit to the amount of one million francs as well as various toilet articles. Between Lille and Calais he left the compartment to go to the restaurant car and and when he returned a little before the train reached Arras he noticed that his valises had disappeared.

Arriving at Arras he reported to the commissary of the local police. Two other occupants of the compartment declared that another passenger had got out at Douai carrying three valises. The police are now endeavoring to trace the thief or thieves.

WILL SAIL ON SPECIAL MISSION

Hon. Mary Ellen Smith, The First Woman To Go To Britain on Important Mission.

OTTAWA, July 24.—Hon. Mary Ellen Smith, former member of the government of British Columbia and at present member for Vancouver city, was in Ottawa yesterday en route to Britain on an immigration mission. Mrs. Smith has the honor to be the first woman of the British empire to be a member of the British government. It will be recalled she resigned her position in order to be more truly representative of the things for which women of the country stod for. Her husband was the late Ralph Smith, one-time member of the federal house.

In commenting on her mission for the Dominion government Mrs. Smith stated that she was the first woman in Canada selected for this particular kind of work, and the recognition of women in the capacity of an official to bring intending settlers to Canada ought to be some satisfaction to those interested in women's movements.

Mrs. Smith will see some of the members of the government in Ottawa and will leave here Wednesday for Montreal where she will stay for a day, sailing on the Montcalm. "I hope," she stated, " to be able to show intending settlers in Britain that we have a worth and wealth of opportunity in Canada to those anxious to become good Canadians."

SUPERINTENDENT BRITISH EXHIBIT IS RELATED HERE

Was a Recent Visitor to Peterborough When He Lauded Canada and Its National Fair.

Mr. Brian M. Bellasis of London, England, has been visiting his relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart, at 701 Stewart street. Mr. Bellasis was a former resident of South Beach, Young's Point, and attended the Grove School, Lakefield. He will be in Toronto until the close of the Exhibition, as manager of the Federation of British Industries. Afterwards he hopes to spend a short holiday in Peterboro and at Stoney Lake, before returning to England.

In the above connection it is interesting to note that for the first time in the history of the Canadian National Exhibition the Federation of British Industries is sending acros the Atlantic exhibits representative of some 16 industries, and the product of some 53 leading firms. There is no more striking evidence of the expansion of Toronto's fair than this recognition of its unique position by an organization which has for years ocupied a prominent place in the great fairs of Europe.

B. M. Bellasis, who will be in charge of the Federation's exhibit, is in Toronto, and his first act was to visit the exhibition grounds. He found great changes since his last visit to Toronto in 1912. He declares that Toronto had an exhibition site unexcelled anywhere.

Impressed with the Grounds.

This is no mean praise coming as it did from the man who has has superintended British exhibits in Athens, Leipzig, Utrecht, Paris, Lyons and Brussels. The number of trees, the beautiful vista over the lake, and the well kept grounds impressed him. But its great.st advantage to his mind was the ample space which accommodated comfortably so many visitors.

Looking, out from the window over the city roofs, Mr. Bellasis comented upon the great changes which he noted since his former visit. He had been struck by the Bloor street viaduct, the phenomenal waterfront development and the shifting northward of the business centre of gravity.

"But I feel a greater change in Toronto than that," he said. "It has a metropolitan atmosphere which was lacking some years ago. You know there was something of the 'small town' about Toronto as I remember it then. Although I arrived only this morning I thought I could sense that indefinable atmosphere which distinguishes the really big city from the overgrown town."

Predicts New Fair Record.

Mr. Bellasis said that Canadians did not realize themselves how great a national asset they had in the Toronto fair. There was no fair in the world he said, with a duration of two weeks which could point to an attendance of nearly a million and a half. Now that the Canadian National Exhibition was encouraging exhibitors from other countries he predicted that ever more phenomenal expansion would be reported in the near future.

The exhibits of the British firms will be installed in the addition to the Pure Food Building. Mr. Bellasis remarked that owing to the small time available for organizing the British section this year was not as large as the importance of Dominion and British products demanded. But he was confident that firms showing on a small scale this year would take over larger booths in 1924.

Sir Eric Geddes, president of the Federation of British Industry, is not unknown to Canadians. Founded originally to promote the interests of British manufacturers in the struggles for the world's markets which followed the war, the Federation, said Mr. Bellasis, rapidly assumed wider functions and is now imperial in character. Several Canadian firms, he said, were already included in its membership.

OLIVE OIL BRINGS SILKY SHEEN TO DULLEST HAIR

What is the secret that is giving beautiful hair to thousands of women? Simply the use of Olive Oil in the shampoo! Hair specialists say that hair should never be washed without it. For it keeps hair from dry, brittle dullness. You can have this luxury at home now, cheaply. Just get a bottle of PALMOLIVE SHAMPOO—at any drug or department store. Use it but a few times and you will marvel at the lovely sheen it gives to your hair. Cleanses gently. Leaves hair gleaming and soft as finest silk.

PETERBOROUGH IS FREE CONTAGIOUS DISEASE

Peterborough is absolutely free of contagious disease, C. S. Stapleton, the Sanitary Inspector, announced this morning.

There are no houses placarded, the last card having been removed yesterday. The clean sheet, so far as contagious diseases are concerned, shows the city to be in a very healthy condition, Mr. Stapleton said.

Milk tests, numbering 35, have been made this mouth, and seven dealers have failed to produce samples for test purposes.

CHARITY BILL SMALLER HERE

Despite the Trying Season Peterborough Shows a Substantial Reduction in Calls for Help.

An encouraging feature of the civic work of the city of Peterborough during present year is the reduction which has been made in the amount spent for local charity in comparison with last year. The figures given to the Examiner this morning by the City Clerk show a reduction in the total charity payments for the first six months of the year from a total of $5,917.02 in 1922 to $5,637.87 in 1923.

This reduction, in the face of difficult economic conditions prevailing in the city has been made only by careful investigation of individual cases by Relief Officer, F. W. Miller and by his attention to the details of his position. It shows, also, that economic conditions in Peterborough are improving, and that the number of people, who are in need of assistance, has been reduced.

Mr. Miller said to-day that not one able-bodied man has been receiving assistance from the city since April. There are some case sicknes, receiveiving help at present.

There are some cases of sickness re the saving was effected in February, one of the hardest months in the year and in June.

	1922	1923
January	$1540.25	$1946.65
February	1998.42	1031.65
March	785.90	923.42
April	583.40	692.50
May	253.40	557.00
June	755.65	486.65

Following a winter of almost unprecedented severity, and covering four months, when hardship might have been much greater than ever before, Mr. Miller's report must be gratifying to the civic authorities and to the people generally.

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC INCREASE ARMAMENTS

BUENOS AIRES, July 24. — United Press. — As a result of the failure of the Santiago conference to agree to the limitation of South American armaments, it is understood the Argentine president will present to the Senate a project to increase the army and navy armaments.

One hundred and fifty-five million gold pesetas (about $78,000,000) will be expended, it is understood.

WHO FIRST FELT "LIKE A FIGHTING COCK"?

COCK-FIGHTING was born with the cocks.

But it is only 80 years ago that the first man felt "like a fighting cock!"

Now he has brothers, sisters, nephews, nieces, all over the world—all feeling "like a fighting cock!"

It happens this way: A person half sick with bad stomach, dull and heavy headache, takes Beecham's Pills just before going to bed. Immediately the Pills begin to harmonize the digestive and eliminative organs.

Consequently, this person has a good night's sleep and arises in the morning with clear brain, bright eye, keen appetite, and full of energy for work and play.

It is now just 80 years since Beecham's Pills first began correcting disordered stomachs and stirring sluggish livers and bowels to natural activity — and feeling "like a fighting cock" is associated as inseparably with Beecham's Pills as the pills are with good health.

GERMANS ARE MAKING THEIR OWN CURRENCY

The Usual Line of Paper is Unobtainable and Firms Print Their Own.

LONDON, July 24. Canadian Press. — How Germans in ocupied territory are turning out home-made currency notes to take the place of paper of the Reichsbank, which is unobtainable, is told by the Dusseldorf correspondent of the Daily Mail, who says that private firms and manufacturers are inundating the finace ministry of Berlin with requests for permission to print their own courrency. Otherwise they say that they will be unable to pay their employees.

Some business combines have already issued such notes and there are instances where managers of mines have put out 100,000 mark bonds against assets of mines. One Dusseldorf firm has issued metal tokens of various amounts.

SYDNEY MURRELL IS BACK IN CELLS OF THE COUNTY JAIL, LONDON

His Return Was Scarcely Less Dramatic Than His Sensational Escape Nearly Two Years Ago On Eve Of Assizes, CHARGE IS MURDER.

LONDON Ont., July 24.—(Canadian Press).—Sydney Murrel is back in the cells of the county jail in London.

Murrell's return was scarcely less dramatic, than his sensational escape nearly two years ago, on eve of the Assizes at whcih he and two of his companions were to have faced trial for murder.

Provincial Police Inspectors Ward and Stringer, who conducted the prisoner from San Francisco, arrived with their man in irons, at St. Thomas at 9.55, last night, via the Michigan Central, and were met by three Provincial Police with two waiting motor cars.

The prisoner was hustled into one machine and a few minutes later, found himself carried at breakneck speed along the Wellington Road to London. He reached the court house here, scarcely half an hour after the arrival of the train in St. Thomas, and within less than a minute from the moment the cars stopped at the corner of Dundas and Rideau streets, he was in the new chilled steel cell with the first relief of the guard, that is to be with him incessantly until the time of his trial at the Assizes, which open here on October 2.

Not a Word Spoken

The officers knew every step in the process of taking him to the cells, and no word was spoken as he was hurried down the court house corridor and behind the bars. Every precaution has been taken against the chance of a second attempt to escape, even to the flood lighting of the exercise yard outside his cell. No one is to be permitted to have any intercourse with the prisoner, and even his guard is to be searched when reporting for duty.

A HEAVY FINE FOR A PULLMAN PORTER

Lindsay Liquor Seizure Costs J. A. Cox $750 Or Six Months.

LINDSAY, July 23. —J. A. Cox, the colored Pullman porter, who was arrsted at the C.N.R. station here on Thursday last by Provincial officers when a seizure of fifty-one bottles of liquor was made in the car, was to-day fined $750.00 and costs or six months in jail by Police Magistrate Bradford. The charge preferred against him was exposing or having liquor in his possession.

License Inspector Thornbury and Provincial Police Officer Storey gave evidence for the prosecution, telling of the arrest and seizure of the wet goods. The accused, who pleaded not guilty, denied that the liquor was his property. He knew nothing about it whatever, and concluded that it must have been left in the Pullman by some person or persons. Mr. A. M. Fulton, who was acting County Crown Attorney, argued that the law said that Cox was responsible for having it in the car, which he held was under his complete control. Police Magistrate Bradford concurred in this contention, and found the accused guilty.

Mr. I. E. Weldon, counsel for the accused, asked that the minimum fine of $250.00 be imposed. This was the procedure, he contended, that was followed in similar cases everywhere else save in Lindsay. He claimed Cox was a poor man and had a wife to support. His bank book was produced and showed a deposit of $300.00. Mr. Fulton made an examination of the bank book and found that large deposits had been made by Cox at different intervals during the past few months, all of which had been withdrawn.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Automobile Accident Results Seriously For A Child — Steam Yacht Held Up Again.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 24.—An automobile accident that just escaped fatal results, occurred on Saturday night on the Meyersburg Road near the turn at the paper mill. A car containing Arthur, John and Miss Mary Johnston of Castleton was on its way home from Campbellford. Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Green of Cobourg, with their children, were in another car on their way to Campbellford, to visit Mrs. Green's mother, Mrs. George Ivey, where their eldest child was spending a short vacation.

At the paper mill turn the meeting cars encountered a horse and buggy, and both drivers turned out to pass this vehicle on the same side. When Mr. Green saw the other car he stopped his own thinking that the other chauffeur would also come to a standstill. The latter did attempt to stop but claimed that his brake failed to work, and the result was a head on collision.

Both cars were badly damaged, and all of the occupants were severely shaken up but the only one seriously injured was the youngest Green child, Leith, a boy of three years. His nose was so badly torn that it hung limp on one side of his face.

The child was driven to the home of relatives in town where Drs. E. J. Free and A. Haig dressed the little one's injuries. Chief of Police Duncalfe detained the Johnstons until assured by the doctors that the child was not fatally hurt when they were released on their promise to respond to the Chief on Monday.

It is feared that the child will be disfigured for life although his youth may save him from this misfortune. It required a number of stitches to close the wound in his nose.

Johnston, the owner of the Castleton car called to-day and agreed to pay all the damages, including the doctors' bills. This means an expense of between $60 and $70 aside from the repairs to his own car.

Quarterly Meeting.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Campbellford Circuit will be held this week in the Free Methodist Church here, beginning with a special service on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. There will also be service at 8 p.m. on Saturday, a love feast on Sunday at 10 a.m., and services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Rev. L. Slingerland, presiding elder of the district, will be in charge of the services.

Yacht Held Up.

The palatial steam yacht Elbaroda, carrying the vice-president of the Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, and party, the same boat which was held up in Peterborough owing to an accident to the Lift Locks, was detained here by a raft of logs on its homeward journey after visiting the upper lakes.

During their stay they were taken by A. S. Caddy, resident engineer of the Trent Canal, who acting in that capacity and on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce, took the Americans on a tour of inspection through the Hydro power house at Ranney Falls. The visitors were much impressed with the plant, which they pronounced the most complete they had ever seen. In the account of the trip which will appear in American publications, Campbellford is certain to be given a prominent place as one of the greatest electric power centres that the party have seen on either side of the border.

News Notes.

The yacht L. Hirondella, owned by Chief Engineer Gaby, of the Hydro Commission, passed through here yesterday on its return to Toronto from the upper lakes.

BANDITS SHOOT FOUR IN A DARING HOLDUP ON TORONTO STREETS

Affair Was Carried Out Shortly Before Banking Hours This Morning—Two Bank Messengers Fatally Wounded—Robbers Got Away With Money of Two Banks.

TORONTO, July 24.—(Canadian Press).—One of the most daring daylight holdups in history of the city, was carried out shortly before banking hours, this morning, when seven masked men armed with shot guns and revolvers, held up messengers from Sterling and Union Banks. Four messengers were shot, two probably fatally. The bandits escaped. The amount oif money stolen cannot be ascertained as yet.

TORONTO, July 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Furter & Dalton's fur store, Yonge street, was broken into this morning and 35 fur coats of total estimated value of $8,000 weer taken by thieves. The robbery was one of the fastest on record. Forcing of the front door and theft of fur coats is believed by the police to have taken place in not more than two minutes. The door was jimmied at 4.12 and the Dominion signal system got their flash at the same time.

Police operator C. Storey got his flash almost simultaneously and he notified Detective Sergeants Elliot and Archibald, as well as No. 2 station and men on the beat near the break-in. Detective Elliott and Archibald rushed to the scene in a fast motor car and reached the store three minutes from the time the alarm was given. They found the door closed forced and a number of fur coats missing from show cases. They immediately scoured the neighborhood for trace of thieves.

QUIZ CORNER

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Q—What are some of the chief features of Britsh Columbia?

A—British Columbia is one of the largest provinces in the Dominion and is known as the Pacific Province, owing to its western boundary being the Pacific Ocean. The climate of British Columbia as a whole present all the conditions which are met with in European countries and on the coast is very much taking to that of the British Isles. Vancouver is the largest city and the largest Canadian port on the Pacific coast. Victoria, one of the most beautiful cities in the world, in the capital of the province. It is largely residential. Farming and fruit growing is carried on mainly in the valleys of the Central and Southern parts and on Vancouver Island, owing to the mountainous nature of the country. Mixed farming is proving extremely profitable because of the extensive market for farm produce and for fruit of every description. The fame of British Columbia as a fruit-growing country is world-wide. Large areas of pasture land make stock raising and dairying important industries, especiall in the Cariboo district in Central British Columbia.

CITY AND COUNTRY DWELLERS.

Q—What proportion of the Canadian population are city and country dwellers?

A—A compilation based on Canada's census returns shows that the population is equally divided between city and country dwellers. The total urban population is given as 4,352,773 and the rural population 4,435,710. In Prince Edward Island the rural population is as high as 78 per cent of the whole, and in Saskatchewan 71 per cent. DARKNESS IN EGYPT WHICH CAN BE FELT Furnace Blasts From the Desert Herald Coming of Oppressive Gloom — Intermittent Onslaughts For 50 Days.

LEGENDARY PLAGUE.

Through the window of the railway carriage in which I am writing I look out on a thick London fog.

The air hangs round me like a dark blanket in color and consistency, and to breathe is like eating flannel. The lights are burning in the train, and we can hardly see a yard beyond the border of the railway line. Dimly visible beyond the further gloom gigantic forms are tossing multitudinous arms in mid-air, like Titans wrestling with the gods of Olympus, or, as might be, forests of windmills in a hurricane. In reality, these writhing shapes are the green tops of palm trees.

The fog is compounded not of soot but of sand, and the very paper on which I write is gritty. We pity ourselves heartily for being caught on a railway journey in a Khamsin of the first magnitude, writes a traveller in the London Chronicle.

We have just entered on the most trying season of the Egyptian year Anglo-Egyptians know exactly what really happened when Moses afflicted all the land for the space of three days with darkness that could be felt. At this period of the year the North breezes makes Egyptian nights so cool and refreshing after the hottest of days, gives place to a blistering sirocco from the Sahara, calculated while it lasts to afflict human kind with a brimming measure of discomfort.

"Khamin" is the Arabic word for "fifty," and the name is given to this furnace-blast from the desert by reason of the period of fifty days during which its intermittent onslaughts must be endured.

The first sign of the approaching visitation is a sudden still oppressiveness in the air, such as in England heralds a thunderstorm. The atmosphere seems to be neutralized between the fresh ripple of the wind that blows up the Nile from seaward and the advancing breaths of the opposing heat blizzard from the south. The clear-cut contours of the desert hills begin to lose their distinctness; their sky-line is blurred in a mist, which is really a curtain of blown sand and dust. Finally, after it may be, a day's or only a few hours' warning, the Khamsin swoops down on the country with the fury of typhoon at sea.

Down go the sweet peas, so fresh and beautiful in their recent colors, like a piece of crazy-scaffolding. The vine trellis crashes and collapses, the flowering bougainvillea slips its moorings on the lattice-work of the balcony like a fleet scattering before a submarine, and streams in ribbons on the air. The atmosphere cracks and rattles with hundreds of shrivelled and whirling leaves, and not clouds, but a solid bank of eddying dust, blots out sun and landscape, and renders the colored air solid in place of fluid.

It is recorded of the Egyptians under Moses' plague that "they saw not one another, neither rose any from his place for three days." They adopted, in fact, the only possible course in a Khamsin, and, as far as we can, we follow their ancient example in modern Egypt.

For the human victim the only salvation is to fly to his house and barricade himself behind the triple ward of shutters, wire blinds and windows, with rugs and towels overspreading the crevices of doors and window sills.

Even in the barricaded and darkened house the situation is as uncomfortable as can well be imagined. No parapet of quilts or blankets can keep out the drifting dust. Finely sifted through the interstices of windows and doors, the very house walls seeming almost porous before it, we sit helplessly watching it as it spreads inexorably in grey-brown waves, mounds and ridges over the surfaces of our polished floors, fills our basins, jugs and kitchen utensils with a gritty sediment, and buries our books, furniture and pictures under the drifts of a displaced Sahara, from wh ich we shall later on "excavate" them wit h much expenditure of elbow-grease, when the clear north wind blows once more, and, as of old, drives the plague into the sea.

A HOT ROAST FOR U. S. MOVIE MEN

(By JOHN O'BRIEN)

PARIS, July 24 (United Press).—French movie films haven't made the slightest progress in the last ten years.

"The taste of the theatre public has been steadily developing for many years," said Antoine, "but the movie people haven't done anything to keep pace with it. As far as they are concerned, we are still in the days of the film based on elementary detective tales.

"In spite of the immense wealth in the hands of the American producers, which enables them to indulge in expenditures impossible in France, they have not brought anything new to the movie from the viewpoint of art. Men like Griffith spend millions of dollars on a production. They get tremendous effects, of course, but their scenarios are mere hackneyed repetitions of the situations of the old stage.

"Dramatic authors of today cannot change this. We need a new generation of artistic thinkers, freed from ancient pseudo-literary baggage, who will be able to take advantage of the special facilities for expression which the screen gives. More than that, the business of making movie films must be taken out of the hands of men who are in it for the sole purpose of making millions."

TRACTORETTE

All Day Hoeing Job Does Not Haunt Farm Boys Now.

DES PLAINES, Ill., July 23. — Boys all over the country who have the job of hoeing the potatoes on summer afternoons when the swimming hole ripples invitingly will be interested in this.

They are about to lose that job (tough luck) before the devouring efficiency of machinery. Following in the path of the farm tractor, manufacturers now are putting on the market a light garden tractorette, designed especially for gardens and truck farms, which enables one man to do the work of three or four.

The first show ever held of the garden tractors, demonstrating their efficiency, has just been staged on a farm near here under the direction of L. L. Heller and H. W. Day, county farm advisers.

A 15-year old boy operated one of the tractors in the demonstration. It has a planter and cultivator attachment, and it can be used to push a lawn mower. Three rows may be cultivated at once.

"With this three-row cultivator, I plowed three acres of onion sets in three and a half hours," reports George F. Crew of this city, an owner who took part in the show.

"The average gardener figures that if he cultivates an acre a day with a wheel hoe he is doing well. I just turn on the motor, steer with my left hand, get a big day's work done and at night I have no blisters on my hands."

THE NEW TRACTORETTE SHOWN HERE, CULTIVATES THREE ROWS AT ONCE. A BOY CAN(OPERATE IT; AT LEAST THE L A D BELOW DOESN'T LOOK WORRIED, DOES HE?

A Thought

Unto the pure all things are pure; but unto them that are defiled and unbelieving is nothing pure; but even their mind and conscience is defiled. —Titus 1:15.

The man who in this world can keep the whiteness of his soul is not likely to lose it in any other.—Alexander Smith.

In Misery For 4 Years Says Mrs. E. Kennedy

Declares Tanlac Ended Long Suffering from Stomach Trouble and She Hasn't Felt it Since—Gained 12 lbs., and Feels Fine.

When a medicine proves so effectual in the restoration of health—toning up the system and invigorating the constitution—that those who take it can say, after years have past, "I am still strong and well," it must be conceded that such a preparation obtains of the highest degree of purity and efficiency that skill and science are able to accomplish.

Such has been the wonderful achievement of the Tanlac treatment in the lives of vast numbers of grateful men and women throughout Canada. The evidence regarding this fact is farther strengthened by the statement of Mrs. E. Kennedy, residing at 14 Parent Ave., Windsor Ont., who recently said:

"The Tanlac treatment built me up to good health with a gain of twelve pounds in weight four years ago and I have been feeling fine ever since. Up to that time I suffered continually with my stomach. My appetite was about gone and what little I did eat would make me so sick that I could hardly retain it.

"I lost weight until my clothes were away too large for me. The pains in my stomach were so severe it makes me shudder even now to think of them. At times I felt so weak and dizzy I could hardly keep my balance and nerves; why, I was actually so nervous that it embarrassed me, and some nights I couldn't get more than two hours sleep. Then I would get up just as tired as when I retired at night and my housework was a dreadful burden to me.

'Since taking Tanlac all my stomach misery is gone and I have a wonderful appetite. In a few words, I haven't an ailment in the world and am feeling stronger than ever. Tanlac is such a grand, good medicint that I want to praise it to everyone."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.

INSURE NATIONS FROM CALAMITIES.

Two Projects of Mutual Insurance Are Before World.

GENEVA, July 24 (United Press).—From mutual insurance societies for the protection of individuals the world have now progressed to a basis where it will soon have mutual insurance societies for the protection of nations. This is one of the international social outgrowths of the war.

Two projects are now under way for the organization of international mutual insurance for nations.

The first of these is Lord Robert Cecil's project for an international guarantee pact, as an insurance against war. It is now under consideration by the League of Nations as an indispensable basis for disarmament.

Under its terms the nations signing it will not only pledge themselves not to attack each other, but to come to each other's assistance in the event they are attacked by others.

Just as each individual by reason of a mutual insurance protection is able to cut down his expenses for insuring the future of himself or his family, so by this international mutual insurance against war each nation will be able to cut down its expenses of self-defense from what it now costs to each nation to insure its own defense single-handed.

The second project of international mutual insurance for nations is that put forward by Italy. She demands an international treaty and organization pledging all nations to come to each others assistance in the event of great natural calamities, such as earthquakes, fires, famines, epidemics, cyclones, etc.

CAN GET INSURANCE.

The secretary of the G. W. V. A. desires in invite the attention of all Returned Soldiers of this District to the fact that September of this year is the last date upon which application for Insurance under the Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act can be accepted. The Act definitely provides for expiration of the privileges of insuring on September 1 and the period cannot now be extended.

Returned soldiers attention is invited particularly to the fact that this insurance is available entirely without medical examination, except in where the aplicant is seriously ill. An impression is known to be prevalent to the effect that recent amendments to the act debar all persons not physically fit. This impression is most incorrect. Insurance is being granted daily under the Act on the lives of individuals who could not under any circumstances be accepted for insurance by ordinary companies. The recent Amendments to the Act eliminate only those who are in a very serious state of health.

Insurance is granted under the Act in amounts from $500 to $5000 Policies including whole life, 20 year plans included, whole life, 20 year payment life, payable to age 65, and the premiums are lower than those charged elsewhere for similar policies. Detailed information and application forms can be obtained at the office of the secretary or will be sent directly on request.

September 1 is positively the last day on which this Insurance can be obtained.

YOUNG DAUGHTER MADE WELL

Mother Tells How Her Daughter Suffered and Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Vancouver, B. C.—"My daughter is a young girl who has been having severe pains and weak and dizzy feelings for some time and had lost her appetite. Through an older daughter who had heard of a woman who was taking it for the same trouble, we were told of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My daughter has been taking it for several months and is quite all right now. It has done all it was represented to do and we have told a number of friends about it. I am never without a bottle of it in the house, for I myself take it for that weak, tired, worn-out feeling which sometimes comes to us all. I find it is building me up and I strongly recommend it to women who are suffering as I and my daughter have."—Mrs. J. McDONALD, 2947 26th Ave. East, Vancouver, B.C.

From the age of twelve a girl needs all the care a thoughtful mother can give. Many a woman has suffered years of pain and misery—the victim of thoughtlessness or ignorance of the mother who should have guided her during this time.

If she complains of headaches, pains in the back and lower limbs, or or if you notice a slowness of thought, nervousness or irritability on the part of your daughter, make life easier for her.

DIVING'S LOTS OF FUN AND IF YOU DO IT CORRECTLY YOU WON'T GET HURT WHEN YOU HIT WATER

HOW YOU SHOULD DIVE

(By Syba M. Sheffield)

ENTERING THE WATER, MISS SHEFFIELD DEMONSTRTING CORRECT POSITION FOR ARMS, HEAD, LEGS AND BODY WHEN MAKING A DIVE. YOUR HANDS CUT THE WATER.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—Many beginners think that diving is jumping into the water.

But they usually learn from experience that the water can give hard knocks when entered improperly. And they are lucky if they do not also discover from experience that an improper dive may cause a swimmer to strike his head against the bottom of the tank.

So it will pay you to learn diving slowly and thoroughly before you attempt dives or "jump-ins" of your own invention.

The hands play a very important part in diving. They are the "break" which parts the water.

To get the correct position, raise your arms straight up, then cross the palm of the left hand over the back of the right hand, "locking" your thumbs.

Now kneel on the edge of the pool and bend the body forward until the chin is as far forward as possible. Extend your arms in front of your hands for diving.

Head Controls Body.

Inhale a deep breath and "fall" into the water, hands and head first.

Keep the arms and head in the starting position until the body is under water; then come to the surface by pointing the fingers up and raising the head and shoulders.

Always remember that the head controls the position of the body both in the air and in the water, and that it is the means of directing your course. Upon entering the water, the hands and head should be down to carry you under properly; to regain the surface, they should be raised.

Practice the fall-in described above until you enter the water naturally, easliy and without a last minute desire to hold back, then progress to the standing fall-in.

For this, you stand on the edge of the pool, toes gripping the edge, knees flexed. Bend forward, assuming the same position with the arms and upper body that you took for the kneeling fall-in, and enter the water by rising on the toes and falling forward, holding the entire body in the starting position until it is submerged. Of course, the hands and head enter first.

Master Fall-In.

Remember not to stiffen or straighten the body when falling forward, or you will fall flat on the waters' surface—with painful consequences to yourself. In diving the body should enter the water at a 45-degree angle.

After you are proficient in the fall-ins, you are ready for true diving.

Take the same position you assumed for the standing fall-in, body bent forward, arms extended and knees flexed.

Then quickly rise on the toes, straighten the knees and thus enter the water.

As you did in the fall-in, keep your body in the starting position until it is completely submerged; then bring yourself to the surface by pointing the fingers upward and raising the head and shoulders.

After you become used to this dive, you will be able to execute it without the preliminary bending forward or the necessity of getting correct position with the arms and hands before diving off; you will assume these positions while in the air.

All the fancy diving you see is founded on this elementary dive; so you will want to master it thoroughly before attempting more spectacular efforts.

"Blue Sky" Law Was Declared "Ultra Vires"

REGINA, Sask., July 24. Caadian Press. — Saskatchewan's "blue sky" law, the sale of shares act, was declared ultra vires of the provincial legislature in a judgment rendered yesterday by the provincial court of appeal.

Three rulings on the issue agreed that the Saskatchewan statute interfered with the status and powers of companies holding Dominion charters and thus clashed with the authority of the Federal parliament. These judgments were concurred in by the other two members of the Provincial appeal court.

By the judgment rendered the "blue sky" legislation of three other provinces, Alberta, Manitoba and Ontario, is affected, as the four Provincial statutes are modelled on the same lines. Members of the Attorney-General's department said that the case would be without any doubt carried to the Supreme court of Canada, if not by Saskatchewan, by some other province.

LOVESICK LAKE CLAIMS VICTIM

Cleveland Boy Was Carried Over the Lovesick Dam in a Canoe.

John Miller, aged 14, of Cleveland, Ohio., was drowned in Lovesick Lake about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the canoe in which he was paddling went over th Lovesick Dam.

It is thought that the boy became frightened and jumped from the canoe, which was floating right side up after the accident. Young Miller was with the Burleigh Fall Fishing Club, composed of members from Cleveland who come annually to this spot. There was no one with him in the canoe at the time of the accident, and the only explanation is that the canoe was caught in an eddy and carried toward the dam.

BETTER BUSINESS CAMPAIGN IN CITY

Suggestion From Peterboro Merchant Meets With Surprising Response.

A few days ago a merchant published in the Examiner a large advertisment asking the public for their ideas on a better business campaign or a way of transferring the goods from a merchants shelves to the home of the people, and realizing their value in cash. A really surprising response was the result, and some of the communications were worthy of the carefuly study of any merchant, who cared to look on his own efforts through the eyes of the people who are his every day customers. Some of the features that were very generally emphasized were a policy of courtesy, a united effort of employer and employees to push business in as pleasant a manner as possible and this was most forcibly put by one young lady contestant who said that the clerks who was going to sell to and bring a customer back to the store, should be REALLY GLAD to have the patron come into their employers store to look for what they wanted to buy. This idea of being really pleased to have an opportunity of showing goods to a prospective buyer struck the judges as a so much better way of meeting a customer, than having to present a pleasant face without the "really" behind it.

Both Sides of Story.

Discussing this one side of the better business profession with some merchants, the other side of the story was brought out, and seemed to have a good deal of weight with it too. All merchants expect their clerks to be courteous and considerate with the customers and are usually satisfied that a genuine effort is being made to conform to their wishes, but there is more than a doubt that many shoppers fail to give to the clerk, the consideration and politeness they demand from them toward themsleves. In this age where every man or woman is on a plane of equality with every other man or woman, it is almost impossible not to resent a lack of that in a patron which they themselves are trying to observe, and probably this clas of shopper has themselves to blame if they are treated somewhat as they act toward the clerk.

Respond With Interest.

The conclusion arrived at is that if met half-way by a friendly interest in the others wants, both shopper and clerk will immediately respond with a like interest and the selling and buying then becomes a real pleasure to both.

This idea, having been the most prominent in nearly all the replies to the Contest, has been dwelt on to the greatest extent but there were other good sensible suggestions, ways of stimulating trade, ways that would appeal to the writers themselves, and would in some form of modification be of value to almost all business, that disclosed the fact that all good business heads are not in business. Some of the Contestants, if given a store to manage would undoubtedly make a real success of it, by applying the methods advocated in their contributions to the Better Business Contest.

Change of Water Change of Diet Change of Climate Cause DIARRHOEA

Mr. Fred Palmer, 217 Dalhousie St., Brantford, Ont., writes:—"When I first went out to the North-West the water played havoc with my bowels, and being in a remote spot I could not get anything to give me relief for any length of time.

I wrote and told my wife about the time I was having and she sent me a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and I cannot speak too highly of it for what it did for me.

Whenever the children have any bowel trouble from eating fruit or drinking strange water, which they have done for the past five years, living in the country, the only remedy we use is 'Dr. Fowler's', and nobody should be without it as it cannot be beat for instant relief."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for the past 78 years, you don't experiment with now and untried remedies when you buy it, but be sure and get 'Dr. Fowler's' when you ask for it, as a substitute may be dangerous to your health.

Good Prospects For Championship Bout.

NEW YORK, July 24 (Canadian Press). — Prospects of the early completion of negotiations for a Jack Dempsey-Luis Firpo heavyweight title match were brighter last night, it was learned, as a result of a lengthy conference yesterday between Promoter Tex Rickard, Jack Kearns, the champion's manager, Firpo, and his trainer, Jimmy Deforest.

It was said that an agreement on all essentials to the match was reached at conference, but Rickard while admitting some progress had been made, said he was ready for no definite announcement.

The final step in plans for the bout may be completed at another conference, slated for to-day.

While Rickard has withheld any definite information as to the date and site of the proposed match, it was believed he was arranging to stage it at the Polo Grounds around Labour Day.

It was indicated that the promoter had practically abandoned his recent proposal to take the match to Buenos Ayres.

WOOLLENS WON A LEAGUE GAME

Defeated The Packers At The Oval Last Evening. Score Was 4 to 0.

The return league game between Woollens and Packers resulted in a 4 to 0 win for the former, at the Oval, last evening. It was a good game throughout and the Packers certainly made a creditable showing with only ten men.

Woollens kicked off with a full team and it was evident that the Packers would make them travel all the way even under the circumstances. Woollens tried hard to get a goal, that eventually came through Mitchell. Hanson transferred the ball to Harry Hotston, who sent a beauty across that Chambers handled in masterly fashion. Monkman cleared up-field to Gaskill, who dribbled in past the defence and sent in a twirling shot that deceived Curtis for the second goal. The Packers repeatedly went down in a body to work around Woollens area, but could not penetrate Chambers' goal. Long shots by Jack Shaw and Hanson did not worry Chambers, who made smart clearance on every occasion. Half-time, Woollens, 2; Packers, 0.

The late start compelled the teams to just turn round for second half. Packers set a fast pace to visit Chambers, who picked off the ball, in mid-air with forwards in upon him. Hanson came back again but their was no force behind his parting shot. Cridland cleared to Crow. The out side right travelling along the wing went into Woollens territory to strike the upright. "Wag" Hotston playing at full-bask played offsides to perfection that kept the Woollens' forwards well out. Time and again, they were brought up, when in an excellent position, There were some nice pieces of combination produced by both sides at this period and play confined to midfield with an occasional raid on each goal. Curtis, Packer's goal-keeper was kept busy for a while stopping shots from the Woollens forwards, but was given no chance with the fast drive through the goal by Monkman for third goal. A minute before full time. James Shaw made it a four clear goal victory.

Final:—Woollens, 4; Packers, 0.

KINGSTON TEAM HERE SATURDAY

Last Apearance Of The Ponies At Riverside Park This Year.

The game on Saturday between Kingston and Peterborough at Riverside Park in the Central Ontario League series marks the last appearance of the Kingston crew here this season and should be a hard battle, because both teams need the victory to stay in the running. Gallagher will be saved by the Ponies for this game in an effort to beat the Petes, a trick that he has already turned twice. While the homesters, realizing the importance of a victory, will have their strongest line-up in action. Kingston have been beaten three times at Riverside Park, while the Petes have been turned back twice in Kingston. The Ponies are out to show that they can win away from home, and the Petes, on the other hand, need the decision to keep in the race.

Only six games are left to play in the Big Four series and the interest will be at fever heat in the remaining fixtures.

BACK TO THE MINORS.

A short two years ago Goldie Rapp came up to the Giants from the American Association in a blaze of glory. His fame was heralded far and near. He went to the training camp down south and they said he was the best that had been seen in years.

But when the season started he flivved. McGraw clung to him for a little while, hoping that the mysterious failure might be turned into the success everyone thought was in store for the third sacker.

Later, however, McGraw let him go to the Phillies.

Now the Phillies have let him go back to the minors and another dream is dispelled and another career shattered.

EIGHTY THOUSAND SAW LEONARD WIN

Demonstrates Conslusively His Undesputed Title To Light - Weight Throne.

NEW YORK, July 24. Canadian Press. — Benny Leonard, the king of lightweights for the past six years, demonstrated conclusively last night his undisputed title to the throne by trouncing Lew Tendler, his Philadelphia challenger, in a and outpunched his foremost rival match at Yankee Stadium, before a crowd of more than 80,000, who paid half a milion dollars to see the match, setting a new mark for champions outside the heavyweight class.

Leonard outgeneralled, outbouted, and outpushed his foremost rival from the start. He had the upper hand, had Tendler on the verge of a knockout at the close and the verdict of the judge in his favor at the finish was merely a formality.

Spectacular as was the bout, it lacked the thrill, the suspense and the evenness of the memorable battle a year ago at Boyle's Thirty Acres, when Leonard, hanging on at one stage was barely able to gain a margin of victory.

Leonard proved beyond any doubt however that Tendler's showing against him at Jersey City last summer was due entirely to his unfamiliarity with left handed opponents, and to a chance blow that shook him up more than ever he was shaken before while wearing the light-weight crown.

Leonard fought with consummate skill. Master of ring tactics, he had the rugged southpaw challenger baffled by the speed and the precision of his attack, while at the same time he made futile Tendler's attempts on the offensive. The champion landed three blows to one in nearly every round.

Cause of Death.

Dr. Sutton of Norwood told The Examiner that Dr. Ford had died from the effect of shock from bursitis. While in Peterborough four years ago he had fallen and injured his shoulder. About six weeks ago this old hurt recurred, and the shoulder became badly swollen. The injury was technically known as bursitis, and in this case it failed to respond to treatment which followed an X-ray examination in Peterborough. Death resulted from the shock to the system, and was peaceful, Dr. Sutton said.

"Dr. Ford was the father of the whole fraternity in this county," Dr. Sutton remarked. "He was the father of our flock. He had intense love for the practice of medicine, and never consulted his own personal comfort and convenience when a sick call came to him. He set an example for younger doctors, and almost up to the time of his death he turned out at night whenever he was called, and no matter what the [illegible] were."

Other citizens spoke in the warmest terms of the place Dr. Ford held in this community. He was regarded as something of an institution, a man of many parts and talents, with extraordinary literary and oratorical gifts, and a devotion to duty which he regarded as a sacred trust. In his church and lodge, in the East Peterborough Liberal and Conservative Association, in the various municipal and public causes to which he gave of his time and assistance, and in the homes of so many people, Dr. Ford will be missed with increasing realisation of his sterling worth, his fine character and rich human attributes, as these days nearest his death lengthen out and reveal in their clearer light the good he wrought in his three-score years in this community.

FRANCE PREPARING FOR THE OLYMPIC

Fifty - Four Nations Will Be Reppresented By Over 5000 Athletes at Olympic Games.

BY PAUL R. MALLON.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, July 24.—More than 5,000 athletes from all nations of the globe are going to the French Olympics and arrangements have been made to seat 100,000 spectators.

Fifty-four nations will take part in 138 events.

It may be the greatest athletic carnival in the history of the world, thousands of times greater than when the Greeks used to climb over the mountain passes in the spring, taking weeks, to attend the first games on Mount Olympus.

A tennis stadium is being built, a village is being constructed to house the athletes, a nautical stadium for the rowing and sailing races on the Seine, a range for long distance shooting, an arena for boxing, fencing and wrestling, and fields and stands for the rugby football matches.

The track is the largest in the world and made of red scoria, formed in two parallel lines 130 metres long.

Work of the French committee has been greatly hampered by lack of money. The chamber of deputies cut the appropriation in half, but still the work has gone on and it is very probable that all the projects will be successfully completed.

The International Amateur Federation congress began discussions of the situation yesterday in Paris. Col. A. G. Milles, member of the American executive committee, is in attendance.

The University of Pennsylvania has offered Franklin Field, Philadelphia, for the try-outs, which are expected to begin about the first of June next year. The Harvard stadium also has been offered.

The American team will sail on June 18.

Oriqui and Dundee Ready For Battle.

NEW YORK, July 24—(Canadian Press).— Eugent Criqui, of France, feather-weight champion, and Johnny Dundee, of New York, who are matched for a 15-round title bout at the Polo Grounds, Thursday Night, practically finished their training yesterday. Both are now under the 126 pound limit and will have light workouts only during the next few days to keep on edge.

NEWS JANETVILLE AND THE DISTRICT

Sunday School Picnic Much Enjoyed and Presentation a Feature.

JANETVILLE, July 24. —Notwithstanding the fact that Sunday was Decoration Day at Lindsay, and large numbers of people went from this community to attend that service, the congregations here were large, especially in the evening. Great interest is manifested by the people in the subjects discussed by the new pastor, and the choir are nobly doing their part. The morning subject was "Water from the Old Well," and in the evening the subject was "Before the Judgment Seat of Christ."

Sunday School Picnic.

The Sunday school picnic, held on the shores of Scugog lake on Saturday afternoon last was a most happy event. It began with a baseball game played by sides chosen up from the Sunday school force, and the sexes freely mingled in the game. On one side the first baseman was a young lady, on the other side a bright, happy, athletic school girl played second base. Oh, it was some game, "tell it not in Gath" that girls can't play ball. In this game the new preacher earned the title "The heavy hitter." The score was beyond all reason.

After the game there was lunch on the grassy tables of the lake shore, with abundance of ice cream in evidence.

Mr. Beggs, who has been teaching the Janetville Continuation School for some years, and is going to Pontypool, was called forward and presented with an elegant fountain pen and a very neat and complimentary address, read by Mr. R. Burns. Mr. Beggs made a pithy and fitting reply.

Save Jones' Sheep.

There has been great havoc among sheep by dogs, in a certain section of this district. The problem is giving the Council great unnecessary worry. Surely the owners of dogs might tie the animals up at night for a while and thus help to solve this serious question. "But there is no wool in my dog's teeth," even so, if I tie my dog up it might help keep the woolout of the teeth of the other fellow's dog, and save Jones' sheep.

Heavy Hay Crop.

So abundant is the hay crop that Mr. Chas. Armstrong has harvested 40 loads from 14 acres of grounds. He will have 150 tons of hay altogether. But the other crops cannot long stand the dry weather. Rain is much needed.

Renewing Acquaintances.

Miss Reddick, daughter of the Rev. C. Reddick of Lakefield, is visiting friends here. She is renewing acquaintances, having spent four years in Janetville while her father was pastor on this charge.

Huckleberries Aplenty.

Mr. John McGee of Janetville, manager of the grain elevator, went north last week and reports abundance of huckleberries. He is likely to make a return visit, and will not be alone this time. This is a rare opportunity to couple an outing with a bushel of northern fruit.

E. P. GAME GOES TO COGNAWAGA

Get Only Three Hits Off George Street Pitcher But Win 4 to 1.

George Street got good pitching from Grant Miller in their East Peterborough League game with Cognawaga last evening, the opposition getting only three hits. Miller fanned ten, and he deserved something better than the 4 to 1 victory registered by the Cogs. Three of the four tallies scored against George Street were due to two wild pegs and a passed ball.

Vannest also was going along strong for the Cognawagas, and he received good backing from his teammates, Grose at short and Shadgett at second bearing the brunt of the George Street attack. Their handling of ground balls was a feature of the game.

George Street went out in a row in the first and second. They put two runners on bags in the third, Baird and Shield getting singles, only to be turned back when R. Miller flied to short for the third out.

In the Fourth Elliott hit to deep centre for three bases, the ball bounding away from Prest. Elliott was nipped when he tried to score when C. Miller grounded to short. The next two fanned.

The George Street stock went up in the fifth. McCall walked and G. Miller beat out an infield hit. Shields forced McCall at third. G. Miller stole third and scored on R. Miller's choice, Shields, who followed G. Miller being nailed at the plate. Only six men faced Vannest in the sixth and seventh.

C. Miller's high throw to third in an attempt to get Grose allowed the runner to make home with a run for Cognawaga in the first. In the second Macdonald was safe on Delahaye's error, and making his way to third, scored on Elliott's wild heave to third. Prest, who walked in the fourth, scored later when a fourth ball on P. Vannest went through the catcher. A. Davis hit in the sixth and scored on Shadgett's infield out.

TORONTO MAN SPEAKS HIGHLY OF DRECO

Mr. Harry Hipkiss finds relief in Dreco when other medicines fail. Now has splendid appetite.

Mr. Hipkiss of 2090 Dundas St., West, Toronto, Ont., had suffered for a long time from a run-down digestive system. It simply would not function properly until toned and regulated by the corrective properties of Dreco, the famous herbal remedy.

"My stomach caused all sorts of trouble," says Mr. Hipkiss. "My food wouldn't digest and everything seemed to sour. My liver was sluggish and I would get bilious and have dizzy spells My joints ached with pain from rheumatism. My bowels never acted regular, and I didn't sleep well at night. My appetite was very poor, but now I can eat almost anything without suffering afterwards. I am certainly glad I heard of Dreco, for it has done away with my troubles. It seemed to hit the spot when everything else failed."

Sluggish action of the organs can be charged with causing suffering such as Mr. Hipkiss describes. Poor digestion causes a weakening of the other organs and speedily takes a toll on the general health. Dreco is made from roots, herbs, bark and leaves which tone up these vital organs. It keeps them strong and healthy and acting as Nature intended.

Dreco is especially valuable at this season of the year to tone up a system run-down by the rigors of winter. It contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterobro by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold in Lakefield by E. H. Northey, and by a good druggist everywhere.

SAYS THAT LARKIN IS WANTED HERE

Request that He be Detained Should He be Released in Hamilton.

HAMILTON, July 24.—(Special)—In the case of W. H. Larkin, who will appear in police court here, tomorrow, the local police have been notified by Chief Newhall of Peterborough, that the accused is wanted in that city for obtaining various sums of money in the month of May. Chief Newhall stated that Larkin's real name is William Landry, and that he is a native of Peterborough. He adds that letters sent by citizens who dealt with Larkin to Montreal, have been returned with the statement, that the firm is not known. Chief Newhall requests the local police to detain Larkin, should he be released locally.

BIG CARNIVAL OF PLEASURE

Broadway Exposition Shows Open at Exhibition Grounds Wednesday Night.

Owing to the long jump from Hull, Quebec, to Peterborough, the big Broadway Exposition Shows billed to open here at the Exhibition Grounds to-night, find it imperative to postpone their opening until to-morrow evening, 25th July.

This aggregation of summer amusements is engaged under the auspices of the Peterborough Exhibition Board, and will remain here until and including Saturday night, after which they leave for London to operate there during the Old Boys' Re-union.

Carrying 20 carloads of merry-making appurtenances, the Exposition will be found a stupendous carnival of pleasure, offering 10 big shows, with a merry-go-round, Ferris wheel, seaplane, and other popular out-of-door rides. Their wonder, fun, and skill are combined in J. Wallace with his trained animals, Wild West, and Hawaiian shows, athletic stunts, No Man's Land, Jazz Land Minstrels, and not forgetting the remarkable Land of Mystery.

Remember that those who drop in at the Broadway Exposition Shows are assured of a happy time—four evenings of marvel, fun, mystery and bewilderment, positively opening to-morrow night, 25th July.

THEATRES

Bill Peck was a war veteran. He had a dollar, a lame leg and a lot of optimism and he was a "go-getter." Before he went after a job he ordered some cards printed announcing his connection with the desired firm and before he proposed to his best girl he had the wedding announcements printed.

"The Go-Getter" with T. Roy Barnes as William Peck and Seena Owen as Mary Skinner is one of those "commercial" stories that make a welcome change in the usual run of photodramas. Opening with a presentation of the veterans' home where a war hero lies forgotten with a broken back it progresses through a series of startling and interesting episodes to the final presentation of a wonderful night ride in an aeroplane to deliver Bill's "blue vase" for which he has risked life and limb and engaged in two ferocious fights that leave his evening dress and silk hat a complete wreck.

Nothing 'fazes' Bill but when 'Cappy' Ricks takes a fancy to him he wishes to prove the measure of the man. The ensuing search for the blue vase a three-thousand dollar article purchased in a ten-cent store, the devious ways that lead Bill's feet to an underground lair with an ape and a beast-man as inhabitants make one of the best pictures seen here in some time. The incident where Bill uses the telephone and calls up various 'B. Cohens' in unsuccessful attempts to locate the owner of the desired case is ludicrous in the extreme.

For action and plenty of amusing situations the "Go Getter" would be hard to beat. It is alive from beginning to end. The eccentric 'Cappy' testing his man injects plenty of life into the story.

The comedy which tickled the crowd immensely is a parody of "Robin Hood" with a King Epsom and a heroine Princess Elizabeth New Jersey. The hero has a Chaplinesque touch at times and the burlesque is just touched lightly enough to be funny.

EFFICIENCY IN ROAD TRANSPORT

Notwithstanding their many obvious advantages, self-contained road vehicles of the lorry type suffer from the handicap that the engine and transmission gear are only employed usefully whilst the whole vehicle is in motion. A railway locomotive can be uncoupled from one goods train and sent off with another whilst the first is being unloaded, but a steam or petrol lorry is idle whilst being loaded or unloaded. An ingenious means of overcoming this disability has been devised by a British firm of engineers. A petrol lorry with a shortened frame is used simply as a locomotive in conjunction with a trailer of special design. Two important features contribute to the success of the combination, one being a new type of ball and socket coupling, and the other a means of raising the front wheels of the trailer when the latter is coupled to the locomotive. The ball and socket coupling provides the requisite degree of flexibility in all directions, and is so designed that it gives complete security when closed but can be opened in a moment by one man. This is accomplished by the use of a split socket in conjunction with a simple mechanism which is semi-automatic in action. The fact that the front wheels of the trailer can be raised enables the combined tractor and trailer to run on six wheels a system of which the advantages are well known. When uncouples, however, the trailer rest on all four wheels and can thus be handled without the slightest inconvenience as an independent unit.

Little Known Trade Peculiar to Britain Is "Shipping Ticket"

A trade peculiar to Manchester and of great importance in the shipping world is that of the Trade-mark or "Shipping Ticket" printer.

In the days when our trade with the East began to develop it was found necessary to mark the cotton goods in some manner which would be at once intelligible to the illiterate native.

The plan of appealing to that love of pictures which is common to all humanity proved to be a happy one, and nowhere we in England would look for a price ticket, the Chinese and Hindoos look for the "mark," writes a shipping ticket buyer in the London Daily Mail.

The bulk of the cotton goods exported from Lancashire is consigned to Eastern merchants, the Indian and Chinese markets being a source of revenue which the shipper fully appreciates.

Each piece of cloth exported to these markets bears one or more "marks" in the form of gummed tickets, varying in size from about 3 by inches to as much as 10 by 8 inches.

The tickets are a wonder of lithographic art, and depict scenes of Chinese or Indian life, according to the market for which they are intended.

The Indian ticket, with somewhat gaudy representations of rajahs, tigers, and elephants, is a highly varnished ticket, the cost of which is worth taking into account when quoting for shipments.

The Chinese ticket—or "chop," as it is known—though rather less expensive, appeals more to Western artistic taste. It is rarely, if ever, varnished, and, with its delicately tinted mandarins, pagodas, and Chinese mythological subjects, presents a very attractive picture.

Although there certain tickets which are "common to all markets," and may be obtained by any shipper from the ticket printers, there are many thousands of "private marks," which are secrets carefully kept between the printer and his customer who owns them.

In addition to the Indian and Chinese ticket buyers there are the East Indies and South American markets, the latter buying a "head and shoulders" picture such as one sees on cigar or handkerchief boxes. But these markets are of lesser importance to the ticket printer, even as the tickets themselves are less curious to the casual observer.

OVERCOME OLD AGE BY PREPAREDNESS.

Don't Let Father Time and The Public Tie a Tin Can to You.

Julian Eltinge, world's greatest female impersonator, weighed 214 pounds when 22-inch waists became the fashion.

"I got my waist down to 22 inches, all right," he reminisces. "The Lord knows how I did it. You could stick pins in my legs and I didn't feel it. The wide, loose waistline would let me get away with murder. But I don't weigh as much as I did then. Only 165 now."

When a man tipping the beam at 214 pounds can get his waist down to 22 inches, anything is possible.

A bigger problem than reducing his waist-line is ahead of Eltinge—real name, William Julian Dalton, by the way. The problem ahead is old age. Eltinge has been impersonating merry widows for quite a while double chins and stiff joints cannot be dodged forever. He knows it is frank about it.

His has been a prosperous career. He could quit, never do another tap of work and live off the fat of the land.

But he wants to keep on working. Female impersonation will be out of the question.

He's a he-man, by the way, with an uppercut that would qualify him as a pugilists's sparring partner.

Here's his decision: "I want to keep going. I like to travel. I figure I can keep up concert work till I am 60 or 70 years old. Some of my opera friends tell me I have a voice. So I'm going to take a chance."

Prepare For New Line.

Eltinge is educating his voice now. A few more years of female impersonation, then off go his stage skirts forever. And when they are put away in mothballs, Eltinge will have his voice ready for his new line of work.

Instead of waiting for Father Time and the public to tie a can to him, he's going to retire himself "beat 'em to it."

In preparing for the inevitable, he displays foresight that is very scarce among actors—or the rest of us, for that matter.

There are many sorts of occupations for which a man is unfitted sooner or later by his age. A woman, likewise. How many are preparing themselves to take up a new line of endeavor when the referee counts them out? How many are even saving systematically so they will be independent financially when young newcomers crowd them out of their chronic jobs?

How about yourself? At what age will you be "through" in the work you are following? And what are you preparing to take its place? We get old—oh, so fast. The years slip by before we realize.

Lord Hugh Cecil Says Love is Not a Brain Stimulant.

Does love stimulate the brain? Lord Hugh Cecil, that brilliant but erratic bachelor genius, thinks that it does nothing of the sort.

He told the House of Commons, in support of his contention recently, that when he was at Oxford he used to spend whole Sunday afternoons arguing "at the top of his voice" over nuts and wine, whereas he would have done nothing of the sort if a woman had been present. Which only seemed to prove that Lord Hugh was as talkative in his youth as he is in middle age, says a writer in the London Daily Express.

The issue arose on the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Bill, which sets up statutory commissioners to carry out university reforms recommended by the royal commission over which Mr Asquith presided.

The Bill was given a second reading, but it was evident that during the committee stage a determined attempt will be made to secure sex equality at Cambridge, in the same way as it has been secured at Oxford.

"Pals"

Lord Hugh Cecil wanted the whole matter left to Cambridge. He expressed regret that women had not a university of their own.

"A really mixed university," he said, "would be disastrous. The segregation of the sexes is essential for good education."

He was not afraid of students falling modern substitute was the establishment of "the relations of pals."

This brought a retort and an intimate revelation from Mr. Lawson, a Labor member.

"The pity is," he said, "that Lord Hugh Cecil does not appear to have had a 'pal.' I am thankful to say that I had a 'pal,' and when the opportunity came for me to go to Ruskin College she offered to sell up every stick we had and go into domestic service while I sat down and studied for a year or two."

Fossilized

The other outstanding point in the debate was the way in which speaker after speaker laid emphasis on the point that the universities should not be regarded as the close preserve of the rich.

Mr. Asquith said he hoped that the report of the commission would "finally dispel the fiction that Oxford and Cambridge are places where children of the well-to-do are offered a fossilized curriculum of more or less obsolete subjects in the intervals of boating and cricket."

Mr. J. M. Butler, one of the members for Cambridge University, said: "There is no place in the Empire where less attention is paid to social distinction or wealth."

He instanced his point by saying that there was a Cambridge professor who was proud of the fact that he started life as a basket-maker.

ROBERT I. AITKEN, N. Artists' models have their uses, but there are times when they are more of a hindrance than an aid. . . . The earlier in life a sculptor may work without models, the stronger his art will become."

DR. ALEXANDER MEIKLEJOHN, former president of Amherst College, in an address: "Some people believe that intelligence is a thing that you can have, that you can get and keep; that it comes down out of the past; that it is handed down by the teacher; that you can find it in a book; that it is there to be taken. It is not. Thinking of intelligence is a thing that you must do; it is an activity; it is a function of the human spirit; or is something that men must undertake if they are to have guidance of life."

JOHN DEWEY, philosopher, in an interview in the New York World: "The main idea is to make war a crime. Now we consider war a vice and a sin. We condemn it on ground of morals and religion. Of course morals and religion should work against war. But that is not enough. Today war is legal. And we will never abolish war until we make it illegal, until we literally outlaw it as an international crime."

DR. ALEXANDER MEIKLEJOHN, former president of Amherst College, in an address: "I am a believer in democracy but my query is whether institutions of learning should be in the hands of majorities. Change is life, life that does not change is nothing. America can't think in democratic terms. America still thinks in terms of privilege, and possession, and position, and social clique. America must learn to think in other terms than those, and it has a long task. Here is the thing that I find clear everywhere—America today is a people, uneducated in its task, trying to educate its children. We do not know how to think yet in terms of what we have to do, and we have got to learn."

E. W. HOWE, in E. W. Howe's Monthly: "Every man is a better fellow than women believe. I sometimes think no woman understands a man, although most men understand women; it is men who have dissected women, and found out most about them; men always have more experience with women than women can safely have with men. I am no expert, but I believe I can tell any average woman things about her sex she never heard of."

GERMAN MARKS TAKE ANOTHER PLUNGE TODAY

Farmer Would Rather Exchange So Many Potatoes for a Gold Watch or Phonograph.

THE MARK TABOO

BERLIN, July 25.—(By Carl D. Groat, United Press.)—The continued fall of the mark, not only in exchange value but in domestic purchasing power is rapidly bringing Germany to the point of old fashioned "bartering in kind."

A strong tendency is developing among farmers to refuse to accept payment in marks for their produce.

It has become a question in many cases not of how many potatoes can be bought for so many thousand marks, but how many potatoes will be exchanged for a gold match or a phonograph. The farmer looks with more favor on a piece of jewelry or household furniture in return for a bag o fonions than upon a fistfull of paper marks.

With marks at 571,030 to the dollar the effect is beginning to show not only economically but politically.

The election of the metal unions just held, resulted in overwhelming Communist victories throughout Germany. The radical leaders in the metal unions were swept into complete control.

Food prices are getting to the point where work men are unable to make purchases. Food prices not only follow, but surpass the dollar quotation, while wages are regulated only twice a month to keep pace with the descending value of the mark. Failure to accomplish any degree of stabilization of the money value is resulting in great discouragement among the workers.

This is being reflected in the turn to more radical elements. The Socialists are announcing that a strong attack will be made on the government the moment the Reichstag reconvenes.

A Later Despatch.

German marks were 2,200,000 to the pound sterling when the Exchange opeend to-day. At this rate the mark was nearly 450,000 to the dollar.

PREDICTS AIR ROUTES COVERING GREATER PART OF THE WORLD

LONDON, July 25.—A most interesting and instructive paper was read before the International Air Congress, recently in session in London by Brigadier-General F. H. Williamson, director of postal services of the British government.

General Williamson predicted that the United States. Canada, the West Indies, and other parts of the North American continent would soon be linked up by air with Great Britain. Connecting air lines would also run to Egypt, India, The Straits Settlements, Australia, New Zealand, and Africa. "It is not rash to predict," said he, "that the next generation will see its railways and its steamships supplemented by a complete system of comunication by air."

General Williamson said the Cairo-Bagdad air mail service, now in operation saved 20 days over old land route which ran via Bomaby. Karachi and the Persian Gulf. The mail planes covered the 850 miles in a single day.

Discussing the future of mail transport by air, the speaker said that the conveyance of the whole of mails by air was an unlikely development unless and until there is a very marked change in the cost of air transport and in the financial limitations under which postal services are compelled to work, limitations which require some sort of proportion between the postage charged and the cost of transport.

"Moreover," the General added, 'an essential condition of mail service is regularity under all conditions, in all weathers, and at all times of the year It is commonly assumed that if a method of transporting mails can be devised which is considerably more rapid, even if more expensive, than anything already in existence, there is an immediate public demand that it be used for the carriage of mails. There is, of course, some truth in this; but the experience of the post office indicates that the importance attached to the mere speed of mail communication can easily be exaggerated.

"It is probable, therefore that for a long time to come air mails must be limited to urgent correspondence on which a special fee is charged, and that such correspondence will only be a relatively small fraction of the total mail. The actual volume of air mail carried will depend on three factors, regularity, gain in time, and cost of conveyance; that is, exactly the same conditions as those on which the development of passenger and goods traffic will depend, and to which the technical development of commercial aviation must be directed."

During the last five years, farmers' organizations in the Union of South Africa have destroyed 66,184 baboons, 2112 eagles, 224642 jackals 18,380 lynxes and 54,963 wild cats.

WAGE PARLEYS INVOLVE NEXT WINTER'S FUEL

Coal Miners and Operators Decide to Hold Two Sessions a Day and Rush Job.

CONTRACT EXPIRES

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 25.—Canadian Press. — Wage parleys between Union representatives and the anthracite miners, upon which depend the uninterrupted supply of next winter's fuel, began to-day in earnest. Although in session since July 6 by the calendar, the negotiators have held daily sittings during only two weeks of the intervening period and those of only about four hours each. Spurred by the rapid approach of August when the present contract expires the joint committee of eight has begun holding two sessions a day.

The programme of increased activity was announced last night on the eve of the operators' denial of published statements that they were not making a sincere effort to avoid a break, that they were "stalling" in the present negotiations.

Although the miners were not a party to the charges they declined to come to the operators defence with a denial of them.

E. W. Parker, director of the anthracite bureau of information, says to-day: "Barring a strike this year, and the anthracite operators have sought to obtain a declaration from the mine workers that there shall be no suspension, there is no reason to fear a shortage of hard coal this winter."

WOMAN FIRST ENTRANT IN ST. LOUIS AIR RACE

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—(United Press).—Officials of the St. Louis Air Board in charge of the International Air Races of 1923, to be held at St. Louis Field, October 1, 2 and 3, have announced receipt of the first of more than 250 entries expected in the eight events. It was from Mrs. Bertha Dale Horchem, of Ransom, Kansas, who, in trial at St. Louis Field, July 5, reached an altitude of 16,300 feet, being the highest flight any woman has ever made."

Mrs. Horchem will compete in the "On to St. Louis Race," for which the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce is offering a valuable trophy in addition to the cash prize of $1,000.

In this race, which is open to civilians only, planes will be flown fro mall sections of the country to St. Louis, points being awarded on the speed, the distance, and the number of passengers carried, as well as the horsepower of the engines.

Last year, in the similar "On to Detroit Race" more than 100 pilots from all over the United States competed in this specific race. The winner of this Detroit Race was Walter H. Beach of Wichita, Kansas, who took first prize in a Laird "Swallow." It is a coincidence that Mrs. Horchem flies this same type of airplane.

A PUBLIC PROSECUTOR WAS CLUBBED TO DEATH

FRANKFORT, July 25. — Canadian Press. — The autopsy on the body of Dr. Haas, the public prosecutor, killed during the Communistic disturbances here on Sunday, seemed to show that the victim was literally clubbed, stabbed and stoned to death. The murder occurred in front of the prosecutor's residence. Afterwards the mob ransacked the dwelling. One placard carried by the demonstrators read "No justice without blood!" The police have arrested several suspects but so far have been unable to establish definitely the identity of the murderers, largely owing it is said to the fact that the scene of the outrages was not well policed at the time.

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE ON EUROPEAN EVENTS

LONDON July 25, United Press. —David Lloyd George, the former Premier of Great Britain, speaking at Bristol to-day, declared that the European outlook is enough to "cause the stoutest heart to despair. I wish that Premier Poincare would stop his Sunday speeches, such as those of the last two weeks," Lloyd George said.

"That is no day on which to unscrew the cylinders and diffuse a carefully distilled hatred that produces suspicion and anger amongst the nations."

In a speech last Sunday Poincare attacked Lloyd George.

LOW RETURN FOR THE FARMERS WINS SEATS

"Ninety-Cent Wheat and Six-Cent Hogs" Alarm the Farmers in Minnesota—Could Block the Programme

WASHINGTON, July 25. — "Ninety-cent wheat and six cent hogs." Those two factors in the opinion of farm bloc circles here, are responsible for the election of Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Labor candidate, to fill the senatorial seat of Knute Nelson over Governor Preus, of Minnesota.

JOHNSON.

The effect of Johnson's election, giving Minnesota two Farmer-Labor senators, will be to make doubly secure the grip of the farm bloc in the Senate on the balance of power in the organization of that body when Congress reconvenes on December 3rd.

The senatorial line-up to-day consists, theoretically, of 51 Republicans, 42 Democrats and two Farmer Labor Senators. There is one vacancy, due to the death, July 13, of Dillingham of Vermont. Conceding a Republican will succeed Dilingham, the line-up is 52, 42, two.

Of the 52 Republicans, however, at least 10 and possibly 11, will follow farm bloc leadership and programmes whenever farm bloc consideration clashes with the ideas of G.O.P. organization leaders.

COULD BLOCK PROGRAM.

The two Farmer-Labor party senators also will work hand in hand with the farm bloc group.

For purposes of blocking a stand-pat conservatism machine organization and control of the Senate, therefore, the line-up would be Republicans, 42; Farm-Bloc, FarmerLabor, Democratic-Coalition, 54.

The election of Johnson, farm bloc supporters contend, is but another indication of the way the political pendulum is swinging throughout the agricultural states.

Unless it is heeded by Republican leaders, they assert, and measures of relief enacted by the coming Congress, the reaction against the party in power may be no less decisive in 1924 than it was in 1920, when the Republicans piled up 7,000,000 majority.

MUST CONVINCE FARMER.

"It will take more than a Republican president driving a tractor binder across a Nebraska wheat field to make the farmer satisfied to get 90 cents a bushel for wheat which cost him $1.25 to grow," one member says.

"It will take more than oratory to explain why he gets only six cents a pound for his hogs when city folks are paying 35 cents a pound for ham. Maybe the men who are elected will not be able to solve the problem any better than those now in, but until some solution is found you may bet the farm voters are going to swat every adminisration head that sticks up out of the woodpile."

PRETTY DANCER IRENE CASTLE GETS DIVORCE

Her Husband, Robert E. Treman, Pleaded in Vain For Return to Nuptial Conditions.

MARRIED IN 1919

PARIS, July 25. — His pleading on the sunny sands of Deauville having failed, the Paris Court granted a divorce to Irene Castle from Robert Elias Treman. According to Dudley Field Malone, counsel for the dancer, it was a case of incompatability of temperament. It has been very apparent, however, that Mr. Treman has been trying, at least recently, to be as compatible as possible.

Several weeks ago, when divorce proceedings were begun by Mrs. Treman, he came to Paris and after several meetings the pair went to Deauville together, where Treman spent his time seeking to persuade his wife to change her mind. To-day's verdict indicates that he did not succeed. Mrs. Treman is still at Deauville, while Mr. Treman is reported to have gone back to New York.

Persistent rumours that Irene Castle Treman was seeking to divorce her husband had come during the past two months from Paris, where, it was said, Mrs. Treman had gone to establish a legal residence. In the latter part of June, Mr. Treman went to France, and recent reports that the couple were together in Deauville gave credence to a belief that a reconciliation had been effected.

Robert Elias Treman, the former Mrs. Castle has now divorced, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Treman of Ithaca, N.Y., socially and financially prominent. He is a director of the Treman-King Company, manufacturers of automobile accessories and hardware. He graduated from Cornell University in 1909, and during the war served as a captain in the A.E.F.. He is 34 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Treman were married in the Little Church Around the Corner in New York City, on 4th May, 1919. It had been reported that they had been married previously, a short time after the death of Vernon Castle, the dancer's first husband, with whom she appeared for years on the stage, and who was killed in an airplane accident in Fort Worth, Texas, while acting as an instructor during the war. Both Mr. and Mrs. Treman steadfastly have denied that there was any truth in the report.

Mrs. Treman made her stage debut in New Rochelle at the age of five. Later she studied dancing in Mexico and abroad, and with Vernon Castle introduced many new steps into this country. She was one of the first Americans to bob her hair, and was responsible for setting many styles in dress among American women.

Mr. and Mrs. David Herbert Hostetter, Jr., were married at Kittery, Me., on 31st October, 1912, after what was said at the time to have been a whirlwind courtship of two weeks. Mr. Hostetter was a junior at Princeton University. He met Miss Margaret Brown, daughter of the late Judge William Brown, of Jacksonville, Ill., in New York, and the elopement followed.

Mr. Hostetter is the son of D. Herbert Hostetter, of Pittsburgh, head of the Hostetter Company. After his marriage young Hostetter entered the business, and became a director of the firm, as well as president and director of the Metal Stamping Company.

Geranium Carries A Hundred Bunches Bulbs and Blossoms

Mrs. Reginald T. Hounsell, 232 Edinburgh street, this city, is pardonably proud of a geranium plant, bearing no less than 100 bunches of buds and blossoms. It is a double pink variety, and presents a truly beautiful picture of nature's own inimitable coloring. While the geranium is noted for its prolific blooming propensities, there is no doubt that the remarkable achievement by this particular plant is in no small measure due to the skillful cultition of Mrs. Hounsell, who is an ardent and successful floriculturist.

Incidentally it may be interesting to note that the geranium is a genus of exogenous plants, of which there are at least 500 known species. One North American species, with flowers of considerable beauty, is a valuable medical plant. Its root is extremely astringent, and abounds in tannin, and is used for gargles, and as a medicine in various diseases.

MADE LONG TRIP FROM CALIFORNIA

Best Piece of Road in Canada Was Near Peterboro

Travelling from Los Angeles to Peterborugh by a devious route in 18 days with California air in the tires is the record of a car seen here to-day. Canadian highways did not impress the vistiros very well, and the sytem of oiling the streets was criticized by the owner of this car. In the States, it appears, fine gravel is spread over the street after oiling, and this is rolled, the street being kept closed until the work is finished.

The best stretch of road this party encountered in Canada is from Millbrook to Peterboro.

Yucatan has fallen for America's great national game. It's sending a physical instructor to the United States to study baseball.

POLICE STILL WITHOUT CLUE TO THE THUGS

Attorney-General Nickle is Taking an Active Part in Search for the Bank Robbers.

AT CLEARING HOUSE

TORONTO, July 25 (Canadian Press). — Early this afternoon the Toronto and Provincial Police authorities were still without any real clues as to the whereabouts of the six bandits who held up a number of Toronto bank messengers yesterday morning, shot three of them, and made their getaway with a sum of money variously stated at between $84,000 and $130,000.

But while delay in notifying outside chiefs of police of the robbery aided the bandits in their escape, it is believed that they are still in Ontario, and a drag net is being spread throughout the Province by the Provincial and Federal agents to enmesh the robbers, while further plans in the hunt for the gunmen were perfected at a special meeting of the Toronto Police Commissioners early to-day.

Attorney-General Nickle is also taking an active part in the search for the bandits, and to-day conferred with Major-General Victor Williams Commissioner of the Ontario Police, with a view to enlarging on the work of the Provincial Police in the case, and to ensure that all points of entrance into the United States are brought under the watchful eye of the law.

Numerous reports have poured in to the authorities from many points in Ontario of "rough looking men" having been seen in "speeding motor cars," but none has given the police any assistance in apprehending the bandits.

There is a report from Fort Erie, Ontario, to-day that a skeleton of a large tourning car has been found lying on the Garrison Road, and that the local police believe it to be the ruins of the large touring automobile in which the bandits made their escape from Toronto.

The remains of the car were still smouldering early to-day, it was said, and the Buffalo and Fort Erie police are making investigations.

The theory in consequence is advanced that the bandits set fire to the car and escaped across the river to the American side.

Men Will Recover.

The latest reports from the hospitals where the bank messengers, James Harris, Standard Bank, W. S. Duck, Union Bank, and David Campbell, Sterling Bank, who were shot and seriously wounded by the bandits, indicate that they will recover.

The shooting of the bank messengers yesterday morning at Jordan and Melinda Streets drew curious crowds to the same corner to-day.

All of the bank messengers came in cars to-day with the exception of the Sterling and another bank messengers, and carried their valuables away, going up Yonge Street instead of along Melinda Street.

The ordinary one-man hand bag was replaced to-day by the big bag which takes two men to carry it. Indeed, the Bank of Commerce and one or two of the other banks replaced these one-man bags with big galvanised iron boxes, about three feet long and nearly two feet wide, and of the same depth. These were brought in cars and carried up to the Clearing House room. Any bandits would have had a fine time getting away with one of these.

Every bank was represented to-day by five or six men. Two men have usually accompanied the messenger, but this morning there were three or four escorts to each group of messengers.

Most of the messengers who were present yesterday were on the job again to-day.

There were two extra policemen on duty at the Clearing House, and both police and extra escorts were heavily armed.

"Closing the Door, Etc."

The Canadian Bankers' Association is considering offering a reward for the capture of the bandits who robbed the messengers yesterday. The amount has not been decided upon.

MOVEMENT TO STOP BATHING ON SUNDAYS

Is Indicative of Efforts by Certain Classes to Eliminate People's Personal Liberty.

PUBLIC OPINION

The statement issued by Attorney General W. F. Nickle regarding Sunday bathing was regarded lightly by various civic officials and citizens who expressed their opinions regarding it to-day.

There has been for some time past in London, Ontario, a movement to have the public bath closed to the public on Sundays, and so heated has the issue become that it is now a political controversy in that city. Local authorities are confident, however, that no such movement is under way here, and it is felt that Sunday bathers may enjoy themselves without fear of arrest.

When asked for his opinion on the matter, the attorney-general merely quoted the federal law, which was enacted before confederation: "It is not lawful for any person, on Sunday, to bathe in any exposed situation in any water within the limits of any incorporated town, or within view of any place of public worship or private residence."

One man spoken to to-day, pointed out that there are unrepealed laws on the statute books which provide for punishment by hanging for other crimes than murder. The world has grown out of these, he said, and modern reformers must keep pace with the change in the spirit of the people.

Mr. J. H. Burnham characterized the attempt to stop Sunday bathing as "intolerable interference" by the reformers. "When they try to stop people washing on Sunday," he said, "the people will get up and slap their faces."

Protection Needed.

Protection is needed to prevent accidents, several said, and the only way this protection is to be given is at central spots where all bathers can be guarded. If the bathing beaches are closed, people will go elsewhere, into more dangerous water perhaps, and certainly out of reach of life saving apparatus.

Alderman J. W. Meyers said the reformers are trying to line people up and drive them through the pearly gates with burly policemen behind them. "They can't do it," he asserted.

"Why shouldn't people bathe on Sunday if they conduct themselves decorously? Some people who go in their cars to Chemong and other places to swim on Sunday are the very ones who would stop bathing at the city beaches."

Man on the Street.

A citizen who can be taken as representative of the "man on the street," having been approached at the corner of Hunter and George streets without a query as to his name or an intimation of the use to which his opinion would be put, declared that the movement against Sunday bathing is indicative of the efforts of certain classes to remove personal liberty from the people of the country. "That is what breeds reds," he said.

A REAL SKY FLIVVER IS BORN IN ENGLAND

LONDON, (United Press.) — Flying machines for the price of a cheap automobile will be available soon, according to Sir Frederick Brancker, Director of Civil Axiation

The English Air Ministry has built one model of the flivver flyer at its works. Because of its delicate appearance and its swift flight it has been officially named the "Wren."

Unless it proves to be too good, models of the machine will become available to the public.

The Air Ministry however retains the right to restrict the use of the new plane to war purposes if it seems desirable.

The "Wren" travels at a speed of 53 miles an hour and will fly for nearly two hours on a gallon of gas. It is officially described as a motor propelled glider.

For Equality

Maude Royden, president of the Church Militant, a society of the Episcopal Church, is fighting refusal of the House of Laity to drop the word "obey" from the marriage ceremony. Miss Royden, visiting in Paris, says women want the same obligations to hold for both man and woman.

LOCAL OFFICE WILL EXHIBIT

Post Office Will Extend Its Policy of Creating Interest.

The Post Office Department will endeavour through displays at the Exhibition here on September 12 to 15 to bring home to the public the various mailing facilities and services offered by the Post Office, also the correct manner in which to address letters and pack parcels, Postmaster John Corkery said to-day. Since all use the mails to some extent, and there fore feel considerable interest in the postal service as something that touches their own affairs closely, the very general appeal and usefulness of such an exhibition from an educational standpoint will be readily appreciated.

This publicity section will be prepared to give information of any description regarding the handling of mail matter.

Up-to-date postal equipment will be displayed, and, it is understood that arrangements may be made to demontsrate one of the latest pieces of machinery known as a postal meter machine, by which an imprint is made on the envelope making it unnecessray to use a postage stamp. These machines are for the convenience of large business firms.

Exhibits will be shown illustrating the necessity for co-operation on the part of the mailing public with the post office in connection with the correct manner of addressing letters and the proper way to pack parcels as compared with improper methods which cause so much trouble to the postal authorities and dissatisfaction to the public. The public will also be shown why some pieces of mail matter are sometimes delayed in delivery. Arrangements are being made to hold illustrated postal talks dealing with matters of interest to everyone who uses the mails.

ADMIT A COMPLETE VICTORY FOR TURKS

LONDON, July 25.—(Special).—The outstanding note of all comment in this mornings papers on the signing of the near East Peace Treaty at Lausanne yesterady is a frank admission of Turkey's complete diplomatic victory over the Allies. The new treaty, nevertheless, is regarded by some commenters as a good one. "The Times," for instance, describes the document as a model of generosity and justice, while the "Daily Telegraph," which takes a gloomy view, expresses the opinion that if the treaty of Sevres had been ratified, the set-settlement created thereby would very soon have been shattered.

NO JOY FOR PEACE.

ATHENS, July 25.—There was no joy in Greece over the signing of the Lausanne Treaty which brought to an end the Greco-Turkish War. Humilation of the disastrous defeat of Greek arms was recalled and national shame at the loss of Thrace stirred up by the news from Lausanne.

Greece has been warring more or less constantly for eleven years.

WOULD CHANGE THE LOCATION OF PULMOTOR

Feeling in Some Quarters That the Apparatus Should Be Kept at the Police Station.

SAVING OF TIME

The fact that most calls in cases of drowning are received at the Police Station has caused a feeling in some circles that the Pulmotor and other life-saving apparatus should be kept there instead of at the Fire Hall as at present. This change has been pending for some time, and may soon be put into effect according to information reaching the Examiner from sources considered authoratitive. It is pointed out as a strong recommendation for the propsed plan that every second is precious in a case of near drowning, the pulmotor being valuable only when it is promptly on the scene and the delay in relaying the call from the Police Station to the fire hall might well prove fatal.

The suggestion to change the location of the Pulmotor and the placing of life-saving apparatus where it would be most easily accessible does not arise out of any specific case of delay, but is a movement to provide for future contingencies.

Reasons Given.

Several reasons are given in favor of the change. One piece of fire-fighting aparatus is put out of commission every time a crew to man the Pulmotor is summoned, and its fire-fighting strength considerably diminished by the absence of the three men necessary to handle the Pulmotor. In the event of the absence of the Fire Chief's car which is used daily in the Chief's busines of inspecting the buildings and alarm boxes, it would be necessary to turn out the big motor truck to carry the Pulmotor.

Failing a force of trained men, entirely dependent of the fire department, it is believd by the proponents of the change that the Pulmotor would be most strategically situated at the Police Station, where the grappling irons are now kept.

Valuable Time Lost.

Medical men are of the opinion that too much valuable time is often lost in sending for the Pulmotor instead of applying the well-known prone method of saving drowning victims. The usefulness of the Pulmotor as a means of saving life has been the subject of considerable doubt in recent years and some have gone so far as to predict that the time will come when Pulmotors will be a thing of the past.

PETERBORO NOT ONLY CITY TO SHOW DROP BUILDING ACTIVITIES

Permits In June -In 46 Cities Show Drop Of Nearly Two Million — Half Year Total Shows Advance Over 1922 Due To Activity Earlier In Year.

That Peterboro is no worse off than many other towns and cities in Canada from a building standpoint, is borne out by the following figures which appeared in the Financial Post.

"There was a general falling off in building permits issued throughout the Dominion in June. The total for 46 cities shows $12,584,229, as compared with $14,572,026. The decline is heavier in the east, but more general in the west. Of 29 eastern cities 9 show increases and the rest losses. Of 17 western cities only one, New Westminster, showed an increase. London led the way in increases with an advance just short of a quarter million.

The half year, however, shows up much better due to the spurt which building took just after the turn of the year. At that time a good margin of increase was piled up and that margin is now standing the 1923 record in good stead. The increase for the Dominion for the first half of 1923 was $3,874,826, the totals being, 1923, $65,050,238; 1922, $61,175,432.

Eastern cities show a general increase over 1922, while in the west the opposite is the position. Of 29 eastern cities, 12 show increases and the balance losses. All the Maritime cities are in the loss column. To Montreal is due the good eastern showing, its increase being larger than that of the rest of the east together. In fact leaving Montreal out, the eastern cities remaining would show a loss.

Five western cities show an advance over the previous year and the other 12 show declines."

WAY TO ACT IN THUNDERSTORMS

Director of Observatory Gives Explanation of Lightning's Action.

MILTON Mass. July 25 (Associated Press).—Get under cover if possible when a thunder storm threatens. If this is not practicable lie down. That is the advice which Alexander G. McAdie director of the Blue Hill Observatory in this town and professor of meteorology at Harvard University gives in an explanation of the action of lightning prepared for The Associated Press. He gives what he describes as "ten good rules to help people take care of themselves."

"In a battle" says Professor McAdie "a hundred bullets are fired for each soldier killed. It is something like this with lightning flashes. There are a hundred discharges for every bolt of lightning that hits a person. Fortunately too of every hundred streaks of lightning about ninety are from cloud to cloud or spill-over discharges of moderate electrical energy and are mostly horizontal doing no damage whatever.

"About ten flashes in a hundred come vertically, that is down to earth in a straight line. Some flashes come sideways and seem to be crooked although there are really no flashes zigzagging like the teeth of a saw as artists generally depict lightning.

"The intense straight flashes are the ones to be feared and it is a silly person who stands out in the open when such flashes are seen. He invites trouble but the invitation is not always accepted.

"At this time of the year thunderstorms are frequent and there are a comparatively large number of fatal accidents. One reads in the press despatches that four men are walking along a New Jersey beach during a thunderstorm. There is a flash of lightning one man is killed outright one severely burned and the others stunned.

"Now there is no protection for a case like this unless one could carry around with him a metallic cover well grounded. The first rule is then: Do not stay out on a beach or in a field when dark heavy clouds are overhead or coming slowly from the west or south. Get under cover if possible. If this is not practicable lie down. Don't remain standing.

"Second: Do not stand under a tree with thick foliage. You are forming a part of the line of discharge since the body more particularly the skin if moist is a better conductor than the trunk of a tree. More people are killed by lightning in this way than probably any other.

"Third: Don't stand in the doorway of a barn or at a window in proximity to a chimney. There are currents of air or winds and the lightning follows to some extent any draft or column of rising air especially warm air.

"Fourth: Don't laugh at any one's nervousness during a severe thunder storm. There is a good reason to be nervous. Even if one is in a building that is struck the damage is in ninety-eight cases out of a hundred confined to ripping out plaster or knocking off slates and tearing off any projecting timbers. But there are times when the storm clouds descend to earth and amid darkness the flashes are heavy and numerous. At such times there is danger. It is dangerous to be near a chimney or a tree or a flagpole or a metal clothes-line.

"Fifth: Stock should not be tied near a wire fence.

"Sixth: There is no particular sense in going to bed. Standing on glass or rubber or any good insulator a woolen blanket for example will give one a little more security and a great deal more confidence. The probability of a person in an ordinary residence building being struck is very slight.

"Seventh: If you are near a person who has been struck make every effort to resuscitate him. Only rarely does lightning kill outright. Mostly people are stunned and all that is needed is a little artificial respiration to restore them to consciousness. Of course get a doctor quick.

"Eighth: If you are in a trolley car and a flash comes in and burns the fuses with a roar and a blinding flash sit still. The danger is over and while you may be frightened you are not likely to be hurt.

"Ninth: If you have a radio better cut it out during a thunder storm. The antennae should be grounded direct and all wires as far as possible kept outside.

"Tenth: If your house is provided with good lightning rods you need not have much fear. Moreover dwelling houses in city blocks are practically safe."

Mine and Metal Men to Meet in Canada.

NEW YORK, July 25 (United Press) —Mining engineers from this and other countries will make their summer pilgrimage next month to the heart of Canada's mineral riches. The 128th meeting of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, it is announced, will be held August 20 to 31 in Ontario and Quebec.

With the co-operation of the Ministers of Mines of these two provinces and of the members of the Canadian and American Institutes of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, the vast mineral wealth of this region will be placed on exhibition. The program includes visits to leading mines and technical sessions at which prominent engineers from many sections of the country will describe the developing problems of mining and metallurgy.

Petroleum and gas will be among the principal general subjects of the technical sessions, which are to be held in Montreal. The geology of Santa Elena oil fields, Ecuador, will be discussed by Joseph H. Sinclair of New York and Prof. Charles P. Berkey of Columbia University. Other papers will be presented by A. F. Meston of New York and Oliver U. Bradley of Muskogee, Ikla.

At the iron and steel sessions, papers will be presented by H. H. Lester of the Watertown Arsenal; C. Baldwin Sawyer, Cleland, O.; Prof. Richard S. McCaffery and Prof. Joseph F. Oesterle, University of Wisconsin; C. E. MacQuigg, Alexander L. Field and Aricel St. John, New York; H. A. Schwartz, H. R. Payne, and A. F. Gorton, Cleveland, and Ll N. Brown, Detroit.

MAY FACE A DEFICI

MANILA, July 25 (Associated Press) —A general retrenchment policy must be adopted in order to avoid a deficit in the Philippine government finances this year, according to a recent statement by Governor General Wood. He declared that a number of projects which the last legislature authorized must be held in abeyance until the government is in better financial condition.

By suspending a number of the projects authorized by the legislature, such as expenditures in connection with the extension of the Manila Railroad and the building of hospitals, the governor general explained that the government will be well within its revenue receipts at the close of the year.

ANNEXATION OF ARCTIC ISLAND URGED IN HOUSE

British Government Refuses To Commit Itself On Question of Disputed Territory.

OTHER CLAIMS.

LONDON, July 25. — (Canadian Press).—As a cooling respite from heated Commons debate on reparations, disarmament and such subsubjects of international moment, British officialdom has been occasion ally occupied during the unusually torrid summer hearing Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the Canadian explorer, urge British annexation of Wrangell Island, the bit of controversial land in the North Polar Seas, to which Great Britain, the United States and Russia have made claims at different times during the last century.

There is as yet no indication that Stefansson is likely to succeed in his objective. The Foreign Office is extremely reticent in discussion of possible annexation, its semi-official statement being limited to the declaration that British Government had not formulated a policy regarding the plan. Russian officials, however, are not so backward; they assert with great positiveness that Wrangell Island. is theirs, and that the Soviet is well prepared to protect its land from British territorial ambitions.

REMOVE A MEMBER HYDRO COMMISSION

Order-in-Council Releases J. G. Ramsden From His Position.

TORONTO, July 25 (Canadian Press). — Ontario Cabinet passed an Order-in-Council yesterday removing Mr. J. G. Ramsden from his position as member of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. He was appointed by the Drury Government a few months ago.

Premier Ferguson wrote Mr. Ramsden on 18th July, pointing out that it was the intention of the Government to re-organise the Hydro Commission in order to secure closer co-operation with those directly interested in its enterprise, and requesting his resignation in order that plans might be expedited.

Mr. Ramsdn took strong objection to the Premier's request, going so far as to state that "it may be in your interest, but it is not in the interest of the Hydro or the Province that I should resign."

It was following the receipt of that letter that the Order-in-Council was passed.

COLLAPSED FROM THE SEVERE HEAT

Omemee Man Fell while At Work On A Bungalow.

OMEMEE, July 25. — The intense heat of Saturday caused Mr. Thomas Henderson to suffer a collapse. Mr. Henderson, who is erecting an up-to-date little bungalow on King Street West, had four men working on the roof, to whom he was handing up lumber, when suddenly the attack came on, causing him to fall a few feet to the ground. In falling, Mr. Henderson struck a scantling. It was several minutes later, when the men discovered him lying in an unconscious condition in the cellar of the building.

Medical aid was immediately summoned, and the injured man was moved to the home of his cousin, Miss Jewett. A trained nurse is in attendance, and an early recovery is looked for.

Gigantic Swordfish Attacked Fishermen

MONTAUK, N.Y., July 25. —(Canadian Press) — A gigantic swordfish, weighing nearly half a ton, this afternoon caused a panic in Montauk Bay, when, maddened by a lance thrust it turned on its attackers and demolished a fishing boat by cutting most of the bottom away, throwing the crew into the water. Ignoring the struggling men, the monster charged other boats in the vicinity and sent them scampering to all parts of bay. Finally, a fisherman put out in a power trawler and succeeded in killing the fish after ten minutes of shooting.

POLICE STILL SEEK BANDITS

Toronto Bank Messenger Robbers Have Made A Clean Get Away — Police Baffled.

TORONTO, July 25.—(Canadian Press.)—The Ontario wide resources of the Provincial Police Department is being employed in an attempt to capture the hold-up men who yesterday perpetrated robbery of the Toronto bank messengers. As well as in the matter of the unknown shelter to which they have had recourse, however, the desperadoes are interesting to the Provincial authorities in the matter of their source and origin. Have latent local forces been brewing a crime of magnitude or have thugs for whom other fields have been rendered unhealthy suddenly pounced upon the Toronto territory. This is the problem to which those in charge of the case are giving serious consideration.

The weight of the evidence seems to be in favor of the exploit being the work of a foreign gang and in this connection the thugs who, during the past two years, have operated in Mantioba and Saskatchewan come under strong suspicion by the authorities. These desperadoes have robberies, similarly planned and featured by similar indiscriminate shooting to their credit at upwards of a dozen points in the West. One reason for their transferring their operation to Ontario would be the prospect of a larger loot, another and one perhaps more potent, would be the steps which have been taken by the Royal Northwest Mounted Police to cope with them on the prairie. The mounted men have arranged a system of drastic action, the latter including the use of mobile machine gun units to combat the thugs' attacks. The robbers' lives, had they persisted in the face of these preparations, would have been worth but little in an encounter with the police.

What may turn out to have an important bearing on yesterday's hold-up is a find made late last night by Fred Brady, 167 St. Helens avenue. Brady was around the scene of the hold-up when he picked up two pieces of paper, each apparently off a memo pad of a Boston business house and bearing the name of A. Broadwayman. The two slips give an auto route from Lowell, Mass. Mr. Brady will turn them over this morning to the police authorities.

A Daily Routine.

No precautions were ngelected, according to the statements of the bankers interested in yesterday's arrangements for the taking of the banks' deliveries of cash and cheques to the Clearing House. In fact, the bankers point out that there was in progress when the sensational hold-up of the messengers took place, the routine transaction of daily occurrence, which only comes to the notice of the general public when it becomes the basis of an occurrence so outstanding as yesterday's.

Huge sums are involved in the daily Clearing House business of the banks. At the time of yesterday's robbery, the bank messengers and their guards were returning from the Clearing House to their offices.

Toronto Clearing House, situated at the corner of Wellington and Yonge Streets, acts as the bankers' bank. Each bank is represented, and after parcels have been delivered by the messengers, they receive in return their own notes, cheques, and other bills of exchange from other banks. Differences then remaining are made up in cash. If it were not for this general means of exchange, cheques drawn on a certain bank could only be cashed at that bank. Consequently large sums of money are daily being moved from bank to Clearing House and from Clearing House to bank. Armed messengers receive the money and convey it to automobiles or deliver it on foot.

Bank managers explained yesterday that it was essential that the robbery had been very carefully thought out. The exact time of the arrival of the messengers from the Clearing House was known, and the order in which this would come. It was even freely suggested that the hold-up men at some time had been connected with a bank.

Fortunately the amount of the clearing yesterday was exceptionally light, many of the head offices which usually sent out two bags only requiring one.

WILL PROVIDE EMPIRE WIDE RADIO SERVICE

Complete Wireless Service Has Been Arranged Between Marconi Company And British Government.

POSTAL REPORTS

LONDON, July 25. — (Canadian Press Cable.)— When introducing the post office estimates in the house of commons yesterday, Sir Laming Worthington Evans, Postmaster General, stated that the principal terms of the agreement with the Marconi Company for an Empire wireless service were as follows:

The Marconi company at the outset will provide two stations and the government one apart from the existing sttaions at Leafield and Carnarvon. The revenue from the stations will be pooled and divided between the company and the government proportionately. Effective power stations will be contributed by each. Government operators will work the whole service and a proportionate part of the cost will be charged against the company. The rates, when possible, will be lower than cable rates.

Sir Laming Worthington-Evans reported that the post office commercial results for 1922-23 had turned out better than was expected. The actual surplus on the year was £5,500,000. The estimated expenditure for the current year, he added, showed a reduction of about £3,000,000 compared with 1922-23, chiefly owing to a saving of £2,500,000 on salaries and wages due mainly to the automatic reduction of the cost of living.

During 1922-23, ninety seven thousand new subscribers and 165,000 new stations were added to the telephone system representing a net increase of 51,000 subscribers and 74,000 stations.

TWO FOUND DEAD IN THEIR ROOMS

Buffalo Woman Registered Hotel On Gerrard Street, Toronto.

TORONTO, July 25 (Canadian Press). — A woman who had registered as Mrs. Smith, Buffalo, was found dead in her room last night in a hotel on Gerrard Street.

There were signs of a struggle, and after investigation, Coroner Graham decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Her death is attributed to heart failure.

She had entered the hotel last Sunday morning, and had kept within her room practically all the time. No papers were found upon her which could establish more complete identification. All the money found on her person was $1.20.

Gus. Nauman, a resident of Timmins, Ontario, died yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the room he occupied on Emerson Avenue.

His body was removed to the morgue pending shipment to Northern Ontario. No inquest was considered necessary.

"OPERA" OR "ONIONS."

LONDON, July 25.—(Associated Press).—Shall it be "Opera" or "Onions" is the question agitating holders of business premises in Covent Garden Market. Business has grown to such an extent of late that dealers allege the Opera House, which is admittedly old and decaying, should be demolished and the site utilized for an extension of the congested market.

While people complain they cannot get to the opera with their motor cars because the market wagons block the way, fruit and vegetable merchants assert that a food market is more important to the general public than "Faust" or "Tannhauser."

VOICE OF DOMINIONS SHOULD BE HEEDED

MELBOURNE, Australia, July 25.—(Canadian Press Cable). — S. M. Bruce, prime minister of the Australian Commonwealth, when explaining yesterday in the house of representatives the government's policy in regard to the imperial conference which opens in London in October, said it was useless to declare that Australia was not concerned in British wars overseas. The imperial government's "unsatisfatcory action towards Turkey" last year showed the necessity for keeping the Dominions fully informed regarding the British foreign policy before decisions are reached. Australia's decision then not to support Great Britain probably prevented war.

The question of allowing the Dominions to make treaties on their own behalf with foreign nations must be considered, declared Premier Bruce. Australia, he added, was prepared to contribute towards an Empire naval unit, but would not consent to depend entirely on a great central naval unit for Empire defence.

OHIO FARMERS AVAIL THEMSELVES OF HELP FROM FARM BUREAUS

F. C. McRea of Norwood Accompanied Party Of Ontario District Representatives In Trip Through The State Last Week.

In quest of practical ideas that might be valuable to the farmers of this province a party of county representatives of the Ontario Department of Agriculture made a trip through Ohio, for the special purpose of enquiring into and observing the oerations of the Farm Bureaus.

Mr. R. S. Duncan, superintendent of Agricultural Representatives, was in charge of the deputation, which was composed of J. R. Green, representative in Oxford county, J. A. Carl of Peel County, R. M. Tipper of Ontario county, and F. C. McRea of Peterboro county. They entered the State at Toledo, motored to Columbus, the capital, where they visited the University and the Bureau headquarters, and came out by way of Buffalo.

Mr. McRea told the Examiner, the tour was a revelation in many respects and an inspiration that should give definite impetus to some of the efforts and work of the Ontario Department's representatives throughout the entire province. The explorers were given every opportunity and facility of investigating the scope and accomplishments of the Farm Bureaus; and all the details of the functioning of this great enterprise in its any departments were afforded the visitors.

One of Mr. McRea's deepest impressions was the eagerness of the farmers of Ohio to avail themselves of the advantages of their bureaus. They had adopted suggestions and directions in the spirit of full confidence in the instructions and advice that was given to them; and the material improvements to their farms demonstrated the sincerity of their co-operation and the substantial benefits of the new methods they had carried out.

Extension Work

Investigation of the extension work of the Bureaus was the general purpose of the trip, and by extension work is meant the means by which the latest knowledge pertaining to agriculture in all its phases is laid before the farmers and put into actual effect. Presumably this is one of the problems confronting the county or district representatives of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and the inference might be drawn from Mr. McRea's summary of his observations that the Ohio farmers are comparatively more receptive and responsive than their Ontario neighbors to the efforts that are made in their behalf.

The unit or basis of organizatiin in the Farm Bureaus is the township. A representative of each township is appointed to the County executive, which in turn is reresented on the State Board of directors, and over all is the Federal organization co-ordinating the interests of the States.

Membership in the town bureau costs the farmer ten dollars a year, entitling him to all the benefits of the entire organization. The agricultural college of the State University occupies an analogous position in the Bureau scheme to the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph in its relation to the farmers of this province through the medium of the district representatives.

An Illustration

Mr. McRea said he could only illustrate in a brief interview, how the extension work was carried on. In Ohio, the county agent is the counterpart of the District Representative under the Ontario provincial system. The agent in a certain locality would go to a farmer, for example, and try to persuade him to have his flock of hens culled, that is to eliminate the light layers. If the farmer consented, the agent proceeded with that step and would probably next suggest that the old hen house on the farm, be replaced by a standard poultry house. Continuing up the scale of improvement would come next the question of rations.

The standard poultry house has been designed at the Agricultural College, whose experts had also determined by experiment the poultry ration that was recommended to the farmers through the county agents. The keeping of a cost account of the flock for a year was another development urged upon the farmers, and at a certain time in the year farmers in that township would assemble at some central place and motor to ten or twelve farms for what might be called a Poultry Day. They examined the accomplishments of the farmers who were visited, saw the results of their progress, and the value of the Bureau and its extension work was thereby demonstrated to

Keenly Interested

When the Ontario deputation made the rounds of many farms with different agents, they were struck by the interest exhibited by the farmers in what they had done. The visitors were cordially received by both the agents and farmers alike, and every-

SHAREHOLDERS HAVE APPROVED SALE OF RIGHTS

British South Africa Company Sanctioned Agreement Over -Government Of Rhodesia.

PREVENTS -LAWSUITS

LONDON, July 25.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The meeting of share holders of the British South Africa Company which for many years has held extensive property as well as administrative rights in Rhodesia under an imperial charter, yesterday unanimously sanctioned the agreement reached with Colonial Office as to handing over of the administrative facilities on the establishment of responsible government in Rhodesia on October first next.

Under the agreement the company gives up its claim to all the public works and buildings in Southern Rhodesia which formed the basis of prolonged negotiations including the celebrated commission under Lord Cave which assessed the value of these works and buildings at over £4,000,000. In Northern Rhodesia which comes under Imperial administration in April next, the company abandons its claim to deficits caused in the administration of the territory amounting to £100,000 yearly and also its claim to monopoly rights including the exclusive right to build railways and the exclusive right to land in Northern Rhodesia.

On the other hand the company receives from the Imperial government a cash payment of £3,375,000 on giving up the administration of Southern Rhodesia while its important mineral rights throughout South ern and Northern Rhodesia are explicity recognized by the Crown which also recognizes the company's title to four million acres of estates and ranches and two and one-half million acres of land in north-eastern Rhodesia and also a half interest in the proceds from the sale of land in northwestern Rhodesia for forty years.

The company will continue to be the dominating factor in the welfare of Rhodesia but will confine itself to its commercial activities.

DEVICE TO SAVE COAL.

CHICAGO, July 25.—(Associated Press)—The leaky radiator and the radiator that sounds like a strike in a boiler factory must go. The research committee of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers declares it has discovered means of saving thousands of tons of coal a year by preventing wastage of steam.

The committee has invented a stethoscope. It works like the one the doctors uses when he tests your lungs or your heart. The escape of steam in the radiator traps can be gauged the way the doctor finds out about a malfunctioning heart. The stethoscope is placed against the radiator trap and the operator listens to the music of the steam. Whether it murmurs, gurgles or pounds, the radiator trap doctor knows immediately what the matter is by using his stethoscope, it is claimed.

The committee in charge of the work was headed by Col. Gordon Strong of Chicago, assisted by professors and students of Lewis Institute, wheer the actual testing was done.

A New French Method For Flying At Night.

PARIS, July 25. —(Canadian Press.)—A French government airplane yesterday successfully completed a flight from the Saint Assises wireless station to Tours and return, a total of about 250 miles, steering only by wireless. An apparatus called the radio goniometer, enabled the pilot to make the journey with an error of only two per cent. in direction of the outward flight and with entire accuracy on the return.

The test was announced as satisfactorily showing the practicability of such a method for night flying.

A YOUNG CHILD KILLED BY CAR

Accident - near - Omemee Last Evening. — Peterboro Man In Charge Of Car.

LINDSAY, July 25. — (Canadian Press.—While driving cows on the Reaboro-Omemee road last night, Lorn McNiven, seven-year-old girl of Reaboro, was almost instantly killed when knocked down by a motor car driven by Robert Cotton of Peterborough. In attempting to avoid an accident Mr. Cotton, who was accompanied by his wife, swerved to the side of the road, the car being badly smashed on colliding with a tree.

Mr. Cotton was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shannon, of Peterborough. After the accident Mr. Cotton notified the doctors in Lindsay and the police. The latter investigated the circumstances and decided that Mr. Cotton was not to blame. He was driving the car at a moderate speed and when he approached the McNiven home the child was not on the road. Apparently the child, with a companion, was playing on the roadside and just as the car approached ran out in front of Mr. Cotton's car. He applied the brake and turned the car into the ditch in an effort to avoid striking the child.

Dr. Logan was summoned and at the request of the parents, directed that an inquest be held on Friday evening at Reaboro. The accident occurred about one mile south of Omemee. The victim was a daughter of Mr. Bruce McNiven.

LADY ASTOR'S BILL PASSED

LONDOON, July 25. Canadian Press. The House of Lords yesterday passed without amendment the third reading of Lady Astor's bill prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors to any persons under 18 years of age. The measure which has already passed the Commons, now becomes law, provided the assent of the Crown is given.

PEACE TREATY WAS ACCEPTED BY THE TURKS

Signing of Lausanne Treaty Yesterday Was The Result Of Effort To Bring About Peace.

SEVEN NATIONS

LAUSANNE, July 25—(Canadian Press).— The Treaty of Lausanne re-establishing peace in the Near East, now bears the signatures of Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Greece. Rumania and Turkey.

Simple ceremonies, marking the termination of negotiations which have extended over any months, were carried out in the main hall of Lausanne University yesterday afternoon, and when the representatives of the various nations, led by Ismet Pasha, had affixed their signatures, President Scheurer of the Swiss Confederation, declared the session adjourned, with the admonition "Let the closing thought be a benediction."

An impressive demonstration, proclaiming the signing of peace, occurred in Lausanne last night. The streets were crowded with rejoicing multitudes, many coming in from the country districts to take part. The tower and spire of the cathedral, which dominates the city, were aglow with electric designs, visible for miles on both sides of the lake, while searchlights played across from the surrounding hills.

The British delegation left for home last night; the others will go to-day, leaving only the United States representatives and the Turks, who are still engaged in negotiations over the Turco-American Treaty.

ENCOURAGING SWIMMERS.

In several Ontario cities where there are municipal swimming pools arrangements are being made for a series of swimming meets as an encouragement to swimmers of both sexes.

Brantford, for example, is planning several such competitions, and Mayor Billo has donated a cup for the fastest swimmer in the Telephone City.

Similar meets in Peterborough would do much to create interest in this most useful and most enjoyable art, and there does not seem any logical reason why, with the number of good swimmers there are in this city, a most attractive programme could not be arranged.

A feasible plan would be for the Inverlea Park and Lake street beaches to hold elimination meets to select their best performers in the various classes and then have the winners meet in the final competition, selecting the first and second in each event, and thus making possible a field of four in each of the final contests.

The programme might, in addition to speed swimming, include diving events, with a few comedy events, such as walking the greasy pole and catching a live duck, to add variety.

A yearly meet along such lines would be a splendid incentive to swimmers to perfect themselves, and at the same time provide an event of general interest for the citizens.

NOT ALL MILK AND HONEY.

Thoughtless people who are inclined to envy public men for the high positions they have reached and the apparently large financial return for their services, usually overlook the fact that most of the men in public life could better themselves financially if they stayed out of politics.

The majority of them have to make sacrifices when they answer the call to serve their fellow-citizens.

The Kingston Standard, for example, calls attention to the case of W. F. Nickle, K.C., who was only persuaded to accept a position in the new Cabinet by strong pleas that Ontario needed his talent and ability, and that as a good citizen it was his duty to disregard his own inclinations and answer the call.

The new Attorney-General has not only to give up his practice in Kingston—a very large one—but what hurts him more is that he has also to give up his residence in the Limestone City and leave his friends behind.

To some men that would not appear as a sacrifice, but Mr. Nickle is one of those individuals who thinks his home city is the finest place in the world and the friends he has there the best people to be found anywhere on this terrestial footstool, and it has been a real strain to voluntarily disassociate himself from both in response to the call of duty.

Political life is not all milk and honey—as the case of the Attorney-General illustrates.

THE DETOUR NUISANCE.

Hon. G. S. Henry, Minister of Highways, in response to the complaints of motorists in all parts of the Province, has announced that a survey is to be taken at once of the numerous detours along the Provincial highways with a view to mitigating the annoyance caused by these vexatious breaks in the progress of the motoring fraternity.

A certain number of detours is, of course, necessary if good roads are to be built, new bridges constructed and culverts installed, and no motorist who appreciates good roads will complain about those which cannot be avoided.

Some of the road-building contractors, however, seem to be indifferent to the claims of the travelling public, and in many cases long detours could be done away if the men in charge of the construction work took the least trouble to consider the situation from the standpoint of the motorists.

Important roads have been blocked to traffic in various parts of the Province for unnecessarily long periods, and the result has been a very annoying experience, not only for Ontario citizens who use the highways frequently, but for the army of tourists from the United States, whose enjoyment of the charming scenery and the hospitality of Ontario has been checked to a considerable extent by the frequency with which they encounter "detour" signs along the principal travel routes.

One contemporary has suggested that this year such tourists should be known as "detourists"—and the new word is justified.

Unless the assurance can be given that the experience of this year will not be repeated, many motorists are liable to detour around Ontario completely next year.

A USEFUL CITIZEN.

The news columns of the Examiner a few days ago called attention to the remarkable record of Mr. Richard Hall, head of the firm of Richard Hall & Son, who for sixty-one years has been in business in Peterborough.

Mr. Hall has seen this community grow from a very small town into the present flourishing city, and it may be said with truth that he himself has played no small part in the development that has taken place during the last six decades.

Not only has he kept his business in the forefront, growing steadily as Peterborough expanded, and that in itself has been an achievement upon which he is entitled to the greatest credit, but he has always found time to devote his business ability and his enterprise and judgment to the service of his fellow-citizens.

It is only necessary to refer to his work in connection with the Nicholls Hospital, with the board of which he has been connected since its inception, and in the administration of which he has never failed to take the most sincere interest, or to his services as a member of the Nicholls Park Commissioners, that body which controls Jackson and Inverlea Parks and Nicholls Oval, and to which the citizens owe such a deep debt of gratitude, to appreciate the value of Mr. Richard Hall to this city as a citizen who has constantly realized that the welfare of the community imposes a responsibility upon those who are equipped for service.

Mr. Hall, while building up a huge business that has always been prominent in the commercial life of Peterborough, has at the same time been willing and able to devote the same talents which made his own enterprises successful to the development of his home city.

ALL WORK GENTEEL.

The story told of a young man, a bank clerk on a salary of $2,000 a year, who refused another position paying $500 more because he would in that case be a shipping clerk and the bank job is "more genteel," is representative of more than one individual, says the Kingston Whig. Whilst most young men, at least all who will ever amount to anything, would take the job that pays the most money, other things being equal, there is a class, possibly, which considers the gentility of the job compensates for the lack of pay. It is conceivable that one might decline a position offering more money because the opportunities contained were less than in the one held, but in that case the decision would not be based on gentility.

All work is genteel that is legitimate, and the job of a shipping clerk is as honorable as that of a bank clerk. Both honor the man who does good work, and neither can honor the man who thinks one is more genteel than the other. The man who works with his hands and gives an honest day's work is not less genteel than another who wears a white collar and whose employment does not soil his hands. It is the man and not the job on which gentility depends.

Yet the idea that one kind of work is less dignified than another prevails, though it is un-Canadian and undemocratic. Domestic help would not be so scarce and unsatisfactory were not such opinions held. It is all right, in the opinion of many, for a girl to work in a shop but not in a kitchen, though the latter might pay far better than that which is favored. It seems also to make a difference whether one draws wages or a salary, though it is a little difficult to distinguish between the two. Both are payments for services. It's the service which is being sold, and it's honorable if value is given, and no one service is more honorable than another, though greater skill may be put into it with corresponding reward. That one form of laudable effort is more genteel than another is but a bit of snobbishness.

PREMIER POINCARE STIFFENS HIS BACK AGAIN.

President Poincare seems to have a penchant for delivering important and stimulating speeches on Sundays. Hardly have the echoes of Senlis died away than the French statesman makes a stirring address at Villers-Cotterets, on the ground hallowed for France as the spot where Generalissimo Foch made the swift counter-stroke that turned the fortunes of war and brought about ultimate victory.

As at Senlis and as formerly at Dunkirk, so now in the old forest of Valois Premier Poincare takes occasion to recount once more the glorious deeds of the French army and to reiterate the inflexible determination of the France of today to preserve the victory won at so terrible a cost. With his patriotic oratory none will quarrel and least of all her ally in the Great War. Britain will not allow differences of policy in the reaping of the fruits of victory to dim for a moment her vision of the heroic sacrifices made by France in which her own people shared and of which they were eye-witnesses for more than four dark years. Yet at a most critical time in the history of the two peoples when Sir Robert Joynson Hicks, speaking for the Government, tells the world that never has a document been pored over by the Cabinet with more minute care, at a time when the semi-official journals of France do not hesitate to write openly of the disintegration of the Entente, the French Premier makes his speech the pivot on which to balance a violent attack on Lloyd George and the inference to criticize vigorously that wide body of British opinion that thinks with the former British leader in the matter of Anglo-French relations. It would be analogous if Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, after recalling the deeds of heroism of some of the other famous British regiments, was to launch into strong and unfavorable criticism of Clemenceau.

* * * *

While it is possible that such speeches may help to stiffen French resistance, yet at the time when Britain is straining every nerve to find some common ground of agreement between herself and France in the matter of the French occupation, it does not seem wise or politic to deliver such attacks.

Diplomatic exchanges have been continuing now in the present series of negotiations over a period of almost three weeks and so far no least common multiple has been found to bend the rigidity of the French position. The German Government in the meanwhile is content to look on and do nothing. Is continues its policy of passive resistance and does not even publicly condemn the horrors of the cold-blooded murders and the acts of sabotage of which her citizens in the Ruhr are undoubtedly guilty. The French Premier may argue that Germany is building up the most gigantic industrial trust the world has ever known and that the new masters of Germany are more autocratic than were the junkers of old, yet the fact remains that the mark continues its slump and the industrial situation of Europe continues to worsen. Belgium is showing more and more evidence that she would be glad to be out of the Ruhr and Italy looks to Britain to find some way out of the impasse.

So far as the policy of passive resistance is concerned Britain seems unable to find any method that she can recommend to Germany with any hope of acceptance that will at the same time be agreeable to France. M. Poincare will promise nothing in the shape of concession or will not discuss the date of withdrawal even in the event of Germany publicly abandoning her present policy. On the question of passive resistance Poincare will not bargain and he has made it quite clear that the occupation is largely a measure of protection of French industries and that there will be no getting out of the Ruhr until the uttermost farthing of a sum, the exactness of which is not definitely known, is liquidated.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Newspapers everywhere are calling for the protection of grade crossings. But the response is not encouraging. In the interim the "Stop, look and listen" slogan is worth adopting.

Canada's biggest problem just now is the harvesting of that enormous wheat crop in the West.

Before packing a trunk preparatory to a long journey, cut several pieces of cardboard a little smaller than the length of your trunk. Wrap the dresses you do not expect to need frequently in tissue paper and attach them to the cardboards. They will be fresh and unwrinkled when you unpack them.

TORONTO CATTLE

TORONTO, July 25. — Business was quiet at the cattle market yesterday. At the opening there was still in the neighbourhood of 900 stale cattle, mostly held over the week-end.

There are very few desirable either for killing or stockers among them, and they are difficult to place. Buyers were a little keener after fresh stuff of finish and quality, but there was very little in this class offering, the owners and commission men in most cases preferring to hold over until to-day, rather than face yesterday's somewhat listless market. Prices for anything good holding steady to a little firmer than last week's close.

There is a fair demand for good feeders, several cars of Western cattle steers and heifers selling from $4.50 to $5.35, and a load of 1,200lb. short-keep feeders at $5.85.

Cows good and steady, choice at $5.00 to $5.50.

Calves firm and higher.

Lambs firmer and about $1.00 higher, at $13.00 to $13.50, and one small lot of Government lambs at $14.00.

Hogs steady at $8.25 f.o.b. and $8.85 fed and watered.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, July 25.—Mr. Robert Campbell has sold the Lakeview House at Bewdley to Mr. Purdy of Simcoe, who has taken possession.

Costly To Be Drunk.

A man was in the Police Court here on Friday charged with being drunk at the Orange demonstration. He was fined $10 and costs. His car ran into another on a corner when, it is alleged, he was on the wrong side of the street, doing considerable damage to the other car. Besides the fine he paid all damages.

Afternoon Tea.

The St. Andrew's Helpers, one of the energetic societies of the Presbyterian Church here, held an afternoon tea and sale on the church lawn on Friday that was well patronized.

Boys Are At Camp.

The Boy Scouts, Trail Rangers and Junior Boys have gone into camp now at Richardson's Point, five miles east of Cobourg. This is the Cobourg Rotary camping ground and it is being put to good use this summer.

Takes Charge of Resort.

Mr. C .H. Wilton of Centerton has assumed the management of "Tower Farm" at Rice Lake, formerly conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Nurse, and is carrying it on this season.

Newcastle Community Hall.

Mr. Chester Massey, son of the late Mr. Hart Massey, Toronto, a Haldimand Township old boy, has made the gift of a fine community hall at Newcastle, to his old home town, and this is to be formally opened on Thursday afternoon, August 2. Hon. E. C. Drury is to officiate and Col. Neil F. MacNaughton, C. V. O., Cobourg, will remove the flags. A programme lasting four or five days has been arranged. On Thursday evening a banquet will be tendered Mr. Massey and his friends. On Friday afternoon an interesting programme of aquatic sports will be run off, and that evening the Bowmanville Dramatic Club is to present "The Message of the Bluebird."

On Saturday afternoon a baseball tournament has been arranged and a handsome silver trophy will be competed for. Bowmanville, Kendal, Newtonville and Orono teams are expected to take part, and this will be followed by a musical entertainment. On Sunday afternoon the unveiling of the memorial tablets takes place in the hall, and will be followed by a community service, addressed by Rev. Canon Cody. The festivities will close with a fine ball on Monday evening.

Pastor Visited Cobourg.

Rev. R. F. Stillman, the new pastor of the Methodist Church, was in town during the week for a short visit before going on his vacation. He and Mrs. Stillman and family expect to come to town to take up residence about the second week in August, and Mr. Stillman assumes charge of the pulpit work here the second Sunday in August.

Fall Wheat Good.

Farmers are very busy now with the hay crop, for the curing of which the weather is ideal. The largest yield for some years is expected. Fall wheat is stated to be a splendid crop, and spring grains are a fair average. Peas were a good crop, and the local canning factory is very busy with night and day shifts at work. Root crops, including potatoes, are about two weeks later than usual, and rain would do them much good. It is not expected that black and red currants and raspberries will be a big crop. The dry weather has kept the late blown from maturing and the bushes, several farmers report, did not stand the winter well. Clovers of all kinds, including sweet clover, have done well. A number of farmers who had never grown it before, have included sweet clover this season in their list of crops.

Course in Judging.

Mr. A. A. Colwill, Newcastle, has been attending a short course in live stock judging at Ottawa. The course is held under direction of Mr. J. Lockie Wilson and is intended to benefit the judges of fall fair stock in Eastern Ontario. At Guelph a similar course is in progress for Western Ontario men.

A Presentation.

Rev. A. H. Foster, a well known Bay of Quinte clergyman and a former Colborne pastor, who has been in charge of the work at Trinity Church, Napanee, for the past year, was presented with a purse containing $322 before leaving Napanee for Madoc. The services of the closing Sunday of Mr. Foster's pastorate were largely attended, 700 people being present at the evening service. On Monday evening a congregational meeting was held in the Sunday School room, when a good programme was given and four children were baptized. These closing services were of a character that will long be remembered.

Was Buried Here.

The remains of the late William Beatty, who died at Ottawa, were brought here a few days ago for interment in Cobourg Union Cemetery. He was a son-in-law of Mrs. John Glenn.

At Grand Lodge.

Cobourg sent the following representatives to the Grand Lodge, A.F. & A.M., at Toronto last week: Messrs. J. W. Bickle, M. A. Hewson, H. S. Denton, E. J. Wormington, J. F. McCullogh, J. W. Sprague, G. W. Rothwell, T. J. Stenhouse, J. Gillard, J. G. Nichols and Lt.-Col. A. E. Hopper.

Local and Personal.

The Timmins Free Press, it is stated, are giving ten young ladies a free trip to Cobourg and to Rochester via the ferry Ontario.

Between 250 and 300 people enjoyed the excursion from Cobourg to Rochester on Wednesday under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League and the Knights of Columbus. It proved to be a delightful trip.

Richardson, Downie Street, and gave a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Smith (ne Elva Braund). About one hundred people were present

About one hundred people were present in camp on Thursday evening and enjoyed a splendid concert given by the Boys' Band. Adjutant Smith and Mr. J. T. Braund brought the boys down to camp, and the concert was soon commenced. Among those who took part were: Quartette (instrumental) Adjutant Smith, M. Shadgett, Bernard Smith and A. B. Smith; boys' quartette, Gordon Braund, Bramwell Smith, Bernard Smith, Wm. Perrier; drum and fife quartette, Billy Brooks, Mr. Thomas Brooks, Melville Parnel and Adjutant Smith. Master Billy Brooks, who is but five summers old, played the kettle drum for all the selections. Mrs. Mendell Braund sang several delightful solos and Bernard Smith's violin solos were well received. Mr. Dan Sims proved himself an acceptable elocutionist and he delighted his audience with his recitations.

Sunday at Braundport

Tucked away on the banks of the Otonabee, against a cool, green background of trees, and separated from the busy world of everyday by a long, winding lane, Braundport proves a charming place in which to hold the informal service that attracts so many on a Sunday morning during the camping season.

"There is always plenty of room for more in this big room with the round top on it," said Sergt.-Major R. C. Braund, when extending a welcome on Sunday.

How fitting is it that the Maker of all things—the Painter of all truly great pictures—should be worshipped in the out-of-doors! Sunday's service was one of twofold interest—being the service of the dedication of Doreen May Braund—infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mendel Braund—and the occasion of Brigadier and Mrs. Wiseman's visit from Chicago, after an absence of some twenty-seven years from Peterborough. The service was held in a cool, shaded hollow, fronting the river. Sergt.-Major Braund opened the service, and after a brief period of prayer and praise, Adjutant Smith, of Peterborough, dedicated the infant to God.

Before conducting the lesson, Brigadier Wiseman expressed his delight at being once more in Peterborough and commented that the city had grown from a population of 13,000 since he had last seen it.

The lesson was a review of the last four lessons held in camp. Captain Beer, of Toronto, and Mrs. Mendell Braund sang as a duet a sacred version of "Somewhere a Voice is Calling."

Before closing (Mrs.) Staff Captain McElhiney, Mrs. (Brigadier) Wiseman and Captain of the Brantford Corps, spoke a few words.

Among the officers present were: Brigadier and Mrs. Wiseman, of Chicago; Adjutant and Mrs. Smith, of Peterborough; Captain and Mrs. Brunton, of Windsor (formerly of Peterborough); Staff Captain and Mrs. McElhiney, of Chemong (formerly of Peterborough), and the Captain of the Corps at Brantford, and Captain Beer, of Toronto.

Says Money Could Not Buy the Good It Did

Mrs. Singer Declares Benefit Derived From Tanlac Is Priceless—Entirely Overcame Troubles That Made Life a Burden, She States.

Mrs. Martha Singer, for fifty years a resident of London, Ont., and one of the most highly respected residents of the city, is still another whose deep sense of gratitude to Tanlac will not permit her to remain silent regarding the wonderful benefits she das derived from the medicine.

"If people only knew what fine medicine Tanlac is there would be very little sickness in Canada," said Mrs. Singer. "I had used it only a week when I felt myself gaining health and strength after every dose. Four bottles freed me of all my troubles and I am now feeling as fine as I ever did in my life.

"My troubles started six or seven years ago when I began to get weak and run-down and as time went on I kept getting worse instead of better. Finally I became so weak and nervous I would tremble like a leaf and could not even hold a cup in my hand. When I went out someone always had to assist me and I never knew what it was to get a good night's sleep. Many times I would hear the chimes in St. Paul's strike every hour of the night.

"My stomach was so weak and disordered that I frequently went all day without eating because I knew the suffering that it would cause me if I did eat anything. And to add to my burden of misery I suffered from the most awful headaches anyone ever had to endure. I thought the pain would drive me wild.

"Many days I would have to give up altogether for I couldn't go a step further.

"I tried many treatments and medicines but it was money wasted, and I got so discouraged that when my sister urged me to try Tanlac I thought it would be just like all the rest. But I soon found out different for I felt better with the very first few doses and now I am feeling perfectly splendid in every way. I haven't a single one of my former troubles left, I have a fine appetite and am eating more than I ever did, the headaches are gone and I sleep like a child every night. I get up feeling fresh and fine. Money could not buy the good Tanlac did me and my gratitude is unbounded. I am convinced it will help anyone who is suffering like I did."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Take no substitute. Over 37 million bottle sold.

WEDDING BELLS

GAY—EMBERSON.

BENSFORT, July 25.—A quiet wedding was solemnized at the Methodist Church, Bensfort, on Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Margaret Elva, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Emberson, became the bride of Mr. John Stewart Gay of Belleville.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. M. Patterson, pastor of the church, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends of the bride and groom. The church had been prettily decorated for the occasion: To the strains of Lohengren's Wedding March, played by Miss Dorothy Emberson of Toronto, the bride, who was beautifully dressed in cream crepe de chine, wearing the conventional veil and carrying a shower bouquet, entered on the arm of her father. F. Emberson and F. Dawson officiated as ushers. The bride and groom were unattended, but a niece of the groom, prettily attired in white silk, acted as flower girl. During the ceremony the organ was played sweetly and softly, and during the signing of the register Miss Marion Emberson of Toronto contributed an appropriate vocal selection in excellent voice.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the guests repaired to the home of the bride, where a bountiful supper was served, after which the bride and groom left for a honeymoon trip to Bowmanville amid showers of rice and confetti.

Mr. and Mrs. Gay will be at home in Kingston after October 1st. The best wishes of a host of friends is extended to the happy couple, whose popularity was manifested by the display of beautiful and costly presents they received. Amongst these there were a beautiful mantle clock from the Bensfort choir and a silver tray from the Bensfort Sunday School, both of which the bride was a valued member.

On Friday evening previous to the wedding the young people of the community gave a shower to the bride-elect at her home, and a large number of beautiful and costly presents showed the high esteem in which the bride was held, she having been the popular teacher of the Bensfort school and pianist in the Bensfort orchestra.

Washington Officials In Touch With Recent Developments In Philippines .. Are Not Surprised.

By HARRY B. HUNT

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Washington officials in touch with recent developments in the Philippines are not surprised at the break which culminated in the resignation of the entire Filipino cabinet.

The split between Manuel L. Quezon, president of the Phillippine Senate, and Governor General Leonard Wood, only follows open and active criticism by Quezon, for the last several months, of Wood's policies.

A year ago a break threatened over the attempt of Governor Wood to force Filipino leaders to lease the government owned and operated Manila railroad to New York capitalists. This road has a trackage of 764 miles and has increased wages and paid a nice profit over a five-year period. The Filipino leaders refused to sign the lease.

Wood next aroused the antipathy of the Filipino leaders by vetoing 16 bills passed by the Phillippine Legislature. One of these measures carried an appropriation for a ten-year program for the University of the Phillippines.

Newspapers Aroused.

Wood was bitterly criticized for this use of his veto.

For the last several months there have been hot discussions in the Phillippine newspapers over the attempt of Wood to force the government to dispose of its sugar centrals and to liquidate the Phillippine National Bank.

The Filipino leaders contended that the sugar centrals were rendering very valuable service to Filipino sugar growers and were not in sympathy with the move to close the bank.

Wood, however, took the reins in his own hands and closed 11 branches of the Philippine National Bank. This aroused a storm of protest.

The Filipinos assert that if the Philippine National Bank is closed it will place Philippine commerce and industry wholly at the mercy of foreign capital. President Quezon and other leaders made a tour of the islands protesting against Wood's policies and threatened that if the governor general closed the Philippine National Bank the Philippine Senate would open another.

The Filipnos maintain that Wood's acts are in violation of the spirit of the Jones law, passed in August 1916, and assert that Congress intended to give them practically complete local self-government with full power to enact any legislation that does not conflict with the sovereignty of the United States over the islands.

What Good Is Legislature.

They quote the late Congressman Jones that such was the purpose of the legislation.

Quezon recently declared that if Woods to formulate the policies of government without consultation with the Filipino leaders the Legislature might as well be abandoned completely.

In this connection it is recalled that the Wood-Forbes report contained the recommendation that some of the features of self-government at that time possessed by the Filipinos should be withdrawn. Neither Congress nor the president, however, have taken any steps to carry out these recommendations. Wood is now endeavoring, the Filipinos assert, to bring about the same results without Congress ever having approved the recommendations.

THE SIDE UNDER-ARM STROKE

(By LYBA M. SHEFFIELD)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—The side under-arm stroke, which I will explain today, is very useful for long distance swimming and, should the occasion arise, for life saving.

Besides it will give you variety from the elementary crawl and the back-stroke, which I explained in former-articles.

I will give the directions for right-handed swimmers; if lefthanded, reverse all motions.

To practice the arm stroke, stand either on the side of the tank or in shallow water, body erect and right arm extended straight out to the side, parallel to the ground, with palm down. The left arm is down at the left side of the body with the thumb touching the thigh.

Bend the body slightly toward the right, and look back over your left shoulder.

Now bring the right arms down in a circular sweep. When well down, bend the elbow and finish by bringing the hand up to the shoulder.

Pull Left Hand.

Simultaneously with the right-hand motion, bring the left hand up across the body to meet the right hand at the right shoulder. This is done by bending the left elbow.

Finish the stroke by pulling the left hand forcibly back to its starting position and simultaneously extending the right arm out to its starting position.

After you have practiced the arm motion sufficiently, lie on your right side at the side of the pool with the legs well out over the water. Keep your legs straight, with ankles and knees touching.

Now slowly separate the feet by bending the right knee and, at the same time, moving the left leg slightly forward. The knees should not be separated more than about two inches and the feet not more than 12 to 16 inches.

MISS SHEFFIELD ILLUTRATING CORRECT STARTING POSITION FOR THE SIDE UNDER-ARM STROKE.

Finish by forcibly bringing the feet together to the starting position. Hold this position for a moment. This rests you and allows you full advantage of the momentum gained through the stroke.

To combine these arm and leg movements with the pushoff, stand erect near side of tank and grasp some support with the left arm. Extend your right arm as in the starting position.

Next bend the left knee and place the sole of the left foot against the side of the tank, well up from the bottom.

Use Force.

Then push away with force sufficient to cause a glide of several feet. As your momentum slackens, commence the arm motion.

After you have practiced this two or three times, repeat, combining the arm motion with the leg kick.

In doing the side under-arm, remembers that the legs remain extended until the left arm starts its downward pull, and that the open and close of the leg kick is executed with the pull so that you finish in the starting position both with arms and legs.

A variation of this stroke is the single over-arm. It is executed in the same manner except that the left arm is brought out by the water by bending the elbow and slightly raising the shoulder. The forearm is kept close above the water's surface, with wrist straight and palm down. Finish of the single over-arm is with the left hand almost even with the right shoulder.

To Kill the Spirit of War

By A. H. FREDERICK

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—"For every monument to a war hero build four to peace heroes.

"In every book that tells of 'the glories of war' tell also of the filth, the lice, the rats, life in mud and among the dead, of the brutal injunction 'kill, kill, kill'—always 'kill, kill, kill.'

"Then may we expect to make headway in our war against war."

This is not the plea of any pacifist or war-slacker, but of a man who lived in the trenches of Flanders' fields for two years as a soldier of Britain, who was under bombardment and "over the top" many times, a man who was wounded in action, a war hero himself—Harold R. Peat, more familiarly known as "Private Peat."

Since the war Peat has dedicated himself to lecture and write in the cause of perpetual peace. He has traveled all over the globe collecting data for his work and has studied constantly into the causes and possible preventives of international conflict.

Heroes Would Sacrifice Glory.

"It is not that I would detract one iota from the honor due my comrades or to the heroes of other wars," Peat says. "Building monuments to commemorate great men of war times and never a monument to honor the equally great men of peace times, is wrong.

"These men of war are great heroes, yes, so great that, could they see the problem as clearly as my research work had caused me to see it, they would willingly forego their monuments because of the wrong impression on the young.

"Every man seeks honor; it is an ambition which has its incipiency in childhood. 'How shall I win honor?' unconsciously asks the child to himself.

"The monuments are his answer: 'By being great in war.' Nowhere are there numbers of monuments which answer: 'By being great in peace.'"

Youth Real Victims.

Economic rivalries may be the immediate causes of wars, declares Peat, but the real cause—or rather, cause of lack of perpetual peace, lies deeper, in the fact that war's realities are lost sight of after a long period of peace.

"History shows that it is easy to start a war every 20 years or so," says Peat. "That is because a new generation has come to fighting age, a generation which knows nothing except the glorified war presented to him in textbook and marble. To the young men, battle is romance and adventure—which, so they always believe, will last a month or six weeks.

"It is a continuation of the spirit which I meet everywhere in my travels.

"I have put the question to boys of 12 different nations, boys of about 14:

"'What do you think of your country and its army and navy?'

"Always there has been the same answer: 'My country is the greatest in the world and can lick anybody in six weeks.' Only the length of time has varied in the answer.

"Here lies the real cause of wars."

Education Must Do It.

Peat believes the scrapping of armaments would have little effect except to change war tactics. The national pugilistic egotism bred in the young would make them fight with fists and sticks had they no arms, he says.

"We must remember that 90 per cent of potential knowledge is founded on impressions and teachings when the child is 6 to 14 years", Peat says. "And what do we give them in these years? Ever since the war I have studied over school textbooks of all nations and in not one did I find war denounced. Rather it is glorified.

"We hear people say that enduring peace would make us spienless and white-blooded. Rot. Is not the man who conquers a dread disease at cost of effort and risk to himself as truly courageous as he who slays other men? Is not an Edison or Burbank as great as any general or admiral?

"We admit it, but that is not enough. We must pass this knowledge to our young by story, textbook, monument. If we want them to be peace heroes, then eulogy of peace heroes must predominate in spoken word and in marble and bronze.

"And when we tell of the victories and 'glorious defeats' of our soldiers, we must also tell of the corpses rotting in the sun or rain, of the widows and orphans facing want and endless mourning.

"When we tell of the war cross won, we must give greater emphasis to the more potent fact that, for each cross won, 10,000 wooden crosses rise."

WAR DEVICE NOW USED RESCUE BURIED MINERS

NEW YORK July 25 (Associated Press).—An instrument called the geophone invented by the French to detect underground noises during the World War is now being used to rescue entombed miners, locate mine fire areas and reduce accidents through blasting the Engineering Foundation announces.

The geophone has been improved by the U. S. Army Engineers and Bureau of Standards until its sensitiveness is so great that in recent tests sledge pounding was heard 3 000 feet through rock, 2 000 feet through coal, 300 fee through mine "cover" and 300 feet through clay.

The geophone despite its unusualB functions is not a complicated machine. It consists of an iron ring over which are two metal disks. In the space within the ring suspended between the thin disks is a lead weight. An opening in one of the disks leads to an earpiecg. When the instrument is laid upon the ground it "picks up" sound vibrations that may be coming through. The disks vibrate causing a disturbance in the air within the instrument which taking the form of sound is transmitted to the car of the listener.

EMBLEM TRAVELS FROM OHIO TO CALIFORNIA

MARION O. July 24 (Associated Press).—As the crusaders of old, members of Marion Commandery No. 36 Knights Templar will undertake a pilgrimage. They left here July 23 and their travel will end in Hollywood, California August 3, when Sir Knight Warren G. Harding a member of the commandery, will present to Hollywood Commandery No. 56 an emblem which has crossed the continent.

This is the Traveling Beauseant dedicated by the Grand Priory of Canada which is to be taken around the world by means of one commandery delivering it to another. It is to go to only one branch of the high Masonic Order in a grand jurisdiction. The commandery which holds the Beauseant selects the one which gets it next.

Cyrene Preceptory No. 29 K. T. of Toronto was the first recipient of the emblem. Then it was delivered to Hugh De Paynes Commandery No. 30 stationed at Buffalo, then to St. John's Commandery No. 4 K. T. at Philadelphia which delivered it to Columbia Commandery No. 2 K. T. of Washington D. C. whence it was sent to Martion.

It has been estimated that fifty years will be consumed in sending the Beauseant around the world.

The Marion representatives will display the Beauseant before commanderies in Chicago, Omaha, Colorado Springs and Salt Lake City where stops will be made.

Ceremonies at Hollywood will be held in the Hollywood Bowl which accommodates 50 000 persons.

YOUNG JOCKEYS RIDE TO VICTORY IN ENGLAND

LONDON, July 25 (Associated Press)—The patter of tiny feet is making its impress on British racing history, just as it has done in American movies and Russian chess. One of the jockeys to be seen flying around the race-tracks near London is only twelve years old. Another after having had to be satisfied with coming in second several times last year, is now reaping the fruits of his long struggle to succed by riding winners. He is just fourteen years old.

His name is Stafford Walter Henry Ingham and he hasn't a whisker on his face, but his master has. For his master is King George. The King was watching the kid the other day when he achieved the most glorious triumph of his "career," winning the famous Royal Hunt Cup on His Majesty's four-year-old Weathervane at the Ascot meet. It was the youngster's ninth victory on the turf. Jockey, saddle, harness and all other impediments carried by Weathervane weighed only 96 pounds.

Ingham's father, a chemist at Epsom, reared his boy to be a jockey, even though another son was killed at the age of 13 while riding on the Downs, his horse striking against a post and throwing the youth to his death.

CANNOT OPPOSE P[illegible] C OPINION

Miners in Pennsylvania Are Warned by Their Secretary-Treasurer.

SCRANTON Pa.,, July. 25—Public opinion cannot be opposed, William Green, Secretary-Treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, warned the 500 delegates of the Tri-District cale Convention of Anthracite Miners at the wage meet here. Meanwhile leaders of the three districts had virtually agreed to demand a wage increase of possibly 20 per cent. and at least 10.

An inevitable event awaited the miners, Mr. Green declared. If the convention defied public sentiment in whatever new contract was demanded of the mine owners next month in place of that expiring August 31.

John L. Lewis, International President, arrived to preside over the convention from now on.

Thomas Kennedy, President of District 7, and Acting Chairman for Mr. Lewis, disclosed the five major demands the Scale Committee would submit to the convention for decision:

Ten to 20 per cent. wage increase.

Equalization of wages on similar classes of work.

Introduction of the check-off.

Weighing of coal mined in computing miners' pay.

Universal eight-hour day for pumpmen, compressors and other special employes.

The resolution approving the project of municipal coal yards throughout the country, to be recommended by the coal commission, was adopted. Then word filtered into the convention hall that the National Retail Coal Merchants Association had been assured in their convention that the Municipal Coal Yard at Washington was to be shor lived. Secretary Work, according to a committee report, was on record as favoring "a return to normalcy in the relationship of 'Government' and 'business.'

Sees Blow Aimed at the Union

Chairman Kennedy interpreted the formal proposal of the coal retailers for the incorporation of trade unions as especially aimed at the United Mine Workers of America and assailed the organization as influenced by "the unseen hand of the anthracite operators."

Applause at the conclusion of William Green's address scarcely matured that of yesterday when Cappellini worked the delegates to a high pitch.

"There is something in America very tender and sensitive, and that is the great unseen force of public opinion," said Mr. Green. "Just now we want to feel the pulse of public opinion. Some say that no industrial struggle could win against an adverse public opinion. While I do not wholly subscribe to that, I do say this—I do not believe it is possible for any group of men to win a struggle in America provided public opinion is crystalized against them.

"We should measure our ability to do things, and be guided by circumstances. We are religiously committed to no backward step and no reduction in wages. But we are men of intelligence as well as passions and feeling.

"We must occupy a strategic position. Let us formulate our plans and policy carefully. When we place our case before the bar of public opinion let us be strong and united—confident that the great American people will rise up with us to see that our wrongs are righted."

Cappellini For 20 Per Cent. Rise

Chairman Kennedy in discussing the five demands for the new contract indicated distinct likelihood of a protracted debate of wages. He admitted that a minimum of 10 per cent. would be formulated, but granted that there was strong sentiment against the delegates for 20 per cent.

Germany's floating bebt was 17,000,000,000,000 marks on June 20 last.

WHAT'S YOUR LIFE WORTH?

Which does a man most value,—money or his life? "Ah don't care for money, but ah certainly values my life", Irving Kendrick, colored, stated to Canadian immigration authorities recently at Sarnia. Kendrick, of Rosetown, N.Y. was the proud possessor of a "roll" of $300. A black hand gang of Detroit was hot on the trail of Irving's savings. He crossed from Detroit to Windsor on a raft to elude them. Then he dived head first through the window of a Canadian National railroad coach. After a brief ride he was forced to alight and walk into Sarnia. The immigration authorities deported him.

On being questioned by the officials at Sarnia, he declared that he was attacked by colored men in Detroit, but made a successful get-away. On reaching the Canadian side, the approach of a husky colored 'gen'l'man' cause him to unceremonious board the train.

Irving Kendrick, like thousands of Canadians, knew the value of his life. There are three and a half billions of life insurance in force throughout the Dominion today to demonstrate this fact. The reason is that the very security of it makes it an investment which appeals to the thinking people. People are beginning to recognize the soundness of the principle which declares that the first essential of an investment must be security.

Life insurance companies depend largely for their support on investors of moderate means. Life insurance is welcomed by these as a field of investment which can be understood, where security is guaranteed, and wheer the assured can invest on even terms with business magnates and kings of finance.

The person who values his life will insure it. When he reaches old age he will benefit from his thrift. Failing to arrive at old age his family live to bless his foresight. There is no question as to whether a man would rather lose his life or his money. But when life is suddenly snuffed out, the money from an adequate life insurance policy will work for the widow left to weep.

GIBBONS DELUGED WITH FAT OFFERS

ST. PAUL Minn. July 25.—Five motion picture companies are bidding for the services of Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul light heavyweight boxer, Eddie Kane, his manager, said today.

Four offers have been received from California producing firms and a fifth from New York. One company wishes to star Tommy in a serial story of 12 episodes one in a thrilling romance and the others would leave the plot to Gibbons and Kane.

Kane said that he would accept one of the offers as soon as satisfactory arrangements can be completed. Gibbons, however, now has a vaudeville contract calling for 14 weeks.

Kane said he is continuing to receive offers from promoters for another bout with Jack Dempsey but said he would turn a deaf ear to them until Tommy has completed his vaudeville and movie engagements.

SAY BRUTALLY TREATED IN A GEORGIA CLINK

Escaped Convict Shows Scars of Shackles to Substantiate His Charge in New York.

WILL INVESTIGATE

NEW YORK, July 25.—William McGarrity, who will be arraigned in the Tombs Court for a hearing on a charge of being a fugitive from Georgia, was examined yesterday by Dr. Perry M. Lichtenstein in the Tombs, where he is being detained, to substantiate his statement trat he had been brutally treated by prison officials in Jasper County Ga., where he was serving a term for forgery and whence he escaped more than a year ago.

The examination showed large scars on the lower part of each leg and Warden John J. Hanley, who was present, said he believed the wounds had been made by shackles such as prisoners are forced to wear while engaged in road work in the South. McGarrity, who was arrested at the Hotel McAlpin on Saturday where he was registered as "Frederick Goodrich,' said that his right name was William Morrell, and that he was the son of a city paymaster' He added that his father and mother called on him in the Tombs. and that he expected William Gibson. boxing promoter, and other friends in this city would help him fight the attempt to have him turned over to the Georgia authorities.

Dr. Lichtenstein would not disclose what he had learned through his examination of McGarrity, but the prisoner admitted that he was afflicted with a nervous disorder known as St. Vitus's dance, the result of an attack of sleeping sickness three or four years ago.

"I am the man who escaped from that prison," he said, "I ran away because they had beaten me time and again unmercifully and without cause A guard fired a load of buckshot at me when I ran away. I escaped by cutting the shackles on my legs with a hacksaw. I bound the several shackles with cord until I was ready to flee.

Says Stray Was Sanded

"They flogged me more severely than other prisoners because I was a Northerner. That's why they'd tell me every time that they sent me to the wheelbarrow to be flogged. Every prisoner there has a horror of that wheelbarrow. They make you lie over it and then a big fellow piles the leather strap across your back with all his might. Usually this fellow, to make my punishment more severe, would drag the strap in the sand before each stroke. The sand would get in the bruises on my back and hurt so that I'd have to cry for mercy."

McGarrity displayed much pride in his ability as a book salesman. He said that since his escape from the prison he had earned as much as $500 in a day, and added that Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, was among those to whom he had made sales.

He said that an 18-year-old boy became a maniac from ebatings he received at the Georgia prison. This boy also was from the North and had been sentenced to from five to seven years, he said, for forging a check for $10. The prisoner added that he had been arrested in Buffalo N.Y., several weeks ago on a charge of being a fugitive from the Georgia prison, but that he was released when a keeper was unable to identify him.

"I'm going to fight as hard as I can to save myself from being sent back to the prison," he said. "I'm afraid they'd kill me if they got me back there again.

ALL NOT SMOOTH SAILING IF LABOR SECURES CONTROL

Could Laborites Rule Great Britain If Workers Elected -a Majority To Parliament.

By MILTON BRONNER

LONDON, July 25.—Could the Labor party rule Great Britain if Tom Hodge, British workman, and his fellow citizens elected a Labor majority to the next Parliament?

Tories and Liberals almost unanimously say—no.

Labor just as unanimously say—yes.

However, even granting that the Labor leaders are correct in their assertions, they wouldn't have any bed of roses. And there are four big reasons.

1—The House of Lords.

2—The civil service servants entrenched in all the permanent branches of the government.

3—The cleavage in the Labor party itself.

4—The platform of the Labor party.

When either of the old political parties is in power, it has no trouble about the House of Lords because there are Tory peers and Liberal peers. But there is no such thing as a Labor peer.

No Labor Peers.

Of course, a Labor premier could advise the king to create some, but this is unlikely because it would be repugnant to all the traditions of the Labor party.

Just what this absence of representation in the House of Lords means was strikingly illustrated when Bonar Law recently resigned the premiership. Only two men were considered by the king as his successor—Lord Curzon and Stanley Baldwin. But Curzon, aside from other reasons, was at once barred out because he was a peer.

The king knew it would never do to have a premier who sat in the House of Lords and to whom the official opposition—the Labor party—could not make direct response in debate.

Lords was largely shorn of its veto power over Commons legislation when H. H. Asquith was premier, but with the imminence of a possible Labor ministry, it is possible that within the next year no attempt will be made to give Lords some affirmative power. The House of Lords would then be considered by the old parties as a bulwark against Labor legislation.

Trouble From Within.

American cabinet ministers often find themselves helpless when they go up against the permanent staffs in their departments who are protected by civil service. A Labor government in a country like England, where the civil service is largely recruited from the old families would find itself still more up against it

A third danger to a Labor government world be its own membership. Just as in America there is a conservative and a radical wing to the Republican and Democratic parties, so here in Britain even the Labor party finds itself divided between a conservative and a radical wing.

Ramsay MacDonald, Parliamentary leader of the Labor party, has his hands full all the time. On the one hand are sober, steady men like J. R. Clynes, J. H. Thomas, Arthur Henderson, old trades union leaders who have held high office under the crown and who believe in advancing steadily but slowly and by constitutional methods.

On the other hand there are the "wild men"—mainly Scotch and Welsh Parliament members who hold extreme Socialist views and who think the Labor party is going too slowly.

Platform Boomerang.

Finally, the Labor party would be in danger from its own platform. It is all right to talk about ameliorating the condition of the agricultural worker—and his position is indeed very bad. But Britain's climate and soil are such that it is hard to compete with more favored lands like United States, Canada and the Argentine.

The same applies to housing. With labor and material costs up and with laws to keep down rents, people are unwilling to build new houses. A subsidy to agriculture and subsidy for houses would mean taxes. And taxation is precisely one of the things the Labor party wants to reduce for the man of small or moderate means.

A NEW LAW COVERS LOCAL SNOWBIRDS

Heavier Penalties Can Be Imposed and Source of Supply Must Be Determined.

Chief S. Newhall comments favourably on the new Drug and Opium Act, framed by the federal department of health and put in force last month, a copy of which he recently received.

The new law, besides providing for more severe penalties than the old ordinance it supersedes, is somewhat similar to the Ontario Temperance Act. in so far as in certain cases it places the onus of guilt on the accused.

Under the new Act, the accused may be tried by indictment or summarily, as the crown may elect. If indictment be the form, a sentence aslong as seven years may be imposed. If the accused is tried summarily, imprisonment to the extent of 18 months and a fine may be imposed upon conviction. The Act ordains that the crown must press for both fine and imprisonment if the accused is found guilty on summary trial.

Another difference between the old and new edicts is that ownership of the drugs must be established. There have been former cases in which none of the accused persons would admit ownership of the narcotics seized. In future, all drugs taken shall be deemed to belong to the proprietor of the establishment where they are found, if all the prisoners deny that the drugs are their property.

FOREIGN PORTS COLD TO STRANDED SAILORS

HAVRE France July 25 (Associated Press).—Unwary American seamen in large numbers who carelessly or ignorantly sign faulty articles of employment on foreign vessels are finding themselves stranded here without any hope of getting back home. In many cases jobless and penniless sailors have been arrested as vagabonds and thrown into French jails and according to their stories the same danger threatens them in a number of other foreign ports.

There has lately been a disposition the sailors say among foreign steamship lines operating between Europe and American ports to bring American seamen to Europe and drop them either through false representation or misunderstanding on the part of the men when signing the articles. In some instances the men are careless and sign in a casual way hardly knowing or caring what they do. Some sign for a port thinking it means a round trip and then find themselves stranded on foreign soil.

Finding they have no means to return to America many of them appeal to the American consulates. But nothing can be done for them except in cases of men holding seamen's cards in the American Merchant Marine.

The Y. M. C. A. at Havre has helped out a number of men but the appeals have become so numerous recently that the Association has reached the limit of its funds for such purposes.

LAST OF MAN EATERS CAPTURED IN SAMOA

PAGO PAGO American Samoa July 25 (Associated Press).—The capture of the last of four wild man-eating savages who escaped from the Island of New Hebrides in 1890 and landed on the Island of Tutuila on a raft ends the thirty-year dread of the island natives here for the man-eaters. The wild man was captured by an escaped prisoner who being filled with remorse for his criminal record and being ashamed again to face his fellow man said he took to the hills of Pago Pago where he had planned to commit suicide.

While the escaped prisoner was making preparations to carry out his suicidal intent he was confronted by the black savage. The convict "got the drop" on the wild man bound him and held him prisoner over night. The next day the prisoner brought his savage captive to the Tutuila Naval Station here where the two took their stand in dramatic fashion under the Stars and Stripes. Samoans gathered but apparently feared to attack the savage they had hunted for many years.

Robert Louis Stevenson in one of his books told of the escape of four black recruited laborers from a German plantation in New Hebrides. The men Stevenson wrote fled owing to their ill treatment and escaped to Tutuila on a raft. One was killed.

The three remaining blacks haunted the bush not far from Pago Pago towards the eastern end of Tutuila and were occasionally seen by hunters. In the year 1900 one was caught by a young Samoan chief and the captured savage said that one of the other two had died leaving only one at large. This is the man who has just been brought in.

DIAGNOSE TROUBLE BEFORE MECHANIC

Unequal Compression in Cylinders and Similar Faults Are Detected With Little Trouble.

The average motorist who cannot make intricate repairs in his car successfully, can detect trouble early and cut down the labor charge for repairs by having some idea what is wrong when he takes his car to a mechanic.

One of the first tricks to learn in "diagnosis" is to turn the motor over slowly by hand with the spark turned off. The compression should be equal, or nearly so. A weak resistance on one cylinder often indicates a deep score in the wall or leaking valves. The faint hiss of escaping gas sometimes can be detected.

Easily Detected

A crack in a cylinder which does not show in leisurely road use can be detected when the crank case is drained by the presence of water in the crank case which has leaked from the cooling system.

Oil pumping, caused by leaking piston rings, is detected by the fouling of spark plugs with a gummy carbon deposit or excessive carbon deposits in the combustion chambers.

An excessive noise at the front of the car indicates wornout or badly adjusted timing gears.

After the water has been run long enough in the cooling system to become warm, feel the radiator for cold spots. They show the circulation is stopped at the cold points and should be repaired if the stoppage is great enough to cause the engine to overheat. The pump may be tested by removing the upper hose connection from the radiator. Water should be forced out in a steady stream.

Test for excessive back lash in the driving system by turning the rear wheels with the car jacked up and in gear. The wheel should not show more than five or six inches play. Grasping the wheel at the top and bottom it can be twisted at right angles to the axle to show worn bearings or a loose wheel. The wheel should be tight enough to prevent any noticeable movement.

Time Wheels

With one rear wheel jacked up and the brake set the motor may be run with the car in gear to discover whether the wheels run true. If the wheel appears to run erratically while the tire is straight on the rim it indicates a bent axle or a sprung wheel. Differential noises which indicate worn parts or parts out of adjustment usually can be heard when the car is run with one rear wheel off the ground.

With both rear wheels spinning while the rear of the car is on jacks, badly worn pinion and ring gears usually are evident by their noise.

Front wheels, of course, may be turned rapidly while jacked up to detect looseness. More important is shaking the wheels by grasping the tires at the front and back to test for looseness in the steering mechanism.

Brake Bands

When the pedal is pressed down the clutch should disengage quickly. Failure to do so indicates the clutch brake is badly worn or poorly adjusted. "Grabbing" and slipping on hills because of worn clutch is evident to experienced drivers.

Brake bands too tight on one wheel result in a pull on that side which sometimes slides the wheel while the other turns freely.

AT 122, STILL WORKS AS A DAY LABORER

TEPIC, Mexico, July 25. (United Press.) — Advices from Mazamita, a small town in the state of Jaliso, on the west coast of Mexica, tell of Jose Ascension Silvas, aged 122, who was a soldier in the War for Mexican independence more than a century ago.

Silvas is said to be hale and hearty still. He earns his living as a laborer, doing a fair day's work every day. His eyesight is good and he has all of his natural teeth. His digestion is excellent and his memory is unimpaired. Not long ago he walked 28 kilometers to visit a sick friend, returning the same day, and covering a distance of about thirty-five miles.

AN ACRE OF WHEAT OR A STAND OF BEES

The Honey Getters are Beaten in the Dakotas

(By Frank C. Pellett, in the Country Gentleman.)

The ultimate development of the prairie provinces of Canada and the Dakotas will bring many changes in the present system of farming. The pioneers, intent upon large-scale operations and immediate results, have largely confined their farming to the growing of the small grains, mostly wheat. The virgin soil brings forth abundantly, and many a farmer who bought land at a low price has recovered his purchase price from a single crop. With the changing conditions the wheat farmer is finding it a difficult matter to meet the higher cost of operation, increased taxes and the higher standard of living of the present day with a diminishing yield and a net return too small to be interesting.

This is not a wheat story but a honey story, the story of what a few men are doing with bees in the wheat country. President J. L. Coulter, of the North Dakota College of Agriculture, suggested to farmers of his state not very long since that "if North Dakota is to be a land flowing with milk and honey Dakota farmers must raise their own bees and dairy cows."

By some the suggestion was considered as mere poetic license as it was not felt that North Dakota was adapted to either dairying or honey production. Present indications are that the college president has better vision of the possibilities of the region than most of his fellow men. While the clovers commonly found on the farms of Illinois and Iowa are seldom seen, sweet clover is coming in so rapidly as to surprise those who have not kept close watch of the development that is taking place there. Even in the Corn Belt, farmers are coming to appreciate the fact that more cattle can be pastured on an acre of sweet clover than on any ordinary pasture. Sweet clover makes dairying a very real possibility in the Dakota region. Not only does sweet clover make the dairy farmer smile, but it opens great possibilities to the beekeeper.

A Paradise for Bees

Sweetclover is the greatest honey plant on the American continent and where it is found in large acreage the beekeeper may expect to prosper. However, sweet clover does not yield nectar as freely in most places as it does on the Northern plains. It reaches its maximum in nectar secretion under just such conditions as are found in the Red River Valley. In my opinion the greatest beekeeping country in America, if not in the world, will one day be found in the region from Sioux City, Iowa, northward through the Dakotas and far into the Canadian provinces. A rich soil, hot days and cool nights are a combination that insures the greatest honeyflows from sweet clover.

In the Corn Belt the nights are often too hot to provide the best conditions, and the sweet clover often fails to yield a big flow of nectar. The cool nights seem to favor the formation of the sugars and the hot days stimulate the flow of the nectar. These conditions are likely to be found either in high altitudes or far enough north that latitude accomplishes the same result. It has been found that alfalfa in Kansas seldom yields nectar abundantly below 1000 feet of elevation. In North Dakota and the near-by territory, which includes part of Northwest Iowa, Northeast Nebraska, South Dakota, Western Minnesota and the region to the north, this combination of conditions which approaches the ideal for the beekeeper is found at its best.

The short season is also in favor of the beekeeper. There are many sections in the South which would seem to be ideal beekeeping territory where the total surplus yields are small for the reason that the bees consume too large a portion of the crop in brood rearing out of season. In the North the bees begin breeding as soon as spring opens and reach the peak of brood rearing just in time to secure a large working force in the hives to gather the crop. It takes a lot of honey to raise the working force of a weak colony of bees in early spring to a strong colony ready for business. If this can be accomplished at just the right time the bees fairly surprise one by the quantity of honey they store. Here the season is such that the bees come up to proper strength with a minimum of fussing on the part of the beekeeper and the flow continues with little interruption to the close of the season. When the flow is over brood rearing ceases and the bees use only sufficient stores to maintain the heat of the colony until time to begin operations for another season. Under these conditions the beekeeper secures a maximum portion of the crop as surplus.

Stories of big honey crops in the plains have been reaching us for some time past, and a few months ago an opportunity was offered me to see the region for myself. Several days were spent with beekeepers in Manitoba, after which I took a turn among the beemen in the Red River Valley of North Dakota and southward to South Dakota. Not far from Fargo I found an old schoolmate who lived on as rich a farm as the Creator ever made. He had just threshed his grain the day before and had a good yield. The grain was of good quality, but the price was so low as to be depressing. Nearly 3000 bushels of oats and barley were sold directly from the machine and after paying the bill for threshing he had less than $300 in cash left to show for his labor, seed and rent of his land for the season. He had also a fine crop of potatoes on the land and when later they were dug the potato market was in about as bad shape as the grain market. No wonder this friend of mine was talking about going into bees, for he had been hearing about the returns some of the beemen had secured both last year and the year previous.

The beemen in the Red River Valley have had one great advantage which will not remain. So little honey has been produced there in the past that local markets have taken it all at prices much above those which have prevailed in other sections. With the extension of the beekeeping industry prices will fall to the level justified by the general market.

North Dakota Stands High in Colony Yield

Dr. R. L. Webster, the North Dakota entomologist, is a comparatively new member of the faculty of the College of Agriculture. Webster is in position to appreciate the possibilities of honey production in the state, having been acting entomologist at the Iowa Station when beekeeping was established there. The beekeeping work at the Iowa institution has increased in importance very rapidly and has done much to raise the standard of beekeeping in that state. Coming into a new field, Webster very naturally looked about to see what the beekeepers were doing and was surprised to find them less in number while producing larger average crops than in any other state. Last year's Government reports show an average of about 175 pounds of honey a colony for all the bees in North Dakota, which is far above the general average of the country. Finding such favorable opportunities, he began making inquiry as to why so few were keeping bees, only to discover that it had always been supposed that it was too far north for bees. He has not been slow to bring the facts to the attention of Dakota farmers and this activity alone bids fair to justify the appropriation for his department for many years to come.

I am mixing up Manitoba and the Dakotas rather indiscriminately in this story, since conditions are very similar and bees do not pay attention to an international boundary line. It might be well to call attention right here to the fact that sweet clover is the important factor in beekeeping in much of this region and where it is absent the beekeeper will not find prospects alluring except near the streams. In some neighborhoods where poor farming is the rule the sow thistle and Canada thistle have become so abundant that large crops of honey are gathered. Such conditions should not continue, however, while sweet clover is constantly increasing in importance.

Not far from the international border is the Dominion Experiment Farm at Morden, Manitoba. By the time I had reached the farm I had seen enough of bees in that section to decide that 100 hives of bees should bring as dependable a return as forty acres of wheat. When I stated this conclusion to W. E. Lake, the apiarist at the farm, he replied that 100 hives of bees would beat 100 acres of wheat, judging by comparative returns they had secured at the farm. Down in Iowa, where I kept bees for many years, we regarded an average of fifty pounds a colony as about an average crop, owing to the frequent seasons of partial failure. Hon. W. E. McKinnel, a member of Parliament, stated that in all his experience he had had but one year of failure, and that season he had secured an average of fifty pounds. When I found what we had regarded as an average crop counted as a failure I began to take notice and to make note of the average crops harvested. I could discount one or two big stories, but when the same story was told by every beekeeper visited it certainly looked as if there must be a good foundation for them. L. T. Floyd, the apiarist with the Manitoba Department of Agriculture, came to this region from Nova Scotia where crops average smaller. He was very enthusiastic regarding the future of honey production in the prairie provinces.

Expert Help in Meeting Winter Problems

Just outside the city of Winnipeg is the Trappist Monastery ot St. Norbert. Trappist cheese and honey are famous throughout the region roundabout. Bees had been kept in this apiary for a longer period of time than in any other visited. For a period of fifteen years the average returns had been 150 pounds a hive. The poorest average during that time had been seventy-five pounds while the year 1921 gave an average of 277 pounds.

This is not intended to be a boom story. Space will not permit an account of the difficulties to be met. It is not to be expected that everyone who buys a few bees will secure such returns for we are now telling about results obtained by the successful ones.

Those who know the business equally well can expect to secure similar results while those who do not will be unequal to meeting the problems offered by the long and severe winters. Mr. Floyd of the Department of Agriculture already mentioned and Prof. A. V. Mitchener of the College of Agriculture are doing everything possible to help those who do not fully understand beekeeping under Northern conditions.

One of the most interesting men met on the trip was W. E. Bissonette of St. Jean Baptiste Manitoba. He captured a stray swarm six years ago and has built up an apiary of 115 colonies from this single swarm making the bees pay their way and in addition contributing to the support of the family. In 1921 he sold $1500 worth of honey from fifty-two colonies. At the time of my visit he had a better crop on the hives of the 115 which at that time composed his apiary but since it was not yet sold I did not learn the amount of his total returns.

There are those who advocate keeping bees on every farm. I do not think this is a good suggestion because too many farmers are not prepared to give them proper attention. Neglected bees are about the poorest property a man can have and in addition they become a menace to those which are well kept through danger that they may become diseased and spread contagion throughout the neighborhood. Bees may well be kept by any farmer who will give them proper attention and many such will find them the most profitable branch of the farm.

Doctor Coulter is right. If North Dakota will be a land flowing with milk and honey she must raise her own bees and dairy cows.

LIST INTERNATIONAL MULTI-MILLIONAIRES

LONDON, July 25 (Associated Press) —Who are the ten richest men in the world? asks the Sunday Express. It answers the query itself by giving a list at the head of which is Henry Ford, whose fortune it estimates at $500,000,000. John D. Rockefeller comes next with $450,000,000; Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, is third with $150,000,000, and then follow the Duke of Westminster, Sir Basil Zaharoff, Hugo Stinnes, Percy Rockefeller, Baron H. Mitsui, Baron H. Iwasaki and the Gækwar of Baroda, each with $100,000,000.

James B. Duke, the tobacco king; George F. Baker, of the First National Bank of New York, and T. B. Walker, the Minneapolis timber landowner, the Express says, might be added to the list, since they all have fortunes estimated at $100,000,000, while there are at least three other Indian rulers whose fortunes probably exceed this amount.

The Rothschilds, Guggenheims, Vanderbilts, Weyerhousers, and the Astors, says the writer, do not appear because theirs are family fortunes. The Rothschild wealth has been estimated at from $250,000,000 to $500,000,000 and that of the Astors at from $100,000,000 to $500,000,000.

Henry Ford is possibly the richest man in all history, the paper declares. He has a net business income of more than $100,000,000 a year. He earns $250 every minute. Croesus may have been richer, since his famous gift to Delphi cost $10,000,000, and that, reduced to today's terms, might mean $200,000,000.

John D. Rockefeller gave away $500,000,000 to charity and to foundations before 1921. He is the head, however, of the biggest group of wealthy men ever produced by a single industry, and his private fortune must still rank him second.

Sir Basil Zaharoff is Europe's mystery man, but it is no my tery that he is one of Europe's wealthiest men. He owns more than half of Monte Carlo, and his holdings in armament firms are even larger. He is in oil, finance, shipping, in fact, it is difficult to say what he is not interested in.

The Mitsuis and the Iwasakis are financiers, traders, and shippers. The Gækwar of Baroda's wealth is almost impossible to estimate, but his diamonds alone are valued at $1,250,000, and he has a jewelled tapestry worth $1,500,000. Guns of gold weighing 400 pounds stand at his palace gate.

THE CHIPMUNK.

The chipmunk is one of the most charming of our wild creatures. He has a spriteliness and a winsomeness that makes for friendship; he has a childlike abandon, an optimism unexcelled and a spirit of freedom that is irresistible; he is a bit of his native woodland. Although he will not become as intimate with man as the gray squirrel, he is still well-known and generally loved, and is met with everywhere, away from the city's activities, along wooded country roads, in rocky hillsides where a tree or two will give protection, in and on old stone walls, always where a hiding place is near if danger threatens.

John Burroughs has written again and again about the chipmunk, now with a brief mention, now with a paragraph, now with a half-essay. They were always numerous in the Catskills and he found in them a constant source of interest. The one problem that always perplexed him was how they were able to burrow underground for yards to their winter cavity and still leave no trace of soil at the entrance or exit. This he never solved. The general belief had always been that they carried soil in their cheek pouches to a distance from their holes and there deposited it. He found that soil is not carried in their cheek pouches but that it is dug and manipulated with the feet just as with other burrowing rodents.

Last summer they were very friendly at our summer camp and I took much pleasure in watching them. They ran fearlessly in and out of and all around the tent; often they seemed to be playing tag. In pursuit and in going to and from the burrow they leap as far as possible, apparently with the idea of avoiding a regular path, which would betray them. And how they talk, whether playing or resting. If danger really comes, they tell all of their friends in no uncertain tones. This alarm Mr. Chipmunk keeps up as long as possible. If he must dive into his hole, his friend on a near-by rock keeps up the din of danger.

What a shame that this superactive little fellow must withdraw underground and sleep his life away in winter. In April and May he comes out to sun himself on pleasant days, but if cold weather returns he retires to his cell and sleeps a while longer.

FULL OF PLANES

MARSEILLES (By mail to United Press).—Airplanes everywhere—high and low, far and near.

Five and six in view at once—this is the sight one sees as one travels along the Riviera from the Italian border to Marseilles. As the train winds along the picturesque seaside, travelers seem never to be out of the sound of the hum of an airplane motor.

To a traveler coming from Germany where the passing of an airplane causes the whole population to pour out of doors to watch the unusual sight, one is impressed by the wealth of air machines everywhere visible along the route of travel in Southern France.

Many of the big air stations are located in the sunny warmth of Southern France and every minute—it seems—they take the air for trial spins and experiments.

TWO WORDS OF ENGLISH

LYON (By mail to United Press).—American tourists hitting this in-between city have found a real American barbershop where English is spoken and haircuts ala American are on tap.

But there's a trick in it.

"Barbe Americain, English spoken, mode Americain."

This is the sign in the window which entices the wayfarer into the shop.

The American barber turns out to be a Frenchman whose entire American vocabulary consists of the two words "shave" and "haircut" and whose American mode consists of cutting as much hair from the victim's head as he will permit without committing murder.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Presbyterian Sunday School Held a Picnic In Cobourg. — Personal Mention.

MILLBROOK, July 25. — The Sunday school of Grace Presbyterian church held a most successful picnic at Cobourg park on Thursday, over one hundred of the members and friends of the school motoring to this delightful spot on the shores of Lake Ontario and enjoying the afternoon's sport and good fellowship together. The bathing facilities were apparently the main attraction for the majority of the picnickers, but races and other sports, with the opportunity of seeing an interesting League ball game, provided enjoyment for all. The bountiful supper which was served about 6 p.m. satisfied everyone's appetite, the committee in charge looking after the wants of the guests in a very efficient manner. Many remained for the band concert in the evening, and altogether the outing was considered the most successful of these annual events which the Sunday school has yet given under its auspices.

Born—At 74 Marjorie avenue, Toronto, on Sunday, July 15th, 1923, to Mr. and Mrs. Russell Howe (nee Pearl Nattrass), a daughter, Margaret Elizabeth.

Rev. W. B. Tucker, who has been pastor on the Brighton circuit for the past two years, was the guest of his brother, Rev. S. T. Tucker, at the parsonage last Saturday. Rev. W. B. Tucker has, at his own request, been left without a charge for the current year.

WOMEN OF THREE GENERATIONS

The daughter, mother, and grandmother have all proved from personal experience the remarkable strengthening and tonic properties of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in overcoming the ills of women. It was first made from roots and herbs in 1873 by Lydia E. Pinkham of Cobourg, Ont., for her neighbors and friends. Its fame has spread from shore to shore until it is now looked upon by women everywhere as the standard remedy for woman's ills. It has been proved that it benefits 98 out of every 100 women who try it, which is a marvelous record for any remedy to hold.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Renewed Offer Of Strip Of Land To Corporation.— Re-Flooring Bridge.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 25. — W. G. Fraser, who resides on Alma street, near the depot, has renewed his offer to the town council to exchange a strip of his land which would permit the straightening of that thoroughfare on which there is considerable travel, especially during the train hours, for a street reservation owned by the town, and which extends from the present terminus of Palliser street to the railway. This right of way at present runs through Mr. Fraser's property and he has the use of it rent free. Some time ago he made the council an offer of $100 for it but this was not accepted. The unopened street contains about one-fifth of an acre so that Mr. Fraser's offer was at the rate of $500 an acre. He says that the land will never be of any use to the town as it is land eight feet below the present street level, and there are no buildings on either side. Palliser street could never be extended beyond the railway track as there is a high embankment at the end of the unopened thoroughfare in question.

Among the public works planned by the council this year is a cement sidewalk from Grand Road along Alma street to the depot to replace the wooden walk now in use, and which is supported on posts. A fill will be required at considerable outlay before the new sidewalk can be put in. There is a sharp turn in the street and this could be eliminated, and the thoroughfare made safer for traffic if Mr. Fraser's offer is accepted.

Between Mr. Fraser's land and the depot there is a small strip that he rents from the railroad company at a rental of one dollar a year, and which he uses as a stohage place for lumber.

Reflooring the Bridge.

Reeve Anderson has been delegated by his colleagues on the County Council committee to look after the reflooring of the bridge, and has already asked for estimates on the lumber required. It has been decided, after the recent conference which the committee had with the Department of Highways officials in Toronto, that it would be useless to wait for the Legislature to amend the statutes so as to authorise a Provincial grant.

The Government recently refloored the portion of the bridge over the Trent Canal, and the work has proved so satisfactory that the committee will probably adopt the same style of repairing. Two thicknesses of plank were laid, the lower crosswise and the upper lengthwise, this making a roadway as smooth as asphalt.

The cost of reflooring the bridge must be borne entirely by the town and county ,25 per cent by the former and the balance by the latter.

A cement floor, such as recommended by a Toronto engineer, would cost in the neighbourhood of $10,000.

Home on Visit

Mrs. Frank F. Davidson, of Ford City, accompanied by her little daughter, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Fraser. Mrs. Davidson's husband is employed in the Frod automobile plant, and has not lost a day since going there three years ago. He intends to take a vacation in August, and will visit his native place a few miles from Campbellford.

Mr. Davidson enlisted in Havelock for overseas service, and was wounded four times. He was offered a pension of $7.00 a month, which he declined to accept, regarding it as inadequate.

QUIZ CORNER

ALBERTA.

Q—What are some of the chief features of Alberta?

A—Alberta is the most westerly of the three prairie Provinces. The Rocky mountains, whose scenery is unsurpassed in any part of the globe, forms more than half of the dividing line between it and British Columbia. The province contains three territorial belts— southern, central and northern. Edmonton is the capital city. Alberta is delightfully healthy throughout its length and breadth. There are few blizzards or violent storms of any character and the winters are for the most part of a very enjoyable temperature and the warmth of summer never becomes oppressive.

Southern Alberta is a rolling, treeless prairie land with a high altitude, a somewhat light rainfall and is still the great ranching section of the province. Central Alberta has a soil that is practically inexhaustible in its capability for producing splendid crops. It is well watered and has important resources in timber, chiefly poplar and spruce. In Northern Alberta are to be found open prairies lying close beside lightly and heavily wooded areas. Settlers are making homes along the railways.

PROPOSAL REJECTED.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(Canadian Press.)—The Shipping Board after an all-day session yesterday, rejected the proposal submitted by the American Steamship Owners' Association for the operation of the Government merchant fleet without supervision of the Board.

In announcing this decision, Chairman Farley said the Board hoped soon to be able to make public a plan for direct Government operation, details of which are now being worked out.

Public Prosecutor Killed By Communists

FRANKFORT, July 25.—(Canadian Press.)—Dr. Haas, the public prosecutor, who was killed during Communist disturbances here Monday, was literally butchered by the mob whose leaders dragged him from his home. He was first hauled through the streets until he was unconscious. The rioters then stood him against a lamp post where he was beaten across the head and face with iron rods and clubs and pelted with stones until death came.

The mob also attempted to invade the Hotel Frankfurterhof but was repulsed by reinforcemetns of police.

The authorities believe Dr. Haas' death was instigated by criminals whom he had prosecuted.

Crop Forecasts Have Been Over Optimistic

OTTAWA, July 25. Canadian Press. — Comenting upon western crop prospects, last night, Hon. J. A Robb, Minister of Trade and Commerce, expressed the view that overly optimistic forecasts of a bumper wheat crop in the prairie provinces were to be regretted as they might have a depressing effect upon the price obtainable and were founded largely upon conjecture.

"Reports that Canada will produce 500,000,000 bushels of wheat, are appearing in the British and the United States press," said the Minister. "The last crop report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics does not warrant any such estimate. During the next few weeks rust, hot winds or other such agencies may cut the expected yield down tremendously. These statements have the effect of depressing the price and I regret to see them in print."

Mr. Robb denied any knowledge of a movement credited to western grain interests to have the recent lake freight legislation suspended.

Harvesting To Start In About Fifteen Days

EDMONTON, Alta., July 25. Canadion Press. — Harvesting in central and northern Alberta will be under way in about 15 days, judging by the reports from various districts The grains are heading out in fine shape and prospects for a better yield have not been better for many years.

The stand of wheat and oats is heavy, correspondents reporting lodging on some fields.

Hail damage is reported in some lently severe to mar the general districts but it has not been sufficoutlook for a bumper yield.

Harvesting will likely commence about August 15 at Calahee while Red Deer places its opening date as August 23.

Lacombe operations will commence ten days earlier than usual, while Clairment, in the north, reports that the binders will be out in a little more than two weeks time. There is no doubting the heavy yields from some districts. At Red Willow some of the farmers expect 40 bushels per acre, while Castor claims that the yield will be around 30 bushels.

The grain is falling over at Solden where there was a severe hail storm.

UNITED FARMERS MET AT OMEMEE

Pleasant And Profitable Time Spent At Home of F. G. Sandy.

OMEMEE, July 25. — If the United Farmers' political organization is dead, it has a peculiar way of showing it.

When Mr. F. G. Sandy wanted a pronouncement on a matter of policy of the Progressive Party, about four hundred people from all over the county assembled at his home. There were representatives from Fingerboard, Valentia, Little Britain, Oakwood, Manilla, Woodville, Ops, Lindsay, Reaboro, Downeyville, Dunsford, Bobcaygeon, and many from Omemee.

After an hour of social intercourse, the happy gathering was called to order by the president of the U.F.O., Mr. T. A. McConnell, who acted as chairman, while a varied musical programme was given, consisting of the following:

Selection by the orchestra.

Duet — Misses Ilein and Marion Pogue.

Violin selection—Master J. Callaghan.

Vocal duet with guitar accompaniment—Misses Osborne of Eden.

Violin duet—Callaghan Bros.

After listening to this splendid musical programme, enthusiastic and optimistic speeches were made relative to the future of the movement by Messrs Bruce McNevin, the county president; Robert Reid, of Reaboro; N. Smith of Valentia; Emery of Sonya; A. Horn and N. Smale of Lindsay, and Mrs. F. Webster and Mrs. N. Hall, of Reaboro.

Naturally each speaker paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Sandy and although he was the defeated candidate yet they are proud that he is still taking a deep interest in the affairs of the country.

The National Anthem brought to a close a lengthy but enjoyable programme, after which the United farm women of the district served refreshments. Thus ended a most memorable event in the history of the community.

OTTAWA EXHIBITION PLANS A BIG YEAR

Thirty-Sixth Year of the Central Canada Exhibition Promises To Eclipse All Previous Records.

Prize lists are now available for the 36th annual exhibition of the Central Canada Exhibition Association and may be had on application to the secretary, Mr. J. K. Paisley.

The Ottawa fair is the largest in Eastern Canada, in fact takes second place to only one annual exhibition on the continent. An idea of its importance in the encouragement of live stock and agricultural production is the fact that over $35,000 is offered in prize money for live stock. Encouragement is given to all branches of industry and art and to education along valuable lines. Notable factors in the big fair are the automobile show, the pure food show, baby show and child's welfare, dog and cat shows, art exhibit, women's useful and fancy work, domestic science products, horticulture and garden produce, machinery, dairy, manufacturer, and other feature displays including exhibits by the Dominion and provincial governments.

Entertainment of visitors is also provided for on an elaborate scale. There will be an abundance of band music each afternoon and evening with community singing at nights. The midway will have scores of novel and interesting devices. This year an entire new midway has been secured with high class shows and the latest riding devices, including the Caterpillar which has just come out in New York, and which is both thrilling and amusing. In front of the grandstand will be a most attractive program with thrilling acts and high class vaudeville with comedy predominating, auto polo and auto races, Robinson's elephants, the Great Van Norman in a death defying ride down a steep incline ending with a plunge into a tank of water, and several other offerings which have been New York hits in the past season. The fireworks each evening will be the most spectacular ever presented in Ottawa.

The dates are Sept. 7th to 17th, and preparations are being made to care for a record attendance. With the improved roads, thousands are sure to come by automobile and for these special parking arrangements have been made inside the grounds. Special rates will also be given on the railways.

DOCTORED HIS BEER DEATH MAY ENSUE

Professor Bengo Collapsed After Drinking Seventeenth Stein Of Beverage.

CHICAGO, July 25. Canadian Press. — For years "Professor" Bengo has astonished onlookers here by eating enormous quantities of food and drinking copious draughts of liquids. To-day he is in an hospital near death as a result of a trick played on him while giving an exhibition last night, and two men are held in jail pending the outcome of his condition.

Bengo had downed his seventeenth stein of beer in a saloon last night after despatching a quantity of sausage and half a dozen eggs.

Some one poured oil of mustard in the eighteenth stein. He drank the doctored beverage and then collapsed. Physicians say that he may die.

YOUR CHILD IS AN ANIMAL.

Many mothers do not realize that children are little animals and require as great feeding care as other young animals. Everyone knows that young animals can be killed by improper food.

Chickens, pigeons, guinea pigs, ratts, mice, dogs, monkeys, and men have been quickly brought to death's door or killed by an exclusive diet of white flour products, polished rice, white or creamy wheat, barley, and corn cereals, from which the dark parts have been refined away. With all of the above foods as animal can eat, it soon dies, because such foods are deprived of their alkaline salts and growth and repair substances. Such foods turn the blood acid and the body's vitalizing elements are thus destroyed. The very bones are absorbed in the process. Prof. Forbes fed swine modern corn cereals until their legs broke under them because of poor bone quality.

We must revise our child feeding. More whole grains, milk, eggs, beans nuts, vegetables and fruits, foods which kept our forefathers rugged and long lived. Such foods keep the blood normally alkaline and rich in growth and repair substances, lessening sickness and increasing growth.

There is but one non-acid, wholegrain cereal, Roman Meal, 400 parts in each 1,000 parts "Excess Alkali" (opposite of acid). Roman Meal, as porridge with milk, or as baked products with milk as drink, will keep your child normal, robust and well. Your child demands the best and Roman Meal is the best child's food. Icy-cold CHOCOLO-O, BROSE-O, and JELL-E are hot day treats. Recipes on package. At grocers.

COMMUNISTS WINNING.

BERLIN, July 25. — (Canadian Press.)— In the elections held throughout Germany of delegates to the forthcoming Metal Workers' Congress at Cassel, the returns show that the Communists are winning all along the line and that the Social Democrats everywhere are in the minority.

There have been many abstentions from voting, however, particularly in Berlin, where only forty per cent. of the metal workers cast ballots.

MAY ARREST COWS.

HELENA, Mont., July 25.—(Associated Press)—A cow, or any other animal, which becomes addicted to the narcotic habit in Montana, may be arrested and confined in the state sanitarium until pronounced cured by the physicians in charge, according to a new state law.

The new law, legislators say, is the result of a clerical error made in the closing days of the session. An amendment, intended to strengthen the anti-narcotic law, was tacked onto the law providing for the condemnation of stock driven insane by eating of loco weed.

OMEMEE VILLAGE AND THE DISTRICT

Enjoyable Lawn Social — Happy Community Dance. — Automobile Accidents.

OMEMEE, July 25.—The spacious lawn of Mr. F. G. Sandy presented a welcoming appearance to the many who were fortunate to attend a gathering at his home on Wednesday evening. An array of flags, pennants and Chinese lanterns made the decorations more charming and the host and hostess were untiring in their efforts for the pleasure and comfort of their guests. A gayly decorated booth on the grounds, under the auspices of the U.F.W.O. and did a flourishing business in ice cream etc.

Community Dance

A community street dance was held on Tuesday evening, on the corner of Sturgeon and King streets. The Italian orchestra, who have been resident of Omemee for the past month supplied A-1 music. The boys supplied cornmeal with which to sprinkle the pavement and the old and new dances were indulged in, to the heart's content. Many young people from the surrounding district, joined in the festivities and a large crowd of spectators were in attendance. The affair was very informal and it is understood that a real opening of our new paved roads is to be held in the near future.

The First Acciden:

The first accident to occur on the new pavement happened on Friday evening, when Mr. Havelock Fee's car and Mr. W. G. Stephenson's new Durant collided at the corner of King and Sturgeon streets. The occupants escaped unhurt, and apart from a few minor injuries to the latter's car. No other serious results followed.

Total aCr Accident

Among the tourists to visit Omemee during the past two weeks were Thomas McBrier, Frank Becker and Harry Mille, all of Akon, Ohio, when motoring homeward, on Sunday their car went into ditch, between Vineland and Beamsville, killing Thomas McBrier almost instantly. The party were travelling at a fast rate at the time and in turning out to pass another car, going in the same direction their car turned over in the ditch. Mr. McBrier's body was badly cut and bruised. The other occupants Frank Becker and Harry Miller were very seriously injured and are now in the Welland Hospital, in St. Catharines, they were unable to give their names and grave fears are entertained for their recovery. The body of the dead man was held at Beamsville awaiting instructions from friends in Akron.

THE COACH'S JOB

Something of the taskmaster, the general and the diplomat, and a lot of the doctor must be hidden away in the man who would be the coach of a successful football or track team.

Emergencies of all kinds are his daily routine. A thorough knowledge of first aid is as essential as a knowledge of the game played by his men.

Bumps, bruises, strained ligaments and muscles are every day happenings, but the coach never becomes contemptuous of them. He knows that if neglected, they may result in anything.

Trainers everywhere keep Absorbine Jr. in their lockers. They use it not ony for sprains, cuts and bruises, but for the skin and blood protection of its disinfecting properties. In one convenient container it combines the functions of a number of preparations.

It is the first of all the First Aid requisite in use in all the leading athletic clubs.

And there are just as many everyday uses for Absorbine Jr. in the homes of Canada as there are in the training camps. Always keep it in the home where you can "jump to it" in case of emergency. $1.25 at your druggist.

REGAINS 18 POUNDS LOST WEIGHT

Taking WINCARNIS

"I was very sick; lost almost 18 pounds in weight; was extremely weak and nervous, and could not get a single night's sound sleep. I had constant medical attention and the best of wholesome foods, but my condition grew more alarming until I began taking Wincarnis, which helped me from the first few doses.

I have completely regained my former weight and strength, sleep soundly every night, eat most heartily and have an abundance of energy. My husband and my mother were so amazed at the effect of Wincarnis in my case that they both began taking it as a tonic. Today, they are just as loud in praise of Wincarnis as I am, and we do wish it were known to every weak, nervous or run-down person."

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—(Canadian Press.)— Cleveland and St. Louis divided a double header which was featured by home runs here yesterday. The Browns won the first game, 3 to 1, and the Indians annexed the second, 3 to 2, in 13 innings.

In the first game, McManus' home run, after Williams had singled, in the eighth inning, decided the issue. Brower scored Clexeland's run when he hit for the circuit in the seventh inning. Tobin tied the score when he duplicated the feat in the Browns' half. Jamieson's four-base hit in the thirteenth inning won the second contest for the Indians. Myatt and Tobin also cracked out homers during the contest, which was a pitching duel between Edwards and Kolp. Edwards struck out ten batters. Scores:

First Game:

MARANVILLE IN TROUBLE

BOSTON, July 25. — (Canadian Press).—"Rabbit" Maranville, Pittsburgh shortstop, lost his license to drive automobiles in Massachusetts yesterday. SCOTS TOO MUCH FOR THE QUAKERS

Postponed League Game Resulted In a Win For The Thistles, 6 To 0.

The postponed league game between the Quakers and Thistles was played last evening at the Oval the Scots winning 6 to 0. Honor turned out for the Quakers for the first time and the Thistles had a re-arranged team.

Only five minutes had gone when the Thistle scored on a well-placed cross by Burgess to McMillan. Logan initiated a move to penetrate the Scots' defence. He evaded the backs and tested Scott who cleared safely. The Quakers came back again through Hepburn on the left wing. His parting shot hit the far upright and came back to G. Logan who was ruled offside before he scored. There was nothing between the two teams for nice combinations. A free kick against Foster taken by Mackay, was a stinging shot saved by Griffin. Burgess returned from the wing, Richmond trapped the ball and at the first chance let drive, hitting the crossbar. Young cleared to Mayette who travelled down the field then centered to Craig who missed a great chance. Rae relieved the pressure. Hutton dribbled into Quakers' territory for a play that resulted in Griffin giving a splendid exhibition of goal-keeping. He handled every ball in quick fashion. The Quakers were playing around the Scots' end when half-time arrived. Thistles 1, Quakers 0.

No sooner was the ball centered, on resuming, when it was landed in the net by Richmond. At this reverse, the Quakers came back strong for next ten minutes and hemmed the Scots into their own goal but could not find an opening. A break away by McMillan and Richmond resulted in the former lifting the ball over the defence men's heads and into the goal far out of the reach of Griffin. Play travelled from end to end until Burgess' individual effort was stopped by Griffin when a goal looked sure. Montgomery retired with a twisted knee 20 minutes before the finish. Immediately afterwards Hutton added the fourth goal on an individual run. This was followed up by another from a corner kick taken by Burgess. McMillan tried to score but Shewan put the finish on it. There was nothing of interest until the end. Thistle 5, Quakers 0.

Goal-scorers—McMillan 2, Richmond 2, Hutton and Shewan.

Quakers—Griffin, goal; Young and Foster, backs; W. Logan, Hepburn and Honor, half backs; Mayette, Montgomery, Logan, Craig and Pellow, forwards.

Thistle—Stott, goal; Rae and McAlpine, backs; Jackson, Mackay and Rickard, half-backs; Shewan, Hutton, Richmond, McMillan and Burgess, forwards.

Referee—J. Clark.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR DEMPSEY BATTLE

Tex Rickard Is Expected To Make a Definite Announcement This Afternoon.

NEW YORK, July 25.—(Canadian Press)—Negotiations for a heavy weight title match between Jack Dempsey and Luis Angel Firpo, cloaked in mystery for the past ten days, reached such a stage yesterday that Promoter Tex Rickard declared he probably would have a definite announcement to make at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Just what this announcement would be the promoter declined to reveal, but there was every indication that the match had been clinched after a series of conferences during the day, among Rickard, Firpo and Jack Kearns, the champion's manager.

This belief was strengthened by Rickard's statement that the principals had reached a thorough agreement with him on financial details and that there seemed no necessity for any further conferences before public announcement of the situation.

The promoter indicated that the site and date of the proposed match still were uncertain, but general belief prevailed that he was endeavoring to effect an agreement to use the Polo Grounds for the fight on or about Labor Day. It also was said that September 22 had been considered as a desirable date.

MINER WAS KILLED

TIMMINS, Ont., July 25. Canadian Press. — Forrest Dowall, a Nova Scotian, aged 46, was killed while working at the Hollinger mine last week. He was using a scaling bar when a quantity of ore dropped, engulfing the lower part of his body and crushing the back of his head. A coroner's inquest resulted in a verdict of accidental death. The body was shipped to Nova Scotia where a wife and a family of five children survive.

THERE IS GLORY IN DEFEAT, TOO!

When Tommy Gibbons returned to his home town, St. Paul, after standing Jack the Giant Killer Dempsey off for 15 rounds, at Shelby, an enormous crowd greeted him at the railroad station. Tom was presented with flowers and speeches. Did he like it? Take a look at the smile in the photo of him inset.

MAYFLOWER WILL RACE ON AUG. 27

Yacht-Like Fishing Boat Will Have a Chance To Show What She Can Do

GLOUCESTER, Mass., July 25. —(Canadian Press).—The Boston schooner Mayflower, twice ruled out of international fishermen's contest because of her yacht-like lines and great sail area, will have her chance in the open fishermen's race in Massachusetts Bay, August 27, for the trophy offered by Sir Thomas Lipton This event, open to fishing schooners of all the world, will be rated under "fishermens rules," with no restrictions as to hull and sail measurements or ballast. It will be part of the program for the celebration of Gloucester's 300th anniversary as a port.

The entry of the Mayflower became known yesterday when it was announced that three other United States schooners also had entered for the Lipton Trophy. The Henry Ford, deefated last year by the Lunenburg boat, Bluenose, for the International Fishermen's Cup, is one of these. The Elizabeth Howard, runner-up to the Ford in last year's in the United States elimination races is another; while the third is the new schooner. Shamrock, now being fitted out at the Essex yards for a Boston fish firm. The new Columbia, an aspirant for international honors at Halifax in October, will not race here as she is engaged in salt fishing on the banks.

No entries are expected from Nova Scotia, where the owners are said to be reserving their resources for the intenational fixture.

RAYBESTOS LOST TO ELECTRICIANS

Good Game at Riverside Park Last Evening Ended With A Score Of 4 To 1.

The C.G.E. team added another victory to its City League string by defeating the Raybestos nine 4 to 1 last evening. The game, though loose at times, was a vast improvement over the exhibition given when these two teams last met.

White was on the mound for the Raybestos, and turned in a good game. He held his opponents to four hits, no two of which came in the same inning, but his team mates managed to inject their errors into the game just when they would do the most damage. He walked two men in the first inning, but from then on they had to swing at them to get on. Frost went the whole distance on the mound for the C.G.E. He had a 6 to 4 edge over White in the strike-out column, but he also walked two and allowed four hits.

A muffed fly following two walks and a hit in the first inning gave the Electricians two runs. The one earned run came in the third frame when Rose singled, stole second and third, and came home on a wild pitch. Barrie added another in the fourth, getting on on an error, stealing second, and coming home on Jackson's hit.

Jobbitt registered the only run for the Raybestos. He got to first on a walk, went to second on an error, and took third and home on infield outs. The Raybestos looked decidedly dangerous in this inning, the last man coming to bat with the bases loaded, but the necessary hit was not forthcoming.

Webb got the only long hit of the day, and was comfortably resting on third when the ball was returned to the infield; he had unfortunately neglected to touch second as he went by, and a play to that sack retired him.

OHIO FARMERS

where the explanations were made by the farmers themselves at the request of the agents who manifested something of the satisfaction and pride of capable teachers listening to the recital and demonstrations of apt students.

Mr. McRea emphasized the interest displayed by the Ohio farmers in the extension work of the Bureaus. In Wood county, 1,500 of its 2,000 farmers were members of the county Bureau, a comparatively high percentage. Not only had the extension service a State leader, but the inner functioning of the Bureau was organized on a commodity basis with separate sections for grain, hay, dairy, poultry and so on, covering all the branches of farm industry.

The question of fertilizers had been investigated and members of a township Bureau could obtain scientific advice as to the best fertilizer to use on their land, and on the other hand could buy that fertilizer through the purchasing and distributing branch of the Bureau. Transportation, commercial, economic, educational, legal, all these departments and many others were included in the advantages afforded the members of the Bureau. Coal, for example, was one of the commodities bought and distributed on this co-operative plan.

Mr. McRea pointed out that by the method employed in Ohio many of the farms were virtually demonstration farms for some branch or other of agriculture, exerting and impetus and incentive to farmers in their localities. The high percentage of membership indicated the extent of the appreciation of the Ohio farmers of the service that was supplied to them through their Bureau at a nominal annual fee.

A High School For Lakefield Village

LAKEFIELD, July 25.—At a meeting of the Public School Board held in the Council Chamber on Wednesday afternoon last, it was decided to appoint Miss I. Duff, Principal of the Public School at a salary of $1,200.

Miss Kennedy and Miss Payne, who have been on the staff more than seven years, were each granted an increase of $50 salary.

The Continuation School no longer exists, as the Department of Education has made Lakefield a High School centre, dating from September of this year, J. M. Simpson being retained as Principal.

GOT HIS "SOUVENIRS"

Kingston Whig—The umpires were all that could be desired and handled a very trying game efficiently. A great many fans kept slamming at Umpire-in-Chief Butler—but had they been in the proper position to see things they at once would have realized that he was handling his job unusually well. Collings, on the bases, left nothing to be desired—although we still have a sneaking hunch that he got away with one or two balls belonging to the Kingston club. He seldom leaves a town without his "souvenir."

BUSH FIRES ARE OUT

NORTH BAY, Ont., July 25. — Canadian Press. — Several small bush fires which were burning in this district, have been quenched by the rain which fell plenteously last night and to-day. The showers which were accompanied by a decided drop in the temperature are more than welcomed by the farmers of Nipissing whose grain crops are suffering from the drought. The haying is well under way and is reported to be one of the best crops in years. The grain will scarcely be up to the average unless there is more rain for the rest of the season.

FIRPO AND WILLS READY FOR CHAMP

Gibbons Exploded Popular Belief That Dempsey Was Too Good For His Challengers.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, July 25.—Just a year ago, Jack Dempsey was forced practically into retirement because of the scarcity of "logical contenders" for the heavyweight championship.

Every aspirant for the title was loaded down with some kind of a "too" that would not develop the steam necessary to put over one of the modern heavyweight scraps.

Gibbons was too little; Willard was too old; Wills was too dark; Firpo was too green; Beckett was too horizontal, and Carpentier was too through.

In the short space of a few months the whole situation was turned over, several "toos" were removed, and now Dempsey has in the makings enough work to keep him busy for a year and bring him another fortune.

Tommy Gibbons was the biggest factor in bringing the heavyweight division back as the leader in the biggest season that boxing has known in a decade.

It was Gibbons who exploded the popular belief that Dempsey was too good for any of his rivals and that the best of the contenders for the title would be little better than a set-up for the champion.

When Gibbons went through fifteen rounds with Dempsey without being knocked off his feet, Dempsey lost all his claim to the title of an invincible superman, and it was only logical to figure that if a light heavyweight like Gibbons could keep Dempsey away for fifteen rounds that some heavier man, with a little class, could give the champion a great battle.

Some opinion exists that Dempsey "carried" Gibbons for the very purpose of destroying confidence in his ability that he could get some big shots against the other contenders.

Dempsey's poor showing against Bill Brennan the last time they met, when Brennan went twelve rounds with the champion, made the Carpentier fight possible, because the public figured that the champion had slipped and that the Frenchman would have a real chance to win.

Perhaps Dempsey did not extend himself against Gibbons. No one knows but Dempsey, but few who saw the fight in Shelby on the Fourth had many doubts that the champion was doing his best and that he really tried to knock Gibbons out.

As a result of that bank-wrecking Shelby affair, Dempsey has two big fights in prospect with Luis Firpo, the South American giant, and Harry Wills, the big colored stevedore. Another match with Gibbons would also be an attractive card.

Dempsey, no doubt, will choose to take the South American first. Not because he fears Wills more, but the longer he allows the impression to prevail that he is dodging the colored fighter the greater the interest in the match when it is made.

Before Firpo fought and knocked out Jess Willard, smart ring men expressed the opinion that the sooner Dempsey got the South American into the ring the better his chances would be of retaining the title.

It was figured that time would increase the chances of the Argentine giant and lessen the effectiveness of the champion. Since the Willard fight, however, it is generally believed that Firpo is as good as he will ever be. The South American has the mental equipment to learn in the gymnasium, but he hasn't the temperament to carry out his lessons in the ring.

He is a right-hand fighter, a charger and a mauler, and it seems sure that he will never be anything else. Perhaps he is too old to learn how to box and to change his style.

Wills, just the same, will become no better as time passes, and if Dempsey really has any fear of the stevedore, he is smart in putting the fight back as far as possible on the calendar. While there is no real reason to believe it, the opinion is spreading that Wills has slipped way back in the last few months.

Regardless of the many complicated angles, it would be worth while to see Dempsey in fights with Firpo and Wills and it would be a treat to see another Dempsey-Gibbons fight.

SPORTING EVENTS AT CAMPBELLFORD

Lady Bowlers Try Conclusions — Marmora is Seeking Lacrosse Argument.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 25.—Two rinks of lady bowlers tried conclusions on the green, Monday night, one skipped by Mrs. F. J. Smith, whose aides were Mesdames J. A. Stewart, J. P. Archer and W. S. Wiggins and the other by Mrs. (Dr.) A. Haig, assisted by Mesdames L. B. Glover, D. W. Douglas, and H. O. Richardson. Miss M. Robertson acted as spare, relieving both sides are required. After an exciting contest in which some five shots were made Mrs. Smith's rink were the winners by a lead of one.

Marmora Wants Games

Marmora is anxious to get on home and home games of lacrosse and baseball with teams from Campbellford, the games on the former place to be played on Wednesday afternoons, the half holiday there.

The Juveniles of Campbellford ask nothing better than to be led to the fray, and declare they are ready to take the trip at any time. With the baseball team, it is different, as the league games are played on Wednesday afternoon. Manager Davidson, says that even if they had an open date on a Wednesday afternoon they could not play an outside team, without special permission from the League, until the close of the season in August. After that Campbellford will be ready for exhibition games with Mormora or any other teams.

League Games To-Day

The scheduled games in the Northumberland League this afternoon, are as follows:—Colborne at Brighton, Roseneath at Orland, Harwood at Campbellford, Trenton at Warkworth; Hastings, no game.

NEW TYPE SWAT STICK RAISES BABE'S AVERAGE

Also, It Carries Much Adverse Criticism For It Is Made of Four Pieces of Wood Glued Together.

When Babe isn't busy making home runs he is pulling something that will keep Judge Landis and Ban Johnson interested. In 1921 Ruth made 59 home runs. The lively ball in use was regarded as the big reason for the Babe's remarkable feat.

If the Babe should come through this year with a goodly share of circuit drives, in all probability an investigation of the bat he uses will be demanded.

On July 2 started to use a bat, the like of which has never been seen in the base ball world. Since that date Ruth has been on a swat spree that has greatly increased his home run record.

Rule 15 of the playing code says that the bat used in base ball must be round, not over two and three-fourths inches in diameter at the thickest part, nor more than 42 inches in length and be entirely of hard wood.

The bat that Ruth is now using with such great success is all that the rule says and then some. Instead of being turned out of one piece of wood, the bat is made of four distinct sections, which are glued together.

Crawford's Idea.

This unusual bat is said to be the outgrowth of an idea advanced by Sam Crawford, in his day one of the greatest batsmen the game has ever produced. The best are now being turned out at Whittier, Calif., Crawford being interested in the company that is making them.

With the ordinary bat there are always parts of the wood that are weak because of the grain. As a matter of fact most batsmen so hold the bat that the grain will always be up when it comes into contact with the ball.

Crawford's idea does away entirely with any weakness in the bat. The bat is constructed of four sections of the very best selected wood, so that it is uniform throughout. It is known as the "quadre-built bat," and the claim is made that it is many times stronger than the one-piece affair.

Questions Asked.

Has Ruth the right to use such a bat?

Does such a bat comform to the rules of base ball?

It may be necessary for Ban Johnson, Judge Landis and the other high powers of base ball to pass on this question.

The four-piece bat unquestionably offers an opportunity for trickery. If such a bat was loaded at the point of contact with a heavy substance would it cause the ball to travel farther?

Would a cork center in the bat make for distance as it has in the ball?

Could Pull Something.

Constructing the bat of four distinct sections would offer the possibility of pulling something?

Is glue to be regarded as a foreign substance?

Crawford sent several of these bats to Ruth. The Babe is trying them out and is having unusual success. There could be no greater ad for a bat than the fact that Ruth is using it and making plenty of home runs.

In all probability before many weeks have passed the "quadrebuilt bat" will be as widely discussed as the "shine ball" the "emery ball" and other widely known tricks of the trade.

Lawn Tennis

HINTS FOR BEGINNERS

The increasing popularity of Lawn Tennis is not due to any sudden whim on the part of sport lovers, nor is it a fad which will pass suddenly. Its steady growth is accounted for by the inherent soundness and versatility of a game which calls for enough speed to satisfy the strongest athletes, and yet may be played with such skill that a woman may become a good player.

To the beginner, the first problem is the choice of a racquet. There are many good makes of racquets and weights and balances to suit all tastes. Any racquet that feels good in the hand, in other words, that feels in balance, is a good racquet. For the beginner, however, a racquet that is strung too tightly is a bad thing, for the reason that the tight board-like surface does not take hold of the ball well, and the smallest error in timing causes a bad shot. With the softer surface, of an old bat the player must follow through more and in doing this learns a sounder stroke and is more accurate. Single stringing is also better as the more often the mesh, the more it grips the ball and imparts the necessary spin to it.

Most racquets are made with handles too square for proper grip. An oval handle is more conducive to the English grip, which is now acknowledged to be the best. This can easily be remdied by choosing a handle that is a little large and flattening it on the playing sides. If handle is too small, it may be flattened and wranped with tape. A large handle will tire the wrist more quickly than a small one.

The next article will deal with the proper method of gripping the racquet.

CUP HOLDER AN EARLY VICTIM IN TOURNAMENT

R. J. Wray of Belleville, Winner of the Stratton Trophy Last Year, Was Eliminated in Preliminary Round by Jack Bacon This Morning.

PIPERS TONIGHT

G. N. Gordon, J.P., loosed the barrier that started twenty-seven rinks in the Peterboro Bowling Club's Tournament this morning. The number of entries was six more than last year.

The local bowlers made up twelve rinks, including the Kiwanis four, skipped by Jack McKone, and of the fifteen visiting rinks four were from Campbellford, three from Belleville, three from Cobourg, two from the Queen City Club, of Toronto, one from Oakwood Club, Toronto, one from Port Hope, and one from Bowmanville.

Walter Oke, president of the Peterboro Club, introduced the visiting skips, and then called upon Mr. Gordon to welcome the rinks on behalf of the local bowlers.

Mr. Gordon spoke briefly, and wittily, of the old game of bowls, referred to its good effect in drawing men together, not only in their own communities but beyond those boundaries to other towns and cities. It was pleasant recreation with a social intercourse that was most desirable.

Mr. Gordon said that it was an excellent thing that men from so many centres could meet together for a day or two in the fine game of bowling, and to the contestants he wished them all the best of luck in their play. Mr. Gordon threw the first bowl and the battle was on.

Gaily Decorated.

The weather was ideal for the game this morning, and the grounds were profusely decorated with flags and bunting, whose colors contrasted vividly with the green of the lawn and the tall trees surrounding the grounds. Clouds chased each other across the path of the sun, some of them extending out so far that the faint hearts, the worriers on the executive, began to sniff rain in the air. A cool, invigorating breeze swept across the sward, a grateful substitute for the sweltering heat that usually settles down on Peterboro's annual tournament.

Herb Martin, secretary of the committee, was in charge of the draw and lunch was served by the wives of some of the members, a facility that obviated delays between the games and helped keep the play running smoothly.

Public Invited.

The Caledonian Pipers will give a concert on the grounds this evening at seven o'clock, and the public are invited to watch the play. This morning's draw was for the J. R. Stratton cup, which was won last year by R. J. Wray of Belleville. This phase of the tournament is for the regular rinks and the Scotch doubles will be started as soon as possible for the E. V. Warne cup.

The morning scores in the Stratton competition were—

TRYING TO PROVIDE WORK FOR WORKLESS

DUBLIN, July 25. —(Associated Press).—There are more than 62,000 persons without work in the Irish Free State for whom the government is struggling to find employment. The unemployment difficulty, and the liberation of 12,000 political prisoners still interned, constitute Ireland's most formidable problem.

It is estimated that the Free State army now consists of 49,000 men, and before the end of the year the Minister of Defense hopes to bring this figue down to 29,000 The government is puzzled to know what to do with the 20,000 soldiers when they are demobilized. The problem is common to all Europe where, through a disturbance of markets, there are more men than can be absorbed in industry. Fortunately, the Irish Free State is in a better position to absorb these men than most other countries would be. It starts off with the important fact that it is a creditor nation, exporting in each year a great deal more than it imports.

THE CATERPILLARS SCARCE IN PARKS

Caretaker in Victoria Park is Keeping Watchful Eye on Pests.

"Caterpillars are scarce in Peterborough this year, and we can very well get along without them," Mr. Hayward, gardener at Victoria Park said to-day. The tent caterpillars are the terror of all gardeners, eating the foliage off the trees, and proving difficult pests to get rid of once they gain a foothold.

Mr. Hayward is keeping his eyes open for the first of the caterpillars and will come down on them with a heavy hand.

In other centres where the pests have been allowed to thrive the situation is now serious it being necessary to destroy entire boughs on which the caterpillars had erected their tents. The insects settle on a branch of a tree and build a tent-like silken web as a resting place. Besides destroying the foliage this year the young will do great damage to the trees next spring if allowed to survive.

Hiawatha

When Longfellow's "Hiawatha" is produced in the Ojibway language by the Indians of the nearby Garden River Reserve at Sault Ste. Marie on August 7 and 8, during Discovery Week, it will be given right in the heart of the Hiawatha country and it is peculiarly fitting that the play should ge put on in a region every corner of which is identified with some legend of the IndianPrometheus.

It was on the site of the present city of Sault Ste. Marie that the ancient Ojibway village of Pauwiting, the home of Hiawatha, stood. It is thus that the Canadian Government's "Handbook of the Indians of Canada" spells it, though Longfellow supplies the name to the rapids themselves. It was into the swift Pauwating" that Kwasind threw the huge stone.

"Where it still is seen in Summer."

Then follow the lines:

"Once as down that foaming river,
Down the rapids of Pauwating."

It is all there, the foaming river, the rapids, famous three hundred years ago as a place to catch the attigmaig, the whitefish, and still famous for that. Lake Superior is the Gitche Gumme of the poem.

"Forth upon the Gitche Gumme,
On the shining Big-Sea-Water,
With his fishing-line of cedar,
Of the twisted bark of cedar,
Forth to catch the sturgeon Nahma,
Mishe-Nahma, King of Fishes,
In his birch canoe exulting
All alone with Hiawatha."

Mishe-Nahma is still to be caught in Lake Superior, for only last summer Frank Lapointe, one of the best known fishermen of the section brought to the Sault a sturgeon weighing 390 pounds. The fish was eight feet long with a girth of four feet.

Three hundred years ago, in 1622, when Etienne Brule and his companion Grenolle, the first white men to see Lake Superior, visited the village of Pauwiting it was the sacred shrine of the Ojibways, the earliest known inhabitants of the region, at that time perhaps the most populous Indian nation north of Mexico, a nation who roamed as lords over a territory a thousand miles wide, extending from north and east of Lake Huron to the Turtle Mountains in Manitoba. An Ojibway who had been to the rapids at Pauwiting had made a holy pilgrimage, just as the Mohammedan who has been to Mecca. The rapids were looked on by the Ojibways as the most sacred spot known to their race, for there, their traditions said, their ancestors were created, there the Manitous blessed the people and from there their nation dispersed round about Lake Superior.

It is a beautiful land, this land of Hiawatha, a land of fish and game, a land of forest and of mountain, of swift rushing streams and tumbling waterfalls. One of the most exquisite waterfalls in Canada is Crystal Falls sometimes called Minnehaha Falls, on Silver Creek, eight miles from the Sault. Its 200 feet of tumbling water is known widely, and in Algoma, the land of waterfalls, none is more beautiful.

The site where the play will be produced, Bellevue Park, within the limits of the city, is itself a beautiful spot on the border of the St. Mary's River, about two miles below the rapids. The location is a natural amphitheatre. The stage will be set out in the water and the audience will gather on Prince's Island, where is situated the grave of Col. John Prince, the first judge of Algoma District and a figure not unknown in Canadian history. It was Col. Prince who durin g the rebellion of 1837 created quite a stir by shooting some of the rebels at Sandwich without the preliminary of a trial. His action came in for a good deal of criticism, but he was treated more leniently than might have been expected, chiefly because of the interest taken in his case by the Duke of Wellington, then Prime Minister of England. Anyhow the colonel was given a grant of land at the Sault and made first judge of the district.

The situation is one of romantic associations, and altogether fitting for the production of the play, which will follow very closely the lines of Longfellow's poem. Longfellow's haunting verse has given the old Ojibway story a permanent place in literature. Legend gathers easily around a great leader and such Hiawatha undoubtedly was. His story is comparable in many ways to that of the Greek Promstheus, the fire bringer, to that of the White God of the Aztecs, in some ways even so that of the Celtic King Arthur.

The play, which was proposed 29 years ago by George Kaboss, one of the most important of the Ojibway chiefs, will show the infancy of Hiawatha, his childhood, his wooing of Minnehaha, the wedding feast and the arrival of the first white men. It is in this last feature that the chief variation from the poem will come. In the play, the first white men will be Brule and Grenolle though in the poem they are not identified. At this meeting the Indians will give native songs and dances and the French visitors will respond with some of the old chansons that were brought to this continent 300 years ago and which still live, such songs as "Sur le Pont d'Avignon."

The Indians who will take part in the production are descendants of the tribe whom Brule and Grenolle found at Pawiting, and in fact it was only in 1905 that the Indian village on Whitefish Island in the St. Mary's Rapids, in the city limits, was abandoned, the Indians moving to Garden River, where a reserve of 29,000 acres, including some of the finest agricultural land, had been established in 1835.

Even today they are mighty hunters and fishermen. A feature of the play will be a portage race, in which the performers will pack the canoes and their cargoes overland. It is not an uncommon thing for an Algoma Indian to pack 400 to 500 pounds on his back, and some years ago George Linklater astonished the crowd at the Hippodrome in New York by carrying 700 pounds.

The Ojibways were a people with a fairly well developed civilization, as the copper spear heads redcently uncovered on an old beaver dam near the Sault would go to show. Lately quite a large number of Indian relics have been picked up, flint spear heads, stone skinning knives, stone axe heads and so on.

Miss Wabunosa who will take the part of Minnehaha is a very good looking young lady and of quite a charming personality. She has much dramatic ability and gives a very interesting rendition to the character. The young girl's family have been leaders in the tribe for generations, and today no family stands higher in esteem, either in the tribe or among the white people of the district.

Her brother Albert is one of the directors of the play in which he is Pau Puk Kee-Wis. He has been interested in the poem for many years. Making a little speech at a luncheon of the Canadian Sault Rotary Club, he said that he felt that the presentation of Hiawatha by his tribe had made better men of them.

Hiawatha will be assumed by a young Ojibway named Zhach, 21 years old, who comes of a very old Indian family. Zhach is a rather good looking young fellow and makes a lively chief.

Shawano, an Ojibway about 40 years old, presents the character of Iagoo, the story teller. Shawano is a great athlete, and it is of record that no white man has yet been able to put man has yet been able to put him out of a canoe in tilting contests.

Kwasind, the strong man, who aids Hiawatha to clear the river of rocks and trees in the poem, will be represented by an Ojibway named Mukwa (the bear) who is quite a good actor. He is about 35 years old.

The part of Chibiabos, the sweet singer will be taken by Tatebahbundung, the best tenor singer of the Ojibways. The lyric singing of old Indian songs will be one of the features of the play. Bukwuzinni, will teach Hiawatha to shoot in the play, and there will be numerous other prominent parts assumed by members of the tribe.

One of the incidents of the wedding feast of Hiawatha and Minehaha will be the induction of General Sir Arthur Currie and Colonel C. H. L. Jones as Ojibway chiefs.

The final scene of the play is a very impressive one, when Hiawatha, bidding his people farewell, stands erect in the canoe, with paddle outstretched before him and disappears into the sunset, propelled by some supernatural force.

"And the evening sun descending
Set the clouds on fire with redness,
Burned the broad sky, like a prairie,
Left upon the level water
One long track and trail of splendor
Down whose stream, as down a river,
Westward, westward Hiawatha
Sailed into the fiery sunset,
Sailed into the purple vapors,
Sailed into the dusk of evening.

"And the people from the margin,
Watched him floating, rising, sinking,
Till the birch canoe seemed lifted,
High into the sea of splendor,
Till it sank into the vapors
Like the new moon slowly, slowly
Sinking in the purple distance . . . .

"Thus departed Hiawatha,
Hiawatha the beloved,
In the glory of the sunset,
In the purple mists of evening,
To the region of the home-wind,
Of the Northwest wind Keewaydin,
To the Islands of the Blessed,
To the Kingdom of Ponemah,
To the land of the Hereafter.

REX INGRAM FILMS SOUTH SEAS STORY

Rex Ingram's latest production for Metro, "Where the Pavement Ends," is coming to the Capitol Theatre on Thursday, for a three day showing. It is a tale of the ways of romance in the last outpost of romance—the South Seas. In this thrilling and realistic photoplay is pictured how love came to the lonely daughter of a missionary. Here is all the exotic beauty of the Southern isles—here is the essence of strange and heart-filling romance translated to the screen by a master director.

The story was adapted by Rex Ingram from a story in John Russell's book, "Where the Pavement Ends," which has had an enormous sale. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle called the volume "the best book of short tales by any debutante since Kipling's 'Plain Tales.'" Mr. Russell acted in an advisory capacity during the filming of the story in Florida and declared himself highly pleased with the realism which Mr. Ingram obtained in the settings.

The fact that the picture was made by the director of "The Four Horsemen," "The Prisoner of Zenda" and "Trifling Women" is enough to assure fine artistry and high distinction. And here again Mr. Ingram has captured the true spirit of his story. And it is the living, intense spirit of a strange tale of a strange place, people by men and women who feel fully all human emotions.

The exceptional merit of the production is also attested by the particularly notable cast. Alice Terry and Ramon Novarro play the leading roles. Miss Terry will be remembered for the rare ability which she displayed in "The Four Horsemen" and "The Conquering Power." Mr. Novarro, Rex Ingram's latest screen find, won the highetst praise of movie-goers in "The Prisoner of Zenda" and "Trifling Women." Edward Connelly and Harry T. Morey add new laurels to their distinguished reputations.

HORN IMPORTANCE

A horn or a car should work and respond as quickly as any other unit of the car. If it does not work properly the following check-up should be made:

See that it is properly oiled.

Tighten electrical connection.

Inspect push-button contacts for improper adjustment or corrosion.

See that the wiring is properly insulated and free from accidental grounding.

Test voltage at horn terminals, and see if battery is sufficiently charged. The voltmeter should show at least five and one-half volts when horn is operating.

POLICE

treal and watching the bridges and roads and railway stations, officials of the Montreal banks are planning added protection for their money stores, and additional protection for their messengers on the streets, as the of rumours that the gang of bandits who yesterday morning attacked the train of bank messengers in the heart of Toronto's financial district, are preparing to carry off another coup in Montreal.

St. James Street is a camoujaged arsenal with the tightening of the already strong guard on all the bank premises and the arming of messengers to the teeth.

The use of snipers in steel-plated watch towers in the banks and armoured cars for the transportation of moneys is advocated by detective agencies whose business it is to protect financial houses and banks.

Provincial Police said to-day that the collision of two automobiles on the Garrison Road near Fort Erie last night had resulted in the burning of one of the cars. None of the occupants were injured, and the Provincial officers said no official report of the accident had been made.

Reports from Toronto of the finding of the burned automobile abandoned by the six bandits who yesterday fought a pistol battle with bank messengers in Toronto's financial district, and escaped with $130,000, were believed by the police to have originated with the finding of the damaged machine on the roadside by passers-by to-day.

The Ottawa police to-day received complete descriptions of four of the six men who held up the mank messengers in Toronto yesterday and got away with funds estimated as high as $130,000.

The sawed off shot gun which was picked up near the bank where it was dropped by the robbers, is being sent to the Fingerprint Headquarters of the R.C.M.P. here to see if any fingerprints on the gun may be identified.

PROTECTION HERE SAME AS TORONTO

Messengers Go Armed—Banks Do Not Lose by Robbery.

System of protection for Bank Messengers in Peterboro are practically the same as in Toronto, representatives of the banks said today. Messengers carrying money or valuable papers are armed and usually go in pairs. The manager of one bank said there is no object in increasing the guard, since the bandits who contemplate a holdup will simply increase their number sufficiently to overcome the bank guards.

Evan S. Martin, Manager of the Bank of Montreal, said that all possible precautions are taken to safeguard money in transit. New regulations are under consideration which will increase the margin of safety, but the clearing house board has not yet decided on the lines these will take. For obvious reasons they will not be published.

The clearing house in Peterboro is situated over the Bank of Montreal in Toronto, the Bank of Montreal maintains an automobile for transporting money from the clearing house to the bank. The money is placed in a steel safe which is chained to the inside of the car, and armed men accompany every consignment.

These precautions are not taken here, the amount handled being relative small and other considerations making them unnecessary.

All amounts carried from clearing house to bank are covered by insurance, so that the loss does not fal on the bank.

Some of Peterboro's banks are protected by a police alarm system, which rings in an alram to the police station in the event of burglary.

Canadian Stock Exchange And Mines — New York Stock Exchange And Curb Prices

To-Day's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, July 25.—(Special.)—The stock market was fairly active at the opening to-day, with most of the industrials off fractionally, while the Rails were firmer. Pan American B was off a half at 59 1-8 and soon sold under 59. Steels, Coppers, Baldwin, Can. and Studebaker were fractionally lower, while American Locomotive, Southern Pacific, New York Central and Canadian Pacific were slightly better.

A further reflection of the uncertain movements in commodity markets was found in the announcement that leading Chicago producers of pig iron had cut the price of all grades 50 cents a ton, making the price $27.50 f.o.b. furnace. The demand is reported light, reflecting the steel tonnage situation.

Some Oils were in supply, Cosden selling down to 36, off 1 1-4; while Maryland at 36 1-2 was fractionally lower. Pan-American B was most active issue among the oils however, and it gave signs of receiving some support around 59.

Consolidated Gas was rather conspicuous by its firmness, being up nearly a point at 61 3-8.

Rails continued firm, Hill Roads showing fractional rallying power from opening lists, slightly under Monady's close. Erie did not appear in the first half hour's trading, although earnings in the first half year indicated $4 a share, a common for the year compared with earnings in 1922, representing 79 per cent. of fixed charge.

Activity increased towards the end of the first hour and although the list was under pressure, leading stocks held well.

The market gave the appearance of being more reactionary than was the case.

Studebaker was off but 1-4. American Can. and Baldwin the same, and American Locomotive 1-8. Steel and Bethlehem were 1-8 above the opening at 90 1-2 and 46 3-4 respectively.

Great Northern Preferred sold at 60 3-4, off 1 1-4, while Northern Pacific at 63 was down fractionally.

Stewart Warner was off 2 at 88 3-4, while Dry Goods lost the same amount at 82.

Delaware and Hudson was up one at 104. Opening prices: General Electric 173 5-8, off 1-8; Sinclair 23 3-4; North American at 3-4, off 1-8; United States Steel 90 3-8, off 1-8; New Haven 12 3-8; Bethlehem Steel 46 5-8, off 1-4; American Telephone 122 1-2, up 1-8 Pan Petroleum B 59 1-8, off 1-2 American Smelting 56, off 1-8; Baldwin 119 1-8, off 1-4; Baltimore and Ohio 49, up 1-4; American Locomotive 69, up 1-8; Wool 35, off 1-8; Southern Pacific 86 1-4, up 1-4; Northern Pacific 63 1-8, off 1-4; Can. 89 3-4, off 1-2; N.Y.C. 93 3-4, up 1-2; Canadian Pac. 145 1-4, up 1-4.

RECIPES

Jellied bouillon is more to be desired in hot weather than hot bouillon. There is just as much nourishment in the cold soup as in the hot.

Serve in bouillon cups with crisped wafers.

There is a distinct advantage in serving bouillon as the first course rather than a fruit cocktail, in that it leaves the fruit for a salad or dessert.

Cold bouillon needs to be more highly seasoned than hot.

The jelly must be delicate and tender rather than thick and tough, and should be clear and sparkling. Care must be taken that all fat is removed before serving.

Jellied Bouillon.

Six pounds knuckle of veal, 1 head celery, 2 onions, 2 carrots, 2 tablespoons salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, 3 quarts water.

Have bone well cracked and sawed. Cut meat in inch pieces. Cut onions in halves and carrots in inch slices. Wash celery and use good tops. Cut in inch pieces.

Put all ingredients in soup kettle, using cold water. Bring slowly to the boiling point, skimming frequently. Let simmer without boiling for six hours. Strain and let cool. When cold remove fat. There should be about 1 1-2 quarts of stock

To make the soup clear and sparkling, wash one egg. Break into a bowl, saving the shell, and beat slightly. Add egg and shell to cold stock and bring to the boiling point, stirring constantly. Boil three minutes. Simmer fifteen minutes. Strain through cheesecloth and set aside to cool. When cool put on ice to chill. This makes a clear light-colored soup that is appetizing to see and delicious to eat.

The woman who prefers not to spend the time making her own stock will find the canned soups combined with gelatin a very good substitute.

Another Way.

One can canned bouillon, 2 cups water, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon onion salt, ½ teaspoon celery salt, ¼ cup cold water, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatin.

Put soup, water and seasonings into a smooth sauce pan. Bring to the boiling point. Soften gelatin with cold water. Add boiling soup and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Set aside to cool. When cold put on ice to chill and set.

Put jellied soup into cups with a teaspoon.

A delicious vegetable soup is made with home-made stock or bouillon cubes of your favorite brand.

Vegetable Soup.

Left-over vegetables such as peas, asparagus and carrots, are nicest in cold soup. Cut the asparagus and carrots in small dice. These vegetables can be used in combination or alone.

Dissolve 2 bouillion cubes in 2 cups boiling water. Soften 1 tablespoon gelatin in 2 tablespoons cold water and add boiling soup. Stir until dissolved and add vegetables. Stir frequently until beginning to set, to keep vegetables from settling to the bottom. Chill.

SPECTACLE OF DEALERS WITH WAD OF MARKS

Bewildered Germans Unable to Follow the Drop of the Paper Mark and Panic May Follow.

HIGH FINANCE

BERLIN, July 26.— (By Carl D. Groat, United Press).—The spectacleof a nation of people all striving franticlally to get rid of their money presented itself throughout Germany to-day.

Bewildered Germans unable longer to follow the drop of the paper mark into nothingness are making desparate efforts to lay hands upon everything tangible in lieu of the practically worthless currency.

A panic is on in the minds of the people who find the banks unable to supply the change for a ten dollar bill.

Citizens are hurrying to shops with thousands of thousand marks done up in paper bundles.

"Give us anything you have to sell" they are demanding in many instances of harrassed clerks and shop-keepers who Midas-like, find everything they touch turning to these papers marks that are snowing under the once orderly economic life of Germany.

Pockets no longer are large enough to hold all the mark notes one needs for an excursion into the streets of Berlin. A familiar sight is the citizens with its long bundles of money under arms or stuffed in huge handbags.

Everyone knows what his neighbour has under his arm and everyone is hurrying to spend the marks lest to-morrow they become worthless. In each Hotel and Restaurant now a special group of waters is installed who do nothing but figure haw many million marks worth each guest is eating so that his check may be ready for him when he finishes his meal.

Regular waiters never would be able to pursue the mathematical parabolics and new occupation with meals at least, as payment has been found for persons of sufficient mental attainment to do multiplication.

Meanwhile everyone is laying in canned goods.

The Banks are quite unable to change a ten dollar bill. They pass out a ration of a few hundred thousand marks and give a certified cheque for the balance. These cheques the merchants naturally accept in lieu of anything else.

In many instances the merchants are refusing to deliver goods C. O. D. the day following the agreement to purchase but are demanding cash down "to-day." This is because the tumbling mark may have depreciated as to make the bargain a bad one. The charge accounts have been eliminated from Berlin business life. In Cologne, shop-keepers are closing up early to keep clustomers from buying everything they have. The latter are reported to be no longer asking "how much is this or that," "what will these buy," producing hundreds of thousands of paper marks.

Sometimes shops become so crowded that the clerks close the doors with a house full of customers emptying their pockets across the counters while others clamour outside seeking admission to buy anything they can get for their money Cologne merchants are particularly hard pressed because it will be impossible for them to restock as long as the French maintain the blockade of the occupied areas.

If trade continues, down to the last man, they will be left with a mountain of worthless paper for which nothing is offered.

ECHO OF TAYLOR CASE IN CALIFORNIA; WRITER OF THREATS IN CUSTODY

MARTINEZ, Cal., July 20.— Albert Sans, alleged author of threatening letters to Mabel Normand, film actress, and to Mack Sennett, motion picture producer, was held here pending a hearing to determine his mental condition. Police declare Sans apparently is obsessed by a hallucination that he is responsible for the death of William Desmond Taylor, screen director, slain in Los Angeles in 1921.

The missives to Miss Normand were so loosely written as to be nearly incoherent, but the text of some indicated that Sans entertained an idea he was engaged to wed the actress.

In spite of the similarity between the name of Sans and that of Edward Sands, the valet who was sought in connection with the killing of Taylor, authorities scouted the theory that the men are related.

Freight Traffic in Peterborough City Remarkably Good

Freight traffic in Peterboro continues to hold up in a remarkable manner, considering that July and August are usually dull months for domestic traffic, rail officials say.

Outgoing traffic originating here and inbound traffic, both continue to increase, earnings month by month being bigger than last year

That spring business exceeded in volume that of previous years, and that summer traffic promises another record, augur well for the prosperity of the city as represented by its export and manufacturing activities.

POLICEMEN AT THE MEETINGS

Decision Reached After Disorderly Meeting of the London, Ontario, Council.

LONDON, July 26.—One or more policemen will be stationed in the Council chamber during sessions of the City Council in the future. This decision is directly the outcome of the incidents of Monday night, when Ald. Wilson was ordered to leave the room and refused to comply with the demands of the chair. When an alderman is ordered out in the future such order will be carried out by the policeman on duty even if he is compelled to carry the offending alderman out bodily.

According to an authentic report it has been decided that no member of the Council will be permitted again to make unparliamentary remarks while the Council is in session. The moment any members makes a remark that might be considered as under the ban he will be called to order by the chair. An apology will be requested, and in the event of the offender's refusal he will be asked to vacate the Council Chamber. If the apology is given the alderman will be allowed to retain his seat on the approval of a majority of those present.

While Ald. Wilson was officially an outsider during the last half of the Council meeting on Monday night, he is a full-fledged alderman to-day again. In fact, he was such one minute after the Council adjourned. According to the procedure by-law when an alderman is put out of a meting for misconduct his expulsion holds good only for that particular session. Hence Ald. Wilson will take his accustomed place at the next meeting of the Council or of any committee of which he is a member.

Mayor Wenige intimated last night that he would have a statement to make regarding the action of Ald. Wilson, but he has not yet issued any paper on this as yet. Whether he will do anything further with this particular case he did not say, but the concensus of opinion is that it will be allowed to drop, except that precautions will be taken to see that similar occurrences do not happen again.

Some of the aldermen are expressing their disapproval to-day of the turn of events at the Council meeting Monday night. Ald Greer is particularly disgusted, he states, and nothing would induce him to consent to sit for another year under similar conditions.

"While I do not want to say too much, I feel entirely disgusted," Ald. Greer stated. "There is no order maintained at all. It is foolish to as us to give up our time to the work of the city under such conditions. If there is another meeting like that of Monday night I would be much inclined to refrain from attending any further meetings. It is impossible to carry on the business of the city efficiently in such disorderly conferences."

ANOTHER REWARD

TORONTO, July 26.—(Canadian Press).—Local and Provincial Police admit that at present they are baffled in their pursuit of the six bandits who early Tuesday morning held up messengers of several Toronto banks and escaped with a sum of money estimated at beeween, $84,000 and $130,000 after seriously wounding three of the messengers in a sensational gun battle.

The police are without any clue to the identification of the gang of men and from out the numerous reports which have been received from various parts of the Province of the presence of strange men, "believed to be the bandits who shot and robbed Toronto bank messengers," there has not come to hand one single definite statement that would justify belief that the police have any hope of immediately apprehending the highway men. Authorities, however are not ignoring the reports. and in almost every instance where strong belief was expressed of the bandits having been seen, investigation was made, but without any tangible results.

Conference To-Day

General Victor Williams, Commissioner of Provincial Police and Assistant Commissioner Alfred Cuddy, conferred with Attorney General Nickle this morning on further steps of the Provincial authorities for the apprehension of the bandits. Although no definite statement could be ascertained this morning, it is believed that the Attorney-General's department will offer a reward for capture of the gun men in addition to the reward $10,000 already announced by the Canadian Bankers' Association.

Strong Protection

Strong protection was again afforded the bank messengers on their trip to the clearing house to-day and police officers patrolled routes from the bank offices to the clearing house, while those on foot were accompanied by policemen in addition to the guards employed by the banks The Bank of Montreal, Bank of Nova Scotia and the Sterling Bank sent their messengers to the clearing house on foot, while the others used motor cars with extra guards.

Wounded Will Recover

Hospital officials state that the condition of the three messengers W. S. Duck, James Harris and David Campbell, who were seriously wounded in the fight with the bandits is improving. and that they will recover.

A Chatham Rumor

According to rumor that was in circulation at Chatham, this morning the bandits, who staged the robbery in Toronto, Tuesday. may have been in this city early Wednesday morning. Four men, one of whom had on bandages, stopped at a local garage and purchased a new tire, tendering a brand new twenty dollar bill in payment for the tire. They were travelling in an old Ford car.

The Exact Booty.

At least $84,000 in bills on the Bank of Nova Scotia and the Sterling Bank of Canada, in denominations ranging from $5.00 to $100.00, with about $84,000 in cheques, drafts, etc., was the booty obtained by the six gunmen who held up a number of Toronto bank messengers at 9.45 on Tuesday morning, and made their escape in a seven-passenger touring car, after seriously wounding three of the messengers.

This information is contained in a description of the bandits and the automobile in which they made their getaway, forwarded by Chief of Police Dickson this afternoon to all points in Ontario and along the United States border.

BRITISH GOVT. DECIDES ON DEVELOPMENT OF AIRSHIPS

But Will Concentrate on Encouraging Commercial Services—Accepts in Principle Scheme For Bi-Weekly Service to India

LONDON, July 26. (Special.) — The British government has decided to resume its efforts toward the development of airships, Air Secretary Sir Samuel Hoar told the House of Commons this afternoon, and will proceed, if possible, by means of encouraging commercial services rather than through State operations.

The scheme submitted by Commander Charles D. Burney, for a bi-weekly service to India, using six large airships, has been accepted in principle, he announced, subject to the details of the contract being satisfactorily settled by the treasury.

The Dominions will be informed of the decision and the scheme discussed at the forthcoming Imperial Conference. Sir Samuel added that airships would revert to the government forces in time of war.

EXPRESS TRAINS CRASHED HUNDRED AND SIXTY DEAD

Cause of Terrible Railway Wreck Between Sofia and Varna Attributed to Faulty Signalling—Still Searching For Bodies

SOFIA, July 26 (United Press). — One hundred and sixty bodies have thus far been recovered from the splintered wreckage of the two Belgium express trains which crashed between Sofia and Varna on Monday.

Two hundred persons were killed and three hundred injured, it is now ascertained.

Wrecking crews still are searching the entangled fragments of the two trains for bodies.

Faulty signalling is claimed to have been responsible for the crash, in which an engine and eleven coaches were derailed and flattened by the contact.

From ten coaches no one escaped alive, and dozens of victims were unrecognisably mutilated under the grinding framework of the wooden cars.

The collision took place near Plevna.

FAMILY HOMES ARE BROKEN UP

And New Brief is Filed Against Alleged Author of "Poison Pen" Letters

NEW YORK, July 26.—(United Press).—Amid a thickening haze of mystery which shields the names of wives high in the social world of New York, Assistant District-Attorney William Maloney has filed a new brief in General Sessions Court in an effort to keep up the indictment against George Maxwell, musical executive.

Maloney charged in his brief that:

1.—Maxwell wrote 135 known letters—and perhaps hundreds more that are not known—to husbands of women he preyed upon.

2.—For six years this had broken up prominent family homes and even led some of the victims to commit suicide.

3.—The motive was to rid himself of wives he fired of, so that he might continue unhampered preying on others.

4.—No one else could have written the "poison pen" letters, because Maxwell was the only one who could know the details of all the affairs.

Interwoven in the strange case, which Maloney admitted is as much a mystery to him as anyone, is the story of a distorted mind, crazed and crafty, which covered every trace of its guilt. "Ninety per cent. of poison letters are written by women," Maloney said, discussing the loopholes in his case against Maxwell, which may result in dismissal of the indictment. "I believe Maxwell, associate of musicians, may have had the feminine touch necessary. The one man who has come forward to make the case possible is Allan A. Ryan, financier, who received letters concerning his wife."

Radiogram Submitted.

In the brief Maloney maintains that under-garments of Mrs. Ryan were found in Maxwell's apartment. He submitted a radiogram said to have been sent to Maxwell by Mrs. Ryan, in which she called him "love" and said she wished he was "the father of my children."

All evidence Maloney has now, he says ,is circumstantial. The letters were all mailed in New York and written on a typewriter. They contained obscenities and unnecessary details intended to enrage their recipients.

Maxwell contends that he could not possibly have written all the notes. He received many of them himself and helped an investigation into their authorship, started three years ago by the Postal Department. The investigation led to nothing.

While President of the American Society of Authors, Composers, and Publishers, Maxwell received one of the notes in Cuba. It was mailed from New York four days after he sailed. Another was received by him while he lay sick in the bed where he had been confined for a week.

Maloney's theory on this is that Maxwell has a confederate—possibly a woman. It might have been a jealous woman who tried to blight all of Maxwell's loves so that she could have him for herself.

"But we are lacking in legal court evidence," Maloney says. "Maxwell is charged with authorship of the notes and any indiscretions he may have committed otherwise have nothing to do with the case. We do not contend that he had anything at all to do with many of the women about whom the notes were written."

PEOPLE OF TO-DAY MUST CONFORM TO MODERNISM.

In an article in yesterday's Examiner dealing with Sunday bathing, the opinion ascribed to Alderman J. W. Meyers should have been written as given by Alderman M. J. Maher.

Alderman Meyers expressed the same sentiment in different words, saying he is wholly in favour of permitting Sunday bathing at the civic beaches. The people of to-day must forget the old-fashioned standards, and conform to modern ideas, Alderman Meyers said.

ROBBED OF GEMS LOSS IS $300,000

Two Men Are Held in $125,000 Each in New York on Robbery Charge

NEW YORK, July 26.—Details of the police pursuit of Eugene Moran and Albert Hurwitch, two of the trio of men who were alleged to have robbed Mrs C. P. Hugo Schoellkopf of $300,000 in gems after a card party at 64 West Fifty-second street at 1 o'clock on the morning of Jan 1 last, were revealed after the prisoners had been held in $125,000 bail for trial in General Sessions on a robbery indictment.

Moran and Hurwitch, who formerly was in the automobile business in this city, were captured by Detective Sergeants Martin S. Owens and Thomas Horan, Monday in the Nassau Inn at Princeton, N. J. They denied any connection with the hold up of Mrs. Schoellkopf, who is the wife of a Buffalo (N. Y.) manufacturing chemist, but consented to return to this city and face the indictments without the formality of extradition proceedings.

When they reached Police Headquarters Monday night they told Inspector John D. Coughlin, head of the Detective Division, that they never were in the West Fifty-second Street House, but yesterday morning the were indentified as two of the alleged robbers by Paul Englehardt, who, with Mrs. Schoellkopf, for several hours before the robbery, was a member of a card party in the apartment of Frank Baett Caman, a vaudeville actor, on the top floor of the house.

Englehardt told Inspector Coughlin that Moran and Hurwitch, with Matthey T. Biddulph, now serving a one-year term in Sing Sing for his part in the hold-up, occupied an apartment on the floor below the Carman home and that a short time before Mrs. Schoellkopf was stripped of her gems in the apartment occupied by the three alleged robbers Moran and Hurwitch were spectators at the card party.

Biddulph Aids State.

Biddulph pleaded guilty to the robbery charges and was the principal witness before the Grand Jury which indicted Morgan and Hurwitch in connection with the hold-up He previously had told Chief Assistant District Attorney Pecora that Moran planned the robbery; that Hudwitch provided the car in which the trio escaped with Mrs. Schoellkopf's gems, after they had drugged her and bound her to a bed in their apartment, and that, although he was promised $20,000 as his share of the loot, Moran and Hudwitch, with the gems, got away from him at the Gedney Farms Hotel, near White Plains, on the day following.

Following Englehardt's identification of the two prisoners. Mrs. William Meyers, wife of a man widely known in sporting circles, identified Moran as one of a pair of robbers who, in July, 1922, bound and gagged her and her maid in her apartment at Eighth Avenue and Fiftieth Street, and escaped with $60,000 in gems which, holding pistols at her head, they had forced her to take from her husband's safe. Charles Curtis, Moran's alleged accomplice in this robbery, was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment in Sing Sing recently.

After the police had announced Mrs. Meyers's identification of Moran, Assistant District Attorney Pecora stated that the authorities "had good reason to beieve" that Moran was one of the band of men who on the night of Nov. 15 held up Mrs. Charlotte King Palmer in her home at 69 East Ninetieth Street, and escaped with $767,000 in jewelry. This robbery was similar in almost every detail to the hold-up of Mrs. Schoellkopf.

ALL AGREE ON SUBJECT NOTE TO RHINELAND

Separate Replies to England Will Be Sent by France and Belgium.

THE STORM CLOUD

PARIS, July 26.—(United Press) — Accord has been reached by France, Belgium and Italy on the subject of their replies to Great Britain, with reference to the British reparations note to Germany, it was stated semi-officially to-day.

Premier Poincare the storm center of the dispute, announced he is going to the country, for a few day's rest.

In well-informed circles it is understood separate replies to England will be sent by Belgium and France.

The French reply will not be ready until the beginning of next week, but Premier Poincare is understood to have in mind the fact that the British Parliament is to adjourn August 3 and he is expected to submit his Government's answer before that date. While the Parliament has nothing to do directly with this stage of the negotiations yet it is thought here that Prime Minister Baldwin might like to say something to House of Commons on the subject before the summer recess, the negotiations; prior to the submission of the proposed collective allied note to the German Government in response to its reparations memorandum will hardly be completed with the submission of the French and Belgian replies to the British proposal, according to the view taken here, because it is considered that some points will require further discussion with the British Foreign Office. Therefore, there is a strong desire that every detail of the negotiations remain secret so that the German Government may have no opportunity to embarrass the Franco-Belgian-British discussion.

BRITISH BAPTISTS' NEW SUGGESTION

Want Baptist Ministers in Britain Ordained by English Church.

STOCKHOLM, July 26.—Representatives of more than eleven million Baptists meeting here in the convention of the World Baptist Alliance. Tuesday heard Rev. George W. Truett, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dallas, Texas, declare in the convention sermon:

"We do not disparage the work of the diplomatists and statesmen, but the redemption of the world does not lie in that direction. The world's only hope lies in Saviourhood and lordship of Christ."

Corvin S. Shank of Seattle, Washington, president of the Northern Convention: will preside Wednesday at ceremonies in honor of Gustavus Adolphus which will be held at the foot of his statute here.

The British delegation, it is understood, is insisting that the committee charged with drafting he message to Baptists throughout the world, will include in its present recommendations for the acceptance of the Lambeth proposals, which allow Baptist ministers in Great Britain to accept charged with drafting the message to pacy.

There is small chance of the inordination by the English Episcoprecedented suggestion is provoking heated discussions among the fundaclusion of the proposal but the unmentalists and the liberalists.

Peterboro Streets Get Daily Bath of 21,000 Gals. Water

Peterboro's down-town streets receive daily a bath of 21,000 gallons of water from the city watering cart.

This information was given today by Tom Bacon, the driver of the moving shower bath, who said he fills the tank on an average 35 times every day. It holds 600 gallons.

There is a second water tank which is held in reserve for exceptional occasions, but the regular cart makes its steady pace over the oil-less streets daily, washing them off and laying the dust.

A DECREASE IN LADIES' SHOES

Do Not Sell So Well These Days as Before the Advent of Automobiles.

Ladies' shoes do not sell as well now as before the automobile became so common, a travelling salesman for a large shoe manufacturing concern claims. Every year, he pointed out, sees the number of automobiles in use greatly increased, and every year a large number of women who were in the habit of walking in making their social calls and doing their shopping, are following the line of least resistance and are using their cars. In consequence, less shoes are being worn out, while also there is a marked decrease in the output of the fancy lines of women's footwear, he reported.

It appears also that the summer hotels are suffering this year because of the number of motorists who are carrying camping equipment with them.

Many motorists passing through Peterborough recently have had tents and baggage strapped to every available spot on their cars, while the motor launches which are not equipped with sleeping accommodation on board, carry as a matter of course the necessary camping requisites.

Cars of all descriptions bearing license plates showing that they come from many states in the Union, are seen almost daily on the streets, and the white yachting cap affected by visitors from across the line, is a common sight.

JOLLY ROTARY PICNIC AT COBOURG WEDNESDAY

Rotary District '27 comprising clubs from Peterborough, Trenton, Port Hope, Toronto, and Oshawa, held a very enjoyable picnic yesterday at Cobourg, when between five and six huundred Rotarians were present.

A big list of sports was run off and a soft ball series played in which Toronto and Peterborough were the finalists. Owing to the short time available for the play-off, only two innings were allowed, and the final score was 2-2. This tie will be played off in Trenton or Cobourg on a future day not yet settled.

About 40 from Peterborough took part in the outing.

NOTABLE DEMONSTRATION OF A BULLET-PROOF VEST

One Man Fired Revolver Point Blank at Another's Heart Without a Fatality or Wounds Resulting —Aftermath of Toronto Hold-up

TORONTO, July 26. Canadian Press. — Crime is having its own peculiar aftermath in Toronto. Gathered in the basement of down-town bank yesterday afternoon, hardly a hundred yards from the scene of Tuesday's robbery, a group of representative bankers watched with curious eyes while one man fired a revolver point blank at the heart of another. But no fatality or wounds followed the gun play of yesterday, for it was a demonstration of a bullet-proof vest, designed for protection against attacks similar to that of a few days ago.

Surrounded by an audience attracted by the unusual character of the demonstration, and composed entirely of bank employees and newspapermen, R. Workman, head of the Buffalo detective agency, explained the nature of the equipment. Beside him on the table lay two revolvers and nothing unusual in his attire could be detected.

"The majority of the bullet wounds received are in the body," he declared. "The vest which I am wearing is designed to afford protection to all vital organs, both from the front and back. Of 69 members of the New York police force who were killed by shooting during the past year 65 received bullets in their bodies, and I am satisfied that all the injuries suffered by the bank messengers yesterday could have been prevented if they had been equipped with this protection."

WOMAN'S DEATH IS SURROUNDED BY SUSPICION

Thought Poison Traced in Body of Buffalo Woman Found Dead in Toronto Hotel.

HAD PLENTY OF CASH

TORONTO, July 26 (Canadian Press). — That a strong suspicion of poison has been discovered in the autopsy on the body of a woman, who gave the name of Mrs. Smith, of Buffalo, and who was found dead in her room at a hotel at Gerrard and Parliament Streets here on Tuesday night, was the statement of Chief Coroner George Graham this morning.

The stomach has been sent to the Laboratory at the University for a complete analysis.

Complete mystery surrounds the woman's appearance in the city. She reached the hotel on Sunday night, but without luggage. Next day she left to visit friends in the suburbs of the city, and on Tuesday evening she was found dead in bed.

While she was apparently well supplied with ready cash on reaching the hotel on Sunday night, her purse contained only $1.29 when opened on Tuesday night.

Mrs. Smith was a stout woman, weighing about 220 pounds, grey-haired, and about fifty years of age.

OPERA HOUSE TO BE TAKEN OVER

Ambrose Small's Estate to Act on Agreement With Trans-Canada Theatres

MONTREAL, July 26. — R. A. Meagher, liquidator of the Trans-Canada Theatres, Ltd., to-day confirmed a report that the estate of Ambrose Small will take over the Grand Opera House in Toronto, in accordance with an agreement made prior to the failure of the Trans-Canada Company.

Under this, the estate exercised the right to claim the theatre under deafult in the yearly payments of $37,500 on the unpaid balance of $750,000 when the sale of the theatre was completed. The estate held a first lien on the building.

The Grand Opera House will be valued, and if the valuation does not reach the amount of the balance outstanding a claim will be entered with the liquidator for the remainder.

Mr. Meagher said that negotiations with the Ambrose Small estate are now in progress in connection with financial matters, and it was hoped that an amicable agreement would be reached.

No decision has been reached regarding the Peterborough opera house.

AUGUSTA, Maine, July 26. — Free after serving twenty years in prison for a murder the authorities now believe that he never committed, Henry Lambert, Shirley, Maine, is on his way to a small town in New York. A wealthy New Yorker who led the fight to obtain freedom for the prisoner, has obtained him a position.

In May, 1903, Lambert was convicted of the murder of J. Wesley Allen, and the latter's wife and a daughter, whose bodies were found in the ruins of their burned home. Governor Baxter and his council issued a pardon this month.

HARDING FROWNS ON ANNEXATION

President Tells Canadians That America Does Not Scheme in That Direction.

VANCOUVER, B.C., July 26 (Canadian Press). — "The ancient bugaboo of the United States scheming to annex Canada disappeared from all our minds years ago," declred President Warren G. Harding, speaking before a huge crowd in Stanley Park here to-day.

"Heaven knows," he continued, "we have all we can manage now, and room enough to spare for another hundred millions before approaching the intensive stage of existence of many European states. And, if I might be so bold as to offer a word of advice to you, it would be this: Do not encourage any enterprise looking to Canada's annexation of the United States. You are one of the most capable governing peoples in the world; but I entreat you, for your own sakes, to think twice before undertaking the management of the territory which lies between the Great Lakes and the Rio Grande. No, let us go our own gaits along parallel roads, you helping us and we helping you. So long as each country maintains its independence and both recognise their independence, those paths cannot fail to be highways of progress and prosperity. Nationality continues to be a supreme factor in modern existence. Our very propinquity enjoys that most effective co-operation which comes only from the clasping of hands in true faith and good fellowship."

43 WEIGHED AT BABIES' CLINIC

Constitutes a Record as Highest Previous Number Was 36 at One Session.

Forty-three babies were examined and weighed yesterday at the Well Babies' Clinic. This constitutes a record, as the highest number up to date has been thirty-six.

Interest in the coming baby show and contest at Peterborough's Fall Fair is probably the cause of the high attendance. Mothers are anxious that their infants shall be in the best condition possible to compete for the excellent prizes offered.

A feature of the baby contest will be the prizes given to the boy and girl babies showing the most improvement in physical condition from now on until the Exhibition. In this class of underdeveloped and undernourished babies there were seven entries yesterday at the Clinic, and the progress of these infants will be watched with especial interest.

That the prizes are going to be the cuase of keen competition among the tiny manhood and womanhood of the city is quite apparent. Upwards of $150 will be distributed to the winners, who will be divided into three main sections; one for babies up to the age of eighteen months, one from eighteen months to three years and a third for the undernourished or subnormal infant whose progress advances most from July 24th until the date of the Fair.

Yesterday, along with the mothers who are constant attendants at the Clinic, were noticed several who have been absent for months, and there were a number of women who brought other children along. Evidently the trouble involved in getting these other children ready for what was, in some cases, a long walk to the G.W.V.A. Hall, wasn't counted in the mother's mind. The general feeling seemed to be in accord with one woman who said it wasn't so much for the prize that she wanted to enter the contest, as to watch the gradual improvement in her baby's health during the time it was under observation.

Several of the mothers entering the contest have children in both of the first two classes.

The Clinic nurse reports a great deal of diarrhoea just now among infants, traceable, it is thought, to the recent sudden changes in temperature. Small infants suffer a terrible reaction from such excessive heat.

Summer feeding, also, is not always just as judicious as it might be. Women who would hesitate to give a small baby a drink of real cold water do not stop to think of the effect of overloading a wee new stomach with frigid ice cream. The component parts of ice cream are nutritious enough, but its temperature is too chilly for an amateur feeder. A baby of eleven months gets strawberries in profusion, another small creature is treated to shredded wheat biscuits, and still others are stuffed with indigestible things like bananas.

A wonderful improvement is noticed this year in the summer clothing of infants. What might be termed the emancipation of the baby is seen in its airier apparel on sweltering days. An age-old summer spectacle was that of a swathed, parboiled child with a fretful, indignant countenance. Now, it is common enough, and a very nice thing to witness, to see little pink toes and fat ankles in summer carriages, their owners possessing blissful countenances over light summer dresses, under which, it is said, no more repose the antiquated red or white flanned binders of another, more uncomfortable age. No longer, either, does prickly heat descend on luckless infants on sweltering days The inarticulate child whose querulous cries were always attributed to a misplaced grin, used to fret and fume in secret, while a fond mother wrapped it up in yards of heat-forming material, and covered its toes with hot, woolly bootees.

The Well Babies' Clinic, which takes a holiday during one week only in the year, the week between Christmas and New Year's day, is open all summer. Weekly clinics are held every Tuesday afternoon, when babies are weighed, measured and examined, and expert advice given with regard to their care and feeding. Examining physicians and the Clinic nurse, Mrs. G. McCartney, are always on hand, and Dr. Phyllis Young is taking Dr. Jessie Bernie's place during the latter's absence on summer vacation.

QUIZ CORNER

NEW BRUNSWICK.

Q.—What are the chief features of New Brunswick?

A.—New Brunswick adjoins Nova Scotia to the north and in area is a little smaller than Ireland. It is bounded on three sides by salt water and has a coast line of 600 miles. The Province was originally one vast forest, and much of it still remains so, freely interspersed with lakes and rivers. St. John is the capital city. The climate is healthful and bracing. There are no great extremes of temperature and the variations of heat and cold are in no sense trying.

FORT HENRY.

Q.—Where is Fort Henry?

A.—In 1813 a rude fort of logs for the defence of Kingston was thrown up at the summit of the hill, under the supervision of Colonel Henry Young, after whom it is said to have been named. Demolished in 1832, rebuilt of limestone 1832-6 and surrounded by a dry moat 50 feet wide and 40 feet deep, with stockade, used in 1838 for the detention of prisoners, of whom 15 escaped from it at one time.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES AND DEATHS.

Q.—What is the record of births, marriages and deaths in Canada?

A.—According to the vital statistics of 1921. Canada had 247,240 births, 108,408 deaths and 72,660 marriages.

TOP COATS.

Large checks, enormous plaid designs and very wide stripes are featured on the newest top coats, but the materials are so soft and the designs so subtly blended that the effect is truly charming.

MONEY PRESS CANNOT WORK FAST ENOUGH

Shortage of Large Denomination Bills In Berlin. 10,000 and 20,000 Mark Notes In Laundry Baskets.

PRICES RISING.

BERLIN, July 26 (Canadian Press). — A flood of 10,000 and 20,000 mark notes is inundating Berlin because of the Reichsbank's inability to supply sufficient quantities of high denomination currency, and a small army of bank clerks stormed the institution yesterday in an attempt to haul off enough paper to supply the private banks.

The heavy demand for currency was precipitated by a sudden rise in all prices, due to the mark's further collapse. Merchants and tourists who besieged the banks from early till late, are forced to depart with wads of small bills for which a suitcase or hamper is the only serviceable container.

The sudden dearth of big bills is due to their having been shipped into the provinces with a view to saving transportation and bundling charges, and, "pending the appearance of new one, five, and ten million mark notes," Berlin will be obliged to content itself with small bills.

Thousands of bundles of small notes are piled promiscuously into laundry baskets or motor lorries without being checked off. They are subsequently passed out to bank patrons or tourists with the same indifference, and unless the recipient is possessed of surplus time or patience, he tucks the bulky wad under his arm and walks away without counting them.

The surfeit of small bills is incidntally responsible for extravagant tipping, which is becoming general throughout Berlin, as the possessor of several million marks in small denominations is inclined to "unburden himself" of their bulk, and it is no unusual sight to see a tourist pass out a ten or twenty thousand mark tip, where a tenth of the amount is customary.

WORLD'S LUMBER BRITISH OWNED

One-Third Of The Forests Of The World Are Within The Empire. Great Timber Reserves.

OTTAWA, July 26.— (Canadian Press.)—That one-third of the forests of the world were in the British empire was the statement by Lord Lovat, chairman of the British Forestry Association at its session here yesterday afternoon. Lord Lovat stated that the timber reserves of the empire were better known now than ever before but that a great deal had yet to be learned about the annual destruction of forests through consumption, pests and fires. At his suggestion the papers presented at the convention will be placed in the Dominion archieves for future reference.

War After Effects Are Greatest In 20 Years.

Opinion may prevail that from the second or third year after the war, the number of wounded men in the Government military hospitals gradually diminishes until the last war-victim is either entirely healed or gone to his reward.

That this idea is erroneous was shown by Dr. Boyd, of Brant House, Burlington, on Monday, when he quoted the records of the American Civil War to show that the 20th year after that conflict was the year in which the largest number of men were under hospital treatment as the result of war wounds and disabilities.

"Just at present the D.S.C.R. hospitals in Canada are at the lowest ebb, perhaps, that they will be for twenty or thirty years," said Dr. Boyd. "In a few years they will be filling up again. The reason for this is that there are so many wounds that can be repaired temporarily so that the men can go on about their work without being troubled for a long time. Eventually the wounds break them down again, though, and they have to go back to hospital."

MANITOBA NEEDS COOLER WEATHER

Rust Is Reported From Numerous Sections Of The Province.— Cutting To Start Soon.

WINNIPEG, July 26.—(Canadian Press). — The Manitoba crop would benefit from cooler weather, and some districts need rain, it is stated in a report issued yesterday by the provincial department of agriculture.

Summarizing the reports on rust, the statement says:

"Rust is reported from a sufficiently large number of points to warrant the statement that some rust will be discovered everywhere before harvest. A considerable part of the earlier crop may, and probably will escape wtihout serious rust damage. The late crop has plenty of time to be very badly infected; but nobody can now tell just what damage may occur. The superintendent of Brandon experimental farm, for example, speaking of the local crop, says: 'The crop depends on which wins the race —it or the rust. If it can beat the rust it will give an unusually good yield.' That observation could be applied very widely."

Wheat cutting will begin in the earlier districts about August 1 to 8, and will be general about August 13.

GRAVE VIEW OF CONDITION OF BRITISH TRADE

Political Uncertainty And Lack Of Confidence May Cause a Fourth Winter Of Unemployment.

- Relief Suggested.

LONDON, July 26. —(Canadian Press.)—A grave view of the conditions of British trade and industry is taken by a large industrial group of the House of Commons, which last night sent a letter to Premier Baldwin outlining the plans of the group to meet the situation.

Observing that the prospects of a settlement of reparations and similar difficulties are too remote to appreciably affect the situation, "which is due to political uncertainty, lack of confidence, war wastage of wealth and the loss of purchasing power among our customers," the letters says it appears inevitable that unless very drastic measures are taken immeditaely, a fourth winter of unemployment, with not less than a million and a half unemployed, "must occur and must disastrously affect the morale and efficiency of British workers."

The letter adds that alarming indications of industrial unrest everywhere are apparent. The dock strike, it says, is only one manifestation of the serious trouble fomenting beneath the surface. The disruptive force of unemployment on the trades unions, which are the safeguard of industrial peace, cannot be viewed without apprehension, and in the opinion of the union's executive, if the present rate of unemployment is maintained, it will involve within 12 months complete dispersal of the funds and membership of the unions.

Declaring that foreign trade cannot provide a solution, the group suggests a number of railway and electrification projects at home to absorb the unemployed, these to include tube railway extensions and development of canals, docks an other works. The proposals of the group would involve an expenditure of £50,000,000, but the group considers that even if the Government should pay interest on this captial for several years it would be a very small sum in comparison with the present unemployment dole and similar relief payments.

Year Old Warrant Executed At Windsor.

WINDSOR, Ont, July 26.—(Canadian Press).—A warrant sworn out one year ago by Cecil Smith for the arrest of Gencolo Welch, Detroit, on a charge of robbing him of $3,900 was executed Tuesday by Sergeant Markham at Kenilworth Race track.

Welch, the sergeant said, was hiding in an automobile but stepped out to shake hands with a friend. Instead the sergeant caught him by the arm. Police have little information concerning the facts of the charge. They believe that Smith trusted Welch with the money to transact a liquor deal and that Welch left Detroit and had not been seen until Tuesday Welch was to appear before Judge Gundy late to-day.

Another woman also secured one of the "dresses," and had worn it in blissful ignorance.

GANG OF ROBBERS STILL AT LIBERTY

Ten Thousand Dollar Reward Offered By Bankers Association.

TORONTO, July 26 (Canadian Press). — With the gang of robbers still at large, and the three bank messengers, victims of the bullets fired on Tuesday morning during the sensational theft of $82,000 at Melinda and Jordan Streets, holding their own, with good prospects of recovery, interest in the most daring daylight robbery ever attempted in Toronto continues unabated.

Police officials directing the movements of the squad of detectives working on the case last night admitted that so far they have been unable to obtain a definite clue as to the whereabouts of the band of thugs.

Word reached the city local banks from Montreal last night that a reward of $10,000 has been offered by the Canadian Bankers' Association for information which will lead to the arrest of the robbers. The usual standing reward is half this sum.

Closed Shop and Check Off System Denounced As An Illegal Monopoly Will Not Sign Contract.

NOT FINAL.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., July 26 (Canadian Press). — The anthracite miners' demand for "complete recognition" of their union, including establishment of the closed shop and the check-off system, was rejected yesterday by operator members of the joint committee, which is trying to reach a wage agreement and forestall a threatened strike on 1st September.

The operators said they rejected the demand chiefly because, in the words of an adviser, they refused to become a party to an illegal monopoly of the anthracite industry.

The rejection was not considered final, however, nor indicative that the wage negotiations would fail, although the demand for the check-off and the closed shop, with that for wage increases, are the three most important on the miners' list.

The operators denounced the closed shop as an illegal monopoly, not conducive to fair play for all workmen. They declared they would not sign any contract or enter any agreement that would "in theory or practice be exclusive or monopolistic, or embody the principles of the closed shop."

The check-off was rejected because the operators, as an adviser put it, could "see no more sense why the United Mine Workers should ask the operators to underwrite its dues than any other union should ask as much of any other industry." The check-off, by which a union man's dues were held from his pay and turned into the union's coffers by the company, "would lead to the excesses and abuses of wealth that follow in the wake of money gotten too easily." Instead of preventing "button strikes," as the miners contended, the operators cited that 600 strikes had occurred in one bituminous district in Pennsylvania in two years, under the check-off system.

Italian Bricklayers Are Out On Strike.

ROME, July 26. — (Canadian Press.)— Thirty thousand bricklayers are on strike here owing to the reduction in their high cost of living subsidy. The Builders' Association has decided to leave a settlement of the issue in the hands of Signor Sarinacci, the Fascisti High Commissioner for the Province of Rome.

The bricklayers' leaders refuse to discuss terms of settlement and are urging their followers to carry on the strike to the bitter end. On the other hand, the Fascisti have decided to break the strike at all costs, importing labor from other provinces if this should prove necessary.

TORONTO FIRMS PURCHASED ALL RAILWAY BONDS

One Of The Largest Financial Operations Ever Handled In Canada By Canadian Houses.

For $22,500,000.

OTTAWA, July 26. — (Canadian Press.) — The Canadian National Railways issue of $22,500,000 of guaarnteed 5 per cent. fifteen year equipment bonds was yesterday awarded by the Minister of Finance to a Toronto syndicate headed by A. E. Ames and Company, Wood Gundy &. Company and Dominion Securities Corporation, Limited. The rate paid was $97.889 per cent. and accrued interest.

Other firms associated in the syndicate are Aemilius Jarvis and Co. Limited; R. A. Daly and Co.; R. C. Matthews and Co., Limited; Osler and Hammond; Kerr, Flemming and Co.; Gairdner, Clarke and Co.; McLeod, Young, Weir and Co.; Rene Leclerc, Inc.

There are two tenders for the loan, one by G. A. Stinson and Co., Toronto, at 97.275 and accrued interest. The other tender, at 97.57 and accrued interest was by the National City Company, representing the following group: Bank of Montreal; National City Co.; Harris Forbes and Co.; Banque d'Hochelaga; Hanson Brothers; Nesbitt, Thompson and Co.; W. A. Mackenzie and Co.; Royal Securities Corporation; Molsons Bank; MacNeill, Graham and Graham; C. H. Burgess and Co.; and Greenshields and Co.

"This," said Hon. W. S. Fielding last night, "is the largest financial operation ever handled in Canada by Canadian houses. It speaks well," he added, "not only for the credit of the Dominion generally, but for the strength and enterprise of our own financial institutions."

The usual practice in the issue of railway equipment bonds,, said Mr. Fielding, is to make a part payment for the equipment in cash and issue bonds for the balance. This method of financing gives equipment securities a high standard in money markets.

In this case, continued the Minister, the equipment is to cost $30,000,000. Of this, $7,500,000 will be provided for out of the ordinary railway appropriation, and bonds will be issued for $22,500,000. The bonds, while issued by the Canadian National Railway Company (the stockof which is owned by the government) are to be guaranteed as respects principal and interest by the government of Canada. Equipment bonds of the various railways have hitherto been issued in the United States. In no previous case have they been issued in Canada. Mr. Fielding decided there was no reason why the opportunity should not be given to Canadian financial houses to handle the business. Accordingly, circulars were sent to all Canadian concerns engaged in the bond business. It was not to be supposed that any one Canadian house could handle such a large transaction, but it was expected that groups would be formed for the purpose. This expectation was realized. Tenders were received and opened yesterday at Mr. Fielding's office in the finance department.

EDMONTON, July 26.— (Canadian Press.)—Fifty cars of Drumheller coal will leave to-day over the Canadian National lines for the Ontario markets. This will be the first of the experimetnal shipments to be made this summer and autumn under the new agreement between the government and railway authorities, the coal going forward on the temporary freight rate of $7.00 per ton. The arrangements for the shipment have been made by Howard Stutchbury, provincial trade commissioner, who expects taht a further consignment will shortly follow, the demand in the east being strong for as much more of the Alberta fuel as can be supplied

WILL NOT DISCLOSE BRITISH ATTITUDE

Government To Await Views Of Dominion On Tariff Preferences.

LONDON, July 26 (Canadian Press). — When introducing the Colonial Office estimates in the House to-day, W. G. Ormsby-Gore, Under-Secretary for the Colonies, declared in answer to a question that the Government would not at present disclose its attitude on the question of modification of the tariff preferences.

Aded by Captain Wedgwood Benn (Liberal) whether he would state the policy he proposed to pursue on tariff matters at the forthcoming Imperial Conference, the Under-Secretary replied:

"Certainly not. The matter will be raised by Australia, and until the views of the Dominions have been heard, it would be obvious folly for the British Government to say here and now what they are going to agree to, and otherwise. This is to be a conference of equal governments, and to bang, bar, and close the door now would be resented by every Dominion."

This statement was greeted by cheers from the Government side.

DOCTOR DENIES OFFER TO TAKE SUM OF MONEY

Bribery Charges Arise From Disturbance At Medical Convention In Windsor.

Liquor Charges.

WINDSOR, Ont. July 26.—(Canandian Press).—Dr. J. E. Coulter of Chatham, a witness in the case in which three Bangle brothers are charged with assault, yesterday strongly denied that he had offered to change his evidence in the case in consideration of a cash payment.

The denial came when Dr. Coulter was testifying in the police court and W. S. Furlong counsel for the defendants, asked him point blank if he had not told the Bangles that, for $250 he would "get up in court and swear to anything" This brought an indignant denial from the doctor.

He declared that the only mention of money in the case was made when the Bangles asked him how much he would take to settle the case. He had replied that the time he would lose from his practice was worth $25 per day.

The case arose out of a disturbance in the Prince Edward Hotel here, during the recent convention of the Ontario Medical Association. The three Bangles are said to have entered the hotel seeking medical aid for the wife of one of them. and when their family doctor was not to be found, it is charged, they assaulted Dr. Coulter and a Toronto man.

Dr. Coulter is also awaiting trial on a charge of having liquor in his possession at the time of the disturbance.

THE PIGEON LAKE BRIDGE.

The proposal that Peterborough should actively interest herself in working for the construction of a bridge across Pigeon Lake, connecting Peterborough and Victoria Counties and providing residents of that section with access to the local market and thus bringing considerable business to Peterborough merchants, is worthy of attention, although the idea is by no means a new one.

The responsibility of the Dominion Government in connection with the undertaking seems to be well defined.

The building of locks and dams has widened this stretch of water fully a mile, and the liability of the Government has been established to some extent by the fact that the owners of the land drowned by the Government construction work have been recompensed for the damage done.

Under the circumstances, therefore, an agitation to have a bridge constructed there would seem to be justified, especially in view of the fact that a large number of people who formerly came to Peterborough on business have been forced to go elsewhere because of the transportation difficulties caused by the destruction of the old bridge.

Residents of the district affected want a bridge and want it badly, and from a Peterborough standpoint there does not seem any reason why any assistance that is possible at this end should not be proffered.

At least, the question is worth the consideration of the City Council and Chamber of Commerce.

A COMMUNITY INVESTMENT.

The fact that through the public-spirited action of the local Rotarians fifty-five Peterborough boys who otherwise would be without any opportunity for a summer holiday are to gather at the Rotary camp at Clear Lake for two weeks' adventuring in the great outdoors, is a matter for community rejoicing.

The value to Peterborough of such an event as this is not to be found merely in the circumstance that a lot of youngsters are to have a good time for two weeks, although that in itself is a very desirable thing.

It is in the training that goes with the camp life that the greatest dividend of the Rotarian investment is earned, in the chance to impress upon the receptive minds of these adolescents a thought or two as to their place in the community, and as to the responsibility that is their's, in the opportunity that is afforded to fan into flame the spark of ambition in the hearts of these boys who are the citizens of tomorrow, in the opening for the development of character that is offered.

And along physical lines the results are not to be overlooked.

Recently the Y.M.C.A. had a junior camp at the Rotary location, and many of these youngsters when they arrived knew nothing about the handling of canoes.

Yet at the end of their vacation a dozen of the boys had advanced so rapidly in their training that they were able to upset a canoe, right it, empty the water out and climb back into the frail craft.

Knowledge of that kind is very useful to Canadians, especially in this district of rivers and lakes.

Camp training provides a chance to develop the boy mentally, physically and morally, and the Peterborough Rotary Club is proceeding on sound lines in the establishment of the splendid camp at Clear Lake.

NO PLACE FOR THEM.

Petitions are being circulated by the Dominion Veterans' Alliance asking for the removal of such members of the Board of Pension Commissioners and of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment as have "shown injustice towards dependents of deceased ex-service men and disabled ex-service men."

With such action most Canadians will be thoroughly in sympathy.

If there are in either departments men who have shown by their treatment of cases affecting returned soldiers or the dependents of those who failed to return that they lack sympathy and "the milk of human kindness," the Examiner believes that neither the Pension Board nor the Re-establishment Department is the place for them.

The people of Canada, if we read their thoughts correctly, are not so anxious to have the regulations in regard to returned soldiers enforced in a spirit of commercial efficiency, aiming at economy to the exclusion of everything else, as they are to be sure that a square deal is accorded the men who fought and the wives and children of those who gave up their lives.

They want the pension regulations administered with kindliness and generosity, and would rather know that a half a dozen veterans receive more than they were entitled to than to hear of one disabled soldier not receiving justice at the hands of those to whom the country has entrusted the duty of looking after him and his comrades.

There should be a happy medium between niggardliness and extravagance in the administration of this work, and somehow the impression seems to be general that the officials have failed to reach that medium.

The dismissal of those who have been proven to be utterly out of touch with the spirit of justice in their positions is justified.

A REMEDY FOR STRIKES.

Three items in a day's news have a very definite bearing on the overwhelming economic question of the day. Two of the stories have to do with strikes. They tell how dockers, out in a dozen British ports, are allowing foodstuffs to spoil on board ships, and how the miners and steel men of Nova Scotia will defy the militia which represents Provincial and Federal authority. The other story has to do with the semi-annual distribution of interest on participation certificates owned by thirty thousand employees of the Henry Ford industries.

These stories are significant. They show the problem as it exists, and one of the means—perhaps the only means—whereby it will be solved. No doubt the British dockers and the Cape Breton steel workers would agree that strikes are uneconomic. They are. They mean loss to the men who go out, suffering to their families and further loss to the men who control the industries.

Wealth only comes from the work of men's hands. Stop work, for any cause whatsoever, and there is loss all around. Yet the workmen, facing these facts, feel that they must strike. And there has grown up, among those who labor for a daily wage, a feeling that the strike is a lawful weapon, a right that no Government should take away, and that taking the place of a striker is immoral. Conditions which have produced such beliefs cannot be quite right. A strike may never be economic, but the very holding of it in the light of a cherished right proves that it may be morally justifiable.

Henry Ford has never had a strike. The sum of more than a million dollars, which was divided among his employes, represents eight per cent. on money they have been allowed to invest in the auto magnate's industries. His workmen are Henry Ford's partners, for the holders of the participation certificates are the only men outside of Mr. Ford and his son who own a dollar's worth in the gigantic enterprises of the automobile king. Mr. Ford has always paid high wages; in spite of this his industries have been developed without the aid of outside capital, except for meagre aid received at the start.

All this is as it should be. Labor and capital should be partners, not enemies. Nor will industry be free from strikes and similar disturbances until some such arrangement governs it. A practical application of the Golden Rule should solve most of our economic troubles.—Border Cities Star.

BRITAIN STATES HER CASE FRANKLY.

"In a common desire for settlement and pacification, and still more for no further or unreasonable delay, we can speak together frankly and with the full comprehension of partners bound by an equal destiny to the same task."

On that ground Premier Baldwin of Great Britain stated his case to parliament regarding the future course of Britain toward the method of collecting reparations from Germany.

Britain occupies a particularly strong position in the matter of paying war debts because she is the one nation of the world that has placed her hand seriously to the accomplishment of this object. She has not been content to delay payment of her debts until those owing her started the movement. A financial board visited United States some months ago, made definite arrangements to pay a colossal debt that will take sixty years in accomplishment, and then went about her business of finding the money and began making the payments.

When a nation takes that position, other countries deeply indebted to her have no reasonable option but to pay serious heed to what she has to say. The feeling grows in Britain—and the British are not quick to jump at conclusions—that France by her continued occupation of the Ruhr, and by her persistent grasping of resources, customs houses, machinery and facilities of production, is seeking not the collection of reparations but the positive wrecking of the German people. Indeed, so thorough-going a Britisher as Mr. J. A Spender, member of the Milner Egyptian Commission, and well known to a number of people in Ontario, states his belief: "If the French will not negotiate on the basis proposed, and if they will not grant Germany the time and opportunity to develop her resources, and if they insist on making the needs of the creditors rather than the capacity of the debtor the measure of what is demanded, then no settlement is possible, and we shall be obliged to conclude that French aims are political rather than economic."

France has spent some months in the Ruhr, and she went in there because reparations were not being paid rapidly enough. She ostensibly meant to take possession of certain strategic industrial points, and from these proceed to take her just due quickly and depart.

France went in; she has had her opportunity, and the result is that reparations are being paid today more slowly than they were prior to the French occupation.

Not only so, but the manner in which the whole industrial life has been wrecked has made the ability of Germany to pay less by a great deal than it was before the French occupation. The French newspapers repeatedly say that their government will not abate its demands on Germany unless Britain and America will wipe off their claims on France; there is no indication that United States intends to wipe out one single dollar of war debt, and that being the case it is idle to talk of Britain cancelling the amount France owes her.

There has been no departure, in the British mind, from the ground that Germany must pay her war debts. The British position is well stated by Mr. Spender, formerly editor of the Westminster Gazette, whom we quoted previously.

"If this question cannot be settled in one way or another it will involve Europe in losses immeasurably greater than anything that can be recovered from the Germans, and the Allies, having won the war, will go far to lose the peace in a battle over their costs. If the struggle goes on for another year, Germany may be quite ruined, but she will have the consolation of seeing some of her enemies follow her down the steep place that leads to national bankruptcy. And the irony of it is that she ought to have paid, could have paid, and probably by now would have paid considerably more than even M. Poincare expects to recover, if she had been handled in a sensible economic manner and her credit nursed instead of destroyed."

Canada is a long way removed from the actual scenes of the present point of dispute in Germany; France has had her press agents at work; Germany has pursued the same plan, each with the idea of presenting a selfish, biased report to the world. Canada will be prepared to accept with infinitely greater faith the plain statement of Premier Baldwin. British diplomacy in this case is working in the open, speaking frankly but firmly, seeking two things, (1) the payment of German debt and (2) the restoration of the nations of Europe, including Germany itself, to a position of decent success.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The trouble about poison ivy is that most people in going near it do not know they are doing anything rash until the rash appears.

It must make some of the famous composers turn over in their graves to realize that the man who wrote "Yes, We Have No Bananas" is making a fortune out of it.

It is to be hoped that the case of Lionel Conacher does not cause any grave international complications or impose a strain upon the League of Nations.

HARWOOD LOST CAMPBELLFORD

Campbellford is Now One Notch Nearer the Top—A Game With Brighton

CAMPBELLFORD, July 26. — Campbellford drew one notch nearer the top when Charlie Davidson's team trimmed Harwood on the Fair Grounds here on Wednesday afternoon by a score of 24 to 12, in a game in which some excellent plays were made by individual members of both teams. The visitors took their defeat like game sports, and fought it out to the very end. They tried in all six men in the box, and shifted the positions of some of the other players, but all without avail. They were simply outclassed either in the field or at bat.

The Campbellfords scored this victory with a team that was weakened by the absence of some of its best players. Nesbitt, the catcher, was not there, but Holmes took his place. Cowell is away on his vacation, but the veteran West, the team's best all-round player, not only guarded the third bag, but took a turn in the box for the eighth and ninth innings. Shillinglaw was shifted from centre to second base, and Blakely and Nancarrow, new men, were called in to play centre and left respectively, after Morrison and Saunders had been tried out at those positions.

What the score might have been if all the regular members of the Campbellford team had been in the line-up it is hard to imagine.

West, the Veteran.

Marshall West is the Honus Wagner, the veteran member of the team, a player who, after a lay-off for years, demonstrated his ability to come back and hold his own with the best of them. Marshall was one of the star members of the Campbellford team that reached the zenith of its glory away back in 1905, when Dr. J. Macoun was president and P. J. Sargison was secretary-treasurer of the club. That was the team that almost bankrupted the management by the number of balls driven so far out of sight that they were never recovered. Marshall was a youngster then, 18 years ago, but if anyone accused him to-day of being old, and he claimed an alibi, the circumstantial evidence would be all in his favour. About the only difference in his appearance over that of 18 years ago is due to the fact that since his first days in baseball he has acquired a Charlie Chaplin moustache, which has caused him to be nicknamed by that celebrity by the rooters in all the towns in the Northumberland League.

This season he has played in the outfield, in the infield, and taken his turn in the box. At the bat he can always be depended upon to make a hit when there are men on bases.

In the game yesterday he had two doubles ,with runners on each time, and he tallied two runs for his side, when he relieved Brady in the eighth; he retired the side in one, two, three order, striking out two of the Harwood batters, the third dying at first on a grounder to Eagleson.

Hume's Home Run

The second home run made in the league this season was scored yesterday when Hume in the fifth inning sent the ball so far to centre that it required three relays to get it back to the plate but the runner was there ahead of it. It was a clean hit and the ball was quickly and neatly fielded. West scored ahead of Hume.

Other Extra Base Hits

In the sixth inning Holmes cleared the bags with a beauty to centre for three bases. Weston had two doubles to his credit and Eagleson made three clean hits in five times up.

Brady's Good Work

Brady, the popular young pitcher, won new laurels in the game yesterday. He is demonstrating, every time he goes into the box, his ability as an all round ball player, a possession of the gifts that have made men famous in the big leagues. He can pitch, he can hit and as a fielded of his position, he certainly has no equal in the Northumberland League Yesterday his record at the bat was five safeties. He had five put outs, and two assists. accepting every chance that came his way, without a failure. He covered first base five times, taking the throw from Weston, when the latter scooped up grounders that were sent between first and second.

Plays by Visitors

There were some five individual plays made by the visitors, but they were lacking in team work. For the second inning there was a peculiar occurrence. Halstead sent a grass scorching grounder to right close to the flag and as he was on his way to first, someone shouted foul although the umpire ruled it a fair ball Halstead stopped and returned to first, where he was tagged by Holmes, who had called for the ball. After some dispute Halstead was allowed to take first. He stole second and then scored on Hogg's double to left, the latter crossing the plate when Campbell sacrificed to first. If Halstead had kept on to first, his hit would have been a double.

Harry Williams of Harwood, was umpire on balls and strikes and no fairer official has been seen at the grounds this season. He is evidently master of all the rules and every point of the game. Manager Charles Davidson umpired on bases with his usual impartiality. The line-up:

Harwood—Bates, ss; Jones, 1b; C. Down, cf; W. Down, c; Halstead lf; Hogg, 3b; Campbell 2b; Young rf; Dunnett, p; F. Down, sub.

Campbellford — West 3b and p., Hume rf., Holmes c., Weston lb., Brady p and 3b., SEhillinglaw 3b., Morrison and Nancarrow cf., Blakely and Saunders lf., Eagleson ss.,

By Innings:

	R	H

Harwood ..... 021201204—12	12

Diamond Dust.

The return match will be played at Harwood, on Civic Holiday, 6th of August, the date on which the True Blue of Campbellford run an Excursion to the former place.

A postponded game with Brighton will be played here on Monday afternoon of next week. In order to give all the local players a chance to turn out, play will be called at 5 o'clock. As Brighton now stand second in the league, this is sure to be one of the best contests of the season. Tickets will be placed on sale in a day or two and all citizens are asked to invest and so encourage the home team which is running now against all contenders.

Campbellford has won six and lost five games, a percentage of .545. There is a postponded game to be played with Hastings.

One of the men who played with West in 1905 was Harry Shore who escaped baseball only to meet with a harder fate. He is now running a newspaper in Port Colbourne.

HAVELOCK SUFFERS DEFEAT BY 7 TO 6

Keenly Contested Intermediate Lacrosse Game With Visitors From Hastings.

HAVELOCK, July 26.—Havelock lacrosse boys went down to defeat here last night at the hands of Hastings in a keenly contested intermediate game, which terminated in a score of 7 to 6.

The game started at 4.28. The first score was made by Hastings at 4.35. At 4.37 the first score for Havelock was made by Plunkett and the period ended at 4.49. Score, tie, 1-1.

Second period opened at 4.59. At 4.59 1-2 L. Plunkett went to the fence for 5 minutes. At 5.08 the second goal was scored for Havelock by C. Brennan. At this time 2 minutes were lost on account of a damaged shoulder from which F. Scriver suffered. Play was resumed and E. Campney was dropped off to even up the team for the balance of the period. At 5.24 Bruce Richardson aagin scored for Hastings. At 5.26 Joe Gould scored for Hastings. At 5.28 D. Brennan scored for Havelock. 5.29 finished the second period. Score tie, 3-3.

Third period opened at 5.45. D. Wright went on the fence for 5 minutes. At 5.50 Hastings again scored by I. Doon. At 5.52 Fred Dodd went on the fence for 5 minutes, at 5.55 G. Burgess scored for Havelock. At 6.02 Bruce Richardson scored for Hastings. Third period finished at 6.05. Score 5-4 favor of Hastings.

Fourth period opened at 6.13. At 6.17 J. Gould scored for Hastings. At 6.20 he gain scored. At 6.28 G. Wright scored for Havelock. At 6.32 J. Hooper scored for Havelock. At 6.33 the game ended with a score of 7-6 in favor of Hastings.

Referee F. Collins of Toronto, refereed the game satisfactorily and held the players down to clean lacrosse. The game was slow, evidently the players of both sides not being in condition. This can partially be accounted for because of the few games played during the season. While Havelock spectators were apparently disappointed in the result of the game, it was remarked they, as well as the players, lost in a sportsmanlike manner. It was also stated that if the Havelock players had put the combination play all through the game that they did during the last 5 minutes the result would have been different. The Hastings goal tender is to be complimented on his efficient goal tending, keeping the ball out when shot repeatedly at short distance during the final 5 minutes of the play.

The refree was pleased with the material in both teams, speaking highly of G. Burgess of Havelock, and J. Gould of Hastings.

THE SPANISH ARMY IS PREPARING TO FIGHT

LONDON, July 26. Canadian Press —Despatches from Madrid received by Reuters quote the newspapers in the Spanish Capital as saying that all leaves of absence in the Spanish army at Melilla, Spain, have been stopped and that all members of ranks now on leave of absence have been urgently recalled.

Recently there have been no reports of unusual activities on the part of the Moorish tribesmen who are warring with the Spaniards in Morocco. It is probable however that if the Madrid reports are correct, some new military operation is in prospect.

ONE BOY KILLED IN A FIREWORKS EXPLOSION

PHILADELPHIA, July 26 (Canadian Press). — One unidentified boy was killed and four other youths were slightly injured to-day in an explosion in a shack connected with the United States Fireworks Manufacturing Company at Carlington, on the outskirts of Philadelphia.

The property loss was large.

The dead boy was about 17 years old.

The foreman of the plant said the boys were not employed by the company, but had applied for positions.

HON. FRANK OLIVER FOR RAILWAY COMMISSION

TORONTO, July 26. Canadian Press, — It is probable that the vacancy on the Dominion Board Railway Commissioners, caused by the death here of Dr. J. G. Rutherford will be filled next month, and that the new appointee will be the Hon. Frank Oliver of Edmonton, Alberta. His name has been mentioned in connection with the vacant Alberta senatorship, but the appointment of Mr. Oliver to the Railway Board will make it practicable to observe the custom of having one French Canadian Senator from Alberta, and to appoint Hon. J L. Cote to the Upper Chamber.

$175,000 PAID FOR ¾ OF ENGLISH RACE HORSE

LONDON. July 26.- (United ress).—Three-quarters of an English race horse have just sold for $175,000.

Tracery is the horse, and though English bred, he has resided in the Argentine for a number of years. His return to his native soil has coincided with the sale of a part of him by his owner, Senor Unzue, to an English syndicate. Unzue paid $255,000 for the animal.

When Tracery came home he brought three of his Argentine children with him. They will be auctioned at the yearling sales at Newmarket and should bring fancy prices.

Papyrus, winner of the 1923 English Derby, and Waygood, winner of the namesake of the English event in Ireland, are sons of Tracery.

Lloyd George Launched Attack On Poincare.

BRISTOL, England, July 26. — (Canadian Press.)—Former Premier Lloyd George made a fierce attack on M. Poincare, the French Premier, in a speech here yesterday. He objected to M. Poincare's habit of making speeches on Sunday, which, he pointed out, was a day consecrated to good will, and hardly a day "to unscrew the cylinders of carefully distilled hatred, ill-will, suspicion and anger among the nations."

Alluding to past negotiations, Mr. Loyd George said: "I did not fall out with M. Poincare, but it was very difficult. Mr. Bonar Law also found it quite impossible to work with him."

The former premier accused M. Poincare of "wickedly distorting" his speeches, and expressed the hope that the British efforts towards peace would not be converted into "mere fuel for further devastating and scorching flames, which burn up the peace, prosperity, progress and happiness of mankind."

OUTSTANDING MEN ACTIVE IN LABOR PARTY'S EFFORTS

Who Would Form a British Cabinet Should Laborites Eventually Carry The Country.

By MILTON BRONNER.

LONDON, July 26.—When Tom Hodge, British workman, thinks of the Labor party representatives in Parliament, of the men who are leading its debates, and who would form its Cabinet if the Labor party were ever triumphant, he thinks of six outstanding men—Ramsay MacDonald, Philip Snowden, Sidney Webb, J. R. Clynes, Arthur Henderson and J. H. Thomas. Three are "white collar men." The last three are trades unionists.

MacDonald, 57 and present party leader in Parliament, is a Scot. There is a legend over here that wherever you turn in England—in business, art, literature or politics—you find Scots in the lead.

MacDonald is the most eloquent man in his party. But he is not only eloquent. He is a thinker who has written much on socialism and sociological problems. He is a Socialist in his political beliefs, but not of the extreme variety.

Rose From Poverty.

His rise to eminence is typical of Americans and Scots. Son of a Scotch peasant, he had to fight for his education. He became a working newspaper man, entered politics and became successively Secretary of the Labor party, Chairman of the Independent Labor party, and Leader of the Labor party.

Snowden, Englishman, 59, once was in the Government service, but retired to become a newspaper man and write on socialism and social topics. A bicycle accident some years ago left him with one leg crippled and has greatly impeded his activty.

A student of the intense type, he shines in debate, particularly when there is opportunity for bitter gibes. He likes good company and is a welcome guest at the tables of the aristocratic.

He's for Party.

I know that after lunching with one very great and rich family, he went right to Parliament and put down a motion in savor of a levy upon the fortunes of the rich. He doesn't let his friendship interfere with his conception of duty to his Labor constituency.

Sidney Webb, 63, Londoner by birth, rarely appears in debates in Parliament. He is the student and thinker who draws up plans and platforms of the Labor party and backs them up with a wealth of statistics, facts and arguments.

Splendidly educated, Webb spent a long apprenticeship in various Government offices before he became writer, teacher and lawyer. He founded the London School of Economics.

With his wife, he is one of the most famous writers on trades union topics. Short and stocky and with a great wealth of beard, he was very much aggrieved recently when a Tory in the House of Commons shouted "Nanny" at him. Which reveals his greatest defect—a lack of humor.

Was a Laborer.

J. R. Clynes, 54, born in England, is of Irish descent. Starting out in life as a laborer in a gas works, entirely self-educated, he is a brilliant example of a man overcoming all obstacles.

He was in the wartime Coalition Cabinet as Minister of Food. Afterwards he was Food Controller with supreme powers over the food of Great Britain. He achieved an admitted success.

For a time Clynes was the Leader in Parliament and is now Vice-Chairman. He is the best debater his party has.

Arthur Henderson, a Scot, 60 years old, is universally known as "Uncle Arthur." The affectionate title gives something of the measure of the man.

A sort of Methodist lay preacher, Henderson started in life as a molder, and during the war was made a member of the War Council, the inner circle of the War Cabinet.

Henderson was also head of the Labor party's commission which declared in favor of freedom for Ireland.

J. H. Thomas, 50, Welshman, started work when nine as an errand boy in a railway yard. He became one of Britain's crack railway engine drivers. He still retains the Secretaryship of the important Union of Railwaymen. As such in labor disputes he has always leaned toward conciliatory methods. He is a member of the Privy Council, the supreme advisory body consulted by the King.

Bad Breath

Is Usually Due to Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

WOMAN—HER PLACE AND POWER.

Generally, says John Ruskin we are under the impression that a man's duties are public and a woman's private. But this is not altogether so. A man has a personal work or duty relating to his home and a public work or duty which is an expansion of the other, relating to the State. So a woman has a personal work relating to her home and a public work or duty which is also the expansion of that. Speaking of war John Ruskin has this to say concerning women—There is not a war in the world, no, nor an injustice, but you women are answerable for it; not in that you have provoked, but in that you have not hindered. Men by their nature are prone to fight; they will fight for any cause or for none. It is for you to choose their cause and forbid when there is no cause. Men can bear the sight of it, but you women should not be able to bear it. Men may tread it down without sympathy in their own struggle; but men are feeble in sympathy and contracted in hope; it is you only who can feel the depths of pain and conceive the way of healing. Instead of doing this you turn away from it, you shut yourselves within your park walls and garden gates, and you are content to know that beyond them lies a whole world in wilderness—a world of secrets you dare not penetrate, and of suffering you dare not conceive. John Ruskin goes on to say he does not wonder at the miser's death as his hands relax the dropping gold nor the sensualist's life, with the shroud wrapped about his feet nor the terrible deeds done by the frenzy of nations but oh; he does wonder to see a tender and delicate woman with a child at her breast, and a power if she could wield it over her husband purer than the air of heaven and stronger than the seas of earth. To see her abdicate this majesty to play at precedence with her next door neighbor—to see her tend the flowers of her garden with a happy smile on her face, yet, who knows in her heart that outside those rose-covered walls the wild grass to the horizon is torn up by the agony of men, and beat level by the drift of their life-blood, and that fairer flowers, human, which would bless her for tending, lie dying for the water of kindness and sympathy.—In Sesame and Lilies, by John Ruskin.

BETTER BABIES.

Editor Examiner.

When the directors of the Peterborough Fall Fair decided to appoint a committee to arrange for a better baby contest as one of the features of the Fair, this year they surely were building better than they knew. The decision of Mr. Glover and his committee to make use of the charts of the Well Babies' Clinic as the basis from which the final decisions will be made makes the better baby contest a praiseworthy and essentially practical effort to establish a higher standard of health and physical fitness among the babies of the city. And at the same time, it gives encouragement and fresh stimulus to the increasing number of mothers who, in spite of difficulties arising from home duties, in spite of wind and weather, have faithfully taken advantage of the weekly clinics, and have conscientiously striven to make the best use possible of the instruction received.

This better baby contest will mean much more than a baby show or a beauty contest, though each of the latter may be featured in some measure; and many of the young mothers have already grasped the significance of this fact, as was evidenced by the large number of babies registered at the weekly clinic yesterday in spite of threatening rain clouds. Dr. E. E. Harvey, staff physician for the day, with Dr. Phyllis Young assisting in the unavoidable absence of Dr. Scott, were kept busy up to the last minute examining the many unconscious little entrants to their first race for the goal of fitness, while Mrs. McCartney and her faithful assistants, Miss Marjorie Best and Miss Greta Giles, measured, weighed and introduced each tiny atom to the first delineation of itself on the chart of life, of which Tennyson wrote as "Charting us all in black and white."

The class entered as "undernourished" was fortunately not a large percentage, but the anxious mothers of these babies were fully alive to the incentive given their efforts to bring their little tots up to a higher standard by introducing a competition for "greatest improvement." As one mother expressed herself to the writer, "I do not care for the prize so much; I do not think my baby will take one, but I want to enter him just to spur me on to work harder to improve his condition. I might slacken a bit at home if I was not expected to come every week and have him weighed." So everything points to this better baby contest undertaken by Mr. Glover and his committee as making a new record in the annuals of this city's search after better health conditions, and we bespeak for the committee a large and practical encouragement from the citizens.

The registration at the Well Babies' Clinic room in the G.W.V.A. building will continue on Tuesday afternoon, July 31, and Tuesday afternoon, August 7, when the lists will close.

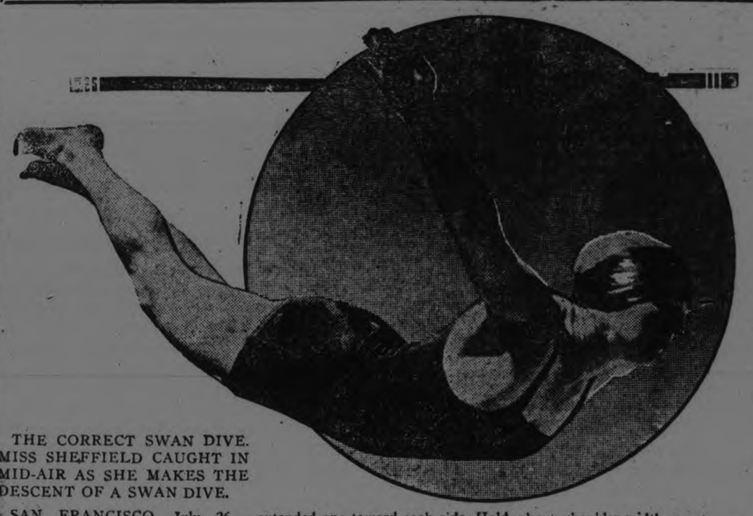
Yours faithfully,
ELIZ. KENDREY, Pres.
On behalf of Board of W. B. C.

DELEGATES ELECTED.

GLEN FALLS, N.Y., July 26.—(Canadain Press.)—Palmer Canfield, Federal Prohibition Director for New York State, former State Senator Henry W. Hill, of Buffalo, and Morris A. Drucker, of New York, were yesterday elected by the Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias, in session here, as supreme representatives to the Supreme Council of the order, to be held in Toronto next year.

EXPERT SWIMMER'S REWARD IS HIS ABILITY TO DO FANCY DIVES; THE SWAN AND JACK-KNIFE

SWAN AND JACK-KNIFE DIVES



THE CORRECT SWAN DIVE. MISS SHEFFIELD CAUGHT IN MID-AIR AS SHE MAKES THE DESCENT OF A SWAN DIVE.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 26.—Warning: Do not attempt fancy diving too soon in your career as a swimmer.

Before you are ready for the elementary fancy dives, you should be complete master of at least one swimming stroke, of floating and of the elementary dives I explained in the fourth article of this series. Otherwise your attempts may end in disaster.

All fancy dives are based on three elementary fancy dives, the swan, the front jack-knife and the back jack-knife.

The first of these, the swan, is one of the prettiest and most graceful and also one of the easiest to learn.

It can be done either from a springboard or from a platform. If from a board, be sure that it is at least three feet above the surface of the water.

For starting position, stand erect, arms at the sides of the body and with toes gripping the edge of the board or platform.

Next, take a deep inhalation and hold it.

Now dive by springing upward and out, swinging the arms forward and up as you do so, finishing with them extended one toward each side. Hold this position until you reach the top of the curve you are making in the air.

As you start to descend—the proper descent, of course, is that formerly explained, head first so that you will enter the water at an angle of 45 degrees—bring the arms up over the head and assume the proper diving position with them. Thus you enter the water with the head down, arms extended and "covering" the ears, thumbs locked.

The starting position for the front jack-knife is the same as that for the swan.

In this dive, you jump with the body erect, obtaining the maximum amount of height.

When you reach the highest point, quickly bend the body forward at the waist, touching the ankles, with the legs straight and the toes pointed.

Hold this position for a moment, then straighten the body and enter the water in the correct manner described in the article on elementary diving.

The starting position for the back jack-knife is body erect, back toward the pool, heels well over the springboard, arms extended in front of you about shoulder-width apart.

While in this position, execute two or three test springs up and down to see that you have proper balance. This is done without taking the feet from the board.

Then forcibly swing the arms up and, at the same time, spring well up and back, clearing the board by at least three feet.

While in the air, bend the body forward, at the waist, touching the ankles, legs straight. Hold this position for a moment, then straighten the body and enter the water in the correct manner.

In the back jack-knife, remember that the forcible arm swing and the upward spring are essential, and that this dive should never be attempted unless the diver knows that he is able to jump at least three feet backward from the springboard. Otherwise you may have a bad collision with the board.

As these three dives are the basis for all the more fancy diving, I would advise you to practice on them until perfect. Then you can attempt variations and other dives. The best plan for learning the more advanced dives is by careful obseration of good divers.

It Has Done The World of Good Says Toronto Woman

Dreco proves a true friend to Mrs. Oliver of 695 King Street West, Toronto who cannot praise it too highly.

Another Toronto resident has found real merit in Dreco as a corrective for ailments arising from a poorly working digestive system. Here is her story:

"I have suffered for eighteen months from inflammatory rheumatism. My muscles and joints ached so bady that I could not bend or get on my knees. Nothing could be so painful as to suffer as I did. My liver was also out of order and I often had bilious attacks, dizzy spells and specs floating before my eyes. My blood was impure and I always had to be taking laxatives. Was nervous, did not sleep well and always felt tired and weak. I tried almost everything but my case seemed to be getting worse until at last I heard about Dreco and decided to give it a trial.

"Have only used one bottle but the results really are wonderful. My aches and pains from rheumatism have gone and I have no more dizzy spells. My bowels are regular and I sleep through the night without disturbing. Have no more tired feeling and am so much stronger that my work is now a pleasure. I'd gladly tell anyone about Dreco as I think that all who suffer should know about this medicine. It has done me worlds of good."

Mrs. Oliver's statement is a message of hope to all who are troubled with symptoms caused by faulty digestion. Dreco is scientifically prepared from nature's herbs, roots, bark and leaves and acts on the vital organs toning and regulating them in a way that speedily benefits the whole body. It contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs and is the most reliable spring tonic known.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterboro by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold in Lakefield by E. H. Northey and by a good druggist everywhere.

NANSEN COMING TO U. S.

NEW YORK, July 26.—(United Press).—The World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches received word today that Dr. Fridjof Nansen, the Arctic explorer, will visit the United States next November and speak at the eighth annual meeting of the American Council of the World Alliance, to be held in Philadelphia November 13-15.

It was in the firts of thes, Frankfort disturbances that the Attorney-General of that city was tied to a post by a mob and beaten to death.

DONAHEY DEMANDS DRY ENFORCEMENT IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, O., July 26.—(United Press)—The burden of prohibition enforcement in Ohio has been strapped on the backs of local officials.

The state government, through the policy initiated by Governor Viv Donahey, is "the club behind the door." It swings effectually against local officials who wink at the law.

Already mayors of thirteen Ohio cities have felt the point of the governor's prod, and four county sheriffs have been threatened with removal from office under charges of lax law enforcement.

Reports to the capitol from communities where investigations have been made and whose officials have received Donahey's now proverbial "thirty days to clean up or get out of office," indicate the method has brought results.

Early in his administration, Governor Donahey startled the state by calling upon his executive carpet Mayor Herbert Vogt of Massillon. Vogt's administration had been criticized to the governor for alleged winking at liquor laws and Donahey proceeded to investigate. The probe resulted in Vogt's removal from office.

Since then Donahey's office has become the scene almost daily of a conference between the governor and some "citizens' committee" complaining of insufficient vigilance on the part of its city administration.

Three other mayors, under fire for similar offenses, have had to come before the governor to show cause why they should not be removed from office under charges of lax law enforcement. Donahey has given them the benefit of doubt, however, and now mayors of twelve Ohio cities, including New Philadelphia, the governor's home town, are serving on probation.

Recently Governor Donahey sent letters to six mayors and four county sheriffs, telling them that unless their local enforcement conditions improved at once the state executive would deal with them severely.

How to Rid the Arms of Objectionable Hairs

(Aids to Beauty)

A simplified method is here given for the quick removal of hairy or fuzzy growths and rarely is more than one treatment required: Mix a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every hair has vanished. This simple treatment cannot cause injury, but care should be exercised to get real delatone.

PRAISE BULGARIAN SCHOOLS

SOFIA, Bulgaria, July 26.—(Associated Press)—American educators, studying the schools of Bulgaria, have found that they show marked progress in combining practical with theoretical education, and King Boris was gratified at this comment when the investigators called upon him recently in this city.

Professor Paul Monroe, director of the International Institute, Teachers College, New York, and Dr. William F. Russell, associate director, were the king's visitors, and they were impressed by Boris' democratic demeanor and intelligent interest in matters educational.

TO RELIEVE PAIN AND BACKACHE

Women May Depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I had heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that when I realized I needed to take something to relieve my pains and backache, and to help build me up I began to take that. I had been sick off and on for years and barely weighed a hundred pounds, but now I have had such good results that I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to every one."—Mrs. J. J. BIEBER, 3039 18th Ave. South, Minneapolis, Minn.

Finds a True Friend

"Every woman who values her health should be proud to have a true friend like the Vegetable Compound," says Mrs. W. E. Shaw, 3227 Walnut Street, Chicago, Illinois. "I had female weakness so badly that I could not stand on my feet. Half of my time was spent in bed and I had pains in my back which were unbearable. I tried everything I could think of to help myself, and when a friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began taking it at once. I recommend it without hesitation."

CROP REPORTS

The following is a summary of returns made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Fall wheat is turning out better in the cutting than was expected both in yield and quality, although not up to the average.

The hay crop is a good one, taking the Province over, and Eastern Ontario is at last realizing some big yields, after many years of light cuttings.

New hay sold in Brant last week for $12 a ton, but only $8 a ton was being offered in Glengarry.

Pastures are failing considerable in many counties, although some Representatives report the flow of milk as being good for the time of year.

Bruce: I have never seen such fine fields of alsike as I have looked upon this season in the Bruce Peninsula.

Alsike has also done splendidly in South Simcoe, and much of it is being kept for seed.

Halton: Many farmers are cutting alfalfa for seed and some are threshing it in the field. The yield and quality is good.

Dundas: There is a notable increase in the quantity of sweet clover that is being made into ensilage this season.

Corn has made great growth all over the Province during the past week or two, and may yet be a fairly satisfactory crop.

Waterloo: Many farmers are going to reduce their acreage of fall wheat this year, owing to the bad attacks of Hessian fly during the last two or three years. There is hardly a field but is more or less affected with fly this year.

Wentworth: Cherries are being sold at 25c per six-quart basket and 50c for 11-quart baskets. Farmers report that this crop is being marketed at a loss.

Norfolk predicts a good apple crop this year, should favorable weather continue. So far this fruit has been remarkably free from scab.

Numerous complaints are coming in from Victoria of damage to apple trees by Twig Blight, or Fire Blight. This disease is quite serious this year.

Fort William: The strawberry crop in Dorion Township was good, and about 500 crates are being marketed from there this summer. The crop is disposed of in Fort William, Port Arthur, Schreiber and Hornpayne.

Prince Edward: Peas for the canning factories are giving a fair yield; blight developed later than usual, and achids have seriously affected some fields; so the yield, on the average, is not as high as expected. Balance of the crop will be harvested this week.

Lennox and Addington: Canning peas were mostly all harvested last week, and are quoted at $40 per ton for shelled peas delivered to the factory. New potatoes are being marketed by farmers in this county at Kingston. They have been receiving $2.25 per bushel. One farmer stated that his yield was 120 bushels per acre. The broiler trade is good, and they are paying 40c per lb. for those weighing from two to two and a half lbs.

Young pigs are bringing from $8 to $10 a pair in Frontenac.

Grey: The lamb market has broken very badly. Farmers have been sending them fseely and till the present receiving remunerative prices. Many have become disappointed over the serious decline in hog prices. Some are even saying they are not going to continue in the hog business longer.

Carleton: A few good horses, 1,500 pounds and over, are being bought for bush work at from $175 to $200 each.

In Timiskaming horses are selling at from $300 to $500 a pair, depending on age and quality.

Prescott and Russell: Large quantities of honey are actually put on the local market at prices ranging from 16c to 20c a lb. There are large quantities of dandelion honey, which was especially abundant this year, and which the beekeepers find hard to dispose of.

Farmers are still complaining of the shortage of labor and co-operation in field work is more common than for years, women and old men helping out in many instances.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines | New York Stock Exchange — And Curb Prices

To-Day's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, July 26.—(United Press.)— The stock market opened firm and fairly active to-day. Coal roads showed partitcular firmness, Reading and Baltimore, and Ohio being up 1-2 point each. Oils were fractionally lower. People's Gas was off 1 1-2 at 88 1-2.

Foreign exchanges opened steady to-day, but the German mark had another record low. Domestic Crude Oil figures again are reported higher and coincident with this announcement was made that the Standard Oil Company of New York had reduced the price of gasoline one cent in New York and New England to 20 1-2 cents tank wagon. V. M. P. Naptha has also been reduced one cent to 19 1-2 cents.

The Bank of England rate remains unchanged at 4 per cent. Further gold has arrived from England, the latest consignment being 14 boxes valued at $465,000 to Kuhn Loebad Co., 36 boxes valued at $1,250,000 consigned to order. The latter consignment, it is understood to be destined to J. P. Morgan and Co. At the end of the first half hour on active trading the leading issues turned strong with Reading in the van, selling above 77. Commission houses reported that a large part of their orders on Tuesday and Wednesday were short sales with Can., Studebaker and Steel being the favorites of these looking for a decline. The first two named were particularly firm to-day with Can. at 92 1-4, after dipping to 92 5-8, while Studebaker touched 105.

Coppers showed firmer tone, Anaconda getting above 41, while Smelters at 57 1-4 was up 3-4 from opening.

Stocks were higher at the end of the first hour. Some short covering was evident, although trading was not large with less than 120,000 shares in the first hour.

The rally in Baldwin was sharp and at 121 1-8, came up a full point. Steels were firm with Bethlehem at 48, up 3-4. Pan-Americans were in better demand and this firmness caused the other Oils to take on a better tone. The B was at 60 and the Common at 62 7-8, both up fractionally from the previous close.

Studebaker continued to improve, selling at 105 5-8, while Chandler was up nearly a point at 51 3-8. Reading continued strong around 77 1-2, and was followed by a gain on 1 5-8 in Lehigh Valley to 62 1-2, while Baltimore and Ohio was at 50.

ENGLISH GIANT SEAPLANE

LONDON, July 26. — (United Press.)— Great Britain's first giant sea-plane, claimed to be the biggest in the world, has undergone its trial flights successfully at the Isle of Grain.

It is designed to carry a crew of seven at a speed of 110 miles an hour. It has five machine-gun emplacemetns.

Four Rolls-Royce Condor engines, developing a total of 2,600 horse power, furnish the motive power. The wing span is 140 feet and the length over all 67 feet. It weighs 15 tons and has been four years under construction.

Wheels are fitted to the undercarriage to permit the plane to land upon or rise from any aerodrome or beach.

The plane is called Fairey Britannia N. 4. Its hull is flexible and shock-absorbing. It has a range of 1,500 miles, and is expected to be able to remain at sea for several days at a time, carrying out the long-distance patrol work in co-operation with the cruiser squadron for which it was designed.

HAIR MATTRESS.

A hair mattress filled with black hair is said to be more satisfactory than one filled with white, as the latter has been bleached and so it mats more easily than the unbleached kind.

SEEKS IMPROVED WAY TO MANUFACTURE IRON

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(Associated Press)—The United States government is now making iron, but only as an experiment and not for the commercial field. Its blast furnace is located at Minneapolis and is operated as a labratory by the Bureau of Mines in co-operation with the University of Minnesota. After four years of experimentation to develop it, the furnace recently produced several tons of gray iron and spielgeleisen.

This type of experiment is declared unique in the field of industrial research, as blast furnaces are not included usually in labratory equipment. But with the demonstration showing every phase of the operation of iron making under complete technical control, it is believed the investigators at the Minneapolis station are in a position to undertake the study of various problems, the solution of which should be of great practical value to blast furnace operators.

The furnace was operated first as a slagging-type gas producer until it had reached a steady state thermally and chemically. Iron ore without the addition of a flux then was introduced, and is descent in the furnace was followed by means of gas samples taken at various stations. When the effect of this charge had been dissipated, more ore was charged without limestone, and other sets of samples were taken.

The purpose is to obtain a comparison of the gas composition at various planes of the furnace. Various sizes of ore also were used. The reduction of the ore at the stockline was found to be greater with smaller sized ore, as indicated by higher cabin dioxide.

One of the most important problems that will be worked out with the experimental furnace will be that of finding a means of extracting iron from the low-grade ores found especially in Northern Minnesota.

SAVING DELAYS IN PORT

From the earliest days of the steamship, the "coaling" of vessels has been one of the most objectionable and costly features of the routine in ports. To pass hundreds of tons of coal through small openings, and pack it safely in the bunkers, involves most strenuous labour and reduces the vessel to a filthy condition. An obvious advantage of oil fuel is that it can be delivered through a hose-pipe and needs no "trimming" in the bunkers. A vessel which took a day or two to coal can be "oiled" in a few hours. This in itself represents a beneficient revolution in port conditions but, man being ever critical, it was soon complained that flexible hose-pipes would only stand a limited pressure, that they soon wore out, and that, when they burst, valuable oil was wasted and the harbour water—to say nothing of the ship—was contaminated. Every one of these difficulties is removed by an all-steel flexible pipe line recently introduced by a British firm. The pipes used are of weldless drawn steel and are, in themselves, perfectly rigid. They are provided, however, with special ball-and-socket and swivelling joints to allow for every possible movement of the vessel alongside the quay. The advantages of a rigid steel pipe are thus combined with the perfect flexibility of a hose pipe. The new equipment is equally applicable to the loading and discharging of tank steamers, to the "oiling" of passenger and cargo vessels, and to the delivery of steam from a boiler on shore. There is no danger of the steel pipes bursting and, therefore, no risk of losing oil or committing the serious offence of polluting navigable waters. Oil can safely be pumped through these pipes at 200 lbs. per square inch, which is much higher than the bursting pressure of hose pipes. As a result, there is a saving of time in addition to the other advantages, and the vessel can return to sea with less delay.

ANNUAL REPORT OF WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Millbrook District Shows Encouraging Work. — Worshippers' League Activities.

MILLBROOK, July 26.—The annual report of the Women's Institute of the district has been prepared by Mrs. J. R. Eakins, who has been for some years the very efficient secretary-treasurer of the organization, and shows that a most encouraging amount of excellent work has been accomplished during the twelve months. There are eight branches in the district and all are doing their fair share toward reaching the ideal, "For Home and Country", which is the motto to be realized, and for which the organizations exist. Better opportunities, and better service for the individual and for the community, is what the officers and members strive to see accomplished.

Cavan Branch, Miss Bertha McNeil, president, which meets every third Thursday at the various members' homes, reports that they used the Institute circulating library, sent flowers to sick members, bought a large quantity of material, held sewing meetings and packed bales of high value which were sent to the Northern Fire Relief. A most successful lawn social was held in June at the home of Mrs. Jack Armstrong, the proceeds being used for necessary charitable work which, in one form or another, this Branch is constantly undertaking throughout the year.

Bethany Branch is active along many lines, the selling of ice-cream on certain evenings each week throughout the summer months bringing in good financial returns. Several concerts, dances, and other forms of social activity were held under the auspices of this Branch during the year, which materially increased their funds. The street lighting, which was installed by the Institute, is its special care, and it also paid for the oiling of the main street of the village this summer. A bale valued at $50 was sent to the Northern fire sufferers, and financial aid was given to local needy cases. Mrs. S. Jemison president of the Bethany Branch, the meetings being held the second Friday of each month.

Mt. Pleasant Branch, Mrs. James Fee, president, holds its meetings the first Wednesday in each month, and is doing good work along various lines. Plants were distributed to the members, the Institute circulating library taken advantage of, and found useful, and a considerable amount of charitable work undertaken and successfully carried through.

The Garden Hill Branch reports a year of activity, meeting each month on the first Tuesday, with Mrs. A. C. Beatty as the efficient president. This Branch provided tea at the school fair, and also for the annual plowing match, sent a gift of money to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, and accomplished much good by carrying out other forms of local charitable work.

Elizabethville Branch, Mrs. M. W. Tamblyn, president, meets on the first Wednesday of each month, and is doing a good deal toward the benefit of the community. Plants were distributed to the members, a gift of $25 given to the church, blankets, and other necessities provided for local cases where need existed. To allow the Institute in this, or indeed any other centre, to disband for lack of interested workers, would be nothing short of a calamity so far as community welfare is concerned.

Millbrook Branch, with Mrs. H. J. Armstrong as president, calls its meetings for the second Wednesday in each month. It seems unfortunate that the members here are largely responsible for the success of activities in other organizations and this fact interferes to a considerable extent with the interest and attendance in Institute work. However, financially, this Branch is well situated, the problem being how to invest the money on hand to the best advantage and so that community interests will be well served. The officers are doing their best to "carry on", and the fall and winter months will doubtless be marked by renewed activity. A very successful "tag day" was observed the proceeds being sent to the Queen Mary Hospital for consumptives, a wreath was placed on the soldiers' monument on Armistic Day, domestic sales were carried out and satisfactory financial results obtained.

Baliebo.o Branch meets on the third Tuesday each month, Mrs. Reginald Armstrong, president. They catered for the plowing match in the fall, gave house plants to their members, look after sidewalks in the village, and undertake charitable work as need arises.

The Charlecote Branch is one of the most active in the district, Mrs. William Bebee, Sr., being the president, and the meetings being held the first Wednesday in each month. This Branch catered to the school fair, made a handsome autograph quilt which netted a nice sum for the treasury when disposed of at a social evening, gave plants to its members, sent money to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, and also to the Children's Shelter, and has been at work in various ways to improve local conditions and give assistance at outside points as well, when the need was brought to their attention.

Rewards Distributed.

The annual distribution of rewards in connection with the Young Worshippers' League took place at the morning service in the Methodist church on Sunday, July 22. The object of the League is to form the habit of regular attendance at one church service each Sunday, besides the Sunday School, among the boys and girls. The age limit has been placed at 15 years as it is considered that the habit should be permanently formed when that birthday has been reached. No child is too young to belong to the League provided it may be brought to church at all. A number are dropping out now having reached the age limit and the responsibility for keeping up the membership rests upon the parents. The secretary, Miss Marjorie Skitch, will be pleased to receive the names of any wishing to join the League; the record for another year begins on Sunday, July 29.

The following 8 members had the highest record for attendance during the past year: Wilma Fallis and William Skitch, 52 Sundays each; Marjorie Sayles and Elsie Spence 49 Sundays each; Mary and Jean Burnham 41 Sundays each; Gladys Tucker and Marshal Fallis 40 Sunday each.

Twelve others had been present from 20 Sundays up to 36 Sundays. The League had last year 31 members who were present 10 Sundays up to 52 Sundays, and a number of others who attended so seldom that no recognition could be given. After this year no reward will be presented to any child not present at least 20 Sundays out of 52. Suitable books were presented this year, the rewards being graded according to the attendance of the recipient.

There is no other kind of disease that comes on so quickly and with so little warning as an attack of

One may retire at night, in the best of health, and before morning be awakened by terrific cramps and pains in the stomach followed by diarrhoea, dysentery, summer complaint or bowel trouble in one form or another.

At this season of the year, when bowel troubles are so prevalent, we would advise the precaution of always having on hand a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry so that you will be ready for any and all emergencies. You will find that a few doses of this valuable remedy, taken promptly, will be the means of preventing a great deal of unnecessary suffering, and many a time save life.

Mrs. W. H. Judd, 174 Catherine St., Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"Last summer I had a very bad attack of summer complaint, cramps and diarrhoea. I tried many different remedies, but they did not seem to help me. I heard of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, so decided I would try it. I only took a few doses, and in a short time I was better."

Petes Whitewashed Belleville--Kingston Ponies Here Saturday

BIG GAME HERE ON SATURDAY

Petes Must Beat Ponies To Keep The Lead In Big Four Race.

Yesterday's decisive victory by the Petes in Belleville, puts Manager Solomon's crew in the lead in the Big Four second section race, and with three of the remaining five games left to play scheduled for Riverside Park, the home gang are in a very favourable position to win the second half honours. Saturday's game with Kingston here is of the greatest importance to both teams and it should be a memorable struggle. The great showing of the Petes in beating Belleville at home twice in a week should earn them the support of the fans and the biggest crowd of the season should be out on Saturday to encourage them in their determined fight for the Big Four title. Barring their lapse at Kingston last week the Petes have been playing fine ball during the second half campaign and they are setting a fast pace for their opposition by winning three out of the four games they have played away from home. In the first half one win over Cobourg was their only road victory in six fixtures, while in the second section they have Belleville twice in Belleville and have won a game in Cobourg.

The Kingston crew are not to be underestimated. They still have a chance for the honours and they will be out there Saturday fighting all the way for a win here.

The game is billed to start sharp at 3 o'clock.

JACK MAYNEORD WON STRATTON TROPHY FOR THE PETERBORO CLUB

Defeated Rev. D. C. Ramsay, Former Umpire In Central Ontario Baseball League by 17-16 In The Final Game Of The Primary Competition of Bowling Tournament, Last Night.

"Kiwanis" A Surprise.

After knocking about for ten years among the bowling clubs of Central Ontario, the J. R. Stratton trophy came home last night in the possession of Jack Mayneord and his rink, who defeated the Rev. Douglas C. Ramsey of Belleville, by the score of 17-16 in the final game of the major competition in the Peterboro Bowling Club's annual tournament.

The clocks were just striking midnight when Ramsey's last bowl, when he was lying one, and needed another to tie it up, fell short of an inside draw, and left Mayneord the victor of the main bout of the tourney after a long day of steady bowling from nine in the morning. As a deciding game it was a fitting climax to the eliminating struggle that had begun with twenty-seven contesting rinks, and the gallery of spectators agreed that the finish was well worth waiting for.

The finalist rinks were as follows.

Peterboro.	Belleville.
R. Elliott	C. H. Vermilyea
Andy Ross	A. R. Symons
W. J. Oke	T. J. Hurley
J. W. Mayneord	Rev. D. C. Ramsay
Sk.....17	Sk.....16

The score by ends—
Ramsay .. ..x1x1x3x11xx3x141—16
Mayneord .. ..1x3x5x2xx23x1xxx—17

The breaks of the game were about evenly divided and on the most of the play the rinks appeared to be very evenly matched. Both skips played steadily with many fine shots to their credit, and the same goes for the ices and the front ends too. Bob Elliott led in great style, but "Clem" Vermilyea gave him a battle all the way. The seconds were also on their toes, and both rinks tried hard for every end.

Mayneord got a nice lead in the first stage of the game, a five end in the ditch being particularly helpful. Ramsey made a big bid to save that end but missed by just the least shade of overweight. His five on the second and third last ends put him with striking distance after Mayneord seemed to have the game in his locker, but Ramsey's best on the last frame was a single shot made by Hurley when he raised the jack and stuck up against it.

Prizes Presented.

The presentation of the prizes was a brief informality at the midnight hour. Dr. Hammond presented to Rev. Rev. Mr. Ramsey and his rink the second prizes, four silver pie plates, and the losing skip paid the honors to the winners, surrendering the Stratton trophy which R. Wray of the Belleville Club, had captured last year, and presenting four individual silver cups to Mayneord and his assistants.

It was stated that Jack Fitzgerald directed the last previous local rink that won the Stratton cup ten years ago, and Jack Mayneord was a member of it.

The scores in the Stratton cup concluding rounds yesterday afternoon and evening, were as follows:

The Warne Cup Competition

The Warne Cup Competition reached the semi-finals last night. They were due for a call at nine this morning, with Kerr of the Toronto Queen City Club playing Jack McKone's "Kiwanis," and Billy De Lany of Cobourg, meeting McMillan of Port Hope.

The "Kiwanis Four" were in the limelight more or less all day and in the early part of the evening provided something of a sensation by defeating Jack Bacon's good rink in the third round by 16-10. At the commencement of the tourney they were less than an unknown quantity for the reason that they weren't conceded a "look in" but every bonspiel and tournament has one such rink to upset the dope and confound the talent. Walter Stocker, it was said, had never bowled before, and if Stuart Gordon, the second on the rink had made a record it was not among among the old timers. Jack Marshall is a bowler of parts, and so is Jack McKone, but he was supposed to be out of practice. If that is so it would be interesting to see him in top form. Most of the spectators who followed the McKone-Bacon fracas last night would scarcely admit that the Kiwanis skip could scarcely improve his play. His rink helped him splendidly, but McKone himself was getting his bowls up with deadly accuracy. He counted on eight of the twelve ends, generally delighted the Kiwanian group who followed this game.

TIMELY HITTING SAVED KINGSTON

Cobourg Met Defeat By A Score Of 9 To 7. Arguments With Umpires a Feature.

KINGSTON, July 26—Timely hitting in the seventh innings aided Kingston in defeating Cobourg last evening at the Fair Grounds, by the score of 9 to 7. The game was a hard hitting affair, with Kingston bunching their hits at the opportune time, and connecting with the shoots offered by J. Ahern and Schaefer. Delaney, the young southpaw of the locals, pitched a fine game, and was backed up with good support, though Cobourg landed hard on him in the fourth. Apart from this he was never in great danger, tightening up when hits meant runs.

Cobourg broke the ice in the second, when two hits and an error sent a run across the plate. Kingston came back and seemingly put the game on ice with a fusilade of hits in the second, and added another in the third. Cobourg sprung a surprise by landing on Delaney in the fourth and tieing the score. The teams battled on even terms until the sixth, when Kingston squeezed in a run Cobourg then filled the bases, but fast fielding prevented them from scoring. In the seventh with two men on and two out, Daly connected with one of Schaefer's shoots, sending it to deep right for a home run. Cobourg rallied in the eighth and scored twice, but could not make up the needed two runs.

There was considerable arguing with the umpires, Collings, especially being the brunt of many complaints.

Defeated Centreville By a Score Of 21 To 15 Last Evening In The Final Game.

The game was played at the Exhibition Grounds and was featured by several home runs, numerous stolen bases and quite a few errors. Centreville had the edge in the early stages of the game, but the Otonabee boys went right after them in the fifth and chased seven runs across the plate, changing a one-run defeat into a six-run victory. They held Centreville scoreless in the sixth, after which the game was called.

ANOTHER WIN IN BELLEVILLE FOR PETES DEAL OUT WHITEWASH

Heckman's Great Speed Has Belleville Hitters Mystified While Petes Take Advantage Of Errors Behind Williams To Win Out.

The Petes materially improved their chances of winning the second section of the Big Four race yesterday afternoon and incidentally made baseball history by waltzing into Belleville and defeating Walter Gerow's Grand Trunks on their own grounds for the second time in a week. Not content with that they administered a neat coat of whitewash, winning 4 to 0, and only one Belleville player got as far as third base during the engagement.

The old zip was back in Al. Heckman's good right arm yesterday, and the Petes' twirler had so much speed that the usually hard hitting Belleville crew were helpless when a safety would have meant a run. They could get a hit now and then and got men on the bases, but when it came to the final punch, Heckman blew the ball by them so fast that the necessary hit was never forthcoming. He had nine strike-outs to his credit and most of them were injected just when they would nip a budding rally most effectively. To make his performance more notable it was Heck's third game in a week.

Belleville, on the other hand, had Southpaw Jackie Williams raring to go after a week's rest, having worked Oulette out of his turn last Saturday to save Williams for yesterday's battle.

The Indian pitched good enough ball, allowing but seven hits, but his team mates tied in a knot by Heckman's speed and kicking in with three costly errors on the defence, it was not Williams' day and for the second time in succession on his own grounds the dusky left hander had to admit defeat.

The Petes played steady ball behind Heckman, their only two errors coming in one inning and doing no harm, while all three misplays marked against Belleville played a material part in the Petes' run-getting.

There was a lot of snappy fielding on both sides, with the two catchers, Swanston and Hagerman, making spectacular catches of foul flys. Helson and Johnston for the Petes made nice plays on hard hit balls, while Third Baseman Williams for the losers performed in fine style in accepting seven chances.

As usual, the Petes suffered from umpire's mistakes, losing a sure run in the second inning when the arbitrators failed to call a block ball when Ansaldo hit into the crowd and the ball was thrown out to Brownscombe in time for Ansaldo to be nipped going to third. Manager Solomon stormed for five minutes and finished the game under protest when the umps refused to change their decision. It was a bad break against the Petes as Helson followed with a hit that would have meant a counter.

It was a sweet win for Manager Solomon's outfit, who regarded it as a fitting revenge for the shutout registered against them in Belleville last month.

Comolli, whose three hits played a big part in last week's win, came back yesterday with two safeties in four times up, driving in a run with each hit.

The Petes went out in order in the first, Legon rolling to J. K. Williams and Shaughnessy to Weir while Johnston popped to Mills.

Ross started Belleville off with a clean single to left, and was sacrificed to second by Meagher, Comolli fielding the ball and throwing to Johnston who covered first. Heckman then struck out the hard hitting Weir and retired the side by grabbing Harry Mills' lofty fly.

The blocked ball incident came up in the Petes' half of the second. Ansaldo shot a double over third, the ball going into the crowd and one of the spectators tossed it to Brownscombe. Manager Solomon claiming a blocked ball waved to Ansaldo to come on to third but he was tagged out en route and in spite of a heated argument on the part of the Petes' pilot the decision was unchanged. It cost the Petes a run for after Comolli had been thrown out by J. H. Williams, Helson singled to right. Swanston's strike out retired the side.

J. K. Williams first up for Belleville bounced a single over Helson's head and went to second on Casey's infield out, Johnston to Comolli. Brownscombe fanned and Heckman deflected Hagerman's smash over to Ansaldo who tossed the batter out at first.

The third was Williams' best inning, the Indian southpaw striking out Heckman, Wolfe and Legon in succession.

In Belleville's half J. H. Williams fanned. Ross bounced a hit off Helson and went to second while Johnston was throwing out Meagher. Weir's hard roller was neatly taken by Helson, who completed a nice play by tagging Ross on the line fo rthe third out.

The Solomon crew won the game in the fourth. Shaughnessy first up singled, a languid tap past the box just out of J. K. Williams' reach and too slow for Weir to make a play at first. Johnston laid down a neat bunt along the first base line for what was intended a sacrifice but Hagerman who fielded the ball threw so deep in right field that Shaughnessy scored from first and Johnston pulled up at third. He remained there while Ansaldo popped to the pitcher and then trotted home when Comolli singled past Meagher into right field. Helson forced Comolli on a hard smash to Meagher and Swanston's long foul fly to right was nicely gathered in by Casey.

Belleville got two perfectly good hits but no runs in their half. Harry Mills singled to centre to start the frame but "Jakie" Williams hoisted one which Swanston grabbed. Casey then slapped a single past Johnston. Heckman, however, took all the pep out of the incipient rally by striking out Brownscombe and Hagerman.

The Petes made a good bid for another run in the fifth. Heckman started it off with a line single over second. Wolfe's attempt at a sacrifice resulted in a foul fly which Hagerman nailed on the run with one hand, a fast play. Legon supplied the necessary sacrifice but J. K. Williams' speedy work on Shaughnessy's roller to third retired the side.

In Belleville's half J. K. Williams was extinguished on a high foul which Swanston chased to the Belleville bench and caught nicely. Helson camped under a foul from Ross's bat and then terminated the inning by going back of third and making a fine catch of Meagher's high one. He fell but came up holding the ball safely.

Thanks to a momentary piece of generosity on the part of Mr. Williams and timely assistance from shortstop Weir the sixth saw the Solomon outfit another marker in front. Johnston waited the Indian out and drew a pass. Ansaldo effaced himself with a sacrifice bunt, putting Johnston on second. Comolli was called out on strikes but Helson hit to Weir who let the grass cutter roll through, Johnston scoring. Helson stole second but J. K. Williams grabbed Swanston's bid for a hit over third and beat him at first by a fast accurate throw.

Weir led off for Belleville with a single between short and third. Johnston knocked down Mills' steaming drive and got the batter at first, Weir going to second. J. K. Williams flied to Wolfe in centre. Casey got a walk, Heckman's only charity but with two men on the Petes pitcher unlinked some more speed and whiffed Brownscombe.

The seventh was soon over. For the Petes Heckman was out on strikes, Wolfe bunted to J. H. Williams and the pitcher's throw beat him to first and Legon fanned.

For Belleville Hagerman and Williams took three wild swings and a drink of water and Ross rolled to Johnston who tossed him out.

In the eight after Shaughnessy had been thrown out by Meagher, Johnston got his second pass. Ansaldo hit to Weir who fumbled and everybody was safe. Comolli cut a single between Meagher and Mills Johnston registering his third run of the game and on the throw in Ansaldo sped to third and Comolli to second. The Petes' strategy slipped at this stage for Ansaldo expecting a squeeze play tore for home on the first ball and was caught between the plate and third when Helson failed to hit. Comolli reached third while the shortstop was being extinguished. Helson's long fly to right found Casey waiting for it and the fun was over.

The Petes made their only errors of the game in Belleville's half. Helson tossed out Meagher to start with, but Ansaldo fumbled Weir's roller and when Helson dropped Mills' fly near the foul line there weer two on the run ways. Shaughnessy, however, made a nice grab of J. K. Williams' long foul, Weir going to third after the catch and Helson killed any chance for a run by spearing Casey's roller and throwing the little right fielder out at first.

Swanston first up in the ninth rolled to Meagher and was out. Heckman drove a double over first but was stranded at second when Weir tossed out Wolfe and Legon.

Manager Gerow called upon his reserves in a last attempt to pull the game out in the ninth. Old Cap Smith, veteran of many a fray was sent in to hit for Brownscombe, who had fanned three times in succession and the old timer proceeded to prove how easy it is to be a hero and a boob almost in one breath. He won laurels first by poling a clean single and then earned lemons immediately after when with the count three balls and one strike on Hagerman he figured the next pitch was the fourth ball and started to jog down to second. Umpire Barnes had called it a strike, however, and the dumfounded Smith was tagged out in no man's land. Hagerman then singled to right. Gerow elected to go to bat himself instead of his Indian pitcher but Heck's speed had him buffaloed and he fanned. Ross hit to Ansaldo who threw to second for a force play and what looked to be the final out by a yard. Base umpire Butler however called Hagerman safe. The decision merely prolonged the inning a moment or two for Meagher drove a fly to right which found a safe resting place in Shaugnessy's hands and it was all over.

FORFEIT GAME IN THE FIFTH

When a Hillcrests infielder refused to leave the game after being ordered to make his exit by Umpire Gorham in the Hillcrests-Sacred Heart Juvenile contest Tuesday evening, the umps declared the game forfeited by Hillcrests. It was the first half of the fifth, with one out, Sacred Heart at bat and leading by the score of 13 to 2. Dilatory movements by the Hillcrests led the umpire to believe that certain players of the team were delaying the game in the hope that play would be stopped on account of darkness before five innings had been played.

Umpire Gorham will be supported by the City League Executive in the stand he took Tuesday evening. There has been too much crabbing on the part of players of all teams and interference with the officials in charge of the game.

Hillcrests have received fair treatment on all sides, and in the last two games played, the opposing clubs have used second string pitchers, and have shown a disposition to help the East City team.

Sacred Heart used Tom Kenneally on hurling heap Tuesday evening and Hillchests got only two hits, both clouts coming in the third, when a pass to Leahy, infield errors, Perdue's double and Vinette's single gave them two runs. Kenneally struck out seven batters.

Bill Welsh pitching for Hillcrests was hit hard and often. He was nicked in a row for two runs in the first; seven hits and an error gave Sacred Heart six tallies in the second; Rody's double and an error at third made a counter in the fourth, and three more runs were scored in the fifth on Rody's single, Jones' double, Milloy's long single to right which accounted for two, and Rishea's triple and his steal home.

CRIQUI AND DUNDEE MEET THIS EVENING

Two Of The Best Feather-Weights The Ring Has Ever Known.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, July 26.—The iron jaw of France and the rubber ball of America will meet at the Polo Grounds tonight to decide the feather-erweight championship of the world.

Eugene Criqui, with the serious face and the crooked jaw, will defend the title that he won some time ago, with a great victory over the venerable Johnny Kilbane, against Johnny Dundee, one of the greatest little fighters that ever swung a glove.

Dundee, one of those Italians who sent the poets into reveries about the fighting blood of Caesar, will be at least the sentimental favorite. He has a tremendous following in New York and his partisans are not confined to the Italian colony.

Criqui proved in the Kilbane fight that he is a worthy champion and a great fighter. He had proved it before, in Europe, but Americans are skeptical about the class of fighters on the other side who helped to give the gallant French war hero of Verdun an impressive list of knock-outs.

Dundee is, beyond doubt, one of the greatest little fighters that ever lived. He has been nearer to various championships than any other fighter, with the possible exception of Charley White. He has battled them all, and in most of his fights he was forced to give away pounds and pounds of weight to his opponents.

Various opinions have been expressed on the outiome of the fight, but there is one that should carry weight because he has met them both and he knows both.

Johnny Kilbane, former feather-weight champion, leans toward Dundee as the victor, and he predicts that Criqui will have the fight of his life on his hands.

"Criqui is a great fighter," Kilbane says. "He keeps coming in all the time and he is always hitting. He hides behind an upraised shoulder, much after the style of Dempsey, and he is hard to reach on the jaw. He is not an extremely clever fighter, but he has a heart that keeps him coming back all the time. I had no trouble outboxing him and I found that he was easy to hit.

"However, when I found openings I missed many of them. I had been out of the ring too long and my timing was way off. I was short with punches that I felt sure were going right to the button, and every time I missed I got a good one back. That French boy can counter.

"Against Dundee, Criqui will have a different fight to carry. Dundee hasn't been out of the ring. He is about the 'fightenest' boxer in the business, and when he leads he will not miss like I did. When Criqui cocks his right hand he will not find Dundee standing in the way of it, like he caught me. Dundee has a tricky style, and if he fights his usual fight Criqui may find so many gloves in his face that he cannot set himself for his right-hand punch."

Charlie Allan Back On Duty In Toronto

Charlie Allan, left-hand pitcher who played with Lindsay in the Central Ontario League last season, will be seen in action with Hillcrests at Hampden Park on Saturday. Allan is one of the leading portsider heavers in Ontario His work on the hilltop for Lindsay last season was the talk of the Central Ontario circuit. He is a husky youth, tipping the scale at the 180 mark, and stands 5 ft. 11 inches. He is also a hard hitter, and should find the right field fence at the Shaw Street Park a good target. With Allan ready for mound duty, the champions will be stronger than ever for their crucial game with Oslers on August 4th, as he is a sure starter against the Hamilton clan. Allan joined Hillcrests early in the spring and was forced to retire from the game owing to an injured knee which kept him on the casualty list for ten weeks. Last fall he played with the Varsity O.R.F.U. senior rugby team.

KIWANIS RINK IN FINALS FOR WARNE CUP

Won by Quarter of an Inch and One Shot in Qualifying Semi-Final With T. G. Kerr of Queen City Club.

SINGLES ADDED

The standard of the Kiwanis was carried into the final game of the Warne Cup competition of the bowling tournament this afternoon. Jack McKone and his rink qualified for the concluding round by defeating the Kerr rink of the Queen City Club this morning, by the score of 9-8. It was so close on the last end that the calipers had to be called into use to measure the bowls nearest the "Cat."

In the meantime Billy Delaney of Cobourg won his game from McMillan of Port Hope by 20 to 10, and the stage was set for the deciding bout this afternoon.

Herb Martin originally intended to start the finalists at 1.30, but at noon DeLany and McKone had just finished their game in the Scotch doubles, and in order not to hold up this competition the Warne Cup bout was deferred for an hour while DeLany who beat McKone by 7 shots in the doubles went ahead with his next game in that series.

Even this morning the Kiwanis rink had quite a following of its clubmates to cheer them through the semifinals, and this afternoons attendance looked like a roll-call of the club with a hundred per cent. membership on hand.

The tournament has been the biggest success in the history of the club. First the rink games were run off yesterday, up to mid-night, with the Warne semi-finals this morning and the finals this afternoon. Then the Scotch doubles were started early yesterday afternoon, and were still going merrily at noon to-day and on top of that full measure of sport the committee decided to add a singles competition as an extra. They went out and brought the prizes this morning, and at noon the entry list was around the forty mark with other entries in sight.

The weather was simply made to order, and the conveniences for the bowlers include refreshments served by the wives of some of the members of the local club. This feature has been highly appreciated by the visitors and by the Peterboro Club who feel themselves greatly indebted to the ladies for all the pains that they have taken and the time and work they have given in this respect.

Appreciation was also expressed of the fine concert given by the Caledonian Pipers last night. It was a musical treat that added the brightness of sound to the colour and lively animation of the scene on the greens.

A BOON TO MOTORISTS

Among the innumerable tools, accessories and spares which are continually being devised to meet every possible requirement of the motorist, there occasionally appears a new device which at once appeals to every driver as being really valuable in an emergency. One such device, recently introduced by a British firm of motor engineers, consists of an electromagnet which can be run from the car-lighting circuit and used to extract valves or recover steel parts from awkward positions. A soft iron core is wound with insulated wire over which there is placed an iron tube. The windings are thus protected from damage, and the iron tube and core form a powerful magnet which is equally effective in lifting valves or other steel parts of any shape. A flexible cord from the magnet coil terminates in a plug which can be inserted in a lamp socket at a moment's notice. The magnet is then ready for use and it will pick up instantly any piece of iron or steel, the recovery of which would otherwise involve the expenditure of much time and temper.

AT THE ROYAL.

PRETTY GIRL IN BAND OF CROOKS BRINGS ABOUT THEIR REGENERATION

"Mighty Lak' a Rose," Edwin Carewe's new production released by First National, will be the attraction at the Royal Theatre to-night. This picture tells the story of a poor young girl whose sweet appealing nature is enhanced by the wonderful appeal in the music of her violin When Providence transports her into the midst of a band of crooks who intend to use her in their schemes, a thrilling battle between the forces of good and evil begins and ends with good not only winning, but raving its conquered foe bow smilingly before it.

Dorothy Mackaill, another pretty and talented Follies girl, and James Rennie, now the husband of Dorothy Gish are at the head of a cast that includes: Helene Montrose, Anders Randolf, Sam Hardy. Paul Panzer, Harry Short and Jean Bronte, a Scotch collie, quite renowned in pictures.

Special mention must be made of Dorothy Mackaill. This sweet little English blonde is only eighteen. She began her stage career at fifteen in London, where she appeared at the Hippodrome in "Joy Bells." She came to America the next year because she heard it was "a wonderful place." All by herself, no influence, no letters of introduction, she walked in and got herself a place in two of the big numbers of the Ziegfeld chorus. She is said to give a fine performance in "Mighty Lak' a Rose."

BOUT FOR DEMPSEY IS NOW ASSURED

Will Meet Louis Angel Firpo At a Date To Be Decided Upon Later.

NEW YORK, July 26—(Canadian Press) — Jack Dempsey. world's heavyweight champion, and Luis Angel Firpo, his challenger from the Argentin, have been matched for a title bout, probably in September, at a site within or close to New York

Promoter Tex Rickard announced late yesterday that articles binding the match had been signed by Firpo and Jack Kearns, the champion's manager, but he declared the date and place were still a matter of uncertainty.

"You can say that the match is signed, sealed and delivered" Rickard said, "and that it will be held in the United States but I can give no other details now."

Belief that Rickard had the Polo Grounds in mind as the probable site was strengthened by inforfation that he had held another conference with Charles A. Stoneham President of the New York Giants. There also was considerable speculation over possible dates with the probability that the bout would be staged some some time between September 5 and 22.

What Rickard has guaranteed either fighter was not disclosed, but when Firpo came back to the United States last March for a series of matches under the promoter's auspices the first of which was with Bill Brennan. it was said the Argentinian was promised $100,000 in the event he gained a title bout with Dempsey. The champion's end it was figured, probably would be close to $500,000.

Firpo left late yesterday to fulfill several engagements in the Middle West.

Canada Faces the Future With Confidence

CANADIANS have always been noted for courage, optimism and faith in their country.

Canada was not built up by pessimists, nor will Canada continue to develop if her people allow themselves to become croakers and grouchers. Canada is fundamentally an agricultural country. We have a soil and climate which can grow the world's finest agricultural products.

Canadian farmers who have earned the capital invested in their farms out of profits in farming are numbered in thousands. These successful farmers have paid off their mortgages, stocked their barns and stables, bought their machinery, made a good living, and brought up their families. It meant hard work, but today they are independent.

Money in Mixed Farming

In recent years, at different points on the prairies, oats fed to steers have brought from 70c to $1.07 as against the Fort William price of 42c per bushel, while barley used for the same purpose has brought as high as 99c as against Fort William price of 57c per bushel. Farmers marketing their coarse grains in this way lower marketing cost, have a sure market and make money on their grain, while at the same time they market their roughage, otherwise often wasted.

The cattle embargo is now off. Steers are worth more money and certain to make good money for the Canadian farmer from now on.

Money in Pigs

The Dominion Experimental Farms have proved by actual test that there is a profit in feeding pigs. Last year at the Central Farm, Ottawa, after paying for feed, labor, interest and depreciation, the net profit per pig was still $4.63.

Profits from Sheep

As money-makers, sheep are hard to beat. In every Province from Prince Edward Island to British Columbia are found many flocks returning generous profits to their owners.

We Must Cut Production Costs

Canada is meeting with the keenest competition in the marketing of her products. To hold her own and regain her place on the world's market, she must reduce cost of production.

The only way to do this is to increase production per acre, per cow or per other unit.

But improved quality, also, is essential to meet market demands.

The quantity and the quality of the products and the cost of production in competitive countries is beyond our control.

Prices of agricultural products are regulated by world supply and demand.

Hence, decreasing production will not help the Canadian farmer.

Poultry Pays

Poultry makes money for those who adopt modern methods, whether East or West. Little Prince Edward Island markets co-operatively in carlots, shipping annually upwards of one million dozen eggs. The British Columbia Co-operative Poultry Men's Exchange markets in the same way, thus saving ruinous glut in their local market.

Grow Seed

Canada's Northern grown seed possesses extra vitality. There is a large market for it to the south. Canada exports seed potatoes, but imports other seeds. She has the opportunity to grow seed for herself and for export.

The Future

Ten years from now the pessimists of today will have been forgotten. Britain has removed the embargo against our cattle. She wants our beef and bacon, our cheese, butter, eggs and apples, our wheat and flour. As the population of the United States increases, she will compete less and less against us on the British market. Eventually, she will herself be an importer of many other food stuffs besides wheat from this country.

Canada has the men, the climate, the land, the stock and the potential markets necessary for agricultural success. Let us farm with all the industry and science we can muster. Let's get to work and pay off our debts. Canada is moving forward with confidence in its future. Let us keep going ahead.

WEDDING BELLS

GRAHAM—BAILEY.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place in the Grandview Methodist church on Tuesday evening, June 12th, when Miss Annie Bailey became the bride of Hally Merl Graham, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Graham of Port Hammond, B. C. The Rev. R. R. Morrison performed the ceremony.

The bride was daintily attired in a pretty gown of navy blue Canton crepe and radium lace, a large picture hat of leghorn straw and French flowers, and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and baby's breath and satin streamers. She was attended by Miss Catherine Patience, who wore a French blue velvet gown with gold brocaded trimmings, her bouquet being of pink carnations and ferns.

After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. A. E. Little, 235 Lakewood Drive, following which the happy couple left amid showers of rice and confetti for the 11.30 boat for Seattle, where their honeymoon was spent.

The bride was the recipient of many lovely gifts, several from Peterborough, Ontario and a handsome silver service from the Empire Dry Cleaners, where she was employed.

AMERICAN OPERA WAITS FOR HOME RECOGNITION

CHICAGO, July 26.—(Associated Press).—American artists and opera must be encouraged if more production is expected and one of the best means of such encouragement is an immediate change of system in companies incorporated in the United States, said Mrs. Eleanor Everest Freer, national co-chairman of the opera department, National Federation of Music Clubs, in a statement here to-day.

"The adoption of our own language for foreign operas will place American opera on an equal footing with those of the old world, and also will encourage a closer study of our own productions," Mrs Freer asserted. "America has opera and music all its own, but Americans have not yet fully realized it.

"Operas indigenous to our soil, in their subjects, are of the great importance, although no one advocates their exclusive performance. The choice of the subject, however, should be entirely a personal matter with the composer. If we do not encourage our artists we cannot expect much production, and we cannot afford not to leave art treasures behind us for coming generations."

More than 80 operas by some of the best musicians in the country have been published, Mrs. Freer added, "and we as Americans should insist that they be presented along with the time-honored classics.

No definite statement has been given to the press as yet, but it is reported that the large haul of furs and fur coats stolen recently from local shops have been recovered.

DEVISES NEW METHOD OF BLOOD TRANSFUSION

By John O'Brien
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, July 26—(United Press)—Instead of blood transfusion to save the lives of persons in danger of death from aenemia, Dr. Henri Durville presented to the congress of experimntal psychology here a new method by which the vitality of a healthy person is transmitted to the invalid. He cited many cases in which patients given up by specialists have been practically brought back to life.

Dr. Durville gave details of two cases in which he was especially interested, because the persons affected were members of his own family. One was his nephew, aged seven, stricken with double pneumonia. Two specialists, members of the academy of medicine, informed Dr. Durville that they saw no hope of saving the boy's life. Dr. Durville explained to the congress how he succeeded where the specialists failed.

"The method," he said, "is simple. Take a piece of flannel or linen and place it over the affected organ. Take a deep breath and apply the lips, the mouth well open, over the cloth. Expel the breath with the greatest energy with the will to make it enter into the patient's body. When all the air in the lungs has been exhaled draw another deep breath and repeat the operation. This must be kept up at intervals of five minutes for several hours. It is fatiguing but effective."

Dr. Durville declared he continued this operation every five minutes for twelve hours a day for three days in the case of his nephew, saving the child's life.

The other patient was the doctor's wife who was suffering from blood poisoning after childbirth. Two specialists also had abandoned hope. The doctor and his brother took turns at employing the same method and at the end of ten days, the specialists who had said she could not be saved were invited to return and see her in full convalescence.

"It is a miracle," was their verdict, according to Dr. Durville.

BAVARIA SEEKS WATER POWER.

MUNICH, July 26.—(Associated Press)—Bavaria will have one of the world's greatest power plants when the canalization of the Middle Isar River is completed.

Seven thousand workmen are engaged in constructing a new bed for the river which will make it possible to develop an electric current aggregating 480,000,000 watt hours yearly. This will result in a saving of 500,000 tons of coal annually, the cost of which has been estimated at 400,000,000,000 paper marks.

GERMANY NOW GIVEN SIX MONTHS BEFORE COMPLETE COLLAPSE

Settlement of Reparations Problems Held Vital to Stave Off Economical, Financial and Political Disaster, British Government is Advised.

GOVERNMENT CHANGE

LONDON, July 27—United Press—Germany is given three to six months longer before complete collapse financially and economically as well as politically, ensues, in officially and semi-official advices reaching the British Government to-day. Settlement of the reparations problems is held vital to stave off the disaster.

The British advices do not stress particularly the events of the past week, the terrific slump of the mark to unimagined lows and the mutterings of a royalist revolt. British observers intimate the situation in Germany may drag out for several months. Reacting to these reports of impending collapse, it is the government's desire to start immediately upon negotiations to effect a settlement of the reparations question and save Germany from a crash which might involve the rest of Europe.

The Government understands replies to its note and covering memoranda sent the Allies a week ago, will reach London this week-end.

France and Belgium are sending separate replies, as is Italy, it is said Little time as possible will be lost by the Government in considering these documents, before dispatching the note to Germany.

Grinding Out Cash

Germany's income in June was only two per cent. of her expenses, the Tageblatt declares, to-day, ironically, advocating abandonment of taxation in favor of the printing press.

Berlin's sixty hug presses continues to grind out billions of marks a day, while the purchasing power of the paper currency approaches the absolute zero.

The Cuno Government is being made the scapegoat, and political changes are believed imminent.

The German mark passed the equivalent of 1,000,000 to the dollar in its steady descent on the London Exchange this afternoon, being quoted at 900,000 to the pound sterling.

onarchist Coup

Belgium and Holland heard further rumors of an impending monarchist coup in Germany to-day, when it was reported Hugo Stinnes had been seen at Doorn, visiting ex-Kaiser Wilhelm Hohenzellern.

Dr. Helffrich, a noted, Pan-German, was among those, who visited the former monarch, early in July, and Prince Eitel Frederick, who keeps in close touch with the junkers, has been several times to see his father.

These visitations are foundation for rumors that what is believed to be an impending coupe d'etat in Germany will have as its object restoration of the former Kaiser to the throne.

An attempt is made to explain the report that Stinnes has been seen at Doorn, by saying it was another visitor greatly resembling the industrial Baron.

Both Notes Due

Premier Poincare has completed the draft of the French reply to Britain on reparations, after lengthy cabinet sessions and the hard battle of the past week, the Premier announced he was going to the country to rest. The French answer will be sent to Belgium. Belgium, which will reply separately to the British covering letter, will submit her answer to France. Both notes are expected to arrive in London, Monday.

HOLD SUSPECTS BANK ROBBERY

Police Arrest Two Men in Buffalo—Their Car Showed Signs of Gun Battle.

BUFFALO, July 27.— (Canadian Press.)—Police to-day arrested two men on a downtown street in Buffalo in a travel-worn car which bore signs of having been in a gun battle. There were two bullet holes through the sides of the automobile and several spent bullets lying on the floor. An investigation was started to determine whether there was any connection between this car and that used in the daylight hold-up in Toronto on Tuesday.

The men said they had been in Toronto yesterday. They had in their possesion a bill of sale for another car and evidence that several cars had been purchased and disposed of through the manipulation of the one bill of sale.

ANSWERS DESCRIPTION.

Two young men answering roughly to the description of two of the bandits who held up and robbed the bank messengers in Toronto on Tuesday, are under arrest this afternoon in Buffalo. When taken into custody because of their description and peculiar actions a loaded gun, the police say, was found on one of them. The men after questioning acknowledged that they had been in Toronto yesterday, but said that they were on their way to visit a doctor friend in Buffalo.

They produced a bill of sale of an Essex car as purchased in Alabama, and said that they had made the trip overland earlier in the month.

The men who gave their names as Klusauy and Marick, were described by the police of Buffalo as follows: One about 25 years of age, with dark hair, blue eyes, wearing light grey suit, and of medium build. The second was between 25 and 30 years of age, light complexion, wearing dark suit, with a light stripe through it. Both are being held presumably for identification by the Toronto police.

FORMER CROWN PRINCE PLANNING HIS ESCAPE

LONDON, July 27.— (Canadian Press) — That the former Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany, is believed to be planning his escape from Wieringen, is asserted by the Antwerp correspondent, of the Daily Mail.

There is curiosity throughout Belgium, the correspondent says, owing to confidential information regarding the coming and goings of various agents between Germany and Wieringen, and it is an open secret, that the Prince wants to return to Germany. He is believed to be in constant communication with the German Nationalists and their organizations throughout the Fatherland.

Seventy-eight per cent. of motor cars stolen in 1922 were recovered.

BANK ROBBERS NEAR TORONTO ON WEDNESDAY

Alex. Schenwick Surprised Three Gunmen in the Bush Off Main Road to Leaside.

ONE WAS WOUNDED

TORONTO, July 27.— (Special.)—That one of the six desperadoes who held up the bank messengers in Toronto Wednesday morning, was shot in the leg during the street battle which followed, and that members of the gang were within a short distance of Toronto Wednesday morning with a large black automobile, was made known to the police yesterday morning.

Pulled a Gun.

Alex. Schernwich, Richmond street west, came across the gunmen in a bush off the main road at Leaside at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. As Schernwich walked into the bush he was confronted by a heavy set man who pushed a revolver against his chest. Schernwich threw his hands above his head, and as he looked forward saw four men busy dressing a wound in the leg of a man who was lying stretched out on the long grass. Schernwich was then ordered to pull down his hands and stretch them out in front of him. With the gun pressed closely against his chest, Schernwich was asked where he was going. He replied that he was on his way to Leaside. The bandit ordered him to turn and run to the opposite direction or he would open fire on him.

Schernwich at once returned to his Richmond street west rooming house and related his experience to his fellow countrymen.

Yesterday an interpreter brought Schernwich to detective headquarters, where the man's story was related to Chief of Police Dickson and Detective Inspector Walker.

Police on the Scene.

A number of detectives, including Frank Wickett, John McArthur, W. Alton, Arthur Levitt and some plain clothesmen, all heavily armed with revolvers and rifles, filled two motor cars and sped to the scene. Schernwich was able to lead the detectives to the exact spot where he said he had met the bandits. The grass was tramped down, making it evident that the gunmen might have spent Tuesday night in this lonely spot. The only clue found was a piece of absorbent gauze, which had evidently been cut to be applied as a dressing on the gun shot wound. Traces of where an automobile had stood at the side of the raod were also seen by the police.

Unable to find any further trace of the desperadoes the detectives returned to headquarters. A statement was taken from Schernwich, in which he was positive the car he saw was a large black one . Describing the man who had covered him with a revolver, Schernwich said he was tall, well built and was very well dressed. His description, it was learned yesterday, was the same as that given detectives by messengers who were within striking distance of the men during the street fight.

The Sawed-Off Gun.

A Montreal despatch says: The sawed-off gun dropped by the bandits who held up and engaged in the gun fight with the bank messengers, was purchased by a stranger, believed to be an American, from T. W. Boyd and Sons, sporting goods merchants, 27 Notre Dame street west, last Monday or the Saturday previous.

An excellent description of the purchaser of the shotgun was given to the local detective officials this morning by the salesman of the gun. The description was wired to the Toronto police this morning.

The law of the province insists upon the names and addresses of purchasers of revolvers only being taken by sellers of such weapons, thus the actual identity of the purchaser of the gun in the Toronto case is still unknown.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE WILL TAKE HAND COAL SITUATION

Major W. H. Taylor Will Be Asked to Call a Meeting and Deal With the Coal Question—Situation Said to Be Serious

Working men who cannot afford to lay in a stock of coal now, must be protected from suffering in winter, the Executive Council of the Chamber of Commerce decided last night.

The coal situation was discussed from all angles, and as a result of the deliberation of the Council the Secretary was instructed to ask Mayor W. H. Taylor to call a conference between the City Council, the Chamber of Commerce and the coal dealers in the city at which the question of coal supply could be threshed out.

It was stoted that the normal average consumption of Peterboro, includink the supply required for industries, is 60,000 tons of coal annually. The object of the conference is to discover how much of this supply has already been received and distributed, so that the amount still required may be ascertained. It is well-known that many citizens have their cellars stocked, and this movement by the Chamber of Commerce is solely for the protection of those who cannot afford to lay in the winter fuel before September 1. It is pointed out that the agreement between the miners and their chiefs expires on that date, and it is uncertain what development may take place, and also that grain shipments will monopolize the railroods after next month.

It is understood that the Chamber of Commerce is determined to carry through some plan of supply on its own initiative, failing co-operation by the City Council.

BLUE SUNDAYS FOR LUDINGTON IN THE STATES

Rigid Enforeement of Sabbath Observance Laws Will Prohibit Bathing at Public Beaches

RESTRICT MOTORING

LUDINGTON, Mich., July 27.Canadian Press. — Now comes the "Ludington Blues." Dusting off the statute books, the county authorities have noted all of Michigan's blue laws regarding Sababth observances.

Virgil A. Fitch, Prosecuting Attorney of Mason County, declared to-day that the enforcement of the Sunday blue laws will mean—

1. The closing of all billiard parlours, soft drink emporiums, dance halls, theatres and other places of amusement, including the bathing beaches.

2. Stopping the publication and distribution of the Ludington Sunday News.

3. Stoping Sunday play on all golf courses in the county.

4. The arrest of all persons driving automobiles for pleasure on the Sabbath.

The present situation is the resutl of efforts of club women and others to close the dance halls on Sunday. After the matter had been laid before the city authorities without result the prosecutor took a hand. He took the view that he could not with consistency enforce one blue law, without enforcing all of them.

PRESIDENT HARDING ENJOYED HIS VISIT

VANCOUVER, July 27. Canadian Press. — "We have one more bond in common. We all speak the English language and in your country and mine we speak it the same way."

Thus did Warren G. Harding, the first United States President to break bread on Canadian soil, round out speeches filled with gracious friendliness and good humor, in response to a toast in his honor at a dinner given him by the Government of Canada here last night at the close of his visit to Vancouver.

Facing the gallery of representative Canadians at the end of a strenuous day of fraternizing on Canadian soil, the President expressed his satisfaction with the state of affairs which permitted the free intermingling of immigration and business enterprises between the Anglo-Saxon population of the North American continent.

The burden of his speech at the government dinner was that this mingling of peoples and ideas could lead to nothing but good.

LONG DISTANCE HIKERS LIVED ON 80c. A DAY

OTTAWA, July 27.— (Canadian Press).— After walking from Progresso, Mexico, Messers James D. Brown, Pawtuckett, R. I., Jack Kelly, Capetown, S. A., and Raymond Barber, Providence, R. I., arrived in the capital yesterday and reported an uneventful trip.

The three young men are in good physical condition. That the cost of living by hiking was cheaper than in several ciyies was borne out by the statement that the three men had lived on 80 cents a day since June 15, 1922.

There were 1,207,00 registered on the unemployed lists in the British Isles on May 31.

BAPTISTS WILL WAGE WAR FOR A DRY WORLD

Urge "Spreading of the Truth Concerning Alcoholic Beverages and Their Effect."

IN CONVENTION

STOCKHOLM, —uly 27. — (United Press).—Urging the spreading of "The Truth" concerning alcoholic beverages and their disastrous effect, a resolution was adopted by the third world Baptist Congress here, approving the efforts of the Baptists throughout the wworld to secure total abstinance by governmental action. The resolution commended nations already enforcing prohibition or drastically restricting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks

The Baptists were asked corefully to consider the problem so as to discredit the propoganda in liquor defense organizations are alleged to be circulating.

Toronto was chosen as the next meeting place of the Alliance five years hence.

Peace Question.

Direct reference to the League of Nations was eliminated from a resolution adopted suggesting "cooperative efforts to secure peace."

Russian delegates thanked the English and American delegates for help extended during the famine period.

There are about 10,00,000 Baptists in Russia now, and 53 per cent more than there were ten years ago, according to Paul Pavloff, President of the All-Russian Union.

Pavloff denied that Baptists Relief supplies had been confiscated by the Soviet Government.

DEMANDED POLL TAX FOR THE SECOND TIME

Poll tax has been demanded a second time from some citizens, Tax Collectcor W. J. Green said to-day, and if the third demand takes the form of a summons the delinquents need not be surprised.

All citizens over 21 and under 60 not otherwise assessed are liable for this tax, and all who are in arrears are advised by Mr. Green to heed the warning.

WALTER J. KIDD WOULD ABOLISH CRIME PENALTY

Interesting Discussion Raised at To.ay's Kiwanis Club Luncheon—Rink Congratulated.

The abolition of capital punishment and the making of better bread were two of the subjects discussed at to-day's Kiwanis Club Luncheon. President J. A. McKone was in the chair and to-day's visitors were Dr. C. D. Waite of Ottawa, Mr. J. H. C. Waite of Port Hope and Mr. W. Greenwood of Toronto.

The Kiwanian spirit overflowed to-day and found expression in a vote of congratulation to the Kiwanis entry in the Peterboro Bowling Tourney that concluded last evening. The Kiwanis rink, entered the finals and lost out by a narrow margin to DeLany of Cobourg.

The players surprised themselves and President McKone who skipped the rink blamed the other three members of the rink for carrying the Kiwanis standard so far in the tourney.

Kiwanian Robert Mackey opened the oratory with a dissertation on the subject of bread. The Mackey Brothers have been in the bread making industry for about five years and their present output amounts to between forty and fifty thousand loaves a day. They own and operate plants in many Ontario cities. The speaker said he had no doubt but what a loaf of bread would be found in King Tut's tomb and Kiwanian Joe Wearing interrupted with the remark that he did not think it would be Mackey's bread. This point was not disputed. The present objective of the Mackey Brothers is to produce a better loaf than mother used to make. Recently a new method was evolved by the Ontario Agricultural College and is now in general use by the bakers that it eliminates the necessity of allowing dough to stand. Now it can be placed directly in the oven. Like many other trades, the bakers find it difficult to obtain apprentices and in order to overcome this the bakers througout the country are planning to have erected at Guelph, a College that will turn out men proficent in the bread making industry. In conclusion, the speaker spoke in favour of a one pound loaf, instead of the present one and a half pound loaf. The former would be better for the small family and would bake to better advantage. Chemists have been responsible for many improvements in the baking industry.

Capital Punishment.

Kiwanin Walter Kidd of Gallagher Remedies fame departed from his own classification to give an interesting talk on reform in some forms of existing law. The speaker said he was opposed to capital punishment and characterized it as a form of legalized murder. It was, he said, a relic of an old law of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. He predicted the time would come when capital punishment would become obsolete. Dealing with some phases of criminal law as it effects juvenile offenders and thier segration from hardened criminals. In this respects the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs of the Quebec Province are doing a good work in caring for delinquents of tender years. The Quebec law aims to make good citizens of juvenile offenders and not criminals. Some of the present laws were described by the speaker as barnacles that could be readily replaced by something better.

At the conclusion of Mr. Kidd's address Kiwanian Jack Marshall rose to pay tribute to the juvenile court laws of Quebec with which he is familiar and Kiwanian Joe Wearing also stated that so far as Ontario is concerned just as good laws are in force here for the care of juvenile delinquents. He commended the Chief of Police for his work in this connection and gave an outline of the system. A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Kiwanian Jack Dewart and seconded by Kiwanian J. W. Meyers.

The members of the club were asked to support the Chautauqua.

Come, Romeo!

Mrs. Cimona Portillo, 110, probably the oldest woman in California, has been widowed three times, but says she'l willing to listen if someone near her age should pop the question again. She doesn't know her nationality, but thinks she is a Mexican. Her home is at Oceanside.

NO MONUMENT TO SETTLERS

Project to Erect Monument on Robinson's Island Turned Down—General Business at Chamber of Commerce

A monument to commemorate the settlement of Robinson's Island, near Peterborough, was suggested by the Chamber of Commerce to the Canadian National Parks Commissioner, J. B. Harkin and has been temporarily abandoned.

Mr. Harkin wrote the Chamber of Commerce as follows:

"The general question of the commemoration of settlements was dealt with at a recent meeting of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada and it was decided that as there are so many sites of outstanding national importance which require priority of action, it would be inadvisable to undertake at present any action in the matter of the placing of munuments in connection with early settlements."

Toronto Band Contest.

A request was received from the Canadian National Exhibition Board that the Peterboroughgt Band be sent to Toronto to take part in the competitions there. This was referred to the City Council. It is believed that the entrance of the band in this competition would be a boost for the municipality, and would be very effective advertising.

Information was received that S. P. Wass, engineer of the Canadian National Railway, has established offices in Oshawa for the purpose of commencing construction work on the radial line from Pickering to Bowmanville. This had already been referred to the Transportation Committee of the City Council, and the Chamber of Commerce offers cooption with the committee with the object of investigating the plans of the C.N.R. regarding the extension of this line. It has been suggested that if it is their intention to continue this line to Belleville it will duplicate the existing steam lines, without touching new territory and it might be advisable to tap Central Ontario traffic through a line to Peterborough.

Pigeon Creek Bridge.

The proposal to construct a bridge over Pigeon Creek to connect Peterborough and Victoria counties, was discussed. It was decided to defer action until further information can be obtained.

Prepare for Car Ferry.

A non-official communication informed the Chamber of Commerce that the Buffalo, Rochester and

CHILDREN HAVE GREAT BENEFIT IN PLAYGROUND

Swings, Slides and Organized Games Keep Children in the Open Air Away From Danger

BUSY ALL DAY

Peterborough's school playgrounds under the care of competent supervisors, are doing good work among the children of the city. They are crowded daily with little ones, who are busy from morning to evening in sand piles, on swings, slides and teeters, where they breathe pure air and get the sunshine. Sympathetic young ladies and capable men are engaged in directing the play, instructing in games, and generally leading children in healthful exercise in perfect safety and away from the dust of the streets The school grounds are the children's special preserve, and here, under the supervision of their teaches, they learn proper restraint in their play and the spirit of sportsmanship, while getting the greatest amount of enjoyment out of it.

King Edward Park was visited yesterday afternoon, and it was found to be one of the happiest spots in the city. It has splendid grounds and facilities, and is well fenced. Miss M. Pulkinghorn and Mr. R. J. Bolton are promptly on hand in the mornings, and the youngsters, boys and girls, ranging from three years of age, begin to arrive shortly afte nine o'clock. Within an hour all of the appliances are overcrowded, and the supervisors must take charge, and line the children up so that all may play in turn. The swings are a general favourite, and th ere is seldom a minute of the day when there is not some small adventurer shooting the chute. It is not necessary, the instructior said, to use artificial means to keep the slide slippery. The sand boxes are islands of delight to the small children, and many wonderful buildings are erected by them with all the painstaking care that a contractor puts into a giant skyscraper.

Organized Games

One of the phases of the work, where the supervisor is enabled to do good service is in the organized games such as baseball, soft-ball, and volley ball. Children play these games for as long as two hours without tiring, and it is the task of their supervisors to teach them the rules of the games and to referee. Inter-playground games are arranged, and this week, during a visit of Queen Mary playground children to King Edward playground won the baseball game, while the Queen Mary girls took the honors in soft-ball. Yesterday, the children from Queen Alexandra playground visited Central school playground.

Volley ball is a favourite with the bigger boys and Mr. Bolton was busy yesterday, coaching an enthusiastic party of boys in this interesting game.

Three times every week the children are taken to the swimming beaches, where they are under the constant care of the supervisors. King Edward Park children swim at the Lake street beach, while the other playgrounds patronize Inverlea Park beach.

Stories and Sewing

Even children tire of strenuous play, and this is the supervisor's opportunity for story-telling. Miss Pulkinghorn has won her way to the hearts of the girls by her story hours, and she has a splendid class of girls,

"The Million Dollar Doll"

The Examiner has presented to its readers many excelling serial stories, but it is doubtful if any can quite measure up in retaining interest and startling denouement to "The Million Dollar Doll," the opening chapter of which will appear to-morrow. Its authors, C. N. and A. M. Williamson, are famed for fiction in the premier class, but this last production from their versatile pens is admitted by reviewers to be one of the biggest fiction creations of this day and generation prepared for newspaper readers. A fascinating love story, with a modern Cinderella and a perfectly adorable Prince, linked up in charming narrative with characters whose counterparts are to be found in every-day life. "The Million Dollar Doll" will irresistibly appeal to the sympathies of all who read it.

Remember, starting on Saturday, July 28, the altogether delightful story of fairy-believing little "Terry" Desmond will be daily unfolded until just how a doll acquired the comparative value of a million dollars, is revealed.

FORESHADOWS NEW ERA IN AVIATION

LONDON, July 27 (Associated Press) —A new era in air flying, that of cheap, safe, popular airplaning, is foreshadowed by the remarkable success attained by tiny British airplanes called motor gliders. One of these, a small monoplane fitted with a three horsepower engine, recently reached a speed of 53 miles an hour during tests near London. It climbed to 2,350 feet, and although in the air for an hour and twenty minutes, consumed less than a gallon of petrol.

French aviation experts also are perfecting similar "pocket-planes," intended for use by amateur aviators and sporting enthusiasts. At a contest soon to be held near Paris thirty of these diminutive planes will take part. In England a small "car with wings," capable of carrying its owner through the air at the speed of an express train with no more power than is required by a motorcycle, has reached such a practical stage that orders are being booked for it by the public.

Rising out of small fields and being wonderfully controllable in the air, these cheaply-run winged cars are to risk of a crash on landing, even under adverse circumstances, will be practically eliminated. Furthermore, such machines will be so handy on the ground, and their wings will fold so neatly, that it will be possible to house them in ordinary motor garages.

It is expected that the owner of one of these machines will be able to make the trip from London to Paris and back, sweeping high over the Channel and escaping all the irritations and delays of earth transport, for about $5. A movement is now on foot to get motor-garage proprietors to set aside smooth-surfaced fields, marked clearly so they can be seen from above. In this way the drivers of little "air cars," when on week-end aerial rambles, will have points all over the country where they can descend and replenish their gasoline tanks, or make any necessary repairs or adjustments.

SCHOONER'S CREW PUT ONE OVER SOVIETS

NOME, Alaska, July 27.—(Canadian Press).—The crew of the trading Schooler Iskum of Tacoma, Wn., which was held in Siberia by Soviet authorities on charge that Russian commercial laws had been violated, overpowered the guards stationed on the vessel, put them in irons and brought their craft here, arriving yesterday.

More harvesters than ever will be needed this year in Western Canada, on account of the bumper crop. Special trains will be run by the Canadian Pacific Railway, which is advertising the usual low rate of $15 to Winnipeg, plus a half-cent per mile beyond to destination in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Returning the fare will be $20 from Winnipeg, plus a half-cent per mile from starting point. Going dates are August 13, 15, 22 and 24 according to the territory in Ontario. On the lunch cars food and refreshments may be obtained at reasonable prices. Special cars will be provided for ladies, children (full fare) and their escorts. First special train will leave Toronto on each date at 10.00 a.m. and last special at 10.30 p.m. on each date.

AFRICA HOLDS NO LURE FOR THE TIRED OFFICE WORKER

Brilliant Stars and Velvet Sky of Dark Continent Soon Lose Charm After Mosquito-Killing Night.

To many the name "Africa" conjures up a picture of sands and jungles, palmtrees and wild animals and romance—romance beneath the Southern Cross twinkling against a black and velvet sky. They have seen pictures; they have read stories. They talk glibly of the lure of the "dark continent" and envy the thrills of those fortunate enough to have been there.

They mix up in their minds North with South Africa, East and West, forgetting that there is as great a difference between the towns on the northern coast and on the southern as there is between New York and—say—Vera Cruz.

They are equally ignorant of Central Africa. For the most part they think of it as jungle waste unrelieved by anything save small towns of native huts, yet Africa, East Africa and Uganda, a few hundred miles north and inland are not without many signs of civilization. It is a surprise to some to learn that Nairobi, the capitol of British East Africa, is an up-to-date city. It boasts several hotels—one at least as comfortable as any in a small American town—electric lights, clubs, taxis and a European colony. It is even a greater surprise that the lure of Africa is often bunc.

Claims Few Victims

Not that there isn't a lure about Africa. There is, undeniably; but it claims as its victims comparatively few of those who make their home out there; for many, who toil and sweat in Africa continue to live there for the same season that many a man here sticks to a certain job. They can't change. Either through laziness or inability to get anything better they stick, many of them living for the period when they can go "home" for a brief spell, hoping for the day when they may return to the land of their birth for good. These laugh at the talk of "The Lure of Africa."

For not every one in Africa is a big game hunter, though most of the male residents have managed to get in a bit of shooting. Take the man in an office in Mombasa, and there are many offices in that tropical island. His day commences at 8 o'clock, or maybe 7:30. He quits at 12 o'clock for luncheon and remaining at it till 5 o'clock or later. Sometimes he can manage to get in a set of tennis or a round of golf, but often he is too tired—fatigued by his work and the intense heat—and he looks forward to be home with mingled feelings, wondering if he'll be able to sleep, laying odds with himself that at least one mosquito will crawl in with him under the net as he climbs into bed. Speak to him—if you dare—about the lure of Africa.

Typical Case

His case is typical not alone of Mombasa, but of Nairobi and further inland, Kampala; though in these two places the heat is not so much to be reckoned with as in Mombasa, as they are approximately six thousand and three thousand feet, respectively, above sea level. And in Nairobi and Kampala the big game country is near at hand, the only sport—except those common at home, cricket, golf, tennis, and the like—is swimming at English beach, which is a thrilling affair, as the harbor is supposed to be infested with sharks.

And the nights. Brilliant stars and velvet skies. The office man pays no more attention to them—after the first month of his stay—than his brother at home does to the home stars and the home sky.

But, not withstanding all that, there is a charm and lure about Africa that often twines itself about the heart, compelling wanderers to return. This lure, however, is not felt by the average office worker. To him Africa is a job, a livelihood, no more, no less. The only lure he knows is that of the land from which he was exiled himself, the place, no matter how long his residence in Africa, he always refers to whimsically and wistfully as home.

PLANS TO LAUNCH HUGE RIGID AIRSHIPS

LONDON July 27 (Associated Press) —Keels are now being laid in Great Britain for huge rigid airships which will hover above the clouds with a number of small fighting machines on board ready to launch at a foe, says an aero-nautical expert in the London Daily Chronicle. The task of these new machines in war he says will be to carry aloft to immense heights and to transport if necessary thousands of miles squadrons of swift deadly steel-built "attack-planes." These will be launched from high above the clouds and will rush at 200 miles an hour and more eastward to harry other aircraft and raid the commerce of the seas.

"The airships will have the power lacking in a small machine" the writer says "of long-distance flights at a great altitude, while, on the other hand, the small planes they carry will be able to outfly and out-fight any machine laden for a long journey.

"In the case of specially-organized attacks by these formidable air-borne fighters on 'planes carried at sea by mother-ships, the tactics of the craft sent darting down from airships will be to dive pell-mell on their surface-launched opponents, and strike them deadly blows before they can gain the vantage-point of altitude.

"Height in air-warfare is the key to victory, and these airship-carrier fighters will have the advantage of being in a position to choose their own moment for a swoop upon enemy craft climbing from the earth."

The Chronicle's contributor says that France, Italy and the United States all show a growing recognition of the importance of mobile "aerial harbors" for swarms of fighting-planes. The United States already has laid the keel of an airship which will launch single-seater fighters and pick them up again while the mother-craft is traveling at full speed. The first American "flying-aerodrome," he adds, will be ready to take the air this summer. It will carry as a normal load twelve fighters of the latest type.

Great Britain has completed the first seagoing vessel in the world designed specially for the transport of aircraft. She has a displacement of 10,950 tons and carries seven 6-inch guns, four 4-inch, and a number of smaller guns. Besides torpedo armament, the new vessel is fitted with two hangars, enabling her to carry twenty air-planes, which will be raised to the taking-off decks by means of electric elevators.

Another advance in aerial efficiency is the construction, for the British air ministry, of huge seaplanes with a speed of 125 miles an hour.

One of the latest types has a wing span of 112 feet and carries nearly two tons of gasoline. It is fitting with twin Condor engines of 1,300 horsepower each, driving twin propellors.

TWO POLICEMEN WERE KILLED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 27.—(Canadian Press). — Two policemen were shot and killed last night by the occupants of a taxi cab at 61st. street and 2nd avenue, a short distance from the New Society Colony, established by leaders of New York's 400. One of the patrolmen, Charles Reynolds was mounted. The other was Frank Romanell.

Weather Forecast Had Its Origin in Simple Researches.

How Torricelli was led to the invention of the barometer is well-known. Galileo had been the first to weigh the air. He had pumped air into a copper ball and had been suspended it on a balance. The weight being noted the surplus air was then passed into an inverted receiver full of water. These experiments however were not pursued It was the failure of the workmen engaged in building fountains to cause water to rise more than about 30 ft. by suction that led to Galileo calling Torricelli's attention to the matter. The account of Torricelli's experiments first reached Pascal at Rouen in 1646 apparently through Mersenne who had been to Italy. Pascal immediately repeated the so-called "Italian experiment" with the barometer tube and successfully showed it to some 400 or 500 people including the Jesuit fathers of Rouen College. He also made other experiments of a similar nature and in 1647 published a little treatise entitled "Nouvelles Experiences Touchant le Vide." So far the great value of the barometric tube had not been realized and Torricelli died in October 1647 without seeing its application to practical problems.

It was a month after Torricelli's death that Pascal first proposed the experiement of carrying a barometric tube up a mountain and noting the variation. Pascal was no believer in the old schoolmen's phrase "Nature abhors a vacuum" and this experiment he saw would put the matter to the test. On November 15, 1647, he wrote on this subject to his brother-in-law M. Perier who had married Pascal's sister Gilberte.

Owing to various engagements Perier was not able to carry out the experiment until September 19, 1648. He then ascended the Puy de Dome situated close to Clermont with several companions. At starting the mercury stood at 26 in. at the summit it had fallen to 23 in "the party being greatly pleased at this as indicating the relation between the height of the mercury and the height of the station." Next day Perier repeated the experiment by ascending the Tower of Notre Dame in Clermont and when the report of these reached Pascal who was then at Paris Pascal himself made similar experiments at the Tower of St. Jaques la Boucherie. This tower still stands in Paris and is today appropriately enough used for meteorological observations. Shortly after this Pascal intimated to Perier that probably different states of the weather would lead to variations in the height of the mercury and from 1649 to 1651 Perier made the first series of observations of this kind ever recorded. Similar records were made at Paris and at Stockholm by the French Ambassador and Descartes and from these have sprung the vast organizations which today deal with weather forecasting in all parts of the world."—Engineering.

FRENCH OPENED RUHR FRONTIER TO TRAVELLERS

Thousands Of Germans Took Advantage of Lifting Of The Ban To Pass Back And Forth.

CLOSED JULY 1.

DUESSELDORF, July 27.—(Canadian Press)—The frontier between the Rhur and the rest of Germany, after having been closed to ordinary travellers since July 1, was again opened at midnight last night. Thousands of Germans passed back and forth; many of them should be kept away from their homes when the closure order was put on by the Ruhr authorities.

The frontier was first closed by the French as a penalty for the bombing of a train at Duisburg, and applied only to private travellers. It was to have continued until July 16. Just before the expiration of this period, however, an incident occurred near Westofen, a member of a French patrol being kidnapped by German Security Police, aided by other Germans, who were suspected of attempting to evade the French Customs officers. The Rhineland High Commission, as a penalty, extended the closure until July 26.

The unusual number of crossings yesterday is attributed to rumors current in the last few days that the occupation authorities contemplated again closing the frontier, but thus far there are no indication that such a measure is being considered.

U. S. AUTO WAS TRAVELLING AT A HIGH SPEED

Occupant Killed When It Left The Road In Order To Dodge an Unknown Sedan.

TWO INJURED.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., July 27.—(Canadian Press).—Evidence given at the inquest at Beamsville yesterday afternoon, showed that the car which overturned last Sunday evening on the Hamilton highway, killing S. Thomas McBrier of Akron, Ohio, turned out to clear Ford sedan, the driver of which was unknown to any of the witnesses. The car was owned by Frank Becker and driven by Harry Miller, both of whom have since been in a hospital here, but who were able to give evidence with difficulty. The jury found that the car was exceeding the speed limit. Becker and Miller had been fishing at Loon Lake and were bringing McBrier, who was a member of another party, back home.

Both Miller and Becker testified that as they were about to pass the Ford sedan the driver of the latter signalled that he was going to turn down a side road. All three in the Akron car shouted a warning and the Ford tugned back. Miller, however, had turned to avoid striking the Ford, and as he turned back to regain the highway his left rear wheel caught in the ditch, turning the car over. McBrier was thrown out, some part of the car crushed his head as it rolled over and regained its wheels.

Miller was found in the rear seat after the accident, having been thrown there from the driver's seat. He is still suffering from shock. Becker, who was sitting on the front seat, had his shoulder broken and is in a weak condition.

Miller and Becker estimated the speed of their car at from 30 to 35 miles an hour.

John Scott of Toronto, who was following the Becker car, and who had just been passed by it, swore than the Akron car was travelling at the rate of at least 40 miles.

BOLSHEVIST BOOKS.

BUCHAREST, July 27. —(Associated Press.) — Figures received here summarizing the activities of the publishing business in Russia which is purely an enterprise of the Soviet state, indicate that a great effort is being made to convince the Russian people of the correctness of Bolshevist political, social and economic theories.

The Soviet publishing house issued from its presses in Moscow and put into circulation throughout Russia during the last 12 months no less than 14,500,000 volumes covering the fields of economics, politics, history and even fiction.

Aside from the obvious propaganda tendencies of the volumes on political and economic subjects, the Soviet historians have sought to show how the world has suffered because of its hostility to Bolshevik doctrines, and in many of the fiction volumes the endeavor has been to prove that opposition to Soviet doctrines has warped, limited or distorted individual lives.

More than 522,000 freight car excepting tires and chains, were shipped last year.

GREETINGS TO PRES. HARDING FROM PREMIER

Historic Significance Of The Occasion Of Visit of President Of U. S. To Canada.

BONDS OF FRIENDSHIP

OTTAWA, July 27.—(Canadian Press).—Greetings to President Warren Harding on behalf of the Government and people of Canada were conveyed by a telegram despatched by Premier Mackenzie King last night, on the occasion of the official dinner being held in Vancouver. Premier King's message was directed to Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, now at Vancouver, representing the Government in honors accorded to President and Mrs. Harding. It read:

"Will you please convey to President Harding and to the guests assembled in his honor at the official dinner this evening, heartiest of greetings on behalf of the members of the Government and the people of Canada. The friendship which exists between the citizens of the United States and the Dominion could have no happier expression than that accorded by the visit of the President to our country. I cannot too sincerely express the warmth of our welcome to Mr. Harding or the extent of our appreciation of his courtesy in paying us this visit. We hope that the historic significance of the occasion will not be limited to the pleasure it affords the citizens of our respective countries, but that the international concord and good-will of the New World thus expressed may have in it a note of hopefulness also to the Old."

FIRE DESTROYED LAKEFIELD BARN

Building Owned By E. M. Grier Completely Destroyed By Early Morning Blaze.

LAKEFIELD, July 27.—A barn owned by Eric M. Grier, and containing his entire season's cut of hay was destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. The fire was discovered by Mr. Grier who awoke between 2 and 3 o'clock to find the entire building in flames. The building was about a mile and a half from the village and a call to the local fire brigade brought the chemical engine to the scene. While nothing could be done to save the barn, the implement shed was saved throgh the efforts of the firemen and the blaze prevented from spreading to other buildings. A high wind was blowing at the time but fortunately its direction was away from the house.

The stock in a stable below the barn was saved with difficulty, but one pig being lost. The loss on the building itself was partly covered by insurance.

Budreao, Miss Pearl Brock, Heber Rogers and W. Jessop.

Four prizes were awarded for the various costumes. First prize for the best ladies fancy dress was won by Mrs. H. T. Glover as Dolly Vardon with Miss Brock second, dressed as Aunt Jemima. Conservative Landside In Prince Edward Island

CHARLOTTETOWN, July 27.—(Canadian Press)—Yesterday's provincial elections resulted in a landslide for the Conservative party and utter defeat for the Liberal government of Premier John Bell, which has held office since 1919. Returns early last night indicated that the Conservatives had elected at least twenty-two members in a house of thirty.

Premier John Bell and Hon. W. M. Lea were defated in fourth district of Prince.

TAKING ACTION PREVENT SALE RACING FORMS

Informations Have Been Laid Against News Vendors At Whose Stands Copies Were Found.

A TEST CASE.

OTTAWA, July 27.—(Canadian Press).—Informations were sworn out yesterday against all of the news vendors at whose stands on Tuesday last the police discovered copies of the racing information prohibited under the "Ontario Betting Information Bill," passed at the last session of the Legislature. The offenders are summoned to appear in Police Court on August 1, when the prosecutions under the new act will be heard.

The informations charge the offenders with publishing betting information to wit:

"By selling a paper or publication called (here follows the name of the publication) containing betting information as defined in the Betting Information Act, 1923."

When the prosecutions take place one prosecution at least is expected to take place also under the Dominion Act. That will be the case of the Daily Racing Form, New York, who through their solicitor, will fight a test case as to whether the "Form" shall be admitted into Canada and placed for sale throughout the Province.

The "Form" has been greatly altered, all of the prices and selections have been left out.

May Examine Mental Condition of Delorme.

MONTREAL, July 27.— (Canadian Press.)—A petition to the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, for a commission of alienists to enquire into the mental condition of the Rev. Adelard Delorme is believed to be the next step in the tangled situation that exists in this case. While definite and official information was not available yesterday, it is stated on good auhority that this will be the procedure to be followed, says the Montreal Gazette.

Should a commission of experts be named and should they find that Father Delorme is insane it would mean his removal from Boreaux jail, where he is at present confined to an asylum, and would probably be the last chapter in this long cause celebre.

ALBERTA WILL MOBOLIZE MEN FOR HARVEST

Intensive Recruiting Campaign Will Be Launched To Get Every Able Bodied Man.

Start In Three Weeks.

EDMONTON, July 27.—(Canadian Press)—Mobilization is to begin in Alberta again and a recruiting campaign will be put on at once in all parts of the province. It will, this time, be a campaign to mobilize able-bodied men for work in harvesting Alberta's bumper grain crop. An array of about 13,000 men will be required for service on the wheat fields front.

Hon. Alex Ross, officer commanding the new mobilization effort says that as large a proportion of the farm-help army as possible will be raised on the home base, and to that end he is calling upon the mayors of towns and cities, the railway companies, employers of labor generally and superintendents of schools for whatever assistance they can give. It will be a case of everybody helping to roll up the recruits and there will be only a matter of three weeks in which to do it.

At least 3,000 it is anticipated will be available from these various sources and from other sources within the province leaving about 10,000 to be brought in from outside points. The campaign now beginning locally will be prosecuted outside also, and, in fact, is already under way on a fairly large scale.

PIKE'S PEAK CLIMB.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., July 27.—(United Press).—Entries are coming in daily for annual running of the hill climb to the summit of Pike's Peak labor day event. Owing to the ruling of the American Automobile Association, which bars all freak cars and those of extremely light weight out of the event, the race this Labor Day promises to be the best since its inception in 1916. The course, which is slightly more than 12 of the 18 miles of the Auto Highway to the top of Pike's Peak, 14,109 feet above sea level, is in perfect condition.

SHAREHOLDERS OF G.T.P. BONDS WILL TRY AGAIN

Committee Reappointed To Do Their Best To Get Some Money From The Canadian Government.

CASE EXPLAINED.

LONDON, July 27.—(Canadian Press).—Holders of Grand Trunk Pacific four per cent. debentures, meeting yesterday, were given a full statement of the negotiations between their committee and the Canadian Government, in which a compassionate grant for the shareholders was sought.

Sir Harry Samuel presiding, said there was not the slightest reason to despair. He deplored the large dealing in the stock recently and declared that undue inflation or depression was equally detrimental to a final equitable settdement. Even more deplorable was the information—sometimes true and sometimes false—which constantly came from some source at present absolutely undiscoverable by the committee. He declared that their security was far more valuable to-day than it was a year ago.

Sir Harrison Smith told the meeting that he proposed to send a rejoinder to the Canadian Government. The committee left Canada, he said, with the door still open to further negotiations. Their mission had cleared up the situation in several respects and had left them faced with the realities and had indicated their line of action to rescue as much as possible of their property from the wreck.

G. P. Forsdike, who accompanied the mission to Canada, expressed amazement at the Canadian Government's answer to their appeal. He emphatically advised the stockholders to hold on. They would want patience, but the result was certain.

One stockholder suggested approaching the British Government with a view to the appointment of a royal commission. The chairman said he knew of no better way of getting the whole question shelved. He could not recommend such a course.

A resolution was carried expressing full confidence in the committee and re-appointing them "to do their best in the interest of the stockholders."

Labourers Are Immune To Black Fly Attack.

MONTREAL, July 27.—(Canadian Press).—Three hundred laborers who are immune to attacks by black flies, have been recruited in New Brunswick, and arrived here yesterday. They have been specially engaged to work on the Kipawa extension of the Canadian Pacific Railway, which is to reach Ville Marie and Des Quinze this season. It has been found difficult so far to get men for work in this district, owing to the ravages of the insect hordes there. The ment left for their destination to-night.

SECOND GUESSERS.

It is not difficult to be what is known in the vernacular as "a second guesser," and the advice that is being given to the Canadian banks following the Toronto robbery as to the precautions they should have taken to protect their money, should not cause any surprise.

There is no recollection of any of those people who are so ready with advice now having taken the pains to warn the banks of the likelihood of just such an attack or to instruct them in the best form of protection.

No one seems to have realized that in allowing large sums of money to be carried through the streets they were inviting an attack—at least nobody but the bandits.

And so far as the public can learn, there never was intimation from any one that a raid of this kind was to be expected.

Now everybody knows how foolish it was to expose the banks' cash to the danger of attack, and everybody talks of armoured cars and more armed guards and police syrens to warn the outlying district.

What a pity it was, when so many people knew an attack on the messengers was inevitable and the men in charge of the money were inadequately protected that not one happened to speak up long ago.

The whole circumstances merely prove how easy it is to be wise after the event.

NOT ENOUGH APPRENTICES.

The urging by the Association of Canadian Building and Construction Industries of a Provincial system of apprenticeships as a means of overcoming what is said to be a serious shortage of skilled workers, especially in the building trades, is a matter that deserves some consideration.

Although labour unions in these lines deny that there is a shortage, it is not necessary to go outside of Peterborough to find proof that the old apprentice system has completely fallen down, that few boys are learning the plastering or brick-laying trades, and that unless the deficiency is made up by the substitution of a Provincial system, such as is being advocated, or by the encouragement of the immigration of skilled workers from the British Isles, the shortage will continue to grow more serious.

Employers in Quebec and Ontario in response to a recent questionnaire predicted a deficiency in the supply this season, Quebec employers, for example, claiming that the shortage of plasterers would be 65 per cent., while contractors in Ontario estimate a shortage of carpenters amounting to 19 per cent.

It is but fair to say that the unions challenge these figures.

But challenges will not explain away the striking fact that in many districts there are scarcely any apprentices employed in the building trades, which means that unless new methods of dealing with the situation are devised the present conditions are likely to be considerably accentuated in the years ahead.

SUNDAY BATHING.

On being appealed to by the Mayor of London, who is making a sturdy fight for the opening of the municipal swimming places on Sunday, Attorney-General Nickle has investigated the matter and has found a pre-Confederation statute which makes bathing on Sunday an offence.

The law has not been enforced for many years, but it is there, and the local authorities in any community can act upon it or not as they see fit.

It is not expected that there will be any attempt to check Sunday bathing in Peterborough, nor is there any good reason why there should be.

Especially for adults who have no opportunity during the week, it is desirable that they should not be deprived of their one chance each week for a dip in the cooling waters of the Otonabee.

So long as the more fortunate citizens who own summer homes at Chemong or Stoney Lake or Rice Lake are allowed to swim to their heart's content on Sunday without being reproved or checked, it would be the height of hypocrisy for any one to attempt to not allow a similar privilege to other people who have no such chance.

For some years there has been Sunday bathing in Peterborough, without any apparent injury to the moral tone of the community. It has been conducted in a decent, orderly, seemly fashion, and has been a source of pleasure and health to many citizens without, so far as can be noticed, hurting anybody.

Any effort to infringe upon this custom would be resented by hundreds of citizens who would regard it as a check upon personal liberty and an unwarranted intrusion upon the rights of the individual.

A LOSING GAME.

The sensational hold-up of bank messengers in Toronto by bandits who got away with $80,000 has been described as a successful operation.

On the surface, perhaps, it was—the robbers made their haul, escaped from the gun fight apparently unscathed and vanished.

But in the long run war on society is never successful, and these murderous gunmen will find, if they are not beginning to realize it by this time, that the crime road is a rough and perilous one, and that the possession of a few thousand dollars is poor recompense for the feeling that every honest man's hand is against them, and that every person who looks at them wherever they may be may turn out to be a representative of the law.

There is a nemesis that sooner or later catches up with the gentry who think by violence and crime to win fortune for themselves, and although the Toronto bandits are at large and with the profits of their venture divided among them, fear goes with them—fear of arrest, fear of long terms in the penitentiary, fear of a black-capped judge, and afterwards a march in the grey dawn to a scaffold should their victims die.

And the record of similar crimes shows that this foreboding is justified, for eventually there is a relaxation in vigilance, some plan goes awry and the machinery of the law does the rest.

Potential bandits should not be misled by the apparent success of the Toronto plot.

The last act in the drama has not yet been written, but it is inevitable that it will show virtue triumphant and vice cast down.

There are a thousand easier, safer and surer ways of making money than going out in the street with a gun and stealing it.

LONDON AND THE RED SHOES.

A New York woman visiting in London claims that people stared at her red shoes so hard that she was much embarrassed, so much in fact that she left the city a day or two before she had intended doing so, says the London Advertiser.

She told a reporter that some of the people here even laughed at them. Yes, sir, that's what she said, they actually looked at her red shoes and stockings and laughed.

Now, we doubt that. To be true, the folks here don't go in for green and red and pink shoes very extensively, but occasionally they are to be seen.

But this New York woman should not be offended. We are a rather bright and very observant lot of people in London. We are out to see all there is to see, and the only way to see things is to look at them.

When a young man, for instance, goes back to his old home town he expects to be looked at; so does a girl. If a young chap gets a new cut in a suit of clothes, with a crease in the pants that looks like the acute corner of a packing-case, with a collar and tie exactly like the men in the ads wear, well he expects that the folks at home are going to have a good long look at him. He reckons that by the time he walks from the post office over to the town hall, and past the leading store, he will have given that place quite a little thrill. And if he's picked up a couple of gold teeth he is certainly going to smile just as a sort of anti-climax.

All of which is the most natural thing in the world.

These New Yorkers can't scare us with their red boots—not a bit of it. We've seen their ladies piling out of big touring cars in khaki bloomers and in tweed bloomers, and we've seen them in red shoes and green shoes. And, of course, we look at them—why not? Us looking at 'em is half the fun of their trip. When they get back home they'll be able to talk over the back fence and tell how the folks in London thought they were reg'lar summer cut-ups in all their traveling and touring garments. Why, if we paid no attention, and just assumed an air that said "that's old stuff over here—we quit wearin' these three years ago," they would feel mighty bad, and the tourist traffic would get a regular black eye.

We're sorry that New York woman took London's attention the wrong way. We were simply trying to make her feel that she had made quite a hit here, and that we were tickled to death to see her.

AN UNWISE JUDGE.

It Pays to Advertise is a slogan whose message is indisputably accepted. In a recent issue of a widely-circulated American magazine, a writer asks the question: Who Pays to Advertise? The article is an answer to Judge Henry G. Ward, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, who, in handing down an opinion, made the following statement:

"Advertising is a method of selling goods, which, without increasing their merit, increases their cost."

Judge Henry G. Ward should have known better than to make a statement of that kind. It furnishes merely another example of the fallibility of judges and of the danger of public men expressing opinions on matters with which they are not thoroughly familiar. The serious and unwarranted reflection which Judge Ward casts upon one of the greatest devices of business will be subscribed to only by those who do not advertise, because advertising would be fatal to the inferior brand of merchandise they seek to distribute. As is pointed out in the magazine article referred to above, "It has been found that it almost never pays to advertise an inferior product. In other words, advertising has come to be an assurance of your money's worth. No manufacturer could afford to spend his money in advertising and then give you less than your money's worth. No manufacturer could afford to bottle rancid catsup, give it a brand and advertise it extensively."

In other words, if it isn't a good article, the money that is used to advertise it will almost certainly be lost.

So much for merit, but Judge Ward has further declared that advertising increases costs. He is basing this assumption, it is apparent, solely on the knowledge that billions of dollars are spent annually in advertising accounts.

"Let us consider," says the author of the magazine article, "what I consider as a typical instance of the way advertising operates. In 1898 a well-known concern began making canned soup. In that year its expense for salesmen, the president of the company declared, was 7½ per cent. and its advertising was 14 per cent., a total distributing expense of 21½ per cent. The advertising has been steadily increased each year. Today, the expense of the company for salesmen is 2 per cent., instead of 7½ per cent., and the expense for advertising about 3 per cent., instead of 14 per cent., making a total distributing expense of 5 per cent. Here is a cut in distributing cost ratios of over 75 per cent., and that during a period in which costs have risen faster than in any other period of which we have knowledge."

Advertising must be considered, like the employment of salesmen, transportation and rentals, as a cost that is necessary and unavoidable.

If you build a superior mousetrap in a cabin in the woods, the world might beat a pathway to your secluded cabin, but it must be significant that mousetrap manufacturers build their factories on railroad sidings, instead of in the forests. To discover your cabin in the woods, to go to it and get your mousetrap, and then come home again would assuredly cost the consumer more than if your superior mousetrap was disposed of through the usual channels of distribution, which purl over the bedrock of advertising.

Had Judge Ward declared: "Advertising is a method of selling goods which guarantees their merit and decreases their costs," he would have scored a direct hit.—Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

About the only definite facts about the Toronto bandits is that they had guns and used them, and that they made their escape—not very much to work upon.

So far the Toronto Telegram has found no way to blame Mr. Raney for the gunmen's raid upon the bank messengers.

So many pictures of girls in bathing suits are appearing in the newspapers that there is natural wonder as to when the girls find time to swim.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, July 27.—(Canadian Press).—Trade in car-lots of Canadian Western oats was quiet, but the undertone to the market was firm. There was no change in the condition of the flour market. A steady trade continues in mill-feed, but the rolled oats market is quiet. The tone of the baled hay market remains steady. A firm feeling continues in the egg market. The market for potatoes was without any new feature. Prices were up 1 cent per pound in butter. The tone of the cheese market was very strong.

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, July 27.—There was but little business doing in a very dull market yesterday. One or two fair to good loads of butcher cattle sold to the Harris Abattoir at $6.50 top, down to $4.65 for a couple of loads of western cattle, fair to medium quality. For the rest of the day's offerings there was nothing but two or three hundred stale common quality cattle, not wanted at any price.

Shippers are warned not to send their common unfinished cattle, as there is practically no market for class just now, and its presence in the market only tends to drag prices still lower. None but quality butcher stuff is really wanted, and these would sell at fairly good and steady prices.

Prospects are not good for any export business for the next couple of weeks, partly due to the dockers' strike in England.

Calves, steady to firm at $10 to $11, tops.

Lambs, steady, $13.00 to $13.50.

License Inspector C. A. Mason htad a lively chase one day last week after two suspected rum-rummers, who according to a tip he received, had started last from Oshawa, supposedly after liquor. The Inspector waited in ambush and when the suspected car came along ordered it to stop. Instead, however, the men in it put on the gas, and then a merry chase took place for about six miles. One man who had several previous convitions, it is stated, to his credit, began throwing the bottles along the road. When the car was finally overtaken there were three bottles left in it. It is stated that about two dozen bottles of gin and whiskey were thrown away. Both of the men were admitted to bail when they came up at Oshawa.

NEWS JANETVILLE AND THE DISTRICT

Victoria Conservative Association Held Picnic—Farmer Loses Two Horses In Bog.

JANETVILLE, July 27. — Hundreds of people thronged Long Beach this afternoon to enjoy the monster picnic, arranged by the Conservative Associations of Victoria and Haliburton counties. Long Beach is an ideal spot, situtaed just east of Cameron on Sturgeon Lake. It was a real day's outing, with something doing all the time. There were great baseball contests for the McFadden Cup and other trophies. The soft ball contests, comedy acts, land and water sports, foot and motor boat races, McLean's swimming horses, with suitable prizes, kept the multitude keyed up to the breaking point. Several brass bands discoursed music, the addresses were of a high order and those who cared to dance made their way to the huge pavilion set apart for such pastime. Hundreds of Liberals forgot their political differences and joined in the great free picnic.

Happy Afternoon.

The Janetville Presbyterian Sunday school held their picnic at Scugog lake this afternoon and enjoyed a marked success. Janetville Sunday school clashed with South Manvers Sunday school in a very snappy game of baseball, but the game was not over at time of writing, so the score is not available.

Rain Saves Crops.

Rain fell at intervals all day yesterday and part of last night. The fire has gone out of the air and the crops are safe for the present, but more moisture is needed.

Valuable Horses Lost.

Mr. Capstick, of Yelverton, turned a team of horses out to pasture on Wednesday. To prevent them from jumping he tied them together with a chain. Going into a soft and boggy part of the pasture one of the horses began to sink, and in doing so pulled the other in. Both horses were chocked in the mud. This is an old plan and often adopted with breachy animals, but it sometimes proves costly. Mr. Capstick is making the best of his loss, and meeting it with a smile.

News Nuggets.

Rev. R. J. Fallis of Toronto, will preach in Janetville Methodist church next Sabbath evening. Mr. Fallis is a former pastor and will respond to the invitation of our pastor, to occupy the pulpit on that occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross have been invited to the region of Salmon Lake for a much needed holiday. They will go about Aug. 8th, and will be entertained by a former official of a previous charge.

Provincial Highway.

This new road connects Lindsay with Newcastle and is a credit to the people of Manvers and Ops townships. Leaving Lindsay it runs for eight miles straight south, and in that distance has not the semblance of a hill. At this point it strikes the fourteenth concession of Manvers, runs for 160 rods to the west on that line and then turns south straight for Lake Ontario. This road is a great boon to travellers, and cuts off the much dreaded and dangerous "Shannon's Hill." This highway links Lake Ontario with the Kawartha Lakes on the north fifty miles away. All the traveller from Toronto or Kingston who is going to the Kawarthas, has to do, is to come to Newcastle, take the county provincial highway and push on through a beautiful country north to Lindsay.

A LAKEFIELD DOG HELPS COMPANION

Lakefield News Of Interest.—Council Will Not Purchase Boathouse.

LAKEFIELD, July 27 — A story of the remarkable achievement of a hound which is owned by Mr. J. W. Ridpath is vouched for by several reputable citizens. Mr. Ridpath's dog "Blucher' has a pal named "Speckles" owned by Mr. Abel Hendren and the two hounds often take a day off and go hunting in company One day last week they went off seeking game and at the end of the day Blucher returned alone. Mrs. Hendren was anxious about Speckles and knowing that Blucher was possessed of remarkable intelligence enquired of him as to the whereabouts of Speckles and Blucher replied by barking lustily. Mr. Hendren decided to see if Blucher could help him locate Speckles and started off with Blucher in leash and was led to where poor Speckles was entangled in some rope and absolutely unable to break loose. Needless to say the canines were, on their return home, both the prodigal and the rescuer, regaled with juicy bones and otherwise rewarded suitably.

A Disappointment

A good deal of disappointment will be felt in the village owing to the decision of the Municipal Council that it would be inadvisable at the present time to purchase the boat house of the Lakefield Canoe Co., at the foot of King street. It would have been of great advantage to the bathers and also would have been an added attraction to visitors. At present, we, as a municipality, are offering no inducements to tourists to make a stopping place of Lakefield.

Running in Logs

The presence of a larger number of logs than usual has revived the old sport, popular among youngsters and some who are not youngsters, of running logs. It is rather a hazardous poceeding but remarkably fascinating requiring both agility and skill. Passing a dive of logs it is usual to see these youthful log runners enjoying the pastime.

The annual tennis tournament, which is held with Norwood in Lakefield, billed for Wednesday afternoon of this week was postponed till a later date.

Lacrosse Game.

Marmora and Tweed clashed in an exhibition game of lacrosse on the latter's grounds on July 25, and although Tweed lost by the score of 8-0, they put up a stubborn game. Had they played the combination that Marmora played the score would have been much different. And they also played against the referee. But it was a good game at that and C. L. Shannor, the refree, hopes that they will keep the good old game alive.

The Marmora lacrosse team are going around with glum looking faces these days. Peterborough has lost the fighting spirit that makes lacrosse Canada's grand old game. What's the matter, Peterborough? Haven't you got enough youths with good, red, Canadian blood to keep the good old game alive? Wake up, you business men. Get behind the boys and don't let the game die for the want of push, or capital.

WARNING AGAINST GIVING PU BABY.

It Means Consinging The Mother To a Living Death.

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 27.—"Die with your baby, if you have to but don't let it be taken from you and placed in a private home! For it is better to be dead than to live a living death without your child!"

That is Mrs. Margaret DeLigny's experience-born advice to young mothers, who for one reason or another feel they must give up their children.

She has just finished a dramatic gurt fight for custody of her child, 5-year-old Josephine Rohas. Opposing her were an elderly couple, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar S. Thomas of Wellsville. N.Y.

When Josephine was about 6 months old, Mrs. DeLigny felt she could not support the baby. She declares she received no aid from her husband. So she gave the child to the Thomas family.

Mother Returns

They reared here; grew to love her deeply. She was their own child, except for the blood tie.

Then—four and a half years later—Mrs. DeLigny returned. She could stand it no longer. But the Thomas family refused to give her baby up.

They went to court.

"She is my child—God knows I need her," the real mother told Justice Norton.

"She is more mine than yours," Mrs. Thomas replied. "I love her, too. I watched over her night after night and smothered her baby tears with my kisses. Have I no chance."

The judge listened, his heart touched for both of the women.

He saw Thomas break down completely on the witness stand, overcome by his emotions.

He knew the love Mrs. Thomas held for the child was genuine and thorough.

'God Sent Her'

But he was convinced by the impassioned outburst at the conclusion of the hour's plea of Mrs. DeLigny "God meant me to have her. That is why he sent her to me!" Then she fainted.

"The ruling factor is the natural mother's love," the white-haired judge said. Then he awarded the child to its real mother.

When she heard the verdict, Mrs. DeLigny rushed across the crowded court room to where Mrs. Thomas sat with the child on her knee. She almost wrenched the girl from the older woman's grasp and fled from the building.

Court attendants had difficulty in restraining the loser from following.

"My heart aches for her but the child is mine," Mrs. DeLigny said, as she too took a train for New York City. where she will live.

World's Wheat Crop

OTTAWA, July 27. Canadian Press. — A cablegram from the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome furnishes an official estimate of the Hungarian wheat crop at sixty million bushels, and the Roumania wheat crop at the average of about 77,000,000. These yields compare with 54 and 92 million bushels respectively last year. These figures together with carefully prepared estimates for the unreported countries, enable a forecast to be made for the various continents and the world, including comparison with last year's crops as follows:

	1923	1922
Europe	1,192,000,000	1,037,000,000
North America	1,250,000,000	1,255,000,000
Asia	425,000,000	394,000,000
Africa	113,000,000	78,000,000
South America	221,000,000	221,000,000
Australasia	117,000,000	117,000,000
Total	3,318,000,000	3,104,000,000

These figures forecast a world's crop about 214,000,000 bushels in excess of last year's and of that of 1921. Excluding Russia, Europe will have a crop exceeding the last by 155,000,000 bushels and falling only 33 million short of the record crop of 1921.

The estimated shipments from supply countries of the world for this year is 690,000,000 bushels of which Canada is expected to supply 290,000,000 bushels.

THE FUNCTION OF A NOVEL

Basil King Says of All Endowed Gifts the Most Useful is Imagination.

I.

Of all the gifts with which a people can be endowed, the most useful is a rich imaginative faculty. It is also the surest to yield practical results. Without this imaginative faculty practical results will be trifling. Nations are great, prosperous, and powerful precisely in proportion to the measure in which the national imagination works. Material resources are important, but they are secondary. With an easy, eager imagination a people will take any resources, or no resources, and build an empire. If resources are lacking, imagination will find a way by which to go out after them.

A review of the rise and fall of empires would easily prove that this is so, but for such a review this is not the place. It will be sufficient for my theme to glance at the formation of the British Empire. This was built up through the force of instinctive, constructive imagination, working in a people from the days of the sea-scourers of the pre-Christian era down to this twentieth century feeling its way toward a federation of commonwealths. At every step imagination has been the driving impulse. It was back of the Celts who crossed Asia and Europe to come to a halt in the western isles, where they replaced the prehistoric race that had built Stonehenge. It was back of the Angles who crossed from Jutland, of the Normans who crossed from Dives. It was back of every migration, and every voyage of discovery, and every hoisting of the Union Jack on some new extension of England. Someone first saw a vision and dreamed a dream, without which there could have been no fulfilment.

Through imagination America was discovered, and its countries were founded. Imagination is the life of the history of Canada in particular. In no other country in the world have the dreams of sailors, soldiers, explorers, priests, and saints so persistently gone before the efforts of the trader, the merchant, the farmer, the engineer, the banker, and the politician. It is perhaps the common belief that this last group alone have made modern Canada; but this is true only in the degree to which the common gift of imagination has inspired all.

For it is behind all ambition, all foresight, all enterprise, all thrift, all business. It is not too much to say that without it no one succeeds. Without it no one sees his opportunities, or—seeing his opportunities—sees also the means by which they can be realized. Wherever there is a big factory, a productive orchard, a flourishing business, an office that hums with work, there someone's imagination was first on the spot, perceiving what could be done. Imagination is not merely the handmaid but the mother of all that we know as commerce, as art, as science, as invention, as discovery. It is even the mother of religion, since without the imaginative faculty there could be no conception of a God.

II.

To stimulate this faculty is the function of imaginative literature. It is the function of course of all creative work, though for the purpose of this article we must confine ourselves to a single field. From the earliest stages of the world, and up from the most primitive stages of our civilization, the place of the "tale" in the economy of human effort has been recognized. It has not, however, always been recognized as exactly what it is.

In general it has been taken as a pastime, and as a pastime only. One reads a novel to get relief from more serious occupations, or to distract the mind from care, or merely to kill a dull hour. Such reading is called "light," to distinguish it from what is more worth while. It is the part of wisdom to discourage this. It would be well, according to many minds, to do away with it altogether. Since that is impossible, it is treated as a mild form of dissipation, something which—like the drinking of tea or the smoking of tobacco—does harm, but not such vicious harm that it would be wise to stir up a revolution to suppress it. Even among the broader minded and the more intelligent the publication of what is commonly called "the flood of novels"—as a rule some two or three hundred—every spring and autumn is a matter to be deplored, while the adjective easiest to find for the individual work is "trashy."

I think this is a fair expression of the attitude of the ordinary standardized mind toward most of the manifestations of creative art, and the work of fiction especially. But it overlooks one basic psychological fact, or probably never knew it; that the vitality of the nation, the prosperity of the country, depends on the stimulation of the imaginative faculty, and that of such stimulation the novel is, next to the motion picture, the most easily accessible form.

Perhaps I may make a digression here to speak of the function of the motion picture, and the amazing response to it on the part of the simpler people in every country in the world. I am not here dealing with the merit of the many picture-plays, but only with the fact that for the first time in the history of mankind the screen has brought to those whom our civilization has kept starved and thirsting for imaginative food something which feeds them. The food may be poor, but the appetite is ravenous. It will eat anything. The readers of this magazine, who have always had all they could ask in the way of literature, music, painting, plays, and whatever else can nourish the higher yearnings, have probably no conception of the famished condition of the enormous majority of our race. Hard work and poverty have made it impossible for them to be readers of books, or frequenters of the theatre, or anything but drudges at a daily grind. The imaginative faculty among them was being atrophied or choked, till the motion picture, cheap, universal—penetrating not only to the loneliest villages of the more sophisticated lands, but to the heart of India, China, and Africa—came to give it life. It is small wonder that wherever the cinema opens its doors the crowds are greater than those which throng colleges or churches. Where there is no vision the people perish, and the only vision the people were allowed to have was the meagre, narrow, dreary one of ceaseless toils and little play with which our civilizations provided them. With all the foolishness and salaciousness and false view of life with which you can charge it, the cinema has come to those who were dying of imaginative hunger and thirst with a food which is better than nothing. The good people who lament over this should have seen to it centuries ago that the mass of their brothers and sisters were not left to die from inanition of the one faculty which inspires.

III.

As a matter of fact, it is the impulse that condemns the motion picture which has always condemned the novel. It has condemned the novel because it has not understood what end the novel served. I repeat, therefore, that the end it serves is the nourishment of the imaginative sense. Without some such nourishment the imaginative sense grows feeble, and once it grows feeble a man becomes as dead wood. All the professions in the land are clogged with those who have allowed their imaginations to die, and have thus become themselves as living dead men. The churches and the colleges are full of them. Among doctors and lawyers and the permanent officials of all governments they are numerous. They infect whole communities. All over every land, and throughout Canada—I am sometimes inclined to think—more than in any other country, there are villages, towns, cities, which even those who live in them are accustomed to speak of as "sleepy" or "dead." I am impressed anew with the use of these adjectives every time I revisit the Maritime Provinces. Halifax, St. John, Charlottetown are so persistently spoken of as sleepy or dead that one's fancy feels even in travelling on a train an atmosphere of decay.

If this use of words is justified, which I personally doubt, I should explain it on the ground that the people of the Maritime Provinces have allowed their imaginations to languish. Those with a conscious imaginative faculty, fearing this fate for themselves, have got up and fled for their lives. Those left behind have, in no small degree, lost the power of perceiving their opportunities. Unable to perceive their opportunities, they become stagnant, disheartened, and mentally inert. They do not attract immigration for the very reason that the prompting which sends the immigrant forth is the imaginative impulse, and he will go only where there is "life." Business seeks "life"; art, science, and education all seek "life." Where there is inadequate "life," there is inadequate production, with its litter of consequent ills.

As I read the Canadian papers, I hear from the Maritime Provinces a long wail. They are not being treated fairly by big business enterprises, by the federal Government, by the rest of Canada. But it is generally acknowledged principle that in the give-and-take of life we are treated as well as we deserve. If the Maritime Provinces cultivate the qualities expressed by such terms as death and sleep, the vital current of commercial and intellectual life will pass them by. Such incidentals as their geographical detachment, the tariffs raised against them, and a few more small disadvantages, are only what other countries have to face, and what imagination can overcome. What country in the world, for example, could have been more ill-equipped to become a great manufacturing centre than Great Britain? It had its coal, but it had nothing else. That is, it had nothing but the imagination of a people which steadily set itself to overcome its limitations, going to the furthest ends of the earth to bring back what it required. The example could be paralleled in many other countries. It could be easily paralleled in the Maritime Provinces, had not their inhabitants grown somewhat lethargic through the atrophy of the inspirational force.

I must repeat that this is not my personal opinion. I am trying only to explain the use throughout all three of the seaboard provinces of the two fatal words I have quoted above. I am trying to fathom the spirit of complaint. A sturdy people, with that consciousness of strength which the imaginative gift imparts, does not complain. It acts. It relies on itself. It takes such resources as it possesses and exploits them. Where there are adverse conditions, as there always are, it overcomes them. If its sons and daughters show a tendency to go away, it developes the inducements to keep them at home. Where sons and daughters are glad to stay at home, the outsider will be glad to come. The Maritime Provinces strike one observer at least as a vast natural treasure-house in the hands of a people who hardly know what to do with it.

My point is that to keep up with the expansive movement of the world a man must maintain his imaginative powers at their highest working pitch. To this end the judicious reading of good novels is a means. It is not, of courxse, the only means, nor perhaps the most important means, but it is the means which to most men and women comes easiest. The novel can be utilized at odd minutes; it can be carried in the pocket or the hand. It is more than a pastime and a relaxation, just as the absorption of material food and drink is more than a pleasure to the taste. Those who give out must also take in; and the greater the imaginative wear and tear through teaching or preaching or business, the more insistent will be the demand that the exhausted resources be replenished.

It must be remembered that practically all occupations feed on the imagination, while art alone feeds it. In proportion as we give out of our creative force, in the office, or the shop, or the lecture-room, exactly in that proportion shall we need to renew our stores. The neglect of renewal can become a habit; and the habit is suicidal. For it is easier than we often think to let the imagination go unfed, to be unable to read novels, to sit through plays, to look at pictures, to listen to fine music. The man who gets into this unhappy plight can take accurate measure of himself. He has reached his limit. He will never go any further. He will probably find it difficult to remain where he is. He has nothing to point him to new ways, to obvious openings, to his own expansion with an expanding life. While life is expanding, he begins to contract; and the man who allows himself to contract, no matter at what age, has nothing before him but to die.

IV.

It is evident, of course, that there is unwise and excessive reading of fiction, and there is also fiction worthless in itself; but neither of these considerations is within our scope. My point is made if it becomes in any measure clear to us that art is the food on which imagination flourishes, and that imagination is essential to every task in life. The novel helps to supply this need because it comes to us as an enhancement of experience. It takes the reader into places where he himself could never go; it shows him how other people deal with conditions similar to his own; it will lead him to views and adventures beyond his own sphere. When the book is closed, he has a whole new slice of life to think of and discuss. The result cannot but be an enlargement of his sympathies. When he next confronts his problem or his job, he can do so with a wider perception of all its possibilities.

It is not contended that the reading of fiction or the pursuit of art can take the place of other training of the mind. Of course not It can do but one thing; it can stimulate the imaginative faculty; but in doing that it stimulates the entire inner man.

And to effect this stimulation, there is something that demands the living voice. We cannot confine our mental tonic to the classics, any more than we can limit our medical prescriptions to those that were put up in bottles fifty year ago. While Time can sanctify, it cannot preserve freshness. The unpsychological reasoner will often ask why we should read the "trash" of the moderns when we have Thackeray and Dickens and Shakespeare. The reply is that Thackeray and Dickens and Shakespeare are dead, and the dead voice cannot possibly utter all that is needed by a living generation. Each generation speaks primarily to its own children. We in 1923 cannot go back to the mental or emotional conditions of 1850 or to 1600. These epochs may tell us much, but they will never tell us what most we need to hear. The imagination of 1923 must be fed with the food of 1923. The masters of the seventeenth, eighteenth and nineteenth centuries will be interesting to us,—but always dead. If we find them enough for us, it is because we ourselves have dropped back to the past, and have ceased that straining on toward the future which keeps a man vigorous and young. It is for his reason that the living mind instinctively asks for the "latest thing." You may call it "trashy" if you like, but it is rarely without a living quality which the dead author loses by the fact that he is dead. The dead is gone. It is a fact to be remembered when we allow ourselves to live with dead ambitions in dead communities. Only the living and the present is dynamic and productive, for ever seeking to express itself anew. The greatest fiction in England and the United States corresponds with the periods which in those countries were, and are, of greatest national activity. It is the easiest way in which the heart of a nation gets utterance. If there is little utterance, we may take it for granted that there is little heart. A dynamic nation is dynamic in literature, or it is a nation only in name.

Therefore those of us who have the future of Canada passionately at heart are glad to see the stirrings of a Canadian literature beginning to make themselves manifest. They are only beginning as yet, just as Canada itself—a country not yet sixty years old—is but at its beginnings in everything. It is a fact that the conservation and sophisticated, what we may call the university classes, are hostile to those beginnings as yet; but that is to be expected. These classes are generally hostile to the future, their hostility serving the useful purpose of the rubber against which children whet their teeth. The teeth grow stronger for the irritation. "It is in the arts," writes Edmund Gosse, in speaking of the enmity of Norway to its first distinguished son, Henrik Ibsen, "that the old colonial instinct of dependence is most loath to disappear."

It has to be admitted that in the arts Canada is still colonial and dependent. In imaginative literature it reads almost nothing which does not come from outside itself. The tidal wave of American publication which daily sweeps over the Dominion is often deplored, but it rolls in only because nature abhors a vacuum. There would be no room for it, were the Canadian's imaginative world not empty. If the patriotic hope to counteract it, they have a means; they can produce something of their own. A full cistern will receive no more, even though a billow flow over it.

But so far Canada as a whole lacks an independent intelligence. It distrusts its power of intellectual production. It distrusts its own judgment. Even in commercial and industrial things, which are easier to deal with. it is largely exploited by outsiders, One is struck with the fact that its one colossal achievement, the Canadian Pacific Railway, has never until very recently had a Canadian at its head. One Scotsman and two Americans have been its presidents, while at the moment of writing another American directs all the National Railways of the country.

Thus we hark back to the atrophy, or partial atrophy, of the imaginative faculty. It tends to keep the Canadian and the Canadian of the Maritime Provinces especially, colonial and dependent. The colonial and dependent must of necessity be feeble, inadequate, second-rate. The pill may be bitter to swallow, and yet it is wisdom to swallow it. At the same time it is helpful to believe that the present waking of a Canadian creative spirit, so negligible to those who have let their imaginations die, and so hateful to that kind of provincial cultivation which never has confidence in itself, is a symptom of release.

Forty per cent of all American women are cigarette smokers, social workers estimate.

THE COMMERCIAL CABLE CO.

In 1884 Messrs. John W. MacKay and James Gordon Bennett, thinking that an opportune time to lay cables, there being a great demand for quicker service, decided to lay two Atlantic cables from Waterville, Ireland to Nova Scotia; and two cables from Nova Scotia (one to New York and one to Rockport, Mass.—the latter with two cores).

This work having been completed, the Opposition immediately reduced their rates from 25cents to 12½ cents per word. The Commercial Cable Co. had such faith in the requirements of the service that they decided to continue at 25 cents, with the result that they got all the important traffic: i.e. stocks, arbitrage messages, etc., sufficient to keep them fully employed and at the same time giving quick service; whilst the Opposition got choked up with cheap rate traffic, which carried considerable delay.

The foresight of the Commercial turned out to be fully justified and the Opposition had to come up to the 25c. rate, at which figure it has since continued.

These cables are all worked on the Duplex system; that is, send and receive at the same time, which, of course, practically doubles their capacity.

Business increased so rapidly that, in 1903, it became necessary to lay a third Atlantic section, with a much greater carrying capacity. This cable was for a long time reserved for stock traffic.

Again, looking for fresh fields for expansion, in 1900, a cable was laid from Canso to Fayal, Azores, and another from Fayal to Waterville, Ireland. This was for the purpose of tapping traffic for South America and the Far East; Fayal being an Eastern Company's station; and it was found expedient to exchange traffic with the Eastern at Fayal instead of sending this traffic to London. This connection gave the Commercial another circuit to Waterville, when not being used to Fayal.

In 1905 it became necessary for further expansion, and a fifth Atlantic cable was laid of still greater capacity, which again justified itself and about 1914, it became necessary either to lay further cables or find a means of increasing the capacity of the existing lines.

Up to this time, the cables had been worked as ordinary siphon recorder circuits but about this time an electrician devised a system by which the weak signals at the receiving end could be magnified and strengthened, and, in consequence the spread over the recorder increased about 75%.

This saved the laying of another cable and the desired object of increasing the facilities attained. This system is now pretty generally adopted.

It is very interesting to note that, whilst the cost of everything else—steamboat travel, railway transportation, etc., has increased, the cable service has never increased their rates since 1884 and in fact, have within the last few years, reduced them; whilst the salaries of all employees have materially increased.

THE LIFE OF A HOME

A healthy, happy, contented wife is the life and joy of the home and the greatest inspiration a man can have, yet how many homes in America are blighted by the ill-health and suffering of the wife and mother. It may be backache, headaches, the tortures of a displacement or some other ailment peculiar to her sex, which makes her irritable, despondent, and her whole life a burden. Every woman in this condition should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from roots and herbs to restore her to health and happiness, for statistics prove that it benefits 98 out of every 100 women who try it.

SCAPA FLOW HULKS TO BE SALVAGED AND SOLD

LONDON, July 27 (Associated Press) —The German fleet scuttled at Scapa Flow in June, 1919, is to be raised, cut up, and sold for junk. The admiralty has signed a contract with a private company which has purchased part of the sunken ships, and will start operations at once to raise them.

The company is said already to have found a market for the hulks. If the operations are successful, a contract will be signed for the remaining section, which includes the largest of the ships.

The vessels sunk comprise ten battleships, five battle cruisers and 29 destroyers, their total tonnage being about 416,000. The contract already agreed to covers 20 destroyers and one of the battle cruisers.

The vessels were sunk by their crews opening all the sea-cocks and flooding the ships. This will, however, make the work of the salvers much easier, as it is planned to shut the cocks and pump the water out of the holds.

Unsolved Mysteries

THE MAN WHO VANISHED

What became of Richard Ashurst? Was the postmaster of Philadelphia murdered and his body hidden somewhere along the seacoast or did he disappear of his own volition? If the latter, how was he, a cripple, able so completely to cover all traces of his subsequent movements?

These are the questions which still remain unsolved after eleven years of searching by the police and private agencies, for the vanishing of Richard Ashurst at Atlantic City on January 30, 1911, still remains one of the most puzzling problems that ever presented itself for solution.

At the time of his disappearance, Mr. Ashurst was seventy-two years of age and one of the leading lawyers of Philadelphia, being Vice-Chancellor of the Law Association and prominent in a number of other legal and social bodies. The most minute examination of his life failed to reveal the slightest reason either for his suicide or his voluntary retirement from public life. In fact, on the very evening that he was last seen, Mr. Ashurst wired from Atlantic City to the Assistant Postmaster at Philadelphia that he would be "back in the office tomorrow" and at the same had gone to Atlantic City unexpectedly, that he was quite well and that he would return by the first train in the morning.

As investigations afterwards developed Mr. Ashurst left his hotel about 8:45, secured a rolling chair and gave the negro "pusher" instructions to wheel him up the Boardwalk to the Million Dollar Pier. He reached the pier at 9 o'clock, paid the chair man and, leaning heavily on his cane, walked through the entrance toward the far end of the structure. Nothing more has ever been seen of him from that day to this and the only cue ever found was the cane, picked up five days later, at one side of the pier.

Shortly after midnight on the night that his father disappeared Mr. Ashurst's son became alarmed and requested the police to make an immediate search of the city. Every hotel and boarding-house was supplied with a description of the missing man, every railroad station was watched and every avenue of escape from the city carefully guarded—for the police worked on the theory that Ashurst had either been murdered or that he had been kidnapped and was being held for ransom. Five days later without the slightest indication of the missing man havin been found and, during this time, local, private and Federal detectives had searched every inch of the pier, while Life Guards had dragged the waters in the vicinity. In spite of this, on the morning of the fifth day, Mr. Ashurst's cane, dry and untarnished, was found on the beach beside the pier in a spot which the authorities had examined scores of times. This served to strengthen the kidnapping theory, for the police felt certain that the walking-stick had been placed on the beach during the previous night, for it was practically impossible for it to have been there during the time that the search had been carried on.

The police of Philadelphia and other cities, as well as the Post-office Inspectors, Secret Service operatives a and Coast Guards, all joined in looking for the missing postmaster, but to no avail. Rumors were heard that the Ashurst disappearance was due to private worries, while others maintained that the affairs of the Philadelphia post office were not in the best of shape. All of these, however, were definitely and finally disproved and, when the case was at last docketed as "Unsolved," no one was able to advance the slightest reason for the voluntary disappearance or suicide of Mr. Ashurst, while after weeks had passed without any demand for ransom, the kidnapping theory was also shelved.

The members of the Ashurst family declined at all times to make any comment or statement about the affair, beyond the fact that, seventeen days after the disappearance, they inserted a notice in the Philadelphia papers to the effect that the postmaster had died in Atlantic City, on January 30, the day on which he vanished.

NEW PASTOR INDUCTED THE HAVELOCK CHURCH

Rev. J. McIlroy Takes Over the Work in Knox Presbyterian Church — Gathering Yesterday.

New pastor tmanyrnitarasope

HAVELOCK, July 27. — Knox Presbyterian church, which has been without a pastor since the resignation of Rev. James Skene last winter, is once more settled, Rev. J. McIlroy having been inducted yesterday afternoon as minister of this charge, at a special meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery. The arrangement is satisfactory to all parties concerned, and Mr. McIlroy and the members of the congregation were congratulated upon the perfecting relationship by the ministers who officiated in the impressive ceremony.

The new pastor has been supplying the pulpit of Knox for several months and the call from the congregation was unanimous. He is a young man, a good speaker, and there is no doubt that his ministrations to his ne wcharge will be successful. When the Presbytery were first asked to sustain the call they deferred action, advising the congregation to strengthen itself by effecting a union with one or more of the Methodist churches in the district, and in the meantime to have Mr. McIlroy to continue as supply for a period of six months. The congregation refused to act on this advice and another strong representation was sent to the Presbytery, the result being that the wishes of the people prevailed

The Services.

The officiating ministers at the induction services were Rev. C. F. McIntosh of Campbellford, who acted as interim moderator, Rev. J. Black of Omemee, who preached the sermon, and Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings, who delivered the charge to the congregation. Other clergymen in attendance were Rev. R. F. Stilman, formerly Methodist pastor at Omemee, but now of Cobourg; Rev. T. H. Stanley of the Havelock Anglican church and Rev. E. A. Thomson of Monkton; D. W. Douglas, representative elder of St. Andrew's church, Campbellford, was also in attendance.

A fine musical service was held by the choir of Knox and Mr. Black preached a practical discourse, in which he counselled that a spirit of forbearance be cultivated among the people, living in harmony with one's neighbors, and especially with the members of our own households

The Call Explained.

Rev. D. A. Thomson then related the steps that had been taken and which eventually led to the present services. To Mr. McIntosh, the new pastor then answered satisfactorily the questions prescribed by the discipline of the Presbyterian church, after which the moderator declared Mr. McIlroy pastor of the congregation, and the members of the Presbytery extended to him the right hand of fellowship.

Address to the Pastor.

Mr. McIntosh then addressed a few words of kindly and fraternal counsel to the new minister, basing his remarks upon the message of St. Paul to the early Christian church, "Take heed therefore unto yourselves and to all the flock over which the Holy Ghost has made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which He has purchased with His own blood."

A minister, Mr. McIntosh said, should have a rounded out life. Torturing the body was no longer regarded as an aid to spirituality. A sound mind should be preserved in a soundy body. If a person's physical condition is not right it is impossible for that person to think clearly. For that reason a minister should keep himself in good physical condition, and mental and spiritual condition.

The custom of the church in having an elder go around with the minister on his pastoral visits to introduce him to his people, very often had the effect of influencing the minister, who was prone to acquire the prejudices of the other. The minister should find out for himself the needs of the members of his flock, and should decide how these are to be provided for.

A new pastor in a congregation may succeed in bringing in some people who have never been in the church or in reclaiming others who have left it.

There are many things a minister should know but there is one thing he must know—the Word of God, so that he may present it to the people under his care. Above all he should live a godly life, one that will be an cyample to others.

Mr. McIntosh congratulated Mr. McIntosh on having been called to such a charge, adding that in selecting him as their pastor the people had acted of their own free will.

Address to the People.

It was a fatherly talk that Rev. D. A. Thomson delivered to the members of the congregation with regard to their duty to their pastor. The motive of the call he said was to seek God's glory and the good of the church. The people by the terms of the call had pledged themselves to render their minister all due respect and Mr. Thomson advised them if they could not say anything good about their pastor then at least to refrain from saying anything bad.

Another promise made by the people were that they would give their minister encouragement. His hands should be held u as weer the hands of Joshua. He should be remembered in the prayers of his people in their own homes, and when on coming into the church they bowed their heads to ask a blessing upon themselves. They can help him by speaking a good word to him occasionally. No man worthy the name wants flattery. but everybody regular encouragement.

The congregation had also pledged themselves by their signatures to the call to render their minister obedience. He had been set over them by the Lord and as such was entitled to honor. The ideal relationship between a pastor and his congregation was found where all learned to bear and forbear one with another.

New Pastor Welcomed

Mr. and Mrs. Stillman were then welcomed to their new home by the members of the congregation, who were introduced by William Mathison, one of the elders and Dr. A. S. Thompson.

The Ladies' Aid

It has been said that a minister coming to a new charge regards the income of the church and his own stipend assured when he ascertains that the congregation have an efficient Ladies' Aid Society. That being the case, Rev. Mr. McIroy has no cause for financial worry. The organized ladies of Knox church have for years been its mainstay and yesterday their activities, were again in evidence when they served in the basement of the building a sumptuous repast at the close of the services. The officers of the society are: Mrs. (Dr.) A. S. Thompson, president; Mrs. W. Hitchins, secretary; Mrs. L. Cuthbertson, treasurer.

Dates from 1882

Knox church is comparatively youthful. The first record of worship by Presbyterians was in 1882 when John Mowat, a student in theology, preached to the people in the school house. The first place of public worship was built on the Marmora road and the present church was erected in 1886, largely through the efforts of James Madill, an evangelist. The first regularly ordained Presbyterian minister to settle in Havelock was Rev. John McMillan, who remained two years. Then came Rev. Hugh Brown, four years; Rev. D. A. Hamilton, two years; Rev. J. A. McLellan, three years; Rev. A. E. Kamp two years and Rev. James Stidling, who died after one year's service. The congregation then extended a call to Rev. James Skene. who labored successfully for 13 years and whose faithful ministrations are still held in grateful memory by the congregation.

CAMPBELLFORD SCHOOL BOARD

Vacancy Filed on the Teaching Staff— Meeting Held Last Evening.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 27.—The Board of Education held a brief session last night, with a bare quorum in attendance, Trustee Lynch presiding in the absence of Chairman Douglas. The other members present were Trustees Benor, Hoover, Arnold, Free, Mayor Bygott, Birmingham and Stephens.

Miss Ruth Diamond resigned her position on the teaching staff of the Public school. This vacancy was filled by the unanimous appointment of Miss Kathleen Connor, who holds a permanent first class certificate and who comes to her new position highly recommended as a successful teacher. Miss Connor's home is in Campbellford and she is a graduate of the local High school. The members of the board consider themselves fortunate in securing her services. The appointment was made on motion of Trustees Benor and Birmingham.

Rules Amended.

Trustee Bygott read to the Board the rules that were framed over 16 years ago and have been hanging in the different rooms and hallways of the schooi ever since. The Board was requested to re-affirm or amend these rules, thus investing them with new authority, as they are regarded as a great aid to the teachers in their work. Where an irate parent calls at the school to complain of the way in which a pupil has been treated a reference to the rules is all that is necessary to vindicate the teacher.

Only one of the rules was amended. This enacted that every pupil should be in his or her home not later than 6.30 p.m., a matter that was difficult of enforcement. For this was substituted a decree that all pupils must leave the building at 4 p.m. promptly and that before leaving they shall put away their books and turn up the seats of their desks. This rule is designed to aid the caretaker in his work, so that he will lose no time in getting the various rooms in shape for next day.

The property committee have completed the renovation of the Public school and Caretaker Massie invited the members of the Board to inspect the building to see what a splendid improvemnt has been made. This the Board promised to do at the next meeting.

New seats are required in Miss Atkinson's room, but the question of procuring these was deferred for the present .

Councillors Object.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 27.—Members of the Town Council say that the offer of W. G. Fraser to exchange part of his land for the right of way for the extension of Palliser street; cannot be entertained and the Council has no right to dispose of such property if even one citizen objects to the transfer. There are interested land owners who would never consent to having the right of way abandoned as the obstructing property is likely to become valuable on account of its provimity to the depth. Mr. Fraser's offer has been before the different Councils during the past 10 years or more and nothing has been done.

Band to Play.

The Campbellford Band will play at the Meyersburg social Friday night.

MANGLED BETWEEN TWO STREET CARS

London Boy Thrust Head Out of Window - Mother Saw Fatality.

LONDON, Ont., July 27.—(Canadian Press).— Ernest Stark, twelve-year-old son of William Stark of Huron Street, was instantly killed yesterday evening at Richmond and Picaddilly Strets, when he thrust his head through the window of a northbound car on which he was riding with his mother and was mangled by a southbound car.

The fatality, according to Provincial Officer J. Y. Straton, who was an eye witness, was one of the most tragic experiences of his police career. The boy, he said, stood on a seat and leaned out over the two bars placed as a guard across the lower window. In an instant he was struck by a southbound car and before eyes of his horrified mother was dragged through window and crushed between the pasing cars. His body dropped onto the roadway, wheels mangled one of his hands.

Mrs. Stark was driven into hysterics by the experience and required medical treatment, while physicians made a fruitless effort to revive a spark of life in her son.

Coroner Dr. Wilson ordered an inquest, and the body was removed to the morgue.

EX-PREMIER DRURY FOR LEADERSHIP

Willing to Head U.F.O. Party if He Gets Convention Endorsation.

TORONTO, July 27.—(Canadian Press.) — Former Premier E. C. Drury will accept the leadership of the U. F. O. party on condition that he receives the endorsation of a province wide convention. He also makes it clear that he will not agree to be the leader of any class movement.

These were the decisions communicated to a representative meeting of U. F. O. members-elect, defeated candidates and the U.F.O. executive, held at Foresters' Hall yesterday afternoon, when it was agreed to appoint a committee to consider the advisability of calling a convention for the purpose of selecting a leader and formulating their future policy.

A meeting of the executive of the U.F.O. was held at the offices in George street last night, when the proceedings at the meeting in Foresters' Hall were discussed, but no decisions were arrived at. The opinion appears to prevail in this section of the U.F.O. that ex-Premier Drury would not be endorsed as a leader by general convention. No steps have yet been taken in the direction of providing him with a seat in the Legislature.

A CONSTABLE SHOT WIFE BY ACCIDENT

Mrs. Sarah Black, Hamilton, Expired in Her Husband's Arms.

HAMILTON, July 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Shot through the head by a bullet from a revolver in the hands of her husband, Constable Sam W. Black, traffic officer at King and James street, Mrs. Sarah Black, aged 38 years, fell dying yesterday afternoon in the kitchen of her home at 68 Inchberry street. The shooting was purely an accident.

Constable Black was relieved from duty at 3 o'clock after 8 hours' service at the corner. He went to the police station and did not turn in his revolver, as he had been assigned to special duty last night at the Hamilton Jockey Club grounds. Before leaving for the track, he came home for lunch, and placed his belt, containing the revolver, on the kitchen table. His wife took it from the case and asked how it was operated, this being the first time the officer had taken the weapon home.

Taking a cartridge from his pocket the constable inserted it, and Mrs. Black proceeded to click the revolver, the loaded chamber getting up closer to the firing point. When it was handed back Constable Black was not aware of the fact that it had twice been pulled, and pointing it into the open kitchen window, he snapped it again. As he pulled the trigger a second time his wife accidentally walked a pace forward directly in front of the gun.

"My God what have I done," she cried, and then fell unconscious to the floor.

The frantic husband picked the victim up in his arms and racing through the front door, ran up the street about 50 yards to the office of Dr. Charlton, at York and Inchbury streets. Dr. Charlton was out and an emergency call was sent to nearby physicians, but Mrs. Black died in her husband's arms before the surgeon was reached, the nurse in charge reported.

Gains Five Pounds and Feels Fine

Dreco a big help to Henry Titus, of 275 Jarvis Street, Toronto, who now finds work a pleasure. His wife also taking it.

Another Toronto citizen has found that Dreco amply lives up to all claims made for it as a reliable corrective for digestive complaints. Let him tell you how this famous remedy helped restore his health and strength.

"My kidneys had troubled me for a long time," says Mr. Titus. "I had terrible pains across my back at times and could hardly stay at my work. By stomach was in bad shape too. Everything I ate seemed to sour and form gas, causing pains in my stomach, and headaches. My joints and muscles ached with rheumatism and my head, nose and throat were stopped with catarrh, which, however, is now clearing away. I felt weak and tired in the mornings and by night was all worn out.

Now, however, things are different. My bowels are regular and I eat and sleep much better and feel much stronger and am not tired out when night comes. Have gained five pounds and don't mind a good hard day's work.

"My wife is also taking Dreco, as she has been in poor health for some time and I have recommended it to many of my friends who have attained good results. Dreco is the best medicine I have ever taken."

Dreco acts on stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, in a natural way. The juices of herbs, roots, bark and leaves from which it is scientifically prepared, speedily restore these vital organs to proper functioning and the whole system benefits. Dreco is safe and reliable and contains no mercury, potash, habit forming drugs, or any other harmful ingredient.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterboro by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold in Lakefield by E. H. Northey, and by a good druggist everywhere.

SIX DESPERADOS HID AT LEASIDE

One Man Was Hit in the Leg According to Story of a Foreigner.

TORONTO, July 27.—(Canadian Press.)—That one of the six desperadoes who held up the bank messengers in Toronto Wednesday morning, was shot in the leg during the street battle which followed, and that members of the gang were within a short distance of Toronto Wednesday morning with a large black automobile, was made known to the police yesterday morning.

Alex. Schernwich, Richmond street west, came across the gunmen in a bush off the main road at Leaside at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. As Schernwich walked into the bush he was confronted by a heavy set man who pushed a revolver against his chest. Schernwich threw his hands above his head, and as he looked forward saw four men busy dressing a wound in the leg of a man who was lying stretched out on the long grass. Schernwich was then ordered to pull down his hands and stretch them out in front of him. With the gun pressed closely against his chest, Schernwich was asked where he was going. He replied that he was on his way to Leaside. The bandit ordered him to turn and run to the opposite direction or he would open fire on him.

Schernwich at once returned to his Richmond street west rooming house and related his experience to his fellow countrymen.

Yesterday an interpreter brought Schernwich to detective headquarters, where the man's story was related to Chief of Police Dickson and Detective Inspector Walker.

WARM WELCOME TO PRESIDENT

President Harding Addressed a Gathering of 40,000 at Vancouver Yesterday.

VANCOUVER, July 27—(Canadian Press).—More than 40,000 persons yesterday heard President Warren G. Harding deliver message of warm friendship and admiration for Canada. Realizing the significance of the occasion, the first time the holder of his high office has visited Canada. The reception accorded him along the line of march and at Stanley Park, where the address was delivered, was most impressive in its enthusiasm.

The President, himself, frankly admitted that the welcome far exceed expectations of himself or his party and declared that he regarded it a new assurance that the Dominion of Canada and the United States will go along hand in hand, side by side, towards fulfillment of the destinies of the two great democracies.

The manifestations of welcome were continuous beginning this morning, when the naval transport, Henderson, bearing the President and his party from Alaska, steamed into Burrad Inlet and received from the British light cruiser, Curlew, a salute of twenty-one guns and continuing until 9.30 o'clock last night. After he attended the state dinner, given by the governments of the Dominion, and of the province of British Columbia.

Mr. Harding returned to the Henderson for the overnight voyage to Seattle. It was a welcome bespeaking the friendship and cordiality, not alone for the man himself, but for the great nation he represented.

FRENCH REPLY PASSIVE RESISTANCE MUST STOP

PARIS, July 27. Canadian Press. —The French reply to the British reparations note will be delivered in London to-morrow or Sunday. It accepts some of the British suggestions and asks for further light on others. It maintains the principle of the Franco-Belgian declaration to the effect that passive resistance must cease before negotiations with Germany are undertaken.

CONSERVATIVES ARE VICTORS IN P.E.I.

Make Almost a Clean Sweep in Provincial Elections Yesterday.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., July 27.—(Canadian Press).—Conservatives made almost a clean sweep in the provincial elections yesterday, the Bell Government coming out of the debacle with only four seats out of thirty, according to what are practically complete deturns.

The opposition carried the whole ten seats in King's County, where their leader, J. D. Stewart, K.C., was running.

Every member of the Bell Government was defeated in almost every case by large majorities.

The now Opposition leader will probably be A. Saunders, K.C., of Summerside.

New English Dress Voiles 79c Yard

Such Voiles as these tempt one to make one's own apparel. Their quality and colors are those found in popular ready-to-wear, and it is a simple task to make becoming garments from them. You'll not be satisfied with one dress length—you'll want two or three when you see them.

Ours Is a Business Built on Service

To deliver to you promptly the merchandise you want when you want it at a price you are willing to pay is the very minimum service a store may render. It is not our ideal of service. It is a conception of service that may win some customers, but our ambition is to make friends first and customers after. Service with us concerns itself with "plus services" in not only serving but serving graciously, in making adjustments cheerfully, in viewing every accommodation we are able to render as an opportunity to strengthen the bond of good-will which years of courteous square dealing have built up between this institution and its customers.

Yard-Wide Factory Cotton 19c Yard

You know how hard it is to get a real heavy Factory Cotton free from specks and heavy threads. Well, we have one—a lovely Cotton quite the nicest you've seen for 19c yard. It is a full yard wide. A dozen yards will come in handy. Be here early for yours.

Y. W. C. A. CAMP HAPPENINGS

On Tuesday, July 17th. the girls boarded the "Islinda" and had a sail round the Upper Lakes returning, when their craft came down to meet the night boat. The weather was ideal and Captain Pat Young made it like a personally conducted tour, by pointing out the principal points of interest and relating anecdotes of the lake. The campers are full of praise of the courtesy shown by the Stoney Lake Navigation and their employees It has added greatly to the pleasure of the camp. In the evening the girls were invited down to supper at the Y.M.C.A. camp and spent a very happy evening. The Senior boys arrived on Monday, July 16th and are in charge of Mr. Douglas Loomis. They have shown a very fraternal spirit toward their sister camp and have included the girls in their trips and have done the lion's share of the work, which makes it very easy for the girls.

On Wednesday, twelve of the girls boarded the "Marie' with Donald FitzGerald in charge and made the trip to Eel's Creek. Like everyone else, who visits this enchanting spot, the girls were filled with a keen desire to explore, and though, having no canoes with them they were undaunted and tried to make their way by land to the famous High Falls. This met with more excitement than success, as the swamp proved too much for some of the party, some however persevered for a time, but finally gave up and rejoined their fellows. Tea was partaken of and the return trip was made in the early evening" in the glory of the sunset."

Thursday the girls rested after their strenuous trip and the more enthusiastic took in the weekly dance at Kawarha Park and had a splendid time. There was a good crowd and splendid music and the girls were enthusiastic about their evening.

On Friday evening the girls, entertained the "Y.M.' boys and a number of young folks from the nearby cottages to a 'weiner' roast. Anyone who has ever eaten "hot dogs' on the shore of Stoney Lake, with a party of young folks, knows how it goes. The young people thoroughly enjoyed it, and jokes and snatches of song made the time pass all too quickly till the hour arrived to say and likewise sing "Goodnight, Ladies."

Saturday morning brought the sad hour of parting with a number of the girls, to wit—Misses Myrtle Lambe of Toronto and Ted Cheverill, Marie and Christine Pappas. Rose Puddick, Margaret Fife, Margaret Pollard, and Grace Munden.

The girls who were left had no time for moping as preparations for a picnic to Indian River with the Y.M.C.A. boys had to be made. It was a wonderful trip and the party which numbered twenty-one spent the sort of day which could not fail to be a joy to anyone who truly loves nature. Leaving the launch at the entrance to the river the party portaged their canoes after partaking of lunch, and proceded up the river with its wooded shores to White Lake to the mouth of the river and on down the river again. Some places were too shallow for navigation, so wading was the order of the day, pushing the boats along then when the river was deeper embarking again and going on and on into territory which is seldom explored by tourists. The loiterers had to swim the deeper spots and the return trip was eventful in the stops made to collect discarded clothing, which decorated the bushes. After some time, the river widened again another lake, (smaller than White Lake), which appears to be nameless was reached and the party disembarked planning to walk to Potash Pit, a large cave. but the distance was too great to be accomplished in the time available so the retreat was sounded and the party returned to the launch. It was a picnic out of the beaten track and the country possessed the fascination of the mysterious unexplored, which red blooded Canadian young folks find irresistible. Tired, but happy they returned to "Gladhalken."

On Sunday morning, the girls attended St. Peter's Church, the church so named because it is built on a rock. After dinner the Y.M. boys called and the combined camps visited Fairy Lake (once known as "Fairy Fern Lake"), and on to Perry's Creek, where they partook of tea. The girls, who visited the 'Y' camp where it was located at Burleigh have tender memories of Perry's Creek, as it was one of their favorite haunts. Some of the party walked home via Kawartha while others. less energetic went back in the launch. On their return the big group gathered round the fire place where a cheery fire burned and sang as only those who are in tune with nature can sing. The evening was memorable as it was an appropriate ending to a perfect day. The camp is never dull as there is something going on all the time and a wonderful spirit of comradesship prevails.

The girls registered for the week included, Misses Phemia Hendry, Dorothy Clarke, Annie Simmons, Queenie Hope, Evelyn Raynsford, and Vera J. Doole. More girls arrive on Monday.

NON-MAGNETIC IRON — A NEW METAL

Round about every conductor carrying an electric current there is a magnetic field and, if the current is alternating, the magnetism alternates as well. This fact constitutes the basic working principle of many electrical machines and instruments but there are occasions on which it has very undesirable effects. For instance, when iron parts are intended to be used for structural purposes alone, they may draw the magnetic field away from its legitimate position ahd thus disturb the working of the apparatus. Brass, gunmetal, or aluminum might be used for the parts concerned but these metals are costly substitutes. Also, they are good conductors of electricity and, as a result, the changing magnetic field induces in them heavy electric currents which cause heating of the metal and may represent a serious loss of energy. What is wanted is a metal which is inexpensive, strong, non-magnetic, and a bad conductor of electricity. All these and a number of other desirable properties are combined in a non-magnetic cast iron made by a well-known British firm of electrical engineers. The new material is much cheaper than brass or aluminum, almost completely non-magnetic, and offers 18 times the resistance of brass to the flow of electricity. It can be used equally well for thin castings and heavy frames, and it is so tough and malleable that it can be used for resistance grids such as those used in the control of tramcar motors.

"Everyone Sees His Mother But Me—I'm Goin' Home"

Home to a cow puncher usually means any horse he happens to have his saddle on. But ask an Arizona puncher where he was raised, it's an even break he'll say, "down yonder," meaning Texas.

When he was fifteen, Shorty left the little farm in East Texas, and drifted to Midland. Riding herd in a flock of windmills suited him no better than picking cotton. He wanted to be a twister.

So the next move was New Mexico. Here on a horse ranch, he found the job he wanted—fighting bronks at fifteen dollars a month.

Some of the peelers laughed when Shorty asked for a job. McDougal, the owner, didn't smile.

"Button," he said, "they ride pitchin' horses at this outfit. You're only a kid."

"I know," answered Shorty, "but I want to learn."

McDougal knew he meant it.

For two years he stayed on. Being thrown and pawed in a rough game, but when Shorty headed west again he could ride. Of McDougal, he bought his first horse, a long-legged outlaw that pitched each time he was saddled. Jobs were scarce, but down on the Arizona line he caught on. For a year, he stayed, riding the Rough String.

From here, he drifted into Arizona, and finally landed in Globe. Globe was a he-man's town in those days. His money in safer hands, Shorty rode out next morning on his long-legged bronk.

At the Flying H some pictures were taken of the outfit, among them several of Shorty. He sent them home. A sister he had never seen wrote back that of course they were interesting, but his mother wondered why he didn't send some of himself.

Three years at the C.K.'s, two more at the Wine Glass. The years kept slipping by. Once in awhile, a letter came from home.

Shorty was thirty-four when I met him, and foreman of the Cross S. He wasn't much to look at, a little runt with steel blue eyes and a mop of hair as black and coarse as an Apache's. Of course his legs were bowed. His broncho riding days were over, but he still kept the long-legged outlaw, though the horse was too old to ride. But aside from the fact that Shorty had quit twistin', he did everything a little better than anyone else. You wouldn't have guessed he was foreman. The cattle were wild in the mountain, yet he always caught more than his share. He was never bowed up or sullen, he even stood well with the cook. At night, round the fire, it's all ropin' and ridin', and talkin' came easy for Shorty.

The fall I met Shorty, we were working down out of the pine, and the juniper mesas, moving campe every few days. Headquarters was reached in November.

Headquarters was only thirty miles from Globe, so the day before we went down to the pens, some folks came out from town. Among 'em was the horse wrangler's mother. Slim was out on the mesa with the ponies when she came. She looked a bit disappointed when she found he wasn't there, till Shorty showed her the point where he'd come off with the remuda. The drive had just come in, and the outfit was branding out. The other folks was right interested, but Slim's mother kept watchin' that spot.

It takes some little time to ease a hundred and fifty ponies off that point. But as soon as they hit the flat, they come on a run for the ranch. She didn't see Slim until he was most there. Then he came bustin' out of the dust to turn two bronks that was headin' down the wash. Slim let out a yell when he spied her. She just stood there and smiled.

Punchers as a rule don't have much to say when women folks is around. But Slim's mother had white hair. The cook was poison on town folks and Indians, but I heard him tell her he'd have made a tallow pudding if he'd a knowed anyone was coming.

That night Shorty didn't sit around the fire. He went off to bed without sayin' a word. I thought he was asleep when I turned in, but as I was fixin' the tarp, he up and says, "Slim's mother didn't pay no one any mind but him. When he left, she watched him until he topped out on the mesa."

We went down to the pens in the morning, and had just started to load when the passenger pulled up. Everybody hung out of the windows. Among them was Pecos, a kid that had ridden the Rough String the beginning of the work. He was so dolled up we didn't know him until he yelled:

"Where ya goin'?" says Shorty.

"Home," yells Pecos as the train pulls out.

It was sundown before we loaded out. The outfit piled into the two big cars and headed for town. Shorty and I were to take the horses back to the ranch. So we filled up on canned stuff and bellywash at the little store. It was dark when we pulled out. But by the time we had hit seven mile, the moon had come up, and it was 'most as light as day. I started to auger a couple of times, but all I got was a "yes," or a "no." So we rode to the ranch without talkin'.

I unsaddled and turned loose, before I noticed Shorty. He was still standin', with his head down, leanin' against his pony. Figurin' his side was hurtin' him again, I went over to unsaddle his horse.

"The old side botherin' again?" I asked.

When he raised his head, I saw his face was wet.

"Everyone sees his mother but me, I'm goin' home"

SALT FOR LIVE STOCK

CONSIDERED NECESSARY FOR PRACTICALLY ALL FARM ANIMALS

Be Careful Not to Salt Too Heavily—Live Stock Grow Unthrifty Without It—Milking in Holland—Kindness and Cleanliness Strictly Insisted Upon.

Salt the cattle, salt the sheep, and salt the horses. Why do we practice it? You stockmen have been doing it all your life, and your fathers did so before you. But why did they do it? No doubt it was observed that the stock liked to lick anything that had a salty flavor—a fish cask, or soil where salt had been spilled or a natural salt deposit. Like all our animal feeding practices, the feeding of salt has developed through years of observation, until it is now regularly practiced by all the best herdsmen and feeders.

Salt For Animals a Necessity

Animals must get salt from some source if their bodies are to function with full efficiency. If no salt is available to the animal through the food medium or minerals given, the digestion is impaired. Large quantities of salt are as harmful in practice as no salt at all. But a little is absolutely essential in that it supplies the chlorine so nscessary in forming a minute part (the hydrochloric acid portion) of the digestive fluid. The quantity of salt given to farm animals should not exceed one-half ounce per day for fully grown horses and cattle, small animals in porportion.

Do Not Salt Stock Too Heavily

Many people make the mistake of salting the stock heavily once a month during the summer, and forgetting to do it at all during the winter period. The live stock kept by people who neglect this work usually develops the appearance of neglect. The use of blocks of rock salt, in troughs or mangers erected in either the stable, yard or field, is a good practice that will pay good returns for the expense or effort. Just remember that the stock must have salt from some source, and that the salt that you give them supplies the chlorine essential in the formation of hydrochloric acid in the animals digestive system.

Animals that have been kept without salt for a year become very unthrifty, and animals that are given an overdose of salt do not thrive. Half an ounce a day is about right. It is not a food, but it helps to make the food materials available during the process of digestion.—L. Stevenson, Director of Extension, O. A. C., Guelph.

MILKING IN HOLLAND

Milkers Carefully Trained to be Clean, Kind and Thorough

In Denmark and Holland the milker starts his future profession at the age of 12 or 14 years. He then enjoys the privilege of being allowed to milk such cows as are in the drying off period, although it is done under the severe supervision of his father, who fears that his son or pupil may spoil the animal. I remember well my first lessons in milking on our Holland farm, and how proud I was of being allowed to milk. Before jumping on the stall with my bucket and stool (the Holland stalls are some 2½ to 3 feet above the regular stable floor) the cow was given a little warning of my coming by a couple of caressing words, then the bucket was put between the knees, the bottom on the inside of my right wooden shoe. The two front teats were milked first, and if one of the teats milked out sooner than the other I was inclined to take one of the back teats. This was not allowed because it might result in an unusual development and decreased stimulation of one of the quarters. The two front teats had to be empty before going over to the back teats. These were the preliminary instructions. After being able to milk several drying off cows I was allowed to follow with the second class. This was another important step, and I believe it cost me still more sweat than the first lessons, for now I had to milk rather quickly and with the full hand, as stripping of the teats between thumb and forefinger was never allowed on our farm. Aside from the rather quick milking, we were not allowed to make strippers of our cows. Still there was a third class, and that was the milking of fresh cows and heifers. My father was always milking these, because he had the idea that nobody else but himself could break them. The milking of the fresh cows, thrice a day, was not such a hard job, but to milk those stubborn heifers and never lose one's temper was a difficult job. Instead of milking first two the front quarters empty and afterwards the rear quarters, with the heifer a front and a rear quarter were first milked and afterwards the other two opposite quarters. This was done for the purpose of obtaining an equal development of all four quarters in the future cow.

We were then called fully skilled in milking science, but let me add that we had to receive a good many side instructions, such as not to talk or be noisy during milking, never to be rough to any animal, never to lose one's temper, to milk always one's own cow and in the same order and at the same hours, and so forth.

The best method of paying for the farm is to make it exceptionally productive, and the way to do this is to keep the right kind of dairy cattle thereon.

Sometimes hoeing is hard work, not because the ground is especially weedy, but because the hoe is not set at the right angle or is dull and rusty. Bright sharp tools make the work more easy.

The Human Side

POPULAR INTEREST IN PSYCHOLOGY

King Tut is said to be over 3,400 years old and yet he is a center of interest and real influence today.

The human mind is older than King Tut, but the world's interest in the mind's influence on business, the professions, social relations, and love, is just now at high tide.

Stop at any news-stand, pick up any magazine or daily paper at random, and you will find articles on the "mind."

Publishers are forced to run their print-shops and binderies overtime to supply the demand for books on how to apply psychology to practical, everyday life. Business men are hunting for clear, simple statements of how the mind affects selling and buying and advertising.

Heads of big business are waking up to the fact that the mental attitude of their employees is far more vital to success than the wages they pay them. They are hiring practical psychologists, not to work with their hands, but to suggest ways and means to preserve the proper mental attitude of their customers and to create a wholesome attitude among their workers.

We read in the daily press that among the elite of Washington "small talk" is tabooed. If a woman expects to be up to date socially now she must season her conversation with references to Freud or Brill or some other psychoanalyst. Such words as "neuroses" or "inhibition" or "complex" or "fringe" are the vocabulary for tasty tea-table

So psychology is on the verge of becoming a national fad.

Now what is psychology?

It's talk about the mind.

The world war had many results. Not the least of them is a nation-wide interest in intelligence tests—psychologists trying to tell people how much sense they have. They may not have succeeded, but they have made psychology a household word.

Day by day, we'll try to say what men of note have discovered about the inner life of feeling and thought which makes the Human Side essential to success in business or social life.

Always you are dealing with people who think and feel. Success today not only depends on knowing yourself, but on being able to know the other fellow.

WILL CELEBRATE DISCOVERY WEEK

Commemorate 300th Anniversary Of Arrival Of Etienne Brule.

SALT STE MARIE, Ontario, will celebrate Discovery Week from Aug 4th to 8th, when it will commemorate the 300th anniversary of the arrival of Etienne Brule, one of the most adventurous of the early coureurs de bois, and his companion, Genolle, who in 1622 discovered the St. Mary's Rapids and Lake Superior. An elaborate programme is being prepared, one of the features of which will be the unveiling of a memorial to Brule and Grenolle by Sir Arthur Currie.

Pawiting to give the Sault its ancient Indian name, was a sacred place to the Ojibways long before the advent of the white man. Fathers Jogues and Maymbault, who visited the place in 1641, tells of it having a population of 2,000 Indians. From the Hurons, the French had heard of this great meeting place of the Ojibways and as it presented great possibilities of trade, they were anxious to establish a connection with the tribes which gathered there. Even before 1622. Brule had attempted to reach the Sault, but Indian wars had caused him to turn back. From the time of his visit, however, there was a continual stream of French traders and missionaries.

The memorial of these trail blazers the forerunners of the great company whom in the next two hundred years passed through the Sault and pressed on toward the West in their quest for furs until at last the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific Ocean were reached, will be erected by the Department of Railways and Canals, at the 900 foot ship canal built to overcome the Rapids, which empty Lake Superior to the Lake Huron level. The memorial is one of a serise projected by the Sault Ste. Marie Historical Society, —and at the same time several tablets to men prominent in the early history of the Sault will be unveiled.

Another feature will be a reunion of the returned soldiers of New Ontario, who will gather there from the whole territory between the French River and the Manitoba boundary and the first three days will be devoted largely to military events. On Saturday, Aug. 4, there will be a military field day in the afternoon, with a public meeting in the evening, at which the chief speaker will be Sir Arthur Currie. On Sunday a memorial to those who enlisted in New Ontario and fell during the Great War will be unveiled by Canon Scott, of Quebec, and a memorial to the early missionaries will be unveiled at Sacred Heart Church.

The unveiling of the Brule memorial will take place on Tuesday, to be preceded by a pageant showing the arrival of Brule and Grenolle and their welcome by the Indians of Pawiting. There will be hundreds of people in costume for this event.

On a stage set out in the river, will be produced the Indian play "Hiawatha," based on Longfellow's poem the scenes of which were all laid around the Sault, and, in which the actors will be Ojibways from the Reserve at Garden River, alongside the Sault, descendants of the tribe which welcomed Brule 300 years ago.

The play follows closely the lines of Longfellow's poem and traces the life of the traditionary Indian leader from childhood up. It shows the boy, Hiawatha learning to use the bow and arrow and the man Hiawatha in his courtship of Minnehaha, the great boaster Paupukeewis, the story teller Iago, old Nakomis, and the other family figures. There will be one minor departure from the text The poem tells of the arrival of the first white men, and, in keeping with the occasion Discovery Weeks marks these in the play will be Brule and Grenolle though in the poem they are not identified. The departude of Hiawatha when he sails away into the sunset, with his paddle held aloft and the canoe moving by some mysterious and supernatural propulsion, is an impressive scene.

On Monday evening a "Night Attack," representative of actual front line conditions, will be staged. Several hundred men who actually saw service at the front will take part, and it will undobutedly be the most specular thing of its kind ever undertaken in Canada. The Government is lending its assistance in providing equipment, and 10,000 rounds of blank ammunition will be issued to the troops taking part. The spectacle will show a working party operating in No Man's Land before the front line trenches after night, with a covering party to aid them. They will be discovered at work by the enemy, who will open fire from a battery in an endeavour to wipe them out. Then the working party will retire under cover of artillery fire from their own lines. The general artillery engagement which will follow with the bursting of shells and the use of flares and lights will be a memorable sight. Earlier in the evening there will be manoeuvres showing an attack in open order.

SO THIS IS MEXICO !

CHILDREN HAVE

who spend their rest period in sewing.

There is not much difficulty with children, who have not had an opportunity before coming to the play ground to associate with groups in their play. These children quickly perience and in a few days become as much at ease as any of the others.

Parents Welcome

A noticeable feature was the absence of parents, and when asked about this, Mr. Bolton said, they are heartily welcome. The supervisors would like to have parents come with the children and rest under the shade of the trees while the little ones play.

The grounds are open from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. during which hours the supervisors are in attendance. At 5 o'clock Mr. Bolton removes the swings to prevent accidents during his absence.

As many as 150 children have visited King Edward playground at one time, but the average number playing there is 60. It is believed that if parents will visit the park and see the splendid amusement the young people have and the safety afforded, many more children would attend.

Four Playgrounds

There are three other supervised playgrounds in Peteborough, besides the King Edward Park, They are, Central school, where Miss Fife and Mr. J. Abraham are the supervisors; Queen Mary, where Miss D. Clegg and Mr. R. Doughty are the supervisors; and Queen Alexandra school, where Miss Staunton is supervisor.

NO MONUMENT

Pittsburg Railway have taken action to fill in the Genesee River side to make a roadway for automobiles approaching the proposed ferry. This is the first reported step towards the carrying out of the plan for a convenient car ferry service between Rochester and Cobourg.

Visit Postponed.

Owing to the difficulty of arranging a meeting on so short notice the visit of the Secretary of the Trent Waterway Development Association to the Detroit Yacht Club, arranged for to-day, was postponed until August 3rd, when he will advance the claims of the Trent Waterway as a tourist resort.

CHEESE BOARD CAMPBELLFORD DESIRE CHANGE

Will Ask the Provincial Covernment to Amend the Standard Dairy Act

REFUSED TO SELL

CAMPBELLFORD, July 27. — Members of the Cheese Board by a vote of 5-2, last night, decided to join other boards in a memorial to the Provincial Government asking that the Standard Dairy Act be so amended as to leave its enforcement optional with the various factories. The two salesmen who opposed the motion were Alex. Hume and J. Petherick, both of whom maintained that the new law was responsible for the production of a higher grade of cheese. They argued that the best way to obtain good cheese was to assure a supply of pure milk and that since the Act went into effect more care was being taken of the raw material.

George Van Volkenburg, who represents the Woodland's factory, said that production had fallen off one-third since the Act took effect and that if it were amended or rescinded he was satisfied that the old rate of output could be restored. W. M. Stephens, was also in favour of giving the various factories the right to say whether or not they should opperate under the Act. The motion which was finally submitted and carried was made by Mr. Van Volkenburg and seconded by Mr. Stephens.

President Irvine, before calling for a show of hands, said that some owners of Holstein herds, who were opposed to the Act at the outset were in favour of it now, after a trial.

The discussion started on the receipt of a communication from the Belleville Board, asking for Campbellford's co-operation in this move to have the Act amended. The proposition had been unanimously endorsed in Belleville and it was stated that the Stirling Board had also been unit in favour of a change.

The members who voted in the affirmative agreed with George Ivey one of the buyers that better cheese could be produced if the maker at the factory is permitted to watch the cheese, instead of being called away from his main business to test milk.

Stanwood Refuses To Sell.

Since the opening of the season, the price paid for cheese at Campbellford has averagd 16.65 cents and at Belleville, 16.90, a difference of a quarter of a cent. Last week, the buyers paid one quarter of a cent more at Belleville than they did here For some time there has been dissatisfaction over this difference and this culminated last night when President Petherick of the Stanwood factory refused to board the 45 boxes produced there since the last meeting. Mr. Petherick was authorized to take this course by the patrons of his factory who met recently to discuss the situation and who decided to sell direct to Belleville as Workworth is doing or to dispose of their cheese co-operatively. Other salesmen who were pressed last night and who boarded the output of their factory stated that they would not sell where the price has been higher than that paid in Belleville last Saturday.

The High Bid is 19¾.

The buyers present last night were McCreary, Thompson, Fitzgeral and Ivey. A smile went around the Board when the first bid was 19 cents flat, the highest received his season. This figure was later raised to 19¾ and Mr. Ivey had his choice, taking Brae, Crow Bay, Prince of Wales and Trent Valley. Thompson took Empire, Kimberley, West Seymour and Woodlands and Fitzgerald the balance.

It was decided that when the number of boxes boarded in under 500 that the high bidder be limited to 150, instead of 200.

The number of boxes boarded last night was 421, the following being the output of each factory represented:—Bray, 4; Crow Bay, 35; Empire, 71; I. X. L., 31; Kimberley, 42; New Model, 28; Prince of Wales, 45; Trent Valley, 30; West Seymour, 39; Woodlands, 54.

Approximately 37,8.0 pounds of cheese were boarded and sold last night and this at the price paid represents a turn-over of $7486.27.

The board will meet again on Thursday evening of next week at 7.30.

GREAT PICTURES AT THE ROYAL

Both Comedy and Feature of Exceptionally High Order — Should Not Miss It.

One of the very finest entertainments of the season is now on at the Royal Theatre, and people who appreciate something really good should visit this popular show house to-night or to-morrow. The comedy is of unusually high order, a real laugh from beginning to end.

The feature production "Mighty Lak' a Rose" is a genuine treat of a distinctly better class than is generally seen. Everyone who saw this heart-stirring production last night is enthusiastic in their report, and strongly advise others not to miss it.

The play moves with a swift and dramatic impulse, it is rich in contrasts of life in the upper and lower levels, its characters are etched in bold relief against the background of slum and drawing-room. Carewe has done a fine piece of directing in "Mighty Lak' a Rose," and his players have accomplished much in their delineation of the varied characters of the play. Dorothy Mackaill as Rose Duncan is a splendid choice for the blind violinist. Her frail beauty, golden hair, and wistfulness give to the character an almost spiritual appeal. James Rennie as Jimmy in this characterisation places himself among the foremost leading men on the screen.

Others in the cast are Anders Randolf, Harry Short, Helene Montrose, Sam Hardy, Paul Panzer, Dora Mills Adams, and Jean Bronte, a beautiful and intelligent Scotch collie.

The Labor vote increased 3,460 over that of the last election.

PLAY SOFT-BALL

The soft-ball clash between the Colonial girls and an all-star aggregation picked from the other five teams of the league, will take place Saturday evening on the Riverside Park and not Central Park as announced to-day.

TO RE-EMPLOY MINERS

SYDNEY, N.S. July 27—(Canadian Press).—It is expected that by Friday night 2,500 miners will be re-employed at the Scotia Collieries, the employment office on Thursday having enrolled 1,040 workmen.

CUT FLOWERS

Shave a few thin slices of a mild soap into the water before putting in your cut flowers. They will stay fresh much longer.

Keep a piece of blotting under the cover of your dressing table. Then if you spill anything it will eb absorbed before it has a chance to disfigure the wood beneath.

THE POORHOUSE FOR THIS AUTHOR.

One-Time Popular Dime Novelist Now Living in Poverty.

A few days ago the doors of an Ohio poor house opened and received a mild, quiet, white-haired old gentleman who has probably caused more hair to stand on end, more flesh to creep and more cold chills to scuttle along the spine than any other living author. The aged inmate was no less a person than Thomas C. Harbaugh, the creator of old "Cap' Collier" and the author of 650 dime novels. He is 74 years old, in straitened circumstance, and intending to spend the remainder of his life as a paying guest at the above institution.

Many a middle-aged Peterboro man will recall the joy with which he surreptitiously devoured Harbaugh's thrillers. Their blood curdling titles and frontpieces were familiar in this city thirty and forty years ago. The following are a few of the names of his acknowledged masterpieces, "Arkansas, the Man with the Knife, or, The Queen of Fate's Revenge," "The Condors Killers, or Wild Adventures of the Equator"; "Capt. Velvet's Big Stake, or, the Gold Goths of No Man's Land"; "Silk Hand the Mojave Ferret, or the Marked Man of Arizona"; "Red Pard and Yellow, or, the Nabobs of Centipede"; "Judge Lynch Jr., or, The Boy Vigilante"; "Bill Bravo and His Bear Pards, or The Roughs of the Rockies."

A Stay-at-Home Author.

Born in Fredericksburg, Maryland, in 1849, Harbaugh spent nearly all his life, not in wandering about the world picking up color for his stories, but quietly in Casstown, an unromantic little place in Ohio. Though he did not know Buffalo Bill personally, the dime novelist created his characters and their adventures principally from the depths of his imagination. This shy, retiring citizen of an Ohio town, sitting in his study, allowed his mind to wander across Siberian steppes, Arizona deserts, through tropical jungles, and over Rocky Mountain trails, ruthlessly sacrificing the personages of his melodramas. In his 28 years of strenuous authorship he found it necessary to take thousands of lives. The right always prevailed, but at what a cost. In some of his dime and half-dime novels the hero and heroine were about the only survivors of the original company, and they were badly carved up and perforated.

Had Little Schooling.

Harbaugh had only six monhts schooling in his whole life. His lack of academic training, however, was never noticed by his readers. He was 19 years old when he started to write. Before, he had earned his living clerking in small Ohio towns. Then he turned to dime novel writing and between 1869 and 1897, it is estimated that he wrote 5,000,000 words. Harbaugh's lurid depiction of Indians and desperadoes, and wild animals, earned him a nice income, but he was a free spender, and ere he left his home for the poor house he was glad to have a sale and take $1,000 for curios, etc., he possessed, among them letters he had from Mark Twain. Roosevelt and a host of notables. That $1,000 Harbaugh's style of fiction is as dead as the dodo today, but the old novels are valuable as curiosities of former American literature. New York Public Library has a set and Dr. Frank O'Brien of New York has just sold a set of 1,500 of Harbaugh's and his contemporaries to Huntingtoh the collector. A single copy of "Grizzly Adams," by Dr. Frank Powell, a colleague of Harbaugh's lately sold for $61 and another shocker, translated into seven different languages and of which 450,000 copies were sold, can be found to-day only a museum.

Death of the Dime Novel.

Though its greates exponent, Harbaugh was not the father of the dime novel. "Maleaska, the Indian wife of the White Hunter," written by Mrs. Ann S. Stevens in 1860, is said to have been the first of that variety. It was an enormous success, and dime novels became very popular with the soldiers in the Civil War Today the average bright boy would laugh them to scorn. 30 or 40 years ago, notes a writer in the New York Times, there was a real Wild West. Indians were more than a memory. The frontier alive. The gun-wielding, broncho-bustin gcowboy and the stage coach robber were vivid realties which gave point to the tales. But today the boy finds his romance in the bicycle, the automobile, the movies, the airplane and the radio. He dreams of flying, not potting redskins. He has made Jules Verne the rule rather than the exception, and time has made the Verne sort of thing real.

Trashy But Clean.

Peterboro boys now grizzled can remember that the dime novel was banned in the average household. The youthful reader was apt to get a thrashing if caught dipping into its enthralling pages. Yet the tencent thriller, for all its trashiness, was generally clean. Harbaugh, though he held human life far too cheap, was never guilty of an immodest sentence in all his voluminous works. It is interesting to note that the Beadle Publishing Company, who brought out Harbaugh's novels, were such sticklers for irreproachably moral literature that they demurred at Bret Harte's "Gabriel Conroy." Harte offered his manuscript to the Beadle people and then, changing his mind, asked for its return. They sent it back with a veiled rebuke because he had offered them a work of questionable moral tone. Harte took it to Scribner's who printed it.

Harbaugh who never married, got $250 each for the longer and $150 each for the shorter of his multitudinous stories, of which the dimes averaged 60,000 words and the half-dimes less. But prosperity had been slipping fast when in 1913 he wrote "Kit Carson's Chum" and the last of his long list "The Czar's Spy", written when the great war was under way, found a public which had long outgrown that type of literature.

A U. S. NAVY OF THE FIRST RANK

Must Be Maintained Until Nations Abandon the Use of Armed Forces.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 27. Canadian Press. — President Harding appearing before the Seattle Press Club, after his review to-day in the harbor here of virtually the entire United States battle fleet, declared that until the day comes when the nations abandon the use of armed forces, the United States shall find her assurance in a navy of the first rank.

"We were building two years ago at a rate that would have placed our armed sea power in excess of any other power, but in conviction that armament cost and competition was leading to menacing national burdens, we invited an international conference to fix limitations," the President declared. "We as'd equality with the first rank for ourselves and weer accorded it. Let us hope our Congress with the cordial sanction of the American people will continue that first rank."

COAL STRIKE CLOUD SOOTY BLACK TODAY

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., July 27 —(Canadian Press). — The strike cloud which has hovered over the anthracite wage conference at the Hotel Ambassador since July 6, appeared sooty black when operators and miners, having parted last night, in utter disagreement over the closed shop and the check off met again to decide whether it would be of any use to continue peaceful negotiations. Neither side could see any rift in the cloud, each declaring it was steadfast in the attitude which led to the break in the conference, and that whatever concession might be made to avert the collapse of negotiation, and the threatened strike in September, would have to come from the other side. What the next development might be in the event of the premature adjournment of these conferences neither side would predict. Both declined to comment on the possibility of Federal intervention. The miners have already announced they do not propose to arbitrate.

NO LAW AGAINST LAUGHING AT COP

CHICAGO, July 27.—Among the out door amusements legally permissible in Chicago is that of laughing uproariously when some one shies a brick, or several at a village constable.

Charles Bethke, of Dolton, Ill., was fiend $10 and costs, July 17, 1920, for laughing when some merry-maker beaned the Dolton constable. The man who threw the brick essaped and when the panting limb of the law returned from a hot chase boiling over with rage and his exertions, he found Bethke leaning over the town water plug, in paroxysms of laughter, and haled him to the town hoosegow. The fine was slaped on the next day but Bethke appealed the case.

Judge David reversed Tuesday the desicion of the justice of the peace and ruled that there was no law against laughing.

OLD STRAW HAT.

To make a black straw hat look as bright and glossy as it did when you bought it, smear a little butter on an old piece of velvet and rub the hat with it. Leave the butter on for about 15 minutes, then polish with a dry piece of velvet.

The wings of the house-fly beat about 800 times a second, and this carries the fly a distance of 25 feet.

JAZZY NOTE IN DRESS

By MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK, July 26.—"Introduce the jazz note into your costume if you wish to be smart," says Tokio, one of the most original fashion designers in New York.

"Get off the key occasionally and break up the customary rhythms of blouse, skirt and hat if you wish to be distintcly 1923," she advises.

"Consistency may be a jewel, but it is no longer a fashionable one. If you can just start a little discussion between your gown and your earrings, or estrange your hat and costume, and do it subtly, artistically and provocatively, you have the makings of a sartorial success."

Tokio herself, who has another name, Powell (but no one ever uses it), is one of the most successful dressers and successful business women of the metropolis.

From portrait painter, she turned into a fashion designer. The first things she designed were for the Princeton Triangle Club shows when she was living in Princeton.

With the Best.

They were so enthusiastically received she decided to plunge right in on a big scale. So she rented and equipped a shop in New York right in the swagger Fifties, among all the smart shops that boast they carry nothing but importations, and went to work

She announced frankly she had never been to Paris, and never expected to go there for her styles, that she wasn't influenced by them in the least. But she was tremendously interested in the American woman.

And now her American styles are so popular she can't fill all the orders she gets.

"Non-conformity is my motto, because the only way to be distinctive is to be different, and to be different you must have some ideas of your own that run counter to Paris.

"The American girl is unlike every other girl, because she is a composite type, and she should show this in her clothes.

What's Ahead.

"This season, elegance will be the keynote of styles, I believe. The flapper has turned into a lady. We are going to see ruffled frocks that lie on the floor when you sit down, and have yards and yards of cloth in them. They will require large hats, French heels and jewelry.

"Skirts will be long generally, but the length should always be determined by the height and general build of the wearer, never by rule. Waistlines will go back to normal, just for the novelty of it.

"But the smart woman will observe no rules. She will wear earrings with her sport suit, if it pleases her, and a floppy hat with a tailored suit if it seems right.

"In no respect have women gained their rights so completely as in the world of fashion."

QUIET TALKS

THE BOOK OF GOD

There is something tangible about a book. You handle it. You know it by the feel. It's in plain print, black on white, words you know the meaning of without stopping to think into them. If it's a thoughtful worthy book you read and muse. And you are changed, maybe imperceptibly, but really quite radically.

Now, there is one outstanding book. It stands quite by itself. In its claim for itself, its power among men, its history, the place commonly given it, its distinctive quality of inspiration, even in the enemies it has made, it stands quite alone.

It is the old Book of God. It is the one book to which by common consent that little word "the" belongs, the Book. It was inspired. It is inspired. That simply means the breath of God was in it, and is. His Spirit was in the men who wrote, guiding, controlling, inspiriting, a supernatural touch through the human natural medium.

It is a book like any other, paper, print, stitching, plain words. Its contents must be got through reading and thinking, like any other book. It is unlike every other book in this, there's a living Presence in it.

It reaches into your thoughts. It searches the innermost recesses of your spirit. It touches deftly, unmistakably, your motives and purposes. It lays bare to your eye the inner hidden things.

And there's a distinct touch of life to it. It quickens brain and thought and the part of you that chooses. There's a rugged strength now in your decision that breaks habit, and shapes new ones.

It's a mother of books. It contains the oldest authentic history. All the roots of modern jurisprudence run down into the Mosaic code. Political economy and moral philosophy find their basic principles here. Its laws of sanitation, of hygiene, of diet, and of business ethics, originating here, are accepted standards.

It is not a scientific book. Yet its statements never conflict with the latest findings of science. Its ideals of life, personal, national and racial, can be found nowhere else except as inspired by its pages. Its literature, its live stories, its biographies, are unapproached. It contains the key to the intricate tangle in which the world finds itself today, the one key, the master key.

There's a fine modesty in its pages, and yet the most stupendous claims for itself. It claims to be a revelation from God himself. It tells what reason cannot reason out. True reasoning and this revelation are fellows, working together to reach full knowledge It reveals the past, otherwise unknown, and God's purposes, and plans for the future, that otherwise could not be known.

It's a singularly honest book. It tells with frank bluntness the glaring moral failings of the men God used. He had to use some one. He got the best there was. He sternly rebuked them, and plainly points out their moral breaks.

This book is the moral standard of life. And morals are the throbbing heart-beat of life. There must be a standard, or all life goes askew. A yard-stick for cloth, a foot-rule for timber, a sixteen-ounce bit of metal for sugar, truthfulness in speech, honesty in trade, a recognized propriety in cultured circles, a Gray's anatomy for physicians, a Blackstone for lawyers, and God's Book for strong winsome life and rest of heart.

The scholarship of the nations, and of the ages, has been devoted to the task of giving us this Book in our mother tongue, as to no other task. Its utter dependability from the scholarly standpoint is beyond question. The variations of translations in various versions have to do with incidentals, important incidentals, but never with vital things.

The modern English and American Revisions have the advantage of the most recently found manuscripts, the latest scholarship, and the paragraphed printing. But one can rest content that the old common version is the most remarkable bit of translation ever done. In it we have the very Word of God, in plain English, a sufficient guide for daily life.

And it is not a big book. Familiarity with its pages by daily touch makes that clear. A daily habit, a settled method of thinking of it as one book, and reading it from opening page on, as a story, ignoring for the time being, chapter and verse, gives a fascination to its pages. And the poetical books and prophetical will fit into the story-part as drawers into a well-made bureau, as will Paul's letters and the others, into Dr. Luke's story of The Acts.

The practical key to this Book is simply this, reading it habitually, quietly, with mind alert, simply reading it, giving one's self up to it for a bit of time daily, and yielding the consent of one's life to its teachings and spirit. The famous artist kept the bright colored stones always in sight to tone up his sense of colors. The sailor keeps his eye constantly on compass and chart.

That's the thing here. Reading it habitually tones up the moral sense, clears the vision, steadies the feet, poises the judgment, stiffens the will, gentles the spirit, comforts the heart, quiets the nerves, and sets the day's work to music.

But, in sharpest contrast with all other books, it makes you face a personal decision. There's no personal appeal in Napoleon or Cromwell. No decision presses in. But here the Man of the Book looks into your face. He calls you to choose. And you do, this way or that. You are never again the man you were.

MISS LILLIAN WALD New York settlement worker in an interview: "The best women do not get sentimental any more about their ideals—they make them practical working forces."

THE OLD GARDENER SAYS:

The average garden maker is not familiar with endive but will find it easy to grow and a very good salad plant. As it matures in 50 or 60 days seeds can be planted now with full expectation of getting a good crop before cold weather comes on. For that matter endive can be kept along late in the fall by covering the plants with hay or straw the curly or fringed leaved kind should be chosen in preference to the Bavarian endive which is better adapted for soups than salads.

NEW CULT CREATED BY RUSSIAN DUKE HIDING IN PARIS.

"Union of Souls" Is New Religion Founded By the Father-in-Law of Man Who Killed Rasputin.

The Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovitch, who married the late Czar's sister, Grand Duchess Xenia, Alexandrevna, and whose son-in-law, Yussupoff, killed the monk Rasputin, suddenly has burst forth in Paris as the founder of a new religion called the Union of Souls.

The cult will be without priests, without churches, and will be open to adherents of all existing creeds, the only requirement being that they shall think good thoughts together and believe that beauty and love will rule them.

"We shall guide ourselves," says the Grand Duke's manifesto, "by exactly the same directing thought, which is that we are all sisters and brothers in one union, and will have to send mentally our souls toward the spiritual place, from which they will return to our earthly plane strengthened by our helpers on superior levels, thus affecting those who have lost their way to truth."

The Grand Duke has been living in Paris with his family since 1918, when he escaped from Bolsheviks in the Crimea by the intervention of a Bolshevik leader whom he had captivated by his philosophy. Before that he was the leader of a spiritual cult in Petrograd. With his family, including the Dowager Czarina and the Grand Duke Nicholas' family, their Crimean villa was surrounded, and they were virtually the prisoners of the Bolsheviks for six months, especting every day to be massacred, as were the Czar and his family.

Then he won over one of the Red captains, who offered to save the family by stirring up a dispute between two factions as to which should have the privilege of dealing the death blows. This argument continued till the Allies came, and the Royal personages escaped to France aboard a British cruiser.

The Grand Duke has passed most of his time since then in Paris engaged in deep meditation and spiritual research, and he is confident now that the time has come to launch the Union of Souls. He asks all those who read his manifesto and who wish to become members to address him at once in writing, directing their thoughts to his residence at No. 10 Rue Henri Marin, Paris.

"This union," reads the ducal manifesto, "will be nothing material in itself. It is a purely spiritual union, and every one of you who would decide to join us most believe in God naturally and follow the belief in the immortality of our souls.

"Women will play a leading part in the renovation and purification of humanity. Our union will have no president, no headquarters, nor any organisation, and there is no need for any money to be paid. With the help of our sane prayers and thoughts contact between our souls and the souls of those who pass into other worlds will be complete."

Honey of Hell Is Name Given Lava.

Some three months ago, on a cloudless, moonlit night, I looked over from Taormina to Etna, majestic and snow-capped, across the intervening valleys. My host, an Italian colonel and a Sicilian native, laughed when I told him how I wished I might see an eruption, writes a contributor to the London Daily Express.

"Have you ever spilled a jar of honey?" he asked. "Though the picture is inadequate, I can find no better to describe the downward flow of lava." The peasants call it "the honey of hell." It comes down slowly, stickily, relentlessly, and piles into a great wave until the pressure behind breaks the surface tension, and the molten streams leaps forward many yards to gather in a fresh cumulus.

Fortunately, with the exception of Catania, a city thrice destroyed and thrice rebuilt, there are no big towns within the danger zone of Etna in activity. The railway from Catania runs east and then north to Messina, closely following the coast and generally very little above sea level. The line is flanked on either hand by seemingly endless lemon groves, but on the landward side the land rises sharply, sometimes precipitately, toward the foothills of the great volcano.

The Sicilian peasant who lives under the shawod of Etna is in large measure illiterate and grossly superstitious. He has an ingrained distrust of foreigners, intensely proud, a lover of music and sunlight and pleasant indolence, and a dangerous and unforgiving enemy once his sense of personal or traditional honor is touched.

The vendetta, although officially a thing of the past, still exists, and when a slayer is occasionally brought to book, the hands of justice are tied by the resolute secrecy of his fellow islanders, even including the friends and relatives of the victim.

THE LATEST RAILWAY COACHES

The safety of modern railway travel is due in no small measure to the remarkable strength of construction realised in the rolling stock. In the early days of railways, a gentleman's private coach was simply lashed on to an open railway truck, and no doubt it would have been put straight on the rails if it had had flanged wheels of correct gauge. The modern railway carriage, however, is a specially constructed vehicle of such strength that, even in the worst collisions, only a part of the train is damaged. British railways have always been noted for the solidity and comfort of their coaches and the high standard which they have established has been raised yet higher by some new express trains recently built in one of the principal British locomotive works. The coaches in these trains are of the corridor-compartment type and, apart from the incorporation of improvements in appearance and accommodation, they embody a number of technical features securing increased strength and steadiness of running. Another point of interest is the special provision made so that coaches with automatic couplers can be used with others having screw couplings and side buffers. By this and other devices the latest type of British coach can be used in conjunction with other rolling stock of older design.

Interesting Thoughts of Interesting People

HENRY DEZMAN, in Schribner's Magazine:. Any student of politics knows how imperfectly the professions of faith of human movements symbolize the actual impulses that—for a very large part unconsciously—animate them. A man may profess love of his neighbor, although at heart he feels driven to hate him. Very often even, his profession of love will be the louder as his temptation to hate grows stronger. This does not necessarily make a hypocrite of him; he may be deceiving nobody but himself; he may be trying to strengthen his higher impulses against the lower ones that contradict it. If that be true of individuals, how much more true is it bound to be of groups of men united by common political views or religious beliefs What a field for every kind of deception, where so many different interests and temperaments are involved, where the emotionalist confronts the strategist, and the cunning of the wire-puller meets the candor of the devotee "

WILL IRWIN, in an essay: "Men are as much influenced by their professions as their races. She may undertake both, but, in my observation, if one is to suffer, she generally lets the career side suffer before her home duties."

NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER, president of Columbia University, in an address: "It is hard to bring one's self to believe that liberty has lost its hold, or that a false and spurious equality contradicting every natural law, making progress impossible or only temporary at best, can long lure intelligent men from liberty's path. The abuses of liberty are severe and innumerable. The economic injustices that have not yet been removed are many and apparent. The forms of equality dependent upon true liberty that have not yet been sufficiently established are easy to name. But surely the remedy is not to be found in tearing down the cornerstone of the political fabric, but rather in first clearing away obstructions and debris, and then in building more thoughtfully, more wisely, and more patiently upon it."

THE HALF SOCK

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 16 (United Press).—

Said the little black shoe
To the little black sock
"Our marital bliss
Has sure struck a rock."

It looks as though the black shoe and the black stocking were permanently divorced. One never sees them together nowadays at smart social gatherings. Dame Fashion, who is a wise old gossip says that the black patent shoe has fallen for the charms of the blond stocking.

Pale grays, sand, mauve, cinnamon and flesh stockings are worn so generally nowadays that when one wears a black stocking one is marked as old fashioned. Even red, blue and green shoes favor these pale stockings in preference to matching shades. Gray and tan shoes, however, are worn with matching shades of hosiery. The white stocking is doing its best to keep up with the light colored hosiery by using embroidered and open-worked clocks.

The Half-sock Appears

The warm weather has made the half-sock more popular than ever this summer. The half sock is far cooler than the stocking and with the double elastic band about the top it is held securely about the calf of the leg, thus doing away with the need of garters. This year we find them in the sheerest of silk for about one-third of the price of long stockings of the same material.

Half-socks are no longer considered a flapper style, but a common sense style for hot weather to be worn by matrons as well as by girls.

White hats are being worn about town in increasing numbers. White maline draped turbans are worn for evening wear with white frocks. For street wear one sees both large and small hats of white horsehair.

Chinese embroideries are seen on many of the newest of fall frocks. Mandarin styles are said to be gaining in popularity while the Egyptian tendencies are fast disappearing.

* * *

Younger Misses are wearing bouffant organdies for evening wear over slips of contrasting shades of organdy. Most of these frocks are sleeveless with rounding necks and long slender bodices. Many of them are very simple having no trimming save a narrow velvet sash of matching shade.

* * *

Paris advocates the hip length fur cape for fall. It will be worn both as a separate garment and as a three-piece costume combination.

* * *

A favorite silhouette at the French races is the three-tiered taffeta frock with the sleeveless, snug-fitting bodice which the off-the-shoulder neckline. The three tiers which form the skirt are bordered in bands of wide velvet ribbon. Wide bracelets which fit snugly about the wrists and short throat necklaces are worn with frocks of this type.

Lingerie frocks and frocks of ecru lace are worn over changeable taffeta slips at the smart club houses about New York these warm afternoons. Rose and yellow are popular shades for these underslips and the sash which accompanies the lingerie frocks usually matches the shade of the slip.

FLINT INSTRUMENTS 1,500 YEARS OLD.

Researches carried out in the Central American Republic of Guatemala by Mr. T. W. F. Gann, Reader in Central American Archaeology at Liverpool University, have resulted in the discovery of a number of mysterious first instruments. Excavations were made amid the ruins of a small temple situated at the summit of a mound near Quirigua. This temple was one of those built by the ancient Maya people of Central America, who, according to the latest theory, derived their civilization from Egypt, and passed across the Pacific some 2,000 or more years ago. Twenty-six beautifully chipped, eccentrically shaped flint instruments were discovered. One of the finest is 11 ins. long, chipped with exquisite delicacy and precision from dark brown flint' What it is for no one yet knows. No other objects were found, but the date of the flints was closely fixed by a steel or upright stone slab, erected near the mound. This bore in Maya hieroglyphics the date of "Katun 14, 9th cycle," corresponding to 452 A.D. of our era.

Similar Maya flints have been previously discovered throughout the area of Maya civilization, which extended from Mexico to Honduras. Possibly they were used in the temples for ceremonial purposes only. Some of them had what appears to be a rough handle for hafting.—Exchange.

FRESH MEAT.

Never put your fresh meat directly on the ice in the paper in which you purchased it. Lay it on a porcelain dish.

SALADS ARE REFRESHING

"To remember a good dinner is to remember a good salad," some one has said.

What are the qualities which go to the making of such a salad? One rule is that all the salad plants or vegetables used must be crisp, fresh and cold.

For a dinner salad a French dressing should be used, never a mayonnaise, unless it be a simple dinner and the salad is to be served as a separate course. A salad of cucumbers, tomatoes or plain lettuce is much more appetizing if served with the meat or fish.

Probably all salads depend more on the seasonings than on anything else. Three measures of oil and one measure of vinegar or lemon juice is a good proportion for the average taste. For seasonings, salt, pepper, mustard, paprika, sugar and a little onion if the dressing is to be used on vegetables or plain salad plants. A clove or bean of garlic left in the dressing for several hours and removed before the dressing is served gives a flavor much to be desired.

Fruit Suggestions

For fruit salads omit the onion and mustard. Very good combinations of fruit and vetgetables may be made, such as tomatoes and pineapple, peppers and grapefruit, celery and apple, peaches and beets.

Sandwiches are rapidly growing in favor for lunch or supper, and are made sufficiently hearty to serve as a main course. A meat sandwich and a vegetable salad, with a sweet or some fruit for dessert, make a satisfactory meal.

Slices of cheese, cold chicken, ham or pork may be the filling. Then toast the sandwich quickly and serve on a plate with pickles, olives or a lettuce, tomato or cucumber salad.

COMBINATIONS

Cold corned beef and cole-slaw, cold tongue and sliced tomatoes, cold pork and sliced onions, all make excellent sandwiches.

The chopped cabbage may be mixed with mayonnaise or cooked dressing and the tomatoes dipped in French dressing, if one does not care for the mayonnaise.

Instead of toasting the sandwich, occasionally fry it in butter, just enough to give a golden brown color.

For "hikers," a sandwich made of cold baked beans, mashed and seasoned with ketchup or chili sauce, with sliced pickles, between buttered brown bread slices, is one which will "stand by."

SALMON AND MAYONNAISE

For a warm night, cold fish such as salmon, makes a delicious and satisfying main dish.

For a family of six or eight, buy a piece of salmon weighing two or three pounds. Place in two quarts cold water to which has been added a tablespoon vinegar, half a tablespoon salt, one small sliced onion and a sprig of parsley. Bring quickly to the boil, then simmer until salmon comes away easily from the bone.

Remove from water, take out bones and remove skin. Chill, and at serving time, cover with mayonaise, and garnish with cold cooked green peas which have been dressed with oil, vinegar, pepper and salt.

Note:—If mayonnaise is not enjoyed by the family, a cooked dressing may be used instead.

Repeat, using the remaining third of butter. Roll out to fit two small, or one large plate. Place the paste on outside of plate, prick with a fork and bake. Fill with lemon filling, cover with meringue and bake eight minutes.

A Worth-while Reputation

THE head of one of this country's great manufacturing institutions says:

"The man who builds and the man who buys are both beneficiaries of reputation. To the one it is a continuous spur and incentive —to the other, the strongest of all guarantees that what he buys is worthy".

Patronize the manufacturer or merchant who has a reputation for honesty and fair dealing. Such motives must actuate the consistent advertiser. The man who invests real money in building a reputation for himself and his merchandise cannot afford to risk any of it by taking unfair advantage of his customers He must retain the goodwill of the buying public. Without this, his business cannot succeed.

Every time he advertises he puts his reputation in your hands. His products or the wares he has for sale must make good. His service must be as advertised.

That is why it pays to read the advertisements, to deal with advertisers and to buy advertised goods.

Yes, is worth your while to read the advertisements.

PACKERS DOWNED BY THE WOOLLENS

League Game At The Oval Last Evening Ended With The Score 6 To 2.

The Woollens defeated the Packers to the tune of 6 goals to 2 in a league game at the Oval last evening. Curtis gave a good display of goal-keeping with only eight men in front of him. The Woollens played with nine men.

Both goals were visited in the early stages. Chambers was called upon to clear from Ted Hotston. Reid punted up the field to Mitchell who evaded Hotson to put the ball far out of the reach of Curtis. A few minutes afterwards James Shaw drew out the defence and passed across to the centre. Curtis ran to meet the ball but Mitchell met it first to score after 15 minutes. Even play followed until Curtis put through his own goal in attempting to stop a rising shot from Lauchlan. Packers transfered the ball into Woollens area but their finishing was always sky-high. Crow and Lauchlan initiated close combination on the right wing that left the inside man open to make it three. From 20 yards out James Shaw placed a beauty to the foot of Mitchell for the fifth goal just before half time. Woollens 5. Packers 0.

The team turned around after a few minutes rest. Packers made straight for Chambers to open their scoring. A break away by Woollens' forwards ended in Curtis being beat for the sixth time. The Packers came right back again through the effort of Harry Hotson who worked his way close in on Chambers and gave him no chance to save a low ground shot. Many a time it was a matter of goal-keepers versus forwards in the goal-area until the finish. There was no further scoring. Woollens 6, Packers 2.

Woollens—Chambers, goal; Reid and Cridland, backs; Roberts and Gaskill, half backs; Lauchlan, Crowe, Mitchell and Shaw, forwards.

C.P.C.—Curtis, goal; "Wag" Hotson and Underwood, backs; H. Hotson, Lazenby, J. Shaw, Ted Hotson and A. N. Other forwards.

Referee—J. Clark.

Evans and Sweetser Will Battle To-Day.

CLEVELAND, O., July 27.—(Canadian Press)—Chick Evans, of Chicago, defending champion, will meet Jess Sweetser, of New York, National Champion, and Hamilton Gardner of Buffalo, will play Joe Wells of East Liverpool, Ohio, formerly West Virginia and Ohio champion, today in the semi-finals of the Western Golf Championship at Mayfield Country Club, as a result of yesterday's rounds.

It will be a renewal of the recent battle at Brookline between Evans and Sweetser, the Yale student having won his title in that tilt from Evans, 3 to 2. Sweetser outplayed Evans during the medal rounds of the present meet, but in the mattch play thus far the Chicagoan has been playing better golf than his youthful opponent.

LAKEVIEWS HELD INTERMEDIATES

Junior Team Outhit Ontario Champions And Held Them To 5 To 4 Score Last Evening.

The Lakeviews gave the C.G.E. a great run for the money last evening and it looked at times as if the Juniors might hand the Intermediates a trimming. As it was the score was very close the final count being 5 to 4 in favor of the Electricians. The Lakeviews outhit the Intermediate champions three to one but their wallops were kept too scattered to be effective while the C.G.E. bunched three of their four hits in the third frame for three runs and the other, a three bagger, put Rose in a position to score on an infield out .Putting their hits in where they would do the most good was what won the game for them. Though the Juniors had five errors checked up against them only one figured in the runs but it allowed four runs to score for the C.G.E. came through with three hits and a walk after the side should have been retired.

Though McPherson was touched for twelve hits they were scattered through every inning and he was at his best with men on the bases. When the runways were occupied his team mates also rose to the occasion and gave him absolutely air tight support. The Lakeviews managed to cram four hits into the fifth frame sending three runs home 'Red' Whitlow's single in this frame was one of the most timely hits of the game for it sent two runners home. Two hits in the sixth, one of them going for two sacks, sent the other run in.

L. LeBarr and Rose shared the batting honors of the day with a triple and single each. Moore and Collins were also swinging a fairly wicked bat with a double and a single each.

"Red" Whitlow collected most of the hard luck of the game. In the first inning a hard hit ball landed in front of the plate, bounced back hitting him in the face. Four of his teeth were broken but he stayed in the game.

KIWANIANS LOST WARNE CUP FINAL BY A SUDDEN REVERSE OF LAST END

Freeman and Fox Of Peterborough Won Scotch Doubles From Toronto Team in Sensational Windup Game Last Night.

Good Sportsmanship.

Bill DeLany's Cobourg rink snatched victory from Jack McKone's Kiwanians with a final five-end when he was down four and apparently beaten in the deciding game of the Warne Cup competition of the bowling tournament yesterday afternoon, winning by the score of 15-14, and making sure that one of the major trophies would go out of town.

It was the high light of the day's bowling, but for sustained, concentrated excitement it had nothing on the final in the Scotch doubles last night which Harold Freeman and Reg Fox of the Peterboro club won from Eddie Warren and Frank Brower of the Queen City club, Toronto, by the score of 18-16 in a garrison finish that netted six shots, four of them counting on the last end.

Most of the greens were packed with doubles during the afternoon session while the Warne Cup finals were in progress, and there were more attraction for the gallery of spectators than a three-ringed circus for a pop-eyed school boy. Stalwarts of the tournament tarried for the doubles, and there was more good bowling than could be possibly followed. Tom Kerr and L. Broadbent, side-kicks of Warren and Brower in the Queen City delegation, gave Freeman and Fox a warm battle in the third round during the afternoon. It wound up with 8-6 on the score board for the Peterboro pair, but the game went about twenty ends. Kerr was on the defensive and to stave off a beating killed at least four ends in the approved expedient of peppering the Jack. Fox finally emerged with that game after a brilliant end, and ran into another close tussle with the Liberty rink of Belleville.

In the evning Brower and Fox ran along for ten ends on almost even terms. With the score 9-8 against him Fox got four in the next two frames with a one and three, but the Toronto pair came right back for seven with a two and five, and with two ends to go was leading by 16-12.

On the fourteenth end Fox killed two before that round was decided by Brewer clapping five on the Peterboro man after raising the "Kitty", following it through for four and then drawing in with his last bowl, while Fox overdrew with his.

Freeman and Fox got back two on the next, and on the final end Fox smashed up the first layout, and starting all over again laid four around the button. While the gallery expected Brower to bus the end, the Queen City man elected to draw with his four bowls. Three of them failed to change the set up and his last bowl, also a draw, went through, missing by an inch or so, and it was all over with the clock pointing to 11.30, and Warren due to go back on the lawn for his game in the singles.

The score by ends was:

Fox ..... x31xx13xxx13xx24—18
Brower ..... 1xx12xx221xxx25xx—16

The scores in the third round of the Doubles were:

Belleville	Belleville

The Warne Cup Final.

The personnel of the Warne Cup finalists was:

Kiwanis	Cobourg
W. Stocker	T. J. Watson
S. Gordon	Joe Bennet
J. Marshall	T. Mitchell
J. McKone—14	W. DeLany—15

Socre by ends:

McKone ..... 100020303300100—14
DeLany ..... 012101010010025—15

Rev. O. Lloyd presented the Warne Cup and the four individual silver cups to DeLany and his rink, and Herb Martin presented to the Kiwanians four silve pie plates for the runners-up. And the ladies came through with a special treat for the winners who shared it with their contestants in a pleasant review of the game.

DeLany Hung On.

With six shots to the good and only two ends to go, the Kiwanians appeared to be out of reach, but DeLany is as persistent in bowling as in curling and is a dangerous opponent at any stage. He cut down the gap to four shots on the fifteenth end, and when the Kiwanians faltered or eased up at the last step to the trophy DeLany took advantage of the chance and followed up by raising the Jack into a nest of his own bowls for a five end that left the Kiwanis supporters dazed, so quickly had the reverse happened.

Jack McKone played in top form throughout the final game as well as through the rest of the series. And apart from his skill he gave a fine exhibition of sportsmanship. On the last end he refused to measure the distance of a couple of bowls from the tee, and consistently declined to apply the Vernier scale method of deciding ends against the judgment of the eye.

The Kiwanis rink not only provided fun and a surprising degree of skill throughout the games, but they also proved themselves true sportsmen, and that comment is offered with no reflection whatever upon the bowling fraternity as represented in the tournament.

KINGSTON WILL MAKE BIG BID FOR WIN HERE

To-Morrow's Game at Riverside Park will Attract Biggest Crowd Of Year.

After playing three games "on the road" during which they twice defeated their old rivals the Belleville team, the Petes return to Riverside Park tomorrow and clash with the Kingston Ponies in their first league game at home for several weeks.

Their good work away from home has put them in a nice position to win the second half honors and should earn them the biggest crowd of the season and a hearty reception from the fans tomorrow when they tackle Kingston. The game gets under way at 3 o'clock.

The Ponies are still very much in the running. They won from Cobourg Wednesday while the Petes were bumping Belleville and as a result are tied for second place with the Grand Trunks, and just a game behind the leaders. That means that a victory for "Flat" Walsh's Limestone athletes here tomorrow would put them on even terms with the Petes and perhaps precipitate a three-cornered tie. The last development hinging of course on the result of the Belleville-Cobourg game. The Kingston crew realize that they have to win to have a chance for the title and are counting on Gallagher who has had a week's rest, to turn the trick. Heckman will do the gunning for the home talent and it should be a real battle.

REALM OF SPORT AT CAMPBELLFORD

Leaside Lacrosse Team Bids For Exhibition Game.—New Golf Links

CAMPBELLFORD, July 27—Dan Clapper of the Leaside Lacrosse team, Toronto, has written R. H. Cole asking that an exhibition be arranged in Campbellford. Mr. Clapper says he recognized the fact that this town has no intermediate team this year, but he is satisfied it would be an easy matter to pick up a team that would make a creditable showing.

The Leasides have finished in their group and have won every game played this season. No arrangements have yet been made for the play-off and the Leasides are anxious to keep up their training by playing a number of exhibition games in the meantime.

Tendler May Not Get His Share Of The Gate.

NEW YORK, July 27, (Canadian Press). — An attachment against Lew Tendler's share of the receipts from his fight with Benny Leonard last Monday night for the lightweight title, was issued yesterday in the Supreme Court to Daniel Ryweck, of Brooklyn, who has sued to recover $7,500 from the pugilist.

Ryweck's suit is an outgrowth of the first Tendler-Leonard bout a year ago at Boyle's Thirty Acres. He claimed he paid Phil. Glassman, Tendler's manager, $7,500 for a share in profits of motion pictures taken of the contest.

Such profits failed to materialize Ryweck charged, despite Glassman's representations.

Ryweck also alleged he did considerable publicity work for Tendler.

CHICAGO, July 27 (Canadian Press). — Chicago came from behind yesterday, and by staging a ninth-inning rally defeated New York, 11 to 10, in the first game of the series. It was the first game of the season which Bill Ryan lost, and he pitched only two balls. The game was one of the wildest played here in some time, thirty-two men participating. After the hitting of Emil Meusel, who drove in seven runs, gave the world's champions a good lead, the Giant pitchers became wild, one inning seeing three hurlers on the mound. Score:

PITTSBURGH, July 27 (Canadian Press). — The Pirates won their first extra inning game of the season yesterday when Traynor hit a home run in the twelfth inning, after two were out, giving Pittsburgh the edge over Boston by a score of 8 to 7.

After the locals had tied the score in the ninth inning, the Braves pushed a runner across in the tenth on a double by McInnis and Ford's single, but the Pirates again evened the count in their half on hits by Bigbee, Maranville and Grimm.

Traynor got his homer when Felix tried to make a shoestring catch of his low liner, but the ball passed him and rolled to the fence. Score:

Girls Will Play Fast Ball Game

One of the best Girls' Baseball games seen here in some time is scheduled for to-morrow evening when the Colonial Weavers, winners of the first half of the schedule, will meet a picked team of girls chosen from the other five teams of the league. The Colonial girls have a pretty smooth working team and while they will have the advantage of having played together all season they will have to work their hardest if they are to obtain a victory over the fast all star aggregation that will be put on the field against them.

Three girls will be chosen from each of the other five teams. This will give the manager of the All Star team fifteen to choose from and will insure that each team is represented by its very best talent.

The game is scheduled for 6:30 o'clock and will be played in Central Park. No admission is to be charged, but a collection will be taken during the game, the proceeds of which will be donated to the Peterborough Health Association.

DUNDEE WINS BACK TITLE FOR STATES

Battered His Way to Victory Over Criqui in Fifteen Rounds.

NEW YORK, July 27.—(Canadian Press).—Feather-wieght Championship of the world, in French hands for less than two months, came back to the United States last night, when Johnny Dundee, the grizzled Italian-American veteran, battered his way to victory over Eugeue Criqie, the gallant ex-ploilu, in fifteen round struggle that was never in doubt from start to finish.

Dundee, rising to the greatest heights of his long and embattled carer, won decisively all the way, but only in face of a "game and courageous stand of his opponent that will go down among the most thrilling in prize ring history.

The judges decision, crowning Dundee as new tilte holder, was drowned in a wild outburst of cheering but in defeat the little Frenchman was accorded an ovation that rang out above even that for the victor.

Criqui's was a hopeless battle from the first round. Floored for a count of nine hardly before the initial bell had sounded, he somehow managed to weather the storm, only to be knocked down twice, once for a count of seven and again for nine seconds in the second round. It seemed that Dundee had a knockout within his grasp, but try as furiously as he could, he could not swing over a finishing blow.

NEW MANAGER FOR KINGSTON BALL TEAM

John Derry Succeeds Jas. F. Walsh. — A Good Sport.

KINGSTON, July 27.—(Special).—It is officially announced today, that John Derry, of the firm of Walsh and Derry tailors, has been appointed manager of the Kingston team in the Central Ontario League. James "Flat" Walsh has been compelled to give up the leadership owing to the fact that he is leaving the city. Owing to a previous engagement Mr. Derry will not be able to accompany the team to Peterborough on Saturday.

"Jack" Derry has had a long and honorable connection with sport in this city and district. For many years a leading player on the old-time Tripp. Links in the days when championships came their way with great regularity, and still later with the Ponies. He established a reputation for clean honest sportsmanship whicl. he has sustained through his later connection with baseball and in the other sports in which he has taken part.

He is well known as a bowler of great ability. He has always been keenly interested in curling and no keener hockey fan can be found in this district. Last winter he was responsible for the organization of the Bay of Quinte Hockey League, which had a great run of success and he was at that time manager of the Napanee team. which made a splendid showing. He also as active in promoting baseball in Napanee during his residence there, for some years, and the team of that town is now reaping the benefit of his long experience, since it is leading in the Lennox group of the L. & A. League, with great chances of winning out.

With this record behind him, it seems a certainty that in appointing him manager of the team, the "Big Four" executive has done well.

At the same time the executive feels that the services of "Flat" Walsh were of a high order, and regret his departure from the city. To him. and to those who preceded him in the management. they owe much and with their experience to guide the new head, and with the sincere co-operation of every player, Manager Derry will be able to make a splendid showing.

LEAFS HEAVER FANS SIXTEEN

Maple Leafs made it eight straight wins in the Juvenile series by defeating Lock Works last evening by the score of 10 to 2. "Chuck" Bradley, fanned sixteen batsmen and allowed four hits, one a double over the fence by Scarce, that scored two Lockmakers. Luck was with the Leafs last night, two of the opposition being put out when hit by batted balls.

Griggin in right field for Lock Works contributed the big fielding play of the contest when he made a pretty running catch on Hall's long fly in the seventh. Bradley and Hall were the long distance hitters, each getting a triple.

Connors pitched well until the sixth when the Leafs collected six hits and five runs. He fanned eight batters.

Bradley struck out the sde in order in the first and second, and whiffed two batters in each of the succeeding frames.

GRASS HOPPERS BY THE MILLION

PONTIX, Sask., July 27, Canadian Press. — The residents of Pontix, and the adjoining districts, saw an unusual sight when a cloud of grasshoppers coming from the south-east flew to the northwest. The hoppers were in millions, in a flock about an eighth of a mile wide, and flying about one hundred feet high, were blown along by a southwesterly breeze carrying them at a good rate of speed.

The actual flying time was about three hours at a given point.

The farmers here believe that the migration of the insects means that no more grasshoppers will trouble them for some years. The hoppers started their northward migration from Kansas three years ago.

GREAT BOWLING AT EARLY HOUR

Eddie Warren of Toronto Trimmed Three Peterboro Men in a Row.

The bowling tournament wound up in a hush, at two o'clock this morning, with Eddie Warren of the Toronto Queen City Club defeating Jack Bacon of Peterboro, in the final of the singles competition by the score of 14-6.

Only a handful of the faithful remained for the finals and it was so quiet that the rolling of the bowls over the short cropped sward seemed audible. Warren and his clubmate, Frank Brower lost the finals of the Scotch Doubles to Fox and Freeman of Peterboro at 11.30 last night, by 18-16, and then Warren went out and played three games in the singles competition winning them all. First he squeezed through by one shot in his game with Martin Chenhall, in the semi-finals he trimmed Harold Freeman who had been his lead opponent in the doubles' final, and then in the "good night" chapter he walked into Jack Bacon to the tune of 14 to 6.

Warren is an understudy of R. B. Rice of the Queen City Club, famous as a bowler and curler, and was one of the outstanding performers in the tournament. Two rinks of the Queen City bowlers were on their way to Curve Lake, for a fishing trip, but hearing of the bowling doings they came armed and stayed until the last curtain.

It is the first time in years Queen City has been represented, and they were warmly welcomed. On their part they would still be on the green if the tournament hadn't finally shut down, and if there had been a solitaire series they would likely all have put up the entry fee.

The quality of bowling in the early morning duels was not surpassed in the whole tournament, and the few night hawks, who stuck it out, pay special tribute to the work of Warren. He had come through the strenuous sixteen or more ends in the doubles, took on a first rate bowler in Chenhall. and then turned back Freeman and Bacon in succession. It was a "strong man" stunt rarely duplicated on the local greens. And it should be taken into consideration that Warren had no easy going all afternoon, when he and Brower were sifting through to the finals.

The Queen City man won a handsome silver cup, which becomes his permanent property, Jack Bacon carried off the cut glass bowl, and Freeman and DeLany of Cobourg, the others in the fours received each a fountain pen.

The results in the semi-finals were:

Peterboro	Queen City
H. Freeman	E. Warren
—8	—10
Cobourg	Peterboro
W. DeLahy	J. Bacon
—6	—8

The Peterboro bowlers wish to thank all those who furthered the success of their tournament, one of the very best in their records. To the G.W.V.A. for the use of dishes, the Caledonians for their concert and especially the ladies who for two days, took charge of the refreshment booth and to others who helped the Club is deeply indebted.

The prizes were well distributed as follows:

Stratton Trophy

Stratton trophy and first prizes won by Jack Mayneord and his rink of Peterboro.

The second prizes went to Rev. Douglas Ramsey and his rink from Belleville.

Warne Cup

The Warne Cup went to W. DeLany's rink of Cobourg. who also got the first prizes, and Jack McKone's 'Kiwanians' as runners-up got the second prizes.

Scotch Doubles

The first prizes in the Scotch Doubles went to Reg. Fox and Harold Freeman of Peterboro, and the second to Brower and Warren of Toronto.

Singles

All the singles were won by Warren of Toronto, Freeman and Bacon of Peterboro and DeLany of Cobourg.

REVISED BRITISH AIRSHIP SCHEME

LONDON, July 27.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The revised airship scheme which the Government has adopted in principle provides for the preliminary construction of one, five million cubic feet airship,— a ship as long as the S.S. Mauretania—at Bedford, by a company, with a capital of 600,000 pounds, of which the Government will provide 400,000 pounds. The Government will make a second similar loan on condition that an airship journey to India in 100 hours will be inaugurated.

The construction of the first airship which will be capable of carrying 150 passengers and ten tons of mail matter and will travel 80 miles an hour, will occupy 18 months. It is hoped that a journey between Great Britain and India may be accomplished in 74 hours at a fare of about 70 to 80 pounds in an airship capable of making non-stop journeys of 2,500 miles.

MIDGET GAMES TO-NIGHT.

In the Midget series this evening, Maple Leafs and Curlers play at Sacred Heart Grounds, and Hillcrests and Sacred Heart meet at King Edward School Grounds. Teams must be ready to start at 6.15 p. m.

More than 20,000 motor vehicles were exported in March from the United States and American branches in Canada.

LAUGH THAT OFF, IF YOU CAN.

The greatest business in the world is "love-making." says Ruby Miller, English actress, now living in Holly wood. And Los Angeles men don't know how to do it, she maintains. Martial unhappiness will subside and contentment will take its place only when American men learn the art of making love she adds. "Copy the sheiks," she advises.

Weekly dances held on Thursday evening are a great attraction at the park this season. The music is supplied by the Lakefield orchestra and the attendance has been large, not only from the cottagers on the shore but from the neighboring islands.

Last week Miss Fae gave a tea at her cottage to a large number of lady friends from the park, who thoroughly enjoyed the reunion. It was one of the jolliest parties held this year.

AUSTRALIA KEEPS AN EYE ON THE SUN

Astronomer Tells of the Importance of New Observatory in Observations.

A recent announcement that the Australian Government has decided to establish a solar observatory in that country may not seem very thrilling to the ordinary individual, but it is of outstanding interest to astronomical science.

Everyone knows that it is due to the dominating heat and light of the sun that life on this earth is possible, and many of us are also acquainted with the fact that the weather and also the number of magnetic storms, aurorae, and earthquakes vary from one year to another.

The past study of the sun has shown us that he is in a continual state of turmoil. On his surface spots and other markings are seen to wax and wane, being more numerous in some years than in others, writes Dr. W. J. S. Lockyer, in the London Daily Mail.

On his "limb," or edge, storms or prominences, violent outbursts of uprushing gases, behave very similarly. Observations during total eclipses have demonstrated that the upper reaches of the solar atmosphere, as exhibited by the "corona," undergo great variations in shape and extent.

These and other facts show that the sun undergoes changes in light and heat from one year to another, and it has been ascertained that all these phenomena complete their cycles in about eleven years. There are indications of shorter and longer cycles of disturbance, but these up to the present are not so well determined.

The continuous and detailed study of solar changes is therefore of supreme importance if we are to—and we must—increase our knowledge about the sun.

* * *

If the study of the sun was limited to the work of one observatory the records would be very sparse, because no observations can be made at night time or on cloudy days.

An effort was therefore made to place solar observatories, first in localities where the raw material, sunshine, was profuse, such as India, and, secondly, to distribute the observatories in longitude —i. e., east and west—so that when one observatory is experiencing night the other is in daylight.

Thus it was desired to institute a chain of stations round the world so that at every moment of the time the sun could be under observation.

At present observatories for making this study are located in Central Europe, England, America, and India, taking the countries in order from east to west. It will be seen, therefore, that there is a great gap in longitude between America and India, and it is this gap which, for a long time, it has been wanted to fill.

Some years before the war efforts were made to promote an observatory in Australia, and while the site for the capital city of Austria (Canberra) was in process of survey it was suggested that the observatory should be placed somewhere near this position. Already a small telescope had been erected on the proposed position and observations were in progress to test the atmospheric conditions. The meteorological conditions were all in favor of a good observing station.

When I was passing through Australia in 1911 I was asked by Mr. King O'Malley, one of the Federal Ministers, to inspect the site. It was situated a few miles from the capital city on a hill called Stromlow, being 2,600 feet above sea level and 600 feet above the neighboring plain. At that time the region was of rather a melancholy nature, being strewn with ring barked gum trees and dead rabbits, the latter having been systematically poisoned. The site, however, seemed admirable from a solar observatory point of view, and this was expressed in a report that was subsequently communicated.

It is now good news to hear that this gap in the chain has been filled in and that Australia will soon be taking part in the international scheme for solar research.

PRIZE- IGHTING

There have been the usual comments on the prize fight. It was a brutal exhibition. It was degrading to our humanity. It was a disgrace to our civilization. It should not have been permitted. It indicated a reversion to the animal. It attracted the basest kind of people. It stirred up the worst instincts of our fallen nature. And much more to the same effect. One sometimes wonders if people quite understand when they reel off an indictment of that kind, or if they have neither red blood in them or any memory of their own youth. We were talking about Pacifism the other day. Every boy is a born fighter. If he does not fight with his muscles he fights with his mouth. The mouths have it in these days. It is the thought in the heart that matters and not the outward appearance of things. There is more foul fighting done by a long way with the mouth than ever was done with fists. More brutality has found vent in words than was ever seen in a prize ring. We seem to have forgotten that the great struggles and conflicts of life have been transferred from the physical to the mental and higher planes in a civilization that has made any progress, and that it is only when the turbulence of some undeveloped nation breaks out and threatens to overwhelm the rest that resort must be had to force physical. Mental dominance may, however, partake fully as much of the tyrannical order as physical, and it is very well known how a little shrimp of a man at the head of a big business can terrorize the whole staff underneath. One remembers a big, honest, easy-going drummer coming in and greeting the diminutive head of the house, "How's your health, sir?" "Never mind my health. How's trade in Michigan?" stifled all the amenities.

A Great Discipline

In prize-fighting the amenities are not stifled. The principals shake hands before they maul each other. The brutal crowd resents any display of temper on the part of either. It is, in fact, a tremendous lesson in self-control to engage in a prize-fight in a proper spirit, to be beaten and not lose one's temper but shake hands and congratulate the winner at the close, or to win and not feel vain-glorious or contemptuous toward one's opponent, to indulge in no vengefulness, and to desire no opportunity for paying back any scores that seem to have borne too heavily. As in all disciplines where the subjugation of the body is necessary the training for a prize-fight entails the most heroic measures of self-denial, and the most transcendent patience. These things should not be forgotten by the critics of the "human brutes," for the chances are that the critics themselves would never think of consenting to such extreme subjection of the desires of the flesh for the mere sake of the glory of undergoing the process of thumping and being thumped in order to establish a reputation for supremacy in the art. St. Paul is not above employing the language of the prize-ring to illustrate the strenuous nature of the fight on higher levels of consciousness. "Know ye not that they which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run that ye may obtain. And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown; but we an incorruptible. I therefore so run, not as uncertainly; so fight I, not as one that beateth the air (punches the bag, we would say), but I keep under my body and bring it into subjection."

The Shame of Sport

In the last verse (I Corinthians ix. 27) St. Paul says, "I buffet my body and bring it into servitude lest, having trained others, I am disqualified myself." St. Paul was familiar with the sports of the day and no doubt would have been interested in hearing who won, but there was the difference between the old sports and the new, that today we expect to have our sports supplied for us. We do not take part ourselves but allow others to sport, and we look on and call ourselves sports. It is pardonable in the aged to do this, and even praiseworthy, since it may stimulate the competitors, but for the young to do so is a disgrace; they should be taking part in sports of their own. And this is where the real brutality comes in. It is not in the two men who are pounding each other for reasons that seem good to them, but in the thousands who look on, not for the sake of skill or science, of which the greater part know little or nothing, but merely to awaken the thrill of the animal satisfaction which leaps at the sight of blood and shrieks with delight at every thudding blow that reaches its mark. Here indeed we have a real brutality, entirely different from anything to be found in the brute creation, altogether the attribute of the brute man. The animals do not gloat over the mishaps or inferiority of their fellows. If they are badly wounded they destroy them quickly and mercifully. If they are weak or young they get the help of the pack or of their mates. But it is in man to exercise the diabolical vice of gloating over the miseries of his fellows. The greatest shame that Canada has are the cries of "Kill him" from the bleachers or in the rink.

The Unconquerable Mind

In the recent fight there can be no doubt of the sportmanlike quality and gameness of the loser. He fought for the glory of it. He had nothing to get in the way of money. Some way that he had an ulterior motive of a pecuniary character, inasmuch as he might be able to trade upon his success in future if he had success. But it was a forlorn hope and it was not achieved. But he exhibited a great patience. Very few are capable of even imagining the tremendous resolution required to support the rigors of that long hour of trial. It indicates what man is capable of doing when he puts his mind to it. The body can be subdued and made to serve as a slave. The real man is not master in his own house until he has won this victory. That is why our civilization is not a success and never can be while we are slaves of our bodies and not their masters. This was the fatal error of the Bolshevists. Lenin did not know that the mind was master of the body. He did not know that people could be starved and tortured and killed and that still they were unconquered. The peasantry of Russia had more mind than body, more soul than flesh. Out of that will rise a nation. What is the difference between sanity and insanity; what and where is the dividing line? There is none. The difference is in public opinion. Could anything be madder than two men pounding each other for an hour or more with thousands of others looking on and enjoying it? But our world is full of such insanities, and it is only as we conquer and abandon them that we reach sanity. The strife of commerce, the strife of war, is but prize-fighting writ large.

THEATRES

Capitol Entertainment

One of the most complete and satisfying pictures, as well as excelling in beauty of filming and romantic appeal, is the Rex Ingram production now running at the Capitol Theatre, the pretty photodrama, "Where the Pavement Ends," with two very adequate stars, in the lovely Alice Terry and the handsome Ramon Navarro.

There is a touch of genius in the art which filmed this love story of the missionary's daughter, the blonde Matilda, singing "There is a Better Land," prim and delicate, at her mission chapel organ, while her Kanaka lover, the sea rover and diver for pearls, leans against the wall outside, singing a love song.

Hawaiian islands, with surf-boat riders on a spraying sea, palm trees on coral reefs, a passion vine in the grove where the lovers meet, a thrilling descent of a billowing waterfall, and a wonderful night storm scene, are the high lights in this picture, which has all the elements of interest to make it worth while; in its youthful, good-looking cast, its romantic theme, and a background of natural beauty that carries all the charm of Hawaiian loveliness.

The "Leather Pusher" episode this week has a unique setting, Kid Roberts and his opponent battle in a water ring, with the moisture ascending gradually as they progress to a comedy finish. There is plenty of amusement for the 'Kid's' admirers in this picture.

NEW FREIGHT SHEDS FOR C.N.R. IN 1924

New freight sheds will be erected for the Canadian National Railway in Peterborough next year, according to advice from Sir Henry W. Thornton, K.B.E., in a letter received by the Chamber of Commerce.

The request for increased facilities for the handling of freight to replace the inadequate shed now used was placed before the President of the Canadian National Railway on his visit to Peterborough, and that the need is appreciated by him and will be met is indicated by his letter. He says: "No provision has been made in our budget of expenditures for this year for additional facilities for handling freight at Peterborough, but it is our intention to include this in our list of work for 1924."

Recent survey shows there's one auto to every family in Iowa, but only one bathtub to every fourth family.

USE CANADA AS A HALF-WAY STATION

OTTAWA, July 27. Canadian Press. — Repeated efforts are being made to make Canada a temporary landing place for immigrants turned back from the United States. on account of the quota rule.

It was stated by the officials of the Immigration Department to-day that many applications have been received from friends of persons turned back at New York to secure permission for the surplus immigrants to come to Canada pending later admission to the United States. These application have, however, been steadily rejected by the Department which has rigidly refused to allow the Dominion to become a half way station to the United States.

Women Will Lead in Race

(By Marian Hale.)

NEW YORK, July 27.— In the fight for woman suffrage, Betsy Graves Rayneau of Detroit was one of the most earnest and interesting leaders. To-day she is quite as distinct a personality in the artistic world.

Her portraits are exhibited at the most exclusive Fifth Avenue art galleries, and celebrities flock to her studio.

"They're so different," critics say of her oil studies.

"That's because I try to make each portrait a character study," she told me. "I try to do with a brush what Theodore Dreiser does with words. I study my sitters as if I were going to write about them instead of paint them. That's the reason I care very little for doing merely pretty women.

"Just putting a pink and white skin and a rosebud mouth on canvas doesn't interest me at all. I'd rather paint disappointment, or bitterness, or craftiness, or any personal quality which is a definite attribute of character and may be the very thing that detracts from conventional beauty or regularity."

Brains With Beauty.

That started us talking about the modern type of woman that is being developed by the complex existence of to-day.

"As women become more intellectual, they should improve in looks," Mrs. Rayneau averred. "Brains actually mean a better skull formation. And I believe men will acquire a taste for intelligent women. But after all, whether type women progress to or revert to, men will always have to accept them as they are. They are so necessary to the race, no matter what they become.

"The beautiful woman will always have the advantage at the start, and the brainy one at the finish.

"I have found that most beautiful women were not intellectual, not because they didn't have the capacity, but because they did not have to. They could get all the excitement they desire without exerting themselves for it.

Personality Instead.

"The woman, however, who looks into her mirror and sees that her Irish nose, Italian eyes, English chin and German figure form a composite type that has no claim to beauty, and who admits frankly that since there isn't much to attract men with on the outside she'd better develop the inside of her head, is the one that grows a personality.

"And she's apt to get more interesting as the beauty deteriorates."

Mrs. Rayneau is a thorough feminist and believes in women and their possibilities. She believes they have everything now but recognition.

"And when women can get a slant on life that is not purely emotional, or that is a combination of intellect and emotion, with the intellect holding the emotions down where they should be, they will force men to recognize their worth and give them their rights in the artistic world," she concludes.

FRUIT DRYING ON THE TREES

Gardens and Orchards in North Monaghan Will Give Only Poor Return

Fruit is drying on the trees and is practically killed, a North Monaghan gardener reports of his section to-day. The gardens and orchards which promised so well a few weeks ago are now despaired of, and field corps will give only a poor return, he said.

Potatoes, it is expected, will show up better than any other vegetable, but even these have been drawn by the excessive heat to large tops and not much root. Oats are headed out very short, and the yield will be light.

One gardener declared his intention to hold his produce until fall when prices will be high on account of the scarcity.

SHE SMILES AFTER MEETING BANDITS

Miss Deabter Gives Word Picture Of Her Experience.

SEATTLE, July 27.— "Boo pah! Boo pah! Maguay bin dzi lalae!"

("Be not afraid! Be not afraid! The Americans are coming!")

The Chinese city of Chung King surrounded at night by 2,000 raging followers of "Daw Jo," Chinese woman bandit chieftain. Savage Celestial devils hacking at the gates and thirsting for blood.

Inside, hysterical and shrieking natives and worried foreigners. No means of resisting the enemy horde outside, once the gates yield. No chance of escaping a cruel and senseless massacre.

And then off in the distance, lantern lights flicker. A column of men swinging rhythmically and nonchalantly in the darkness, the white of their smart uniforms faintly seen in the glow of the bobing lights.

Lookout Shouts.

As the column draws nearer, the "slouf-slouf" of foreign shoes upon the ground.

A lookout perched on the wall jumps with joy.

"Boo pah! Boo pah! Ho! Ho! The Americans are coming! Don't be afraid."

The frightened throng inside takes up the chant, sobbing with relief.

Staccato commands outside. A rush. The attack. Then quiet.

Such is the picture of the China of to-day as drawn by Miss Margaret E. Deabler, Red Cross nurse, who, with a party of hospital workers, has spent the last ten months in the Chinese interior in the vicinity of the Yang-tse river, in the interests of the "Syracuse in China" hospital, founded by the University of Syracuse, of which she is a graduate.

At Chentu.

Miss Deabler, arriving here from the orient, will lecture in the east on conditions in modern China.

With a party of 11 doctors and nurses, she was stationed in the city of Chentu, in the province of Schezuam, 2,200 miles inland, on the Yang-tse.

They were studying the interior language and conditions in preparation for the work in "Syracuse in China" hospital, which is now partially built at Chung King, 1800 miles inland.

Bandits raided and looted Chentu and the doctors and nurses fled down river in Chinese junks.

"The entire population of Schezuam province," said Miss Deabler, "is too busy either banditing or protecting itself against looters to find time in which to build."

COLDSPRING'S S. S. PICNIC AUGUST 10th

WILL LOOK UP RECORD OF MAN CHARGED WITH FRAUD

William Landry, Alias W. H. Larkin, Arraigned Before Peterborough Magistrate--Says His Intentions Were Honest and Promises Restitution

William Landry, alias W. H. Larkin, was arraigned before Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning on a charge of fraud, and remanded until August 4 to enable the police to look up his record.

The charge was that on Wednesday, May 23 this year, Landry obtained $7.20 by fraud from McBride and Franks by representing himself as a salesman for a phonograph needle and cabinet firm doing business at 187 Bleury street, Montreal. He pleaded guilty.

Given an opportunity to speak in his own behalf, Landry said he was working in complete ignorance of the law, and did not know that making promises was an offence. He made them as an inducement. "I gave value for every cent I received," he said. "The dealers could sell the articles at a profit of 70 per cent. I didn't think I was doing anything wrong."

The accused was arrested in Hamilton, where there were 13 or 14 charges of a similar nature against him. Only four of these were pressed, he stated, and he was released on suspended sentence. He promised to make restitution to the parties defrauded here. "Anyone who has the needles I sold him and can't sell them I will take them back and return his money," Landry said.

Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton asked for a remand, saying that if the man's intentions were honest it was peculiar that he travelled under an assumed name. The accused volunteered the information that he sold needles on the same terms to the Nugent Drug Company and to a music store in the city, but no complaint was laid by these firms. If let off after making restitution he promised that the police in Peterborough would not see his heels for dust, so speedy would be his getaway to the Montreal train.

Chief Newhall intimated that he had information as to other schemes carried out by this man in Ottawa.

In making the remand, Magistrate Langley said restitution would not free him from punishment, but might make it easier.

It is believed that Landry is a native of Lindsay district. He has a wife and child in Montreal, and is well known in Peterborough.

Detective Sergeant W. E. Meagher brought him from Hamilton last night.

PRETTY MISS TERRY WANDERED INTO THE REALMS OF ROMANCE

Remarkable Experience of a Charming Little Maiden Who Emerges From a State of Comparative Poverty to Station and Wealth.

FINDS HER PRINCE

No one would believe in Terry Desmond and her story without some knowledge of her childhood and her upbringing. Those years would have explained her to Sheridan. But, if he had understood in the beginning, or near it, the story would have been different.

* * * * *

In the memory of most children there are milestones with blank stretches in between. Teresa Desmond's first landmark was in June, just before her seventh birthday.

There was an old rose garden at Silverwood. All the rose trees were old and the paths of broken pavingstones were seamed with moss and weeds. To reach the garden across the lawn you had to wade through tall grass—for the place needed four or five gardeners, and had none; but the roses were Terry's friends. She played that they were fairies by night and flowers by day. Wonderful Sister Julia, who was like a princess (one of those princesses you saw in Sunday Supplements when Father had finished) had brought her books about fairies: Terry had learned to read those books without being taught.

On this day Terry was in the rose garden, wondering if Julia would come from New York for the birthday, when up the drive from the gate flashed a motor car.

Such a thing had never happened before in the five years (they seemed like All Time) since Terry came to live at Silverwood. Many cars passed along the road, and Terry's spirit flew after the beautiful ones, leaping on board to whirl away into Adventure. But a car inside the gates—a splendid blue car with glittering windows—what could it mean?

At first the child stood still, peering through a screen of roses. Then it occurred to her that she might run to the house. Would Father be angry?

He and Mother were caretakers at Silverwood, but in Terry's eyes they were the master and mistress.

There was an old lady, Mrs. Parmalee, who stayed in some far-off country called Europe, and Father and Mother had been asked by her to live at Silverwood. But she never came—nobody came except Julia—so the place was Home.

Father was like a lord, and often said to Mother and Julia that he would have been a lord in Ireland, except for some queer reason which Terry couldn't understand.

It had to do, apparently, with a marriage—or rather, a marriage that ought to have happened and hadn't.

Still, if Terrence Desmond were not a lord in Ireland he was at Silverwood! You had to obey him, or things were disagreeable for everyone.

Father had a summer cold today, and was keeping to the house. You had to be careful about making a noise or doing anything he might not like, for if you forgot, he burst out from a black, silent mood, into one of his red rages.

Mother, very mouselike and subdued, had sent Terry to the rose garden, with a piece of bread and sugar, and the whispered advice, "Best not come in till supper-time." But since then the beautiful car had happened. The child

French Asked to Speed Up Replies

PARIS, July 28. — (United Press).—Great Britain to-day asked France to speed up her reply to the British note. Acknowledgement was received here from Marquis Curzon, the British Foreign Secretary, asking this Government to hasten the French reply in order that Premier Baldwin might keep his promise to the House of Commons and have a statement for the members before adjournment, August 2nd.

Poincare is awaiting a copy of the Belgium reply before sending his own to London.

SEEK USE OF BELL COMPANY CONDUITS

For City Fire Alarm Wires in Approaches to Hunter Street Bridge.

Permission to lay the city's fire alarm wires in the Bell Telephone Company's conduits in the approaches to the Hunter St. Bridge will be requested by Mayor Taylor, Alderman Crowe and Fire Chief Gimlett who were deputed by the Fire, Water and Light Committee to interview the company's local manager.

The fire alarm wires have been strung on the Bell Telephone poles, it was stated last night but the poles are being removed as a cleaning up step in pace with the paving of Hunter Street. The committe recommended the sale of one team of horses, one hose wagon, harness, buggy and cutter in stock at the fire hall. The improvised fire truck which was converted from a Studebaker chassis has provided the Department with increased motorized equipment which supplants the old-horse drawn hose wagon.

Members of the committee examined the winter overcoats of Chief Gimblett's staff to satisfy themselves as to whether a new issue was needed for next winter. The garments will be submitted to another inspection in the daylight when the committee will probably agrive at some decision for recommendation to the Council. It is understood that the overcoats have been in use since 1918, and are due for the junk man.

One of the Aldermen suggested that some of them might be repaired for rough work, and that not more than three new coats would be actually required for next winter if the Committee insists upon stretching a point of economy.

BERLIN FACES CRISIS SUNDAY FEARS TROUBLE

Populace Apprehensive of Outbreak Between Communists and Facisti Will Stay Indoors.

FOOD IS SCARCE

BERLIN, July 28.—United Press. —"I am going to remain indoors tomorrow" every one is saying to his neighbour, as Germany nervously awaits the dawn of Sunday when communists throughout the country will demonstrate against the Fascisti.

Shops already are tightly barred and bolted many merchants have nailed slats across their windows. Others are displaying empty boxes as though to say their stores are depleted, no need to loot there.

Oldest inhabitants say they never saw a population more restless, every one is nervous, apprehensive of trouble when the communists get together. The demonstration, like those who fear trouble, will also remain indoors for these meetings. The Government ban on open air meetings is to be strictly enforced. Army leave has been stopped and every available reserve will be on duty. The greatest danger lies in the fact that while to-morrow's demonstrations are ostensibly against the Fascisti, the impending food shortage and the desparate financial situation is forcing thousands of ordinarily disinterested citizens into the communist ranks. It is really against lack of food and the worthlessness of the mark that many are demonstrating.

If Sunday passes without a crisis there will undoubtedly be an improvement in the situation. A natural psychological reaction will act in the Governments favor. However, if Sunday "runs red," no one can predict what may happen.

U.S. PRESIDENT WAS WELCOMED BY BYNG

Governor-General Regrets Inability to Meet Harding in Person.

OTTAWA, July 28. — (Canadian Press). — The following telegram was sent by His Excellency The Governor General to the President of the United States, on his arrival in anada. "On behalf of the Government and the people of the Dominion, I desire to welcome you Mr. President on the unique occasion of your visit to Canadian soil. I can only regret that a long standing engagement to make a trip through the eastern provinces, prevents me from giving you this sincere welcome in person." (Signed Byng of Vimy).

SEVEN PASSENGER CAR STRUCK BY A TRAIN

WELLAND, Ont., July 28 (Canadian Press). — Ethel Walters, aged 13, received injuries from which she may not recover last night when the motor car in which she was riding became stalled on the M. C. Railway crossing here, and was hit by a train.

A young woman was driving the car, which contained seven passengers, and she became frightened when she saw the train approaching, and stalled the engine.

All jumped to safety except Ethel Walters. Her brother, Herbert Walters, aged 25, who was endeavouring to push the car from the tracks at the time of the impact, was cut and bruised.

Population Drift to the Large Cities Shows a Decrease

LONDON, July 28. (United Press Cable. — Has the population reached its limit?

Frank Hunt, head of the estates and housing department of the London County Council, believes that a reaction is setting in against cities of such huge size. He thinks that an analysis of the figures of the latest census shows that growth both in numbers and ration of increase, has fallen heavily, instead of the former drift of the population from other parts of the country towards London, enormously increasing as hitherto.

The figures also show less overcrowding. There is a nine per cent drop in the average size of families. The worst instances of overcrowding are two cases where thirteen persons lived in a single room.

BARONET SENT OUT CIRCULAR SELL WHISKEY

Circular Carries Illustration of Successful British Skipper Who Made a Fortune.

SCHEME EXPOSED

LONDON, July 28. — (United Press.)—Report of a committee appointed to investigate liquor smuggling into the United States was laid before the British Cabinet to-day, and a statement on the subject will be made in Commons, probably next week. Simultaneously with this announcement, the Daily Express today exposed an attempt by Lieut. Col. Sir Roderick Hartwell, Bart., former Consul at Naples, to raise funds for a whiskey selling expedition on the high seas.

A circular was issued inviting subscriptions of $12.50 or more to send 10,000 cases of liquor to foreign ports on a ship under sealed orders within a month.

The Baronet stated he had already arranged for 5,000 cases and guarantees to return twenty per cent. interest within sixty days.

The minimum investment purchases one case of whiskey in bond, note which is not subject to tax since it is for foreign consumption.

The circular carries illustrations of a newspaper clipping describing how a British skipper made a million dollars selling whiskey on the American coast. It also states that Hartwell received a guarantee of $50,000 that the goods would be accepted and paid for twenty miles off shore of the unnamed destination. It declares that plans were made to send "abroad" at least 10,000 cases monthly.

EXPENSIVE FRILLS TO BE ELIMINATED

OTTAWA, July 28. — (Canadian Press)— Asked today if anything official had passed between Ontario and Federal governments regarding the anti-rum export conference soon to be held between officials of the Canadian and United States customs departments, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, replied in the negative. Siuce assuming office said the new Premier, I have heard nothing about the matter in an official way." Mr. Ferguson is here to meet a deputation in connection with the improvement of Prescott-Ottawa highway.

Premier Ferguson believed that steps to stop rum running at frontier points must be taken by the Federal government of the two countries. He intimated that Attorney-General might have heard something about the approaching conference, but if he had Mr. Nickle did not pass the information along.

Commenting upon the new government's road policy, Mr. Ferguson said it would be aggressive and active, but would be shorn of some expensive features.

TWO KILLED WHEN A CAR TURNED TURTLE

The Highway Was Blocked Where the Accident Took Place Near Barrie.

BARRIE, July 28 (Canadian Press). — J. Saunders and Miss Mary Ross, stenographer, both of Toronto, were killed, and Charles Saunders, also of Toronto, was seriously injured when the car in which they were driving turned turtle on the Provincial Highway, six miles east of here early this morning.

The highway is blocked where the accident took place owing to repairs being made to the bridge.

A barricade was placed across the road, with orders to detour to the left.

Charles Saunders, the driver of the car, evidently endeavoured to switch off to the right to avoid hitting it.

Unfortunately the car smashed into the right side of the barricade. The car went over the right bank of the road, and completely overturned.

The wheels were in the air, and all three occupants were pinned under the car. J. Saunders and Miss Ross being almost instantly killed.

The party were on their way to Muskoka from Toronto.

QUITE A LITTLE FLUTTER IN CHEMONG DOVE-COTES

Fickle Fancy of the Sterner Sex is Blamed for the Fluttering—"Bonny Leslie" Goes Abroad, Seeking New Conquests

There is a flutter in the dovecotes at Chemong Park. The element of competition has arisen in the feminie arena of the pleasant summer colony that swims, and boats, and fishes and flirts, and above all, that dances, in the pretty enclosure looking down on Mud Lake. And the fickle fancy of the sterner sex is to blame for the whole thing. "With one foot on the land, and one on the sea, to one thing constant never," might have been written of the Chemong young men, according to the opinion of some of their former partners.

A week ago everything was peaceful. The Pavilion resounded night after night to the merry strains of the orchestra. The moon looked down on tall pines surrounding the jjilly place where light-footed trippers slid and trotted and stepped, or strolled off to get a bottle of Pete's mild thirst-quenchers.

Girls in light dresses danced with youths in the conventional black or the unconventional attire which some of the young men prefer; the khaki trousers, the striped flannel blouses, the white yachting caps set at an acute angle.

And then, everything was changed. In the old song, "Bonny Leslie" went over the border, to make more conquests. Ten of her modern prototypes have descended upon Chemong, and there is frigidity and affront in the hearts of fair Canadian maidenhood. The rose-tinted spectacles that made the prospects look so pleasant on those evenings when favorite partners danced the "light fantastic' together from nine o'clock on until the decorous hour that marks the closing of the Pavilion, have been replaced by glasses that, to the average onlooker, appear to have more than a tinge of green.

In other words, a visiting contingent of young ladies from Buffalo have come to the Park for a fortnight's holiday, and the young men who dance at the Pavilion are, to speak in the vernacular, showing them "a good time." And the young ladies who live at the Park through the summer season don't like it.

A woman from the United States who has been spending some time at the Park this year, took occasion recently to remark on the reported attitude and, for all one knows to the contrary, perhaps their admirers of the male sex are merely trying to be hospitable and make guests from over the water appear at ease. Who knows?

The visiting girls themselves appear to be quite unconscious of anything in the atmostphere. Of course, they are merely on their way, so to speak. They will be gone in another week or so, and perhaps a few new dancing partners are really nothing at all in their lives. Perhaps where they come from young men are more numerous and possibly not quite so valuable.

R. COTTON WAS NOT TO BLAME

Coroner's Jury Completely Exonerated Peterboro Man at Inquest Last Evening.

LINDSAY, July 28. — (Special.) —At the coroner's inquest at Reaboro last night to inquire into the death of little Edith McNevin, who was fatally injured by an automobile on Tuesday evening, July 24th, Mr. Robert Cotton of Peterboro, the owner and driver of the car, was completely exonerated from all blame by the jury.

Coroner Dr. Logan presided, and evidence was given by Police Chief Umphrey, Dr. Shier, Constable Hartnett, Bruce McNevin, father of the child, Helen McNevin, cousin of the deceased, Mr. and Mrs. R. Cotton, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Shannon of Peterboro. It was shown conclusively that Mr. Cotton had exercised the greatest caution when approaching the children, who were playing by the roadside, even going to the left side of the roadway in order to avoid an accident, and was travelling at a moderate speed.

Mr. A. M. Fulton, looked after the interests of the Crown, while Mr Cotton was repreesnted by Mr. G. N. Gordon of Peterboro.

NEW CLOVER HONEY ON MARKET TODAY

First Offering of Freshly Extracted Clover Sold at 20c. a Pound.

New potatoes eased off to 60c a peck towards noon hour on to-day's market. The price remained fairly steady at 70c a peck throughout the morning, but with the crowd thinning out, while much of the stock was still unsold, first one grower and then another clipped heir price.

The potatoes seemed to be generaly about as big as baseballs and sold fairly freely.

The first of the season's clover honey made its debut on the farmers' market this morning, selling at 20c a lb. Five pound and ten pound pails weer the containers at one and two dollars respectively. The wise housekeeper who has even a glimmering of knowledge of food values would replenish the honey jar in preference to perhaps some of the passing products of the season.

Spring chickens, the biggest of them mere miniatures, sold off to 35c, although the price ranged from 40c to 50c in the earlier part of the session. Eggs were in ample supply at from 24c to 28c a dozen and butter at 35c, while hens brought 25c a pound.

Huckleberries at 20 cents a quart were quickly disposed of, and the truck trade was steady at the usual prices.

EXTREME STYLES.

Kid painted in Paisley designs and shark, alligator, ostrich and lizard skins are used to make the fancy sandals so popular with those who affect extreme styles in footwear.

CHEMONG PARK HAS A NUMBER OF NEWCOMERS

Cottagers Idled in the Rain Yesterday Afternoon -- The Fishing is Fairly Good.

THE ROADWAY OILED

Chemong Park idled in the rain yesterday afternoon. Verandahs were practically deserted, books were resorted to, and long naps whiled away the drowsy hours. Out on the lake, a plucky little sail-boat made a spot of white, and along the beach, small boys paddled in groups of twos or threes. The owl at the Rendezvous Pavilion moped with wet feathers, dull membranes stretched over its fierce eyes.

The roadway to the Park, out to the city limits, has been freshly oiled. Outgoing cars last night negotiated the stick fluid with swerving wheels. At the detour in the road, where the culvert is going in, a group of motors waited for the 'Comet' bus, which makes its cheerful way in and out to the park, a decided convenience for summer residents and casual trippers.

Fishing this year at Chemong, although no extraordinary catches have been reported so far, appears to be doing very well indeed. Constant followers of the philosopher's sport report excellent catches. Mr. Prosser, one of the summer cottagers, has had good luck. On one occasion he took ninetten bass of varying sizes, on another twelve bass and two 'lunge fell to his lot. This young fisherman is not a novice at the game. In his private den, there reposes on the wall the fierce-looking head of a nineteen pound maskinonge, caught some years ago, with a "Buffalo" bait, one of the best sort for 'lunge, so the anglers declare.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lynch went out to the Park this week, and are occupying Mr. C. McClelland's cottage on the Lake front.

Mr. Hudson and family, who have been staying at Hudson Lodge during Mrs. Hudson's convalescence from illness, motored to their home in Ohio this week. Mrs. Hudson is staying over for a few days at the Empress Hotel in town.

The Misses Madge and Marcelle Tobin are guests of Dr. and Mrs. F. P. McNulty at the Park.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Wrenn and Mr. and Mrs. Foster have taken Mr. Dan Sullivan's new cottage for the balance of the season.

Adjutant and Mrs. Wallace Bunton and family, of Windsor, Ontario, have bought one of the cottages formerly owned by Adjt. McElhiney, where Adjt. Bunton is recovering from a recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hills are at the Park this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Cameron have taken the Pearse cottage for the month of August.

Mrs. F. Overend and baby are visiting Mrs. Overend's mother, Mrs. C. Rutherford, at her cottage.

Mrs. Hyde, of Toronto, who, with her husband and children, have been summering at the Park, is ill in Nicholls Hospital. Canada's most beautiful child, little Doris Hyde, and her baby brother, are staying with Mrs. F. L. Robinson in the city.

On Wednesday of this week the Free Methodists of the city held their picnic at Chemong.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Frazer are in Mr. Jordan's cottage at present.

A merry party of young girls from Buffalo, with their chaperone, have taken Mrs. F. Hall's cottage in the Park for a fortnight. The party con-

CHERRIES ARE PETERING OUT

New Peterboro Celery Appears in Stores and Potatoes Are Down to 70c. a Peck.

New celery grown in Peterboro was set up in the front row of the green grocers' display to-day. Its addition to the crowded ranks' of fresh fruits and vegetables was another little reminder of the progress of summer. The price quoted is 15c a bunch.

Another week end headliner are tomatoes from the Leamington district, now reduced to 20c a pound with everybody buying them. New potatoes are down to 70c and their size has changed in inverse proportion. That price is still on the peck basis.

Red Raspberries are from 23 to 25c with probably a little concession here and there as a Saturday specialty. The dealers are not enthusiastic over the raspberry crop, which has been hit by the continued dry weather.

The old fruit basket shows another newcomer in a fine sample of Red Astrakan apples from Delaware at one dollar a peck, and Arizona cantaloupes are 25c and 35c each. California pears are 40 and 50c a dozen, and plums range from 10c to 30 and 40c a dozen. California and Georgia peaches are selling at 40 and 50c a dozen and the first Canadians are also reported in the Toronto district.

The cherry crop is approaching its tag end with black sweets still around $1.40 a basket and Montmorencies at 90c and $1.00. Huckleberries in the stores are priced at $2.50 and $2.75 for seventeen pound baskets, and blackberries are about 30c a box.

Cauliflowers are 25c and 30c, and string beans 10c a quart with them getting scare at two quarts for 25c. All the small truck garden produce is quoted at the usual prices such as five and ten cents a bunch for carrots, beets, lettuce and so on. Green peppers are three for ten cents for those who like green pepers, and cucumbers range from 5c to 15c each, adding a rather baleful ingredient to combination salads.

Lemons are in strong demand at 40 cents, but it is whispered that hops are ruling in many homes that used to prefer the lemon in the pre-home-brew days. Oranges are all the way from 25c to 90c a dozen, and it should be possible by this time to quote bananas at 40c and 60c without allusion to the popular insanity in words and music.

Nearly one-eighth of the surface of Sweden is covered by lakes.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

The Editor of The Evening Examiner, City.

Dear Sir:

Kindly insert the following in your paper:

This may interest our free traders or those who are in favor of the preferential tariff, from which the hosiery manufacturers of Canada have been compelled to suffer for the last two years. We strongly opposed this but received no hearing.

Britain After Hosiery Tariff.

A movement which is not without significance was launched in the Nottingham England, hosiery trades several months ago. At that time a member of the National Joint Industrial Council of the Hosiery Trade stated that not only was German and other hosiery coming into the home market in large quantities without hindrance, but German hosiery was also going into oversea markets at prices which put the British manufacturer out of the running.

Previous to this letter was sent by the Council to the candidates for Parliament, requsting that they support any measure that would tend to have tariffs against British hosiery repealed, or wailing that, to impose on hosiery entering the British Isles equivalent duty to that imposed by the exporting country. Consul Hitch, reporting on later developments on the subject says:

"There are something like thirty Parliamentary districts in Great Birtain where hosiery is manutactured, and replies have been received from all of the successful candidates. A majority of them favor the imposition of a duty on foreign goods; some favor placing the hosiery industry under the Safeguarding of Industries Act, 1921, which provides for a duty of 33 1-3 per cent ad valorem on foreign goods, while a small majority express themselves as opposed to protection in any form.

"Heretofore, the Labor vote in England has always been cast solidly against any form of protection, but during the past two months the laborers, of England, have allied themselves with the manufacturers in their efforts to induce the Board of Trade to schedule the lace industries Act, and they will undoubtedly take a similar position with reference to the hosiery industry, as a means of equalizing exchange.

Thanking you Mr. Editor, I remain,

W. A. LAVOIE.

SERIOUS SHORTAGE OF FOOD IS BEING FELT IN BERLIN AS MARK DROPS

Merchants Keep Doors Open But a Few Hours A Day In Order To Protect Themselves.

SURFACE CALM.

BERLIN, July 28 — (Canadian Press).—One of the most menacing effects of the collapse of the mark is asserting itself in the growing derangement of the food situation in Greater Berlin, his is ascribed directly to the depleted stocks, the withdrawal of available stores, and price juggling by merchants who are seeking to protect themselves against the complete extinction of the mark as currency and their resultant inability to procure fresh stocks.

Teas, coffee, rice and other products of the tropics are already disappearing from the markets and there is also a pronounced shortage of potatoes, due to the belated Spring harvest and the fact that the Government has been sending heavy shipments of the tubers into the Ruhr and the Rhineland. These conditions have resulted in housewives and their maids scheming to procure food through irregular channels, since the market stalls have been unable to supply even the most ordinary commodities.

The political aspects of the situation are such that the municipality of Greater Berlin has officially petitioned the Federal Government to take immediate steps to safeguard and reorganize the city's food supply and inaugurate a system of price control.

This week's price index shows food prices to be 71,000 times the pre-war averages.

LONDON, July 28. — (Canadian Press).—A despatch to the Daily Mail from Duesseldorf says the questions of food and wages are growing acute. Food supplies are slowly decreasing and only a few shopkeepers kept open all of yesterday. A majority of them sold goods only two hours during the morning and two hours in the afternoon. Anxious crowds surrounded the banks and exchange office.

The despatch adds that the Ruhr outwardly is calm, but that underneath disquieting symptoms are discernable. The people are sick of being coerced and would like to end the situation, but will not yield. Passive resistance has lost a certain number of supporter, but it still remains a very definite obstacle to peace.

The corresondent predicts that resistance will end in about three months, "when the people are faced with approaching winter without coal or work and perhaps foodless."

BERLIN, July 28. — (Canadian Press).—In consequence of the food difficulties, Chancellor Cuno has telegrapher the heads of the various agricultural organizations appealing to them to put the early potato crop on the market with the least possible delay.

Dr. Gustav Boess, Burgomaster of Berlin and several of the municipal councillors conferred to-day with officials of the Imperial and Prussian Ministries of Food and Agriculture. They called attention to the needs and the temper of the population and urged the necessity for immediate relief work.

BERRIES SCARCE IN NORTH MONAGHAN

Generous Crops Of Recent Years Are Not In Evidence..

BROWNTON, July 28.—Tuesday's rain was of inestimable value to farm products and was much appreciated by the gardeners.

Quite a number of people are invading Harper's woods in search of wild raspberries and blueberries. Some success is reported, but the rewards of previous years are not in evidence. Last year the spoils were brought home in ten-pound pails, but this year it is a task to fill a three-pound one.

Mrs. F. Darling of Peterborough and Mrs. Wm. Patterson of North Monaghan were guests of Mrs. John Darling in Smith on Tuesday.

There are 47,426 garages in the United States.

At present time there is a great boom in the mining industry. I have had many years experience in practical mining, both in Cobalt and Porcupine, and have a wide connection there. I am therefore in a position to get early and reliable information in both camps. I have made a profit for every one of my clients up to date, and shall be pleased to advise any one interested. There will be a strong market this summer and now is the time to get in.

Few Canadian Cattle Were Sold Last Week.

OTTAWA, July 28. — (Canadian Press.)—Sales of Canadian cattle in Great Britain during the past week are covered by a cable received by the live stock branch of the Department of Agriculture. Glasgow sold 410 head on July 23, sales ranging mostly from 11 to 12 cents per pound live weight. Some cattle of choice weights and quality made 12 1-2 cents. Twenty Canadian bulls sold from 8 to 9 cents. Best Scotch sold mostly from 13 to 13 1-2 cents. Prices were easier under average supplies. From 11 1-2 to 12 cents was paid for 600 Irish.

There were 522 Canadian cattle sold at Birkenhead during the week, prices being generally 22 to 22 1-2 cents per pound in sink.

London offered 100 Canadian dressed; sides from 19 to 20 cents per pound, the demand being moderaae. The beef carriers strike is reported settled.

There were two shipments of cattle from Montreal to Liverpool this week, with a total of 1,052 head.

HORSE OWNER WON A UNIQUE LAW SUIT

Claimed Damages For Mare Which Was Killed During The Running Of A Race.

LONDON, July 28.— (Canadian Press.)—A unique turf lawsuit was concluded yesterday at the King's Bench division wherein Henry Joseph Boam, owner of the mare Iron which was killed as a result of an accident while the Fulwell plate race was being run at Kempton Park in May, claimed 800 guineas damages from Michael Beary the well-known jockey who was suspended for three months by the Stewards of the Jockey Club for foul riding on that occasion.

The plaintiff's former trainer, Herbert Smyth of Epsom, valued Iron Ore at 250 guineas and the jury, awarding a verdict for the plaintiff, assessed the value at 300 guineas.

OIL MEN WOULD CLOSE REFINERIES

Step Toward Reduction of The Greatest Surplus of Gasoline And Crude Oil.

CHICAGO, July 28.— (Canadian Press.)—Action to close "every refinery in the mid-continent field for the month of August," as a step toward the reduction of the present surplus of gasoline and crude oil, was approved yesterday by a group of leading oil men of the southwest representing the Western Petroleum Refiners' Association and the American Oil Men's Association, officers of the latter organization announced. The action was proposed jointly by J. S. Cosden, head of the Cosden interests, and E. W. Marland, of the Marland Oil Company.

BOOM STRIKES TOKIO.

TOKIO, July 28.— (Associated Press)—The demand for homes at the various seaside and mountain resorts of Japan made famous by foreigners is ever on the increase, and those foreigners who invested wisely are reaping their harvest. Prices have gone up ten fold within the last few years and there seems no tendency to fall. At Karuizawa, the mountain resort to which missionaries from all over the Far East flock in summer, and where the Prince Regent will spend part of this season, very high prices are being paid for houses and land. The same is true at Kamakura, Zushi and Hayama, the seaside resorts, formerly almost entirely foreign, which have been invaded by the Japanese.

The property which foreigners are selling is held by them on 999 year leases, or through virtue of their being members of Japanese land companies such as were organized by the different missionary bodies.

ALL U.S. TREATIES.

By HENRY WOOD

GNEVA (By mail to the United Press).—Since the organization of the League of Nations, over 500 international treaties, the terms of which would otherwise have been a complete secret, have been filed with the secretariat for publication and for access to the eyes of the entire world. It was by this obligatory publication of treaties through the League that the founders of the latter hope to break up secret diplomacy and the possibility of secret military alliances.

Even where states like the United States are not members of the League, the treaty is always filed for publication by the other contracting party. Thus all of the American treaties have been filed with the League, the same as those of League members.

Germany, although not a member of the League, has voluntarily filed all of her treaties for publication.

IMPROVEMENT TRADE REPORT

Weekly Report Of Creditmen's Association Is Slightly Better Than Last Week.

STEADY GAIN.

WINNIPEG, July 28. Canadian Press — The weekly trade report of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association, Limited, states:

Halifax — Wholesale trade showing slight improvement over last week. Retail trade holding steady. Collections fair.

St. John — Wholesale trade generally showing fairly good volume of business for immediate deliveries, and somewhat better than last year. Retail reasonably satisfactory considering the season of the year. Recent rains have brought forward the grain and other crops very well, and the fruit crop promises to be a good one. Collections are fair and quite equal to last year at this season.

Montreal — Wholesale general conditions show a slight improvement but the collections still behind normal. Retailers claim business improved and are hoping for a continuance of the same.

Toronto — Wholesale trade report fair amount of business in all lines though orders are small, and appear to be for present requirements only. Retail business is moving very nicely, there being quite a brisk demand in all lines although demand is moderate. Collections fair. The building trade is very actve in the cities. There is still a certain amount of unemployment but mostly among the clerical help. Crops of all kinds are satisfactory.

Winnipeg — Wholesale conditions not showing much improvement as yet. Retail trade quiet. Collections slow.

Saskatoon—Wholesale trade fair. Retail trade good which has been helped to some extent by the fair week. Collections are poor

Calgary. — Not much improvement in wholesale conditions since last week. Retail trade just fair. Collections are slow.

Vancouver. — Wholesale hardware sales not as good owing to slight bush fires which hinder operations. Drygoods and grocery sales fair. Boots and shoes, both wholesale and retail, report slight improvement in the city. Out of town very quiet but optimism prevails and merchants anticipate good business when returns are made on the crops. Retail hardware sales dropping off a little. Drygoods fair in summer goods only. Grocery still unsatisfactory. Collections fair.

Berlin Filled With Pauper Billionaires.

BERLIN, July 28. — (Canadian Press.)—Berlin was a city of penniless billionaires last night. Bank deposits and foreign bills of exchange were useless, as the banks had only small amounts of currency, which were paid out yesterday in small bills and rationed until the supply was exhausted. Many tourists were unable to get money enough to continue their journeys. The banks promise to have currency to-day, but no large bills are yet available in Berlin, and foreign monies are entirely out of circulation.

The food shops in various parts of the city have exhausted their supplies of sugar, flour, rice and other staples, and the police have been ordered to give special protection to food transports.

The Reichsbank will not make any new quotation on mark exchange until Monday. The present official rate is 760,000 marks to the dollar, but speculators yesterday were giving 900,000.

Premier Refused To Table Correspondence.

WINNIPEG, July 28.—(Canadian Press.)—Answering questions in the legislature yesterday morning, Premier Bracken said there had been a difference of opinion between the cabinet and the Lieutenant-Governor recently in respect of the investment of some of the funds of the provincial savings office. He refused to table the correspondence. The matter of giving Sir James Aikins assurances as to the future conduct was under consideration at the present time, the Premier replied.

An order-in-council authorizing the investment was held up by the Lieutenant-Governor, declared Mr. Bracken, because investments had been made before approval by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council.

COMPLETE BREAK IN MINE NEGOTIATIONS

Refusal Of Operators To Grant Full Recogition May Cause Break or Seperation. Why Contract Expires.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., July 28 —(Canadian Press).—Refusal of anthracite operators to grant the demand of the United Mine Workers of America for installation of the check-off dues paying system throughout the industry resulted yesterday in the sudden collapse of contract negotiations.

After a bitter contest of words, in which each side charged the other with responsibility for the state of affairs and declared its opponent was making an unfair bid for public support of an unjust cause, the joint committee of eight adjuorned sine die.

At the last moment a resolution was passed authorizing the secretary to reconvene the committee if either side indicated it had anything worh while to concede.

There was no indication, however, that miners or operators saw any weak spots in their own armor or that of their opponents which would be apt to justify a resumption of negotiations. Since the union already had publicly declared it would not submit to arbitration, the only possible peace agency seen in the way of the threatened strike on September 1, was Government intervention.

The general break was preceded 24 hours by the miners ultimatum demanding to know the operators' attitude toward "complete recognition of the union," including the closed shop and check-off system, before they would proceed with the discussion of their other demands for higher wages and improved working conditions. The operators as promptly made plain that they would refuse to grant such "complete recognition."

Urging that the futility of further conference warranted immediate adjournment, the miners finally agreed to a 24-hour truce, which ended this afternoon.

GRAIN COMMISSION WAS CRITICIZED

Board Should Get Into More Personal Touch With Producers Says Agriculturalist.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., July 28. — (Canadian Press.)—Criticism of the methods used by the Board of Grain Commissioners in controlling the grain trade featured the morning session of the Royal Grain Enquiry Commission here yesterday. Hugh McKellar, prominent agriculturist, and a representative of the Board of Trade, said farmers here often had been wondering what the Board of Grain Commissioners were doing at Fort William. He believed if the grain commission had functioned properly, the inquiry into the grain trade never would have been necessary.

TOMBSTONE, Ariz., (United Press).—Determined to put a stop to the activities of the demon speeders on the paved highway between Douglas and Bisbee, the county supervisors of Cochine county have authorized the sheriff to buy an automobile. They specified that he get one of the "high-powered kind" used by sawed-off shotgun squads in the big cities. It must be able to go 70 miles an hour, they said. Until a few years ago the sheriff did all of his pursuing on horseback.

Evidence Of Beating Insane Patients.

NEW YORK, July 28.—(Canadian Press.)—County Judge McLaughlin, who has been conducting an inquiry in King's County Court into allegations of brutality to insane patients by guards at the Brooklyn State Hospital for the Insane, announced yesterday he had received information of conditions at the institution even more startling than those which have resulted in indictments of three attendants for beating patients. He withheld the nature of the information pending the investigation of its veracity and refused to sttae from whom he had received it. He sttaed, however, that he had not received it from a patient.

Earlier, Judge McLaughlin had revealed information that one patient summoned to testify at the investigation yesterday, had been threatened with death if he made charges against hospital employees.

Hundreds Imperilled By Bursting Of Pipe.

NEW YORK, July 28.—(Canadian Press).—Hundreds of tenement house dwellers in the vicinity of East 77th and Exterior Streets, were imperilled late yesterday, when an ammonia pipe exploded in the plant of the Knickerbocker Ice Company, spreading the powerful fumes through several blocks.

The Fire Department Rescue Squad equipped with gas masks, was rushed to the scene and began the work of getting persons out of the danger zone. Ambulances were called out to remove those overcome.

No one was believed to have been killed by the explosion. A similar accident occurred in the plant about a year ago, driving the inhabitants of the tenements to the streets. Consequently they covered their faces with towels, knowing from experience that this was the safest way to escape the fumes.

BANK CLOSED DOORS

PHOENIX, Ariz., July 28.—(Canadian Press).—The Farmers' and Merchants' Bank of Tempe, Arizona, near here, with deposits of $400,000, closed its doors yesterday. DISABILITIES OF EX-SERVICE MEN TO BE OUTLAWED Claims For Pensions Arising From War Service Must Be Made Before August 31.

SOME QUESTIONS.

OTTAWA, July 28. —(Canadian Press).—A warning to all ex-members of the C.E.F. suffering from disabilities incurred during or aggravated by war service that they should immediately advance their claims, was issued last evening by the Dominion Command, G.W.V.A. The notification points out that all claims for disability pensions will be outlawed after August 31. 1924, and sets forth certain test questions for each disabled man to apply to himself to ascertain whether his claim is valid or not.

Commenting on the notification C. C MacNeil, Dominion secretary of the G.W. V. A. stated that there were large numbers of veterans whose claims had been rejected by the Pensions Board prior to the passing of the new legislation, who would not come within the range of the amended Pensions Act. Correspondence received by the Dominion Command adjustment service showed that the great maojrity were not aware that the legislation affected their status in any way.

50 YEARS OF ENDEAVOR.

COLUMBUS, July 28.—(Associated Press)—All the surviving members of the crusaders of 1874 in the field of temperance, or their nearest relatives, will be present at the fiftieth annual convention of the National Women's Temperance Union heer September 4 to 14, and arrangements are already on foot to make the event one of historic interest.

The premier spectacle, intended to call to mind the fact that fifty years of temperance endeavor have passed, and the success that has attended these efforts, will be the "March of Allegiance to the Constitution", to be held September 8. The early temperance crusades, the growth of the organization, and the development of its work will be pictured in this parade with floats and banners.

A special committee of one hundred leading women has been formed to arrange for the convention.

Conservative Sweep in P.E.I. is Evidence of Need of a Change

MONTREAL, July 28.— (Canadian Press.)— Commenting on the results of the Prince Edward Island elections, Hon. Robert Rogers, of Winnipeg, who arrived here yesterday, said: "The tremendous majorities recorded for Conservative candidates in the recent election in Ontario, followed by the great sweep in Prince Edward Island Thursday, must be accepted as evidence of an outraged public sentiment against the feebleness, both in Dominion and Provincial affairs, where Liberals and Progressives jointly attempt to do the business of our country by bartering and trading support at terrible cost, with but one single idea, that of saving themselves and their positions from the terror of a general election. These tremendous majorities indicate nothing more than an anxious desire on the part of sensible Canadian citizens to at once restore responsible, common-sense, business-like government."

Mr. Rogers added that "never in our history were Conservatives called as they are being called to-day to rally to the service of their country."

COPPER OUTPUT SHOWS DECREASE

Output Of Canadian Copper For 1922 Was Lowest Since 1904.

OTTAWA, July 28. — (Canadian Press.)— The production of copper in Canada during 1922 was 42,879,818 pounds, the lowest year's output since 1904, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. At the average price in New York over the 12 months, 13.382 cents per pound, this was worth $5,738,177, as against 47,620,820 pounds, value $5,953,555, or an average price of 12.502 cents per pound in 1921. The total production of refined copper during last year was 730,000 pounds, as compared with 4,286,000 pounds in 1921. During 1922 the plants of the British America Nickel Corporation were idle and the total Canadian production was from the refinery at Trail.

Production of nickel during 1922 was also the lowest recorded for any year since 1904, the total quantity being 17,587,123 pounds, value $6,152,993, that is to say at 35 cents per pound, the average quotation in New York during the year.

REGULATIONS NOW IN FORCE FOR CHINESE

Oriental Must Pass Special Medical Examination And Put Up A Bond Before Entering Canada.

STRICT RULES.

OTTAWA, July 28. — (Canadian Press.) — Regulations governing Chinese in transit through Canada as passed by order-in-council in accordance with legislation passed last session, are gazetted this week. Such Chinese are made subject to medical examination for certain diseases including leprosy and tuberculosis. Before being allowed to pass through Canada, the transportation company which is carrying them must give bond or deposit $1,000 with the Chief Controller of Chinese Immigration to cover penalties provided for by the immigration laws. Such sum or bond is remitted after the Chinese have lawfully passed out of Canada. During transportation of the Chinese through Canada, the company is required to keep them in the car in which they are embarked until arrival at the port of exit. They are then to be detained in a building provided for the purpose until the immigration official has examined their papers and must only leave the building in order to embark.

A similar bond or deposit of $1,000 has to be given by ship owners for every person of Chinese origin brought to a Canadian port as member of a ship's command or crew. Upon sailing again, the deposit is returned only in case the Chinese in question are on board. For the purpose of identification, a form must be furnished covering description of such Chinese, together with photograph. In return they may secure from the department a certificate of registration, which must be produced on demand by any customs or immigrattion officer.

THE FUEL SITUATION.

The Chamber of Commerce is endeavouring to secure action from the City Council in regard to the fuel question; or failing that, in deciding to tackle the problem on its own account, is showing a proper sense of its responsibility as a community organization.

There is no profit in attempting to minimize the seriousness of the situation, for unless conditions materially improve there is every sign that Canada's allotment of American anthracite will not be any larger than last winter's—if, indeed, it be as large.

In another article in this column it is pointed out that the negotiations between the operators and miners are making no progress, and the inference is justified that a strike at the end of next month is inevitable.

With that much assured, it is idle to say that there will be no shortage next winter, and it is high time that municipalities recognized the need of doing everything possible to ensure a supply of fuel from other sources.

A conference with city fuel dealers, as suggested by the Chamber of Commerce, should be the first step in a campaign to put Peterobrough in better shape to face the rigors of winter than it was last year.

Sitting with hands idly folded will only mean suffering and annoyance in the months that lie ahead.

BAD NEWS FROM THE SEASIDE.

It is not good news that comes from Atlantic City where the joint scale committee of the anthracite industry has been endeavouring, between intervals of gazing upon the sea and the bathing beauties, to arrive at an agreement that will settle the difficulties between the operators and the miners.

No doubt the members of the committee are enjoying themselves. The Boardwalk and its attractions are as pleasing as ever, they are very comfortably housed in a splendid hotel, the bills of which the public will eventually have to foot, and there is nothing to worry the delegates.

But there is considerable to worry the consumer, especially the consumer in Ontario, who has learned to depend upon Pennsylvania for his coal supply, and who knows that the present agreement expires on August 31st.

For the meagre intelligence from the conference is that little progress is being made, that the representatives of the miners and the operators are as far apart as ever.

Representatives of the unions insist upon increased wages, recognition of the union and the closed shop.

The operators stand out for a continuation of the present agreement for a term of years, with annual revision of wages and arbitration.

Neither side has conceded anything, nor are there any signs that either will.

Eventually there will be a strike, and the public knows what that means.

We in Ontario have a special reason for knowing—and unless there are preparations to meet the crisis the experience of last winter will be duplicated.

A SIGNIFICANT ELECTION.

The growing resentment of the Canadian people at the heavy burden of taxation they are carrying and their anxiety to seize upon any opportunity to secure relief are convincingly demonstrated by the landslide in the Provincial elections in Prince Edward Island where a Liberal majority of eighteen in a Legislature of thirty members has been converted into a Conservative majority of twenty-two.

Four years ago the Bell Liberal Government was elected by 24 seats to 6—on Thursday the Conservative opposition was chosen to carry on the affairs of the Province by a vote of 26 seats to 4.

Every member of the Cabinet was defeated, and the majorities in almost every case were very large.

And yet the Bell Government had been regarded as one of the best that the Island has had, and its administration of public affairs had been considered as efficient and honest.

The result can be accredited to one factor—and a factor that politicians everywhere should not overlook.

The Opposition made a definite promise to the people, an offer that if the Conservatives were returned to power the Provincial poll tax would be abolished.

The electors, eager to shift some of the burden off their shoulders, have taken Mr. Stewart at his word and have returned him to carry out his promise.

His mandate is to abolish the poll tax—and his problem is to provide an efficient government with the reduced revenue that will be the result.

The lesson for politicians in the Prince Edward campaign is that the vast majority of people are sincere in their demands for economy, and that they are willing to scrap political affiliations when there is an opportunity offered them of getting what they want.

FACING BANKRUPTCY.

There is a tendency on the part of some people to treat the wheat situation as not nearly so serious as claimed.

"The farmers are always complaining," such people say, "and now, with the biggest crop on record, they are talking blue ruin before they are hurt."

This time, however, the farmer, either in Canada or the United States, is quite justified in talking "blue ruin"—because in spite of the huge crop it is staring him in the face.

The sudden crash of grain prices has suddenly turned the bright hopes of the wheat growers into black disaster.

Across the line the American Government is being urged to come to the rescue.

More than a million wheat growers are said to be facing bankruptcy, and the question is to be put squarely up to President Harding by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Two measures of assistance are to be urged—first, that granaries be classified as warehouses, thus enabling the farmer to borrow money with his wheat as security, and, secondly, that the Farm Loan Board administer the Interstate Credit Act passed at the last session as it is written.

There has been no intimation from the Government at Ottawa as to any steps to meet the situation.

The Department of Agriculture has been issuing optimistic messages on farm problems, but their effect is largely spoiled by the fact that the most pressing question of how the Western farmer is to survive when the price of wheat is less than the cost of production has not been touched upon.

The collapse of the wheat prices constitutes the most serious problem that Canada faces at the present time.

Conditions have been bad in the West for several years, and the hope that a huge wheat crop would save the day has been shattered by the unexpected drop in prices.

The situation calls for action.

FORESTS AND THE FUTURE.

A greater significance attaches to the convention of the British Empire Forestry Association, now being held at Ottawa, than may appear at first sight to the casual observer, says the Montreal Star. Delegates are in attendance from almost every important part of the British Empire, and the questions under discussion are of the utmost importance to the future. Some measure of what depends upon the work of the association may perhaps be gauged from the fact that while the Empire contains one-third of the world's timber, yet the timber trade spent only fifteen per cent. of its total expenditure in 190 within the Empire. But the Prince of Wales, in his cabled message to the convention, emphasizes a still more important point than the fostering of Empire trade—the promotion of a sound policy of forest conservation throughout the Empire. "By such means alone," declares His Royal Highness, "can we ensure that our present resources are used to the best advantage and our supply of timber maintained for the future."

That is the crux of the whole situation—to safeguard the timber wealth of the Empire for future generations. As usual, the Prince has succeeded in putting his finger on the vital spot. Canada may, therefore, take some measure of flattering unction to its soul when the heir-apparent pats the Canadian Forestry Association on the back, congratulating its members "upon a fine record of patriotic work." As the Prince says, the forests of Canada are a priceless heritage. When he further commends the work of the Forestry Association to "every patriotic citizen," he is speaking no idle word. For every citizen of the Empire who has its welfare at heart is interested in the conservation of those resources upon which its vitality and its future prosperity depend, and one of the chief of these is its forest wealth.

"GEE! HE NEVER LIVED IN IT!"

Standing beside a pile of unopened newspapers the other afternoon, we happened to overhear an observation of a newsboy. A quotation from Cox's remarks on Canada had been used as a "sweep" headline in The Journal, and the very fact that Canada was a wonderful country struck the lad as something so extraordinary that laughter was his only way of relieving his feelings. "Gee," he remarked to a chum nearby, "guess he never lived in it or he wouldn't think it was so darned grand." And there you are, you can either take it or leave it, for is Canada a thing of grandeur, a young and untried giant, or is it merely a country that trained mechanics are leaving for the higher wages in the United States, and to which at the present time few immigrants are coming?

What medium is teaching the youngsters of this country that Canada is a country to be proud of? Is Canadian history taught in our schools in a way that will make better Canadians, or is that teaching largely nullified by the moving picture screen, with its stories of the grandeur of the United States? Do Canadian children read the right sort of books, and if not, why? Some years ago we remember the cataloguer of a large city library remarking with some bitterness that almost every book of history that she had catalogued so far contained a stirring reference to Perry's victory on Lake Erie, and invariably quoted his report to headquarters, "We have met the enemy and they are ours." That kind of thing can hardly be kept out of every book in every library in Canada, but it should be attempted. We may be sure that United States libraries do not feature our side of the war of 1812, though unbiased historians have long ago conceded that the Americans did not win the war of 1812-14.

What do the children of today hear in their homes? Talk of high wages in the States, the efficiency of American factories and the cheapness of a great number of manufactured goods in that country compared with the price which we must pay in Canada. And it is probably true that very little is said in favor of Canada. The large numbers of our people in many of the States make a good many places almost like home to a Canadian, so that one hardly needs the courage of a pioneer to go into a new country; we read their magazines so assiduously that we know their national view-point better at times than our own, but in spite of being acquainted with them, they are not of us, and never can be.

It isn't any particular use to say that Canadians must suffer the discomforts of the pioneer and look forward to a better future for the children of today. A comfortable way of living has become a necessity, and saving is decidedly unpopular. To scrimp and save, to wear old clothes instead of new ones in order to increase the bank account, is the very best way to increase the monthly tide to the south. If we could only show in some inviting fashion to the population we now have, that Canada is a worth-while country—and there is no finer country on earth—that the depression we are almost out of is the result of our whole-hearted efforts to save humanity and ourselves, show that the undeveloped condition complained of simply means a greater opportunity for young Canadians, then the monthly figures would decrease.

But they will never get smaller if Jeremiah-like wails continue to upset our youth, for Canadians, like other people, hate unpleasant things, particularly in the "dog days."—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Still, as an American contemporary puts it, if it wasn't for the detours we wouldn't appreciate good roads.

This is a strenuous year for athletes. James K. Hachett, famous actor, breaks his arm after missing the golf ball at which he swung, and Babe Ruth hits so hard at a baseball that he sprains his neck.

Mr. Ramsden's opinion of the new Government seems to run along similar lines as the new Government's opinion of Mr. Ramsden.

Canada seems to be full of people who would have prevented the Toronto robbery if they had only happened to be on the scene when the raid took place.

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, July 28.—Unless all calculations go astray, the present depression in the cattle trade is temporary and usual at this season, and will be succeeded not very much later on by good active markets. The exceptionally heavy run a week ago last Monday of over 7,000 cattle, by far the greater proportion consisting of poor quality half fat grassers, gave the market a quick set back, from which it has not yet fully recovered. With a hold over of some hundreds of common cattle continuously for two days running, there has been a steady drag on the market which has prevented a good quality, well finished butcher cattle in the past two weeks has created a keener demand in this particular class, at prices holding steady to firm from $7 to $7.25, and anything extra choice up to $7.50. For the fair to medium class from $6 to $6.50 The commoner stuff has been in a draggy and declining market right up to this week's close, when it might be safely said that the commonest stuff could not be cleaned up at any price. The result is still a large number of rough, poor quality cattle hanging on over the week-end.

There will be a fairly good market next week for good quality butchers stuff, but in the best interest of all concerned, unfinished and half fat cattle should be kept rigidly out of the market for the next few weeks.

The demand for export cattle is just now very limted, and is likely to continue so, according to present advices, for at least the next two weeks. A troublesome and unexpectedly prolonged labor strike in the dock yards in England has dislocated shipping dates, and for the present there is no certainty as to just when vessel space will be available. With a resumption of regular ocean traffic, it is expected there will be a very active demand for all the heavy cattle that we can supply. In the meantime it will be wise to go easy in the matter of shipping cattle to market under present conditions, especially cattle of undesirable quality.

Calves have been in fairly steady market all week, at slightly better prices for choicest selections at around $10.50 to $11.

Choice top spring lambs steady to firm around $13 to $13.75.

Hog market steady to a little firmer at the close, a few going to outsiders at $9, fed and watered. Local packers bidding steady at $8.25 f.o.b. and $8.85 fed and watered.

Receipts.

Union Stock yards, total receipts this week, 4,749 cattle, 1,530 calves, 5,335 hogs, 1,951 sheep and lambs.

City cattle market, 250 cattle, 1,040 sheep and lambs, 457 hogs, 320 calves.

They Had No Banks

IN pioneer days the general merchant often kept the money of his customers for them—there were no banks. Buying and selling were largely by barter only.

The coming of the branch bank filled an important need in every community, and to-day the wise farmer, business man or private individual keeps his money in the bank and makes full use of the many services it has to offer.

MOB SLAYINGS STILL REPORTED

And Protagonists Of National Anti-Lynching Law In U. S. Rally Again.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Proponents of the much-filibustered Dyer anti-lynching bill are renewing their efforts to inscribe it on the Federal statute books, as reports of mob killing trickle in from all over the country.

Failure of Congress to enact the measure at the last session is regarded by supporters of the Dyer proposal as a partial condonement of mob rule.

Plans to shove the bill through at the next session are being formulated now. Leaders declare the fight will be waged with renewed vigor when the speaker's gravel falls on the House rostrum when the lawmakers return to their tasks.

Mobs Still Busy.

During the first three months of this year, four men were lynched by unidentified mobs, official statistics reveal. Three were negroes. One was white.

Thirteen persons—six whites and seven negroes—were killed in riots.

Nineteen, including two white women, were flogged publicly. Four were victims of masked mobs.

In 1922, 57 persons were stolen out of their jail cells and summarily executed by gangs of infuriated citizens who took the law into their hands.

South Shakes Off Yoke.

Judge Lynch, cold unreasoning advocate of old Virginia, had come back to the bench.

But observers believe mob violence is on the wane in the south. The number of lynchings in Dixieland have decreased somewhat in recent years.

This is due, according to those who have studied the situation, to two things:

Migration of thousands of negroes to the north:

And a reaction from the agitation for a federal anti-lynching bill, such as that introduced by Representative L. C. Dyer of St. Louis.

Women Take Up Cadgel.

Women in Louisiana have banded together to blot out lynchings. They've organized the Louisiana Race Relations Committee. Similar steps are being taken by their sisters in other southern states.

The American Civil Liberties Union of New York, together with the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, has been working tirelessly in behalf of the Dyer measure So is the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute of Tuskegee, Ala.

The latter institution has compiled figures showing Texas, in 1922, led all other states in the number of lynchings within its borders. It had 18 victims.

Official Report.

Reports of the Civil Liberties Union list these lynchings for 1923:

LOUISIANA: Leslie Leggett, a negro accused of associating with white women, was kidnapped and lynched at Shreveport on Jan. 4. Police had been unable to obtain evidence warranting his arrest.

ARKANSAS: E. C. Gregor, a railroad striker, was lynched on Jan. 13 by a mob of farmers at Harrison, who visited his home in search of evidence in connection with destruction of property of the Missouri & North Arkansas railroad.

TEXAS: Dr. John Smith, a negro physician, was burned to death at Bishop after his hands and feet had been cut off by unknown persons. He had been arrested for injuring a woman while driving his automobile.

Appeal to Religion.

GEORGIA: An unidentified negro was lynched in a swamp near Devereux on Feb. 3 by a posse which accused him with robbing stores and killing William Renfroe, county constable.

Meanwhile clergymen and social workers are appealing to religious instincts to stop these wholesale murders.

"Let the law take its course," they advise. "Our courts are for the protection of man's rights. And they will see that justice is meted out. The guilty will be punished and the innocent will go free.

"Judge Lynch is no longer the prototype of Twentieth Century justice."

Cleaning The Face Of County Court House.

The stone and cement facing of the Court House is emerging from its grimy coat of six years' standing under the hand of Fred. Mahood, caretaker of the stone pile.

Mr. Mahood is working with wire brushes and scrapers of all sizes and shapes, rubbing and scraping the black surface off the pillars and steps, and already the entrance has taken on a brighter appearance. The job is lengthy, and requires perserverance, the interstices in the scroll work which ornaments the pillars being difficult to reach.

A CAMPBELLFORD STORY OF FISHING

By Common Consent The Crown Goes To This Disciple Of Izaak Walton.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 28.—Talking about fishing, the crown, by common consent of local and visiting disciples of Izaak Walton, is awarded to John Tierney, well known in Peterborough, who is at present connected with the Toronto Carpet Company, besides being financially interested in the Campbellford Cloth Company here. Mr. Tierney was in town recently on business connected with the latter industry, when he accompanied a party of friends on a fishing trip to Crow Bay. At the start Mr. Tierney modestly admitted that he knew nothing about angling in lake or river, all of his experience in this line being confined to a rather successful career as a deep sea fisherman.

Mr. Tierney, who was equipped with a fancy outfit, including a silver minnow for bait, had all the luck of a beginner. Every big lunge and pickerel in the bay seemed to be fighting for a gulp at the glittering temptation on the end of his line. He hauled them out at a rate that constrained local fish wardens to express the fear that if he kept on he would deplete the waters of the Trent. He was induced to desist only when the truck driver whom he had hired to move his spoils to town complained that the carrying capacity of his vehicle was liimted to one ton.

A glutted fish market and a drop in the price of that article of diet of about 30 per cent. is thus accounted for. Mr. Tierney celebrated his achievement by entertaining a party of friends to a fish dinner in the St. Lawrence hotel, but hearty as were the appetites of the guests, only a fragment of the famous catch was disposed of at the banquet.

JUBBULPORE APPLAUDS RAISING INDIA'S FLAG

NAGPUR, India, July 28.—(Associated Press).—Demonstrations held in connection with the display of the Indian national flag continue daily in Nagpur, and have spread to other cities of India. Arrests in Nagpur for flag agitation now total 560. As a rule the prisoners are given brief prison sentences.

At Jubbulpore the national flag has been hoisted over the Town Hall on four separate days, with resulting arrests by the police on each occasion. The initial hoisting of the flag was proceeded by a street procession in which about eight thousand people, including many women, took part. This procession, headed by a drum corps, marched to the Town Hall singing national songs. Volunteers reached the portico and dome by the aid of ladders and ropes. One of the men then climbed the flagpole and fastened the flag, encouraged by loud cheering from the people below. The crowd which witnessed the scene is estimated at twenty thousand.

There are more women than men voters in Sweden.

CHINA IS BROKE AND SHE CANNOT PURCHASE

By RAY G. MARSHALL

PEKING (By mail to the United Press).— American manufacturers and capitalists whose customers are nations, will have to take China off the list for a time.

The Government will not be a customer for some time, though private business will probably continue to thrive.

The Government just now is unable to buy the things she needs and pay cash and is unwilling to buy them on credit under the terms offered. She is unable to pay debts or to contract new ones at advantageous terms.

For this reason John J. Abbott, representative of the Continental Commercial Bank of Chicago, is returning home after failing to obtain interest or principal of a loan of $5,000,000 which China defaulted at the time of the Washington Conference.

Proud But Broke.

For the same reason Frederick W. Stevens, representative of the American groups of the consortium, is returning to America. The consortium was organized to build railroads, highways, canals, or other needed public utilities but China will not accept construction loans and let the foreigner supervise the spending of the money. At the same time the government has no money and can not even keep its present railroads in good working order.

General business, however, is good with the exception of the cotton spinning trade. The industry was developed beyond the actual needs of the country. Japan buys much of her cotton in China and the remaining stocks are not sufficient to keep the mill going. Hence sales of mill machinery will not be large for a few years.

Other lines of machinery, however, will do well, as will paper, electrical goods, bicycles and light motorcycles, sheet metal and possibly before the end of the year, wireless receiving sets.

SWEDES ARE OPPOSED TO REDUCING ARMY

STOCKHOLM, July 28.—(Associated Press)—Sweden's membership in the League of Nations has not eliminated the necessity of effective preparations for war, and the plan for a drastic reduction of the Swedish army, recently recommended by the Riksdag Defence Revision Committee, does not provide such preparedness. This is the official opinion of the commission of 18 Swedish generals after a recent conference.

In case of attack Sweden is to receive armed assistance from other members of the League, until such assistance arrives, it was pointed out, the country must be prepared to resist the first shock. Futhermore, Sweden might, in some other case, be called to render military assistance, it was argued, as, for instance, if Finland were attacked by Russia.

The commission of Swedish generals urges the maintenance of the present number of army units, together with the retention of general compulsory service. It recommends that every conscript be trained during a period of 14 to 16 months, and that the age limit for liability to military service be extended to include the forty-fifth year. More complete practical and academic training is recommended for both commissioned and non-commissioned officers. The generals recognize the importance of civilian aviation forces in case of war, and therefore recommend state support to aviators in commercial and other non-military service.

BABY'S GREAT DANGER DURING HOT WEATHER

More little ones die during the hot weather than at any other time of the year. Diarrhoea, dysentry, cholera infantum and stomach troubles come without warning, and when a medicine is not at hand to give promptly the short delay too frequently means that the child has passed beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in the house where there are young children. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly the prompt use of the Tablets will relieve the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FORTY YEARS RESIDENT OF PERCY PASSES

The Late John Durran Had An Honourable and Successful Career In The Township.

BORN IN SCOTLAND.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 28. — John Durran died at his home in Percy township, on Thursday evening, aged 71 years, death being the result of an accident with which the deceased met over two months ago, and those who are familiar with the circumstances are surprised that he survived so long. Wokmen were engaged in putting a new roof on the barn of the deceased and he was superintending the operations. The building stands on a stone foundation over 12 feet in height. Mr. Durran was trying to close the door when he lost his balance and fell upon a cement walk. It was feared at the time that on account of his advanced age his injuries would soon prove fatal but he made a wonderful rally and for a time his friends hoped that he would entirely recover. His system however proved unable to withstand the shock and death came to him on Thursday evening.

Came to Percy in 1887.

The late Mr. Durran had an honorable and successful career in Percy township, extending over a period of nearly 40 years. He was a native of Scotland but came to this country with his wife and one child in 1887, his wife's maiden name being Flora Sinclair. He was induced to leave his native land by his cousin, J. H. Douglas, who resided near Warkworth, and who was one of the few Liberals who have represented East Northumberland in the Provincial Legislature, and whose son, D. W. Douglas is in business in Campbellford, and is the chairman of the Board of Education

On reaching Canada Mr. Durran made his home for some time with the Douglas family while seeking a location on which to start farming on his own account.

Soon after his arrival he purchased the 100 acre farm on which he resided up to the time of his death. The land was unimproved and some of Mr. Durran's friends believed he had made a mistake, but by the application of intelligent methods he converted the place into a farm which is now regarded as a model among the many fine agricultural holdings in this district, which is known as the Wilson settlement. In 1888 he put up a commodious bank barn well equipped with stables and later erected a large brick house in which he spent the remainder of his days. Other farm buildings were added from time to time, and now house and barns are equipped with electric lights. The grounds surrounding the home are laid out with all the skill of an expert landscape gardener and every arrangement shows the cultivated taste for which the deceased and his family were noted since they first settled in the vicinity.

The late Mr. Durran afterwards purchased the 100 acres opposite his homestead, the new property being situated in Seymour township, with the town line between. This farm he had also brought to a high state of cultivation. He was regarded as one of the best and most successful farmers for miles around. All of the machinery used was of the most modern type and he was one of the few farmers in the district who ran a tractor which he employed even as the motor power for the binder.

Owned a Cheese Factory.

The late Mr. Durran was well known as a breeder of thoroughbred Holstein cattle and there is at present a herd of about 30 fine animals on the farm. Some years ago he built and operated the Beaver cheese factory on his homestead. This building was destroyed by fire but Mr. Durran organized a stock company and the present structure was put up.

A Liberal and a Presbyterian.

The late Mr. Durran was a lifelong Liberal and a devoted member of the Warkworth Presbyterian church. He had no inclination for active politics and had time and again refused the request of neighbors to stand as a candidate for the township council. One of his most intimate friends was C. L. Owen, ex-M.P., at present the postmaster in Campbellford. The two held opposite views in politics, but they had much in common that cemented a friendship that stood the test of years. Mr. Owen's tribute to the deceased is that he was not only a successful business man but was a man of the highest culture and of the most unswerving integrity in all his dealings.

The deceased is survived by his wife and three children, two sons and a daughter. James, the elder is a dentist in Galt, where he has been located since 1910; David and Miss Violet reside at home. James was at home at the time of his father's death.

William, the youngest son, enlisted at Warkworth, at the outbreak of the war, and was killed overseas.

The funeral will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock to Mount Pleasant Cemeery Campbellford. Religious services will be conducted by Rev. C. F. McIntosh of St. Andrew's church here, as the new pastor of the church at Warkworth has not yet assumed his duties.

Melinda Street last Tuesday morning, did not find any new clues.

A number of messages were received from outside points, but these did not bring the police any closer to the robbers.

During the day descriptions of gunmen from different parts of Canada and the United States were examined at Detective Headquarters.

Confirmation of the story of Alex. Schernwich that he had met the bandits in the bush at Leaside on Wednesday afternoon was made yesterday by Mrs. May Fisher, who resides a short distance from the spot where Schernwich claims he was held up by the gunmen.

Mrs. Fisher also corroborated Schernwich's story of seeing a black car on the roadway. She also said she had seen men drive away at a terrific speed in the car.

NEW HOUSE LEADER FOR THE LIBERALS

Wellington Hay Makes It Quite Clear That He Is Through.

TORONTO, July 28 (Canadian Press). — Wellington Hay, who was in Toronto yesterday, stated that plans would shortly be made to call together elected Liberal members of the Legislature to select a House leader.

The meeting will take place late next month or in early September.

Mr. Hay reiterated his previous declaration that he would not sit in the next Legislature even though a seat were offered him. "I am through, but I shall do all I can to help," he said.

While Mr. Hay refused to make any prophecy as to the name of the new House leader, the general impression among Liberals is that Mr. W. E. N. Sinclair, of South Ontario, has the best claim to the position.

It is said that no general convention of Liberals will be called until after the next session at least.

A MEYERSBURG SOCIAL EVENT

Threatening Weather Did Not Keep the Crowd Away--Thirty Years Ago

CAMPBELLFORD, July 28.—The lowering clouds of last evening did not deter the people of the vicinity of Meyersburg from attending the social at the Methodist church and it would indeed have been too bad if the members of the Ladies' Aid had been disappointed in the matter of attendance after the extensive preparations that had been made for the annual function. The spacious grounds were fitted up in a manner that would have done credit to the most pretentious affair of the kind in town or city. Cords were strung overhead and from these hung streamers and other decorations. Coal oil torches furnished brilliant illumination and the entrance was artistically dressed with evergreens and banners. A table extended from one side of the yard to the other and this was loaded with tempting dainties to which the crowd paid the compliment of enthusiastic attention. The Campbellford band, 17 strong, under the leadership of R. T. Cowell, furnished their invariable excellent musical programme. In one respect this band is a conundrum. Its admirers wonder at the modesty of some of its best players which causes them to hesitate over taking a trip to the Toronto exhibition to enter the musical competition although the residents of the town and district, who appreciate good music are convinced that the band would make a creditable showing even when pitted against some of the best musical units in Ontario.

The threatening weather no doubt kept at home a number who would otherwise have attended, but as it was the ladies who managed the affair have every reason to feel gratified over their financial success. The sum of $85 was taken in at the gate and the gross receipts will be considerably augmented when the returns are in from the fancy work stand and the refreshment booth where soft drinks were sold.

The officers of the Ladies' Aid, under whose auspices the social was held, are: Mrs. Albert Bertrand, president; Mrs. Robert Bateson, vice-president; Mrs. Walter Scott, treasurer, and Miss Annie Pomeroy, secretary.

Mrs. Cadley, wife of the pastor of the circuit, Mrs. Albert Bertrand and Miss Annie Pomeroy did a thriving trade all evening in the sale of fancy work, while the refreshment booth was managed by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Merrill, Mrs. Walter Scott and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bateson, who took turns waiting on the customers. A large force of volunteer workers acted as waiters and the service was all that could be desired.

Thirty Years Ago.

Meyersburg was a flourishing village when Campbellford was only a hamlet and at that time the former place gave promise of being the banner town in the Trent Valley. Col. Meyers, in whose honor the village was named, owned a flourishing saw and grist mill.

There were two hotels, a blacksmith shop and well stocked stores. The late Mrs. Potts was the popular postmistress for nearly four decades. In the course of time J. H. Sills acquired the industrial interests of Col. Meyers, which included the deed to all the land in the district. Those were stirring days, when the hotel bars ran without restriction and liquor was to be had almost anywhere.

Mr. Sills was anxious for the good name of his village and with the praiseworthy object of setting up a moral agency in the community, donated nearly an acre of land as the site for a church. He built the foundation at his own expense and then left the rest to the people, thinking that they would be benefitted by being allowed a part in the good work. They responded nobly and the present handsome church building, the corner stone of which was laid 30 years ago under Masonic auspices, was the result.

Rev. M. E. Wilson, was pastor of the church at that time and directed the building besides securing the necessary funds. Mr. Wilson has the erection of three churches in the district to his credit, the one at Meyersburg, Bethel in West Seymour and Oak Heights, a few miles from Warkworth. He has about lived out the allotted span of life but is still in the harness, full of vigor and enthusiasm, being at the present time pastor of the church at Cambray.

Meyersburgh church is situated in a thriving community and is one of the strongest rural congregations in the district, with no signs of decadence in evidence. For years it was noted for its efficient choir which was trained by Mr. T. W. Dillsworth who retired from that position only six months ago. Its soirees held annually became so celebrated and the patronage from all over the district so heavy that it was found necessary in order to accommodate the crowds to add a story to part of the shed and fit up a spacious dining room. The day of the tea meeting however has given place to the social held every summer in the wide expanse of the open air.

FIVE MILLION TO HEAR ADDRESS OF PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, July 28. — (Canadian Press)—Plans have been completed whereby the address of President Harding to be delivered next Tuesday evening in the Civic auditorium in San Francisrco will be broadcasted to the largest radio audience on record, estimated at between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 people, according to the Republican National Committee.

The reaching of this vast audience will be made possible by transmitting the President's words over transcontinental telephone lines to broadcasting stations in each of the following cities. San Francisco, Omaha, Chicago, New York, Washington and Roundhills, Mass.

This is the first time that such broadcasting stations have ever been joined together by a single wire line to operate simultaneously.

REABORO, July 28 (Special to The Examiner), — The inquest here last evening into the death of Lorna McNiven, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. Bruce McNiven, who was killed by an automobile on Tuesday evening last, resulted in a verdict of accidental death.

The jury completely exonerated Mr. Robert Cotton of Peterborough, who was driving the car at the time of the accident.

BRITISH MAY GOVT. PLAY A LONE HAND

LONDON, July 28. — (Canadian Press.)—The opinion that Great Britain eventually will be obliged to send its own reply to Germany without co-operation from France and Belgium, is strengthened by the latest reports from Paris.

Some observers, however, believe that the attitude of Belgium, the aim of whose government is described by the diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, as an attempt "to bridge the gulf between the British and French standpoints," may keep the allies together so that a united front toward Germany may be maintained.

News from Paris to-day says that the French note to Great Britain in reply to the British suggestions as to a joint response to Germany's reparations memorandum was said authoritatively to-day to have been drafted with the determination to exhaust every means of reaching a full accord with the British.

Imports of motor vehicles into the United States totalled 456 in 1922.

TWO DOGS TORE BOY TO PIECES

And Fifty Spectators Looked on in Horror—Unfortunate Victim Bled to Death.

NORTH BERGEN, N.J. July 28 —(Canadian Press). —While about 50 person, looked on in horror, two great Danes virtually tore to pieces Joseph Genatt, 9-years-old of 414 West street Hobokon, at Flora Park North Bergen, yesterday afternoon. The child died before the ambulance got to the North Hudson Hospital. Adolph Bentz, owner of the dogs was arrested on the technical charge of manslaugher.

The boy victim was on his way hom, with other children, when he decided to take a look into the park. As soon as he got inside the gate the dogs attacked him. His companions did not follow as they heard the growls of the canines.

The boy was unable to retrace his steps, as the gate had closed upon him.

At the hospital, Dr. Frederic found that the boy's juglar vein had been severed and that the lad had bled to death.

The First Sea Lord Threatens To Resign.

LONDON, July 28 (Canadian Press). — The old controversy centring about the demands of the Admiralty for a separate air force for the Navy has been revived in the last few days, and rumours are afloat that certain members of the Admiralty Board, including Earl Beatty, First Sea Lord, would resign unless their claim was granted

There was mute tension in the matter during the early part of the present session of Parliament when Bonar Law, then Premier, announced that the question would be referred to the Committee on Imperial Defence, whose decision, it was understood, the Admiralty had agreed to accept.

This committee has reported, and although the report has not been publicly issued, it is believed to be averse to the aims of the Admiralty, and that it proposes to relieve the situation by a compromise which would admit certain naval officers to the Air Ministry.

GOVERNMENT HOMES.

LONDON, July 28.—(Associated Press)—More than 15,000 applications have been made for use of the 10,000 houses which the Government will build within the next few months.

The houses, which are being constructed under the scheme to stop the house shortage of England and Scotland, may be rented or purchased by the public, and so great had been the demand that it has been necessary to refuse two thirds of the applications made since the war.

CHAPLIN-NEGRI ENGAGEMENT OFF

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 28.—(Special).—The engagement of Pola Negri, Polish movie tragedienne, to Charles Spencer Chaplin, star comedian of the motion pictures, is off, definitely, after having once been off and then on again. Miss Negri, still says, hello, to Chaplin, but realized five weeks ago "that a match with him" was an impossibility, according to the Los Angeles Times.

"Mr. Chaplin is a charming fellow," she said. "We are still friends. I say, "hello" to him, but I realized now I never could have married him. He is too temperamental and as changing as the wind. He dramatizes everything. He experiments in love. He has no quality for matrimony. I am glad it is over."

hme couple announced their engagement, six months ago at Delmonte, Calif. Once afterwards, when Chaplin was quoted in a newspaper about "being too poor to marry," a quotation he later denied, but was correct, Miss Negri released Chaplin, but they later made up.

The Coming of The Hector

By JUDGE G. PATTERSON

On 15th September, 1773, the ship "Hector" sailed into Pictou Harbour, Nova Scotia, with a precious cargo of some two hundred sons and daughters of the heather. Her coming marks the beginning of Scottish immigration into this country.

They were not, indeed, absolutely the first to come. Just as there had been Frenchmen in Canada before Champlain, or Englishmen in what is now the United States before the Pilgrim Fathers, so there had been some few persons here of Scottish birth and ancestry before the arrival of the Hector. We read of a St. Lawrence pilot "dit l'Ecossais" who was at work years before Wolfe fell gloriously at Quebec, and a monument in that city now commemorates him. Upon the signing of the Treaty of Paris in 1763, a Highland regiment was disbanded at Quebec. The descendants of those men are in that province today, where it is not unusual to meet a Fraser or a Ross or a MacDougall, French in everything but name. In Halifax in 1768 there were enough Scots to form the "North British Society," and—although according to the latest story not more than two individuals are essential for such a purpose—it is fair to suppose that these were a substantial group. Before the Hector reached Nova Scotia two ships had come to Prince Edward Island, the Alexander and another, with Scottish immigrants on board. But these had arrived as tenants of one of the landed proprietors among whom the whole island had in one day been divided, and there was no connection between them and any that either preceded or followed. The Alexander, which came to Charlottetown in 1772, brought passengers driven from their homes in South Uist by the brutal fanaticism of their Laird, MacDonald of Boisdale, who compelled his tenants either to turn Protestant or to leave. Another MacDonald, he of Glenaladale—clarum et venerabile nomen among the Catholics of Prince Edward Island and West Scotland—came to their rescue, sold his own estate, and with the proceeds brought the persecuted men of Boisdale to Prince Edward Island. There he settled them on his land as tenants; and for many, many long years they had to pay rent. Naturally they did not try to induce others to follow them; if rent had to be paid, as well pay it in the old land as in the new. Better to bear the ills they had, than fly to others that they knew not of. Thirty-on years passed before another ship with immigrants came to Charlottetown. But the men of the Hector came of their own free will, under no compulsion whatever, to settle not on the land of another, but on their own, and never again knew landlord or factor. At once they began to spread the gospel of land "rent-free" among their kinsmen and friends across the Atlantic who made haste to join them. The Hector was thus the pioneer ship of that great movement of population from Scotland to Canada which, though sadly interrupted by the war of the American Revolution, was immediately resumed at its close and continued with unabated and even growing force for more than two score years. The Hector was Canada's Mayflower.

Settlement of Pictou had already begun. In 1762 the Surveyor-General of Nova Scotia reported to his Government as follows:—

From Tatamagouche to the Gut of Canso there is no Harbour, but a good road, under the Isle of Pictou. No inhabitant has ever settled in this part of the country, and consequently there is no kind of improvement.

But at the end of the war between England and France in 1763 a great desire to colonize Nova Scotia manifested itself, especially in the New England States. In 1765, fourteen gentlemen of Philadelphia—the so-called "Philadelphia Company"—including in their number Benjamin Franklin and Dr. Witherspoon (afterwards President of Princeton University)—received a grant of two hundred thousand acres in what is now Pictou County. This has since been known as "The Philadelphia Grant." Two years later this Company sent a little brig, the Hope, Hull, Master, to Pictou with six families. Pictou's Natal Day is thus not September 15th, but June 1 th, the day this brig entered the Harbour. Of these six families only four remained, but in the six years that intervened between the coming of the Hope and that of the Hector the four families had increased to sixteen, of whom ten afterward moved away.

In course of time, John Pagan—a merchant of Greenock—became the owner of three undivided shares in the Philadelphia Company. He was the owner, too, of an old ship called Hector, which in 1770 had carried Scottish immigrants to Boston. One John Ross had been employed by the Company to visit Scotland, with authority to offer to each settler free passage, a farm lot, and a year's provisions. Ross painted a glowing picture of a land so rich and varied that soap, sugar, and fuel could be got from the same tree. Above everything else, he spoke of a country where everyone could own his land. A shipload of passengers was quickly secured. Pagan's ship, the Hector, John Spears, Master, James Orr, First Mate, John Anderson, Second Mate, was ready and soon chartered. She was an old Dutch ship and a dull sailer. She cleared at Greenock with three families and five unmarried men, and beat her slow way north to Loch Broom, Rosshire, where she received the remainder of her passengers, —thirty families and twenty unmarried men. Thence she sailed for Pictou.

The exact date of her sailing has long been a matter of dispute. That it was before July 1st can, I think, be conclusively proved. One child, who afterwards became Mrs. Page, of Truro, great grandmother of the Hon. Mr. Justice Rogers of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, was born on the voyage. On this lady's tombstone in the old cemetery near the Courthouse, Truro it is stated that she was born "at sea on the Hector on July 1st." Even Byron, who warned us against believing a woman or an epitaph, would accept as true so plain and so matter-of-fact an inscription as that. Accounts differ about the number of persons on board; one says, two hundred; another, one hundred and eighty-nine; a third, ten hundred and seventy-nine. My own opinion is that the ship started with about two hundred, and that only one hundred and seventy-nine arrived We know that eighteen died on the way over. One of the number had not engaged a passage. He was a piper, and the captain ordered him off the ship, but the passengers offered to supply him from their own rations, and begged that he be allowed to come with them. The captain relented, and the piper came. It is an illuminating incident. These immigrants were bringing their schoolteacher with them, and they now made sure that they would have music. This passion for learning—sweetened and brightened and enlivened by music—is the present day characterizes the descendants of these settlers, and not only of these, but of all the Scottish immigrants of that period.

None of those on board had ever crossed the Atlantic before, and only one of them ever saw the dear homeland again. They went out in faith, like Abraham of old, not knowing whither they went. Gilfillan's Emigrant's Lament had not then been written, but its sentiments must often have been in their hearts as the weary days passed:—

Oh, why left I my hame?
Why did I cross the deep?
Oh, why lef t I the land
Where my forefathers sleep?
I sigh for Scotia's shore
And gaze across the sea,
But I cannat get a blink
Of my ain countree.

The voyage lasted eleven weeks. Near Newfoundland the travellers met a severe storm which drove them back so far that it took a fortnight to recover the lost distance. Food and water ran low; small-pox and dysentry broke out. Who can describe their joy when on September 15, 1773, the Hector entered the Harbour of Pictou? The forests around would be glowing in their autumnal glory. Perhaps the sun would be setting over Greenhill. At any rate, their eyes rested on a scene more fair and goodly than could be found even in the "land of brown heath and shaggy wood."

One incident of the landing deserves to be mentioned. The Indians had been giving trouble to the immigrants from the Hope, but when news was received of the Hector these settlers announced in triumph that the Highlanders were coming—the same men whom they had seen fighting in petticoats at the taking of Quebec The Indians gathered on the shore, prepared to di pute their landing by force and a ms. But the Highlanders, who in honour of the occasion had dug out from ancient trunks the kilts they were forbidden by law to wear, and the dirks that were by law confiscated, were not to be denied. Preceded by the piper, they started shoreward. One skirl of the pipes and the Indians fled in terror to the woods, and never gave trouble again. The biologist may describe the emotions we Scotsmen feel when we hear the strains of the bagpipes as "waves of molecular disturbance propagted through the nerve centres by vague emotional combinations organized in the early experiences of the race." But how will he account for their effect on the Indian? Who ever heard of an Indian being afraid of a molecular disturbance?

Seventeen seventy-three was the fateful year when the East India tea was dumped into Boston Harbour. There were men on the Hector who had been "out" with Prince Charlie. The great majority of them were not allowed to speak their native tongue or wear their native garb. Yet while during the American War there was dissatisfaction in Halifax, sedition in Lunenburg, open rebellion in Cumberland, and not enough men in Colchester willing to take the otah of allegiance o constitute a Grand Jury, the Highlanders of Pictou never waver d. They were loyal to a man:

True as the dial to the un
Although it be not shined upon.

In 1774, the year after the coming of the Hector, fifteen amilies of the best blood of he Lowlands came o Pictou. They had gone first to Prince Edward Island, but found conditions there were not to their liking. In one of these families The Dalhousie Revi w should have a special interest, for one of its descendants is the ac omplished and brilliant writer of "Topics of the Day."

During the war of the American Re lution there was no actual addition to the Scots in Nova Scotia though attempts were made to send out other settlers. These efforts were frustrated by the action of the home Government. At the close of the war, however, a Scottish regiment—the 82nd or "Hamilton"—then on garrison duty at Halifax, was there disbanded. The soldiers insisted on joining their kinsmen in Pictou. To accommodate them, land previously granted was escheated, in spite of strenuous efforts by the Governor of Nova Scotia to prevent his, and more than one hundred and fifty came to Pictou or Antigonish. There, next year, they were joined by sixty odd members of the second battalion of the 84th, or Royal Highland Regiment, with their families. The remainder of this battalion went to Douglas in Hants County, where a few of the Hector passengers had previously settled. In this regiment the men of the given the rank of Major, had enlisted and had don yeoman service on various fronts, returning to Prince Edward Islan Island when peace was declared.

Direct immigration was resumed in 178 , and continued in '85, '86, '87. It was not until the last of these years that any large body came. Until then most of the immigrants had been from the Highlands, and they had been induced to come by the representations of their compatriots about land "rent-free." In the Hector, however, there were three families and five unmarried men from the Lowlands. These too had been making representations to their friends which resulted in bringing to Nova Scotia through Pictou a large number of immigrants from Kirkcudbright and Dumfries in 1788 and 1789. By 1791 the population of Pictou was estimated at thirteen hundred. In that year two vessels arrived loaded with settlers from the western island of Scotland, Roman Catholics who after a winter in Pictou eventually took up their land in Antigonish and Cape Breton. Every year thereafter saw at least two vessels come, filled to overflowing. One writer says "Only the bed-ridden were left behind." For instance, in 1801 no fewer than thirteen hundred souls were landed in Pictou, many of whom went to Cape Breton or to Antigonish. In 1802 one vessel brought three hundred and seventy all from the Island of Barra — the ancestral home of the McNeils. They went to Cape Breton and there are more McNeils today in one polling section of Victoria County than there are in the whole Island of Barra. Of this clan it may be said more emphatically than any other that it was neither religious persecution nor "Highland clearances" which sent them out. On the contrary their chief followed them to the shore at their embarkation imploring them not to leave him. But the lure of the land they could own triumphed even over their devotion to the head of the clan.

In 1803 it was stated that there were five thousand inhabitants in Pictou. One thousand more were expected in that year and it is certain that eight hundred and forty-five arrived. Nor were the numbers smaller in the years that followed. So long as the stream continued it poured through Pictou following in the wake of the Hector. The most desirable lands around Pictou had long since been granted and most of these later immigrants made their way to Prince Edward Island Antigonish Cape Breton Guysboro and Colchester counties and other parts of Nova Scotia. For example all or nearly all of the passengers on one of the vessels coming in 1804 went to Wallace Cumberland county N.S. So careful an historian as Brown estimated that between 1802 and 1807 twenty-five thousand went to Cape Bretou alone. A number far from negligible stood not upon the order of their going until they reached north-eastern New Brunswick and many went even to Ontario. It would be rash to say that none of these would have come to Canada had not the Hector led the way but certainly very many of them would not have come and the coming of others would have been greatly delayed.

The present year is the hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the coming of that pioneer ship and we are now within two weeks of the day when Pictou will be ablaze with the glow of celebration. Without disparaging the immigrants of other nationalities a Scotsman may be pardoned at such a time if he boasts that no other has contributed so much as the Scottish to the upbuilding of the Maritime Provinces of Canada. Consider the educational feature alone. The Passengers on the Hector brought their school-teacher with them. Their kith and kin coming later followed this example. And these teachers were not ordinary men; one was a graduate of Aberdeen University another of Edinburgh a third was grandfather of Simon Newcombe—the greatest astonomer America has so far produced. Nor were the settlers satisfied with primary education alone. They started a College which—to avoid jealousy—they called an "Academy." This was to be "open to all youths no matter to what mode of faith they are attached." It was in the fights over that College that the reformers bared their arms and fleshed their swords for the battle for Responsible Government. We do not exaggerate if we say that Free Schools and Responsible Government came to Nova Scotia with the coming of the Scottish immigrants.

BEFORE MY BABY CAME

I Was Greatly Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sydenham, Ont. —"I took your medicine before my baby was born, and it was a great help to me as I was very poorly until I had started to take it. I just felt as though I was tired out all the time and would have weak, faint spells. My nerves would bother me until I could get little rest, night or day. I was told by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I only took a few bottles and it helped me wonderfully. I would recommend it to any woman. I am doing what I can to recommend this good medicine. I will lend that litttle book you sent me to any one I can help. You can with the greatest of pleasure use my name in regard to the Vegetable Compound if it will help others take it."—Mrs. HARVEY MILLIGAN, Sydenham, Ontario.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many women are poorly at such times and get into a weakened, rundown condition, when it is essential to the mother, as well as the child, that her strength be kept up.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother at this time. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs. It may be taken in safety by the nursing mother.

If We Only Wouldn't Drink It

Man's submission to the lure of John Barleycorn is preventing him from taking advantage of one of the most saving opportunities he will ever meet as a motorist.

That is the chance for practically every chance to make his own motor fuel at a ridiculously low cost!

The motor fuel is alcohol, said to be far better than gasoline as a power source, but prohibited from sale or use for any purpose, except medical, in the United States.

If every man were a tee-totaler! And the Government were certain of his remaining such!

Stills could be erected in every backyard, for the conversion of spoiled grain, decayed fruit, sawdust and all sorts of waste into automotive power. It would be a great boon motorists.

Until someone again discovered the intoxicating qualities of this wonderful "fuel"!

* * *

At any rate, we may be using still cheaper fuel for our automobiles. It may be gasoline, too, although not as pure (?) as the kind we use today.

Experts of the U. S. Bureau of Standards have been working with four grades of gasoline as a motor fuel, and have already come to the conclusion that all four grades give about the same mileage per gallon, under certain conditions. That is, each grade was used in a way best suited for its individual make-up. The carburetor had to be adjusted when the experts changed from one grade to another. All four grades were tested under summer conditions.

As a result, we may find it just as effective to use a lower grade of gasoline, and therefore more plentiful and cheaper, than the kind we use today.

The engineers are continuing their experiments in this direction.

* * *

In the end, gasoline as a motor fuel is a poor thing to rely on for the millions of motorists in the world. It is power the supply of which is destined to fail us—or our succeeding generations.

Instead, it has been suggested, some way ought to be found of utilizing the sunshine of the present for the creation of auto fuel. That is, growing plants in the tropics and making use of them from year to year, as sources of automotive alcohol or other fuel.

The tropics, still practically bare of useful products, may yet be put to one of the greatest uses mankind may devise for it. Alcohol, the better fuel, could be obtained from the living plants.

* * *

However, while we're still using gasoline and do not foresee its abandonment for years to come, the Research Department of the Society of Automotive Engineers is hard at work on ways and means to conserve this fuel. In its statement to the La Follette Senate Committee, which is investigating the gasoline situation, the S. A. E. reports fuel conservation can be had through improved carburetion, more efficient gasoline, better engines and education of the motoring public.

of the general public, are receiving a continually increasing amount of "All these factors," the society reports, "except perhaps the education study by the Society of Automotive Engineers and the manufacturers, and we believe that much has already been accomplished in eliminating fuel waste."

PRETTY MISS TERRY

was drawn to the house as iron filints are drawn to a magnet.

"Well, by gosh! Who are you, I wonder?" was the strange greeting she got from a smart young man in grey with silver buttons, who sat on the front seat of the car.

Terry gazed at him in pained surprise, and he stared hard at her.

"'Gosh' isn't a nice word," she informed him.

"Sorry!" remarked the youth, continuing to stare. "But I got a shock, seein' you. You're the livin' miniature image of my young lady. She doesn't look old enough to be . . . but you never know! Say, who is your Mother?"

"Her name is Mary Desmond," Terry replied. "This is our house."

"Some house!" the guardian of the blue car echoed. (Terry had never heard the word "chauffeur". For her, he was the owner.) "Sure your ma doesn't live in New York?"

"No. It's my sister who lives there," the child explained. "She comes to see us."

"I guess she's come now," said the man. "But her name's different from yours. That'll be because Miss Divine's on the stage, I expect.

Miss Divine! On the stage! Terry didn't know what being on the stage meant. She wished to ask, but something sensitive within her forbade questions to a stranger about Julia. Besides, the child's attention was caught in another trap. Julia had come —in a motor car! It was magical!

And the front door stood open. That was strange, too. No one ever used the front door.

Terry forgot that Father was in "one of his moods," and that she had been warned to keep at a distance. She darted up the steps of the porch and into the house. Then, before she could run across the hall to the passage, leading down to the basement (the family lived in the basement) a voice stopped her.

"Damn you, mind your own business!" it roared. Father's voice! And he never spoke like that except to Mother—Mother, who was so small, so meek, yet seldom gave in, really, even to him.

Everything was queer today! The voice came from the drawing-room; and now Terry remembered that the shutters were open. The door of the room was a little open, too. The child peeped in, and saw three figures in a scene of confusion.

There was Mother, her tiny figure almost overwhelmed by a mass of white calico covers taken from the brocade furniture and piled onto her thin arms.

There was Father, towering giant-like, red-haired, black-browed, handsome yet terrible. Both were standing, the small woman showing that odd mixture of cowardice and obstinacy which was—just Mother; but Julia had thrown herself into one of the newly unshrouded chairs.

It gave a background of crimson to a long coat of embroidered pearl grey silk. Oh, Julia was more like a princess than ever! And she looked sure of herself, not angry or afraid.

"Nobody asked you to interfere!" Terrence Desmond bellowed at Mary. "Jule's my daughter, not yours."

This puzzled the child. How could Julia be her sister if Mother wasn't Jule's mother too?

Terry stared at Jule. What was there different about her, beside the clothes which were so much grander than anything she had worn before? Why—her hair had turned from black to red, as red as Terry's own! It was true now, as that man had said; they did look alike, if a little girl could look like a big one.

The child longed to rush in and surprise Jule with a hug, but instinct held her back. She did not know that she ought not to listen to the conversation of grown-ups.

"I only repeated your own words," Mary replied. "If I'm not her mother I've always tried to act as a mother should. And to see her disgrace herself——"

"Oh, cut it out, Ma! Anyhow, I haven't disgraced either of you," Julia broke in. "My name's Juliet Divine. Nobody knows who my people are. And the way I'm fixed I don't want them to know. If I told Tom Perrin that my father and mother were caretakers in an old lady's house on Long Island——"

"Curse Tom Perrin!" bawled Terrence.

"You ought to bless him," said Julia. "I may do better some day, but I can't yet, and I never dare hope to do as well. Why, he's a millionaire! He'd marry me if he could."

"Why doesn't he make his wife get a divorce, then?"

"Nothing doing with her, and I don't want to be tied, though I'm not telling him that. Oh, I'll climb higher than Tom Perrin! He's a stepping-stone. Now to have a little horse sense! Tom's my biggest catch, but—he's not the first. How do you think I've lived the way I have, with things costing what they do? It's late in the day to fuss, when I've rushed down to show off my smart clothes and car, and see what I can do for you all."

"My God—to hear my daughter talk this way!" groaned Terrence. But the rage had died out of his voice. Often it had been like that before, when Jule and Father had their "rows." If Mother interfered Father turned against her and took Julia's part.

Terry wondered who Tom Perrin was, and what it meant to be a "millionaire." Father looked suddenly reflective. Perhaps he too was thinking about millionaires.

"Well, I've had my say!" Mother sighed the words on a long breath. "You've told me to hold my tongue, Terrence, and I will. I must hurry and get about my business, anyhow. With the ladies arriving this evening, and expecting dinner, there's all I can handle and more."

So speaking, she pulled the white cover off the last chair, and was at the door before Terry could move and let her pass. If Mary could have done so so. She put her arms round the beautiful, big girl's neck, thanked her, sniffed her heavenly perfume, and began to ask questions.

Was Jule on the stage? What was the stage? And what had made her hair turn red?

"Oh, the stage is a sort of place where you dance or sing, or walk on and show yourself," said Julia. "That's what I do. But I'm going on a ship soon. Maybe I won't be back on the stage much again—or maybe I will; just as I feel. And my hair has turned red because—well, because. I meant to stay here and visit a bit, but Mrs. Parmalee and Miss Sheen are coming, so everybody'll have to fly round and get things ready. I'll be better out of the way."

Mrs. Parmalee and Miss Sheen! They are coming to Silverwood. Terry was thrilled. This was the most exciting day of her life. Why were they coming? Oh, Julia hardly knew. The old dame had telegraphed to Ma. Hadn't Terry seen the boy bring the message? Well, he had brought it, and Ma had begun to tear around like a wet hen, before the motor car turned up. It was jolly selfish of Madam not to give longer notice, but there it was! And Julia must go.

She might, instead, have stayed and helped, but that didn't occur to her. Julia was not a girl you could imagine working, and if ever she had wo ked Terry couldn't remember the time. It was two years since Julia had gone to New York and had become a mysterious princess. Terry knew it was two years because Mother had said so, and two years was almost forever.

Julia offered to take her for a "spin" in the blue car, which would have been wonderful, but Mother wouldn't hear of it. "Terry's old enough to help me, and I need all the help I can get," she said. After that, Julia went at once, Father (half sullen, half admiring) shutting her into the car; and Terry would have cried if Mother hadn't looked so little, so pinched, and so harassed.

These happenings would have been enough in themselves to make a Milestone, but there were more to come before the day's end.

This story will continue Monday, under the title "A Million Dolla" Doll."

Baby Cutting Teeth Was Very Sick With Diarrhoea

When the baby starts to cut its teeth, especially during the hot weather, then is the time that the poor mother is under the stress and strain of great anxiety.

There is no remedy so safe and effectual, for the teething complaints of infants, as is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, no remedy that has had the endorsation of so many Canadian mothers during the past 78 years it has been on the market.

Mrs. C. W. Meyers, Clanwilliam, Man., writes:—"My baby girl was very sick with diarrhoea when she was cutting her teeth. I tried several different remedies, but nothing did her any good. She was getting worse when my mother sent me out a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I gave her a few doses and the next day she was much better, and in a couple more days she was as well as ever.

Now I always keep 'Dr. Fowler's' in the house and recommend it to all those troubled with diarrhoea."

BANANA SONG IS MAKING FORTUNE FOR THE AUTHORS

Verse May Be Silly But Public Is Buying It In Record Numbers.

NEW YORK, July 28.—"Yes, we have no bananas," is a $60,000 tune. When a squawking fruit hawker disturbed the late morning sleep of Frank Silver, leader of a jazz band in a New York food and noise emporium, he started something. Silver and his pianist, Irving Cohan, banded together, and taking a rib from the fruit vendor's plaintive plea, made a life-sized song hit. It will net them between $50,000 and $60,000.

The piece already has sold into a million copies, and it is actually estimated that another million copies will be sold. Stacks of phonograph records, like all the cakes in all the Childs restaurants, have been purchased. The music rolls for player pianos, pasted together, would be nearly as long as an expense account.

It is the first piece Silver and Cohan ever sold. They had written many before. When they took it to a prominent publisher, he offered them the usual $200 advance. They were so sure they had a hit, they held out for an advance of $1,000 and got it. They get a royalty of 2 cents per copy, and a royalty from each record and music roll sold. On top of that they jumped from comparative obscurity into musical fame and are now known as the "banana boys."

It is their first flash—and according to the tradition of Tin Pan Alley—where songs are made or broken—it probably will be their one and only.

After writing the song, the composers played it for three months in the cafe in which they jazz with their musical comrades each night. It was a tremendous hit. The audience joined in the chorus each night.

Now it is whistled and hummed from the Battery to the Golden Gate. Prize-fight crowds are entertained with its idiotic words. Staid waiters in wholesome restaurants have quit their tip-grabbing jobs because they feared insanity from being at the jokers' end of the season's bromide a thousand times a day.

Bananas and cream have become friends again, and the produce merchants claim sales have mounted so rapidly they almost have to say, "Yes, we have no bananas to-day," then another boat load arrives.

Publishers of the song had to force the bit on their Chicago representatives, and California refused it flatly. That was at first. Now in three months the unusual song has seeped into every hamlet and thousands of copies are being sold daily.

It started an epidemic of "crazy songs," and one may expect to hear most any crazy title announced within the next few weeks. Already the "Yes, we have no bananas blues" have arrived.

THE FATE OF HENDRIK HUDSON

He emerged out of the unknown and disappeared into the unknown under the most tragic and mysterious of circumstances."

It is in these words that a biographer of Hendrik Hudson briefly sums up the history of one of the world's greatest explorers—a man whose name is indelibly connected with the country which he discovered, but around whose birth and death there is a veil through which historians have never been able to penetrate.

Some authorities assert that Hudson was a Dutchman, others that he was of English parentage, and that both have evidence in support of their claims is apparent from the fact that his name appears on documents in the form of both "Jendrik" and "Henry."

After four voyages in the famous "Half Moon"—voyages which gave to the world the Arctic whale fisheries, Hudson Bay, the valley of the Hudson River and Manhattan Island, together with the entire coastline of North America, from Maine to Virginia—Hudson was detained in England in order, it is said, that that country might have the advantages of his discoveries. But Hudson outwitted the British authorities by having the document giving Holland the credit for his explorations smuggled into the Netherlands.

Later, the English made the great navigator a proposition which he accepted. Fitting out the ship "Discouerie," of 70 tons, they sent him out once more in search of the "Northwest Passage," which was supposed to provide a direct route to the fabulous riches of India and the Orient. It was on this voyage that, penetrating the long strait that bears his name, Hudson discovered the vast body of water known as Hudson Bay, but winter overtook him before he could find his way out and the arrival of spring found his men on the verge of mutiny.

Fearing that he would persist in his voyage of exploration, rather than return to England, the crew thrust Hudson, his son John, and five sailors who were sick with scurvy, into an open boat near the entrance to Hudson Bay, on June 23, 1611, and abandoned them.

After their return to England the mutineers reported that their master had died from natural causes, but one of their number later confessed, and, in 1612 a relief expedition was sent out by order of the Prince of Wales, but failed in its mission, leaving the fate of the great explorer as one of the great unsolved mysteries of history.

Certain "White Indians," afterward found in that section of Canada near Hudson Bay, are thought by some to have been the descendants of the discoverer of the present site of New York City, or his son; white Washington Irving, in "Rip Van Winkle," echoes the tradition that the brave navigator wandered down from Canada into the Catskill Mountains. But these are, of course, only conjectures, unbased upon actual concrete evidence. The riddle of Hudson's death, like that

The Pranks of Buffalmaco

Amid the dignified galaxy of the early Florentine painters of the thirteenth century on roguish face greets us with an impish smile. It is that of the jovial Buonamico Buffalmaco. No one who ever plied the brush was so full of ludicrous ideas as he, and he has become famous more through his exuberant pranks than through his art. At the age of 14 he was apprenticed to the aged painter Andrea Taff. Since the master, like many old people, required but little sleep, he often aroused his apprentice at the dead of night from his healthy slumber and ordered him to prepare colors or tidy up the studio. "Just wait, you old grouch, I'll cure you of that," thought Buffalmaco. He knew that the old man was very superstitious and that was the starting-point of his plan. Stealthily he caught under the warm kitchen hearth some 30 scarafaggi, or large black beetles, fastened a minute candle to each one's back, with the help of small, fine needles, lit the lights one night, quietly opened the master's door and let the parade of flickering beetles enter. Taff was just about to get out of bed, for it was the time when he usually aroused his apprentice. But he saw the ghastly little torches approaching him and remained in bed, quaking with fear. The next morning he called a priest and told him that he had seen the devil or some demons at night. "It is quite possible that the evil one stalks about in flames in the still of night" the "abbate" said unctiously. "Do not tempt the wicked spirit, my friend, but draw your covers over your head and stay peacefully in bed." The superstitious old man obeyed and from that time on Buffalmaco's sleep was never disturbed again while he remained there as an apprentice. But many years later, when he himself had become a master and lived in an old Florentine building, a dealer in woolens by the name of Cappadoca was his neighbor. Cappadoca's wife had the habit of getting up in the night and working noisily at the loom, disturbing the painter's sleep. And so the ever quick-witted Buffalmaco planned the following stratagem: He bored a hole through the brick wall of the two houses at which her hearth was located, and when her meal was cooking there and she had turned her back for a moment, he slipped a tube through the hole and poured a quantity of salt into her pots. When Cappadoca came home, he was furious about the oversalted food. One day he complained to Buffalmaco about it. "Why, that isn't surprising at all," replied he. "I don't understand how your wife can manage to stand on her feet and wield a ladle at all. She works all night and is overtired. Let her sleep at night and I'll guarantee that your meals will be better." So Cappadoca forbade his wife to work at night and the crafty painter could sleep. Meanwhile his reputation as an artist had increased and the city of Perugia commissioned him to paint the picture of a holy woman on the wall of the town-hall in the public square. Hardly had he begun when curious people came flocking from everywhere, asking him whether he would be finished soon. This irritated the painter, and so he decided to get sweet revenge. When the painting was completed he allowed the impatient ones to take a glance at it. They were delighted, especially over the splendid golden crown which the saint wore on her head. "Let the wooden partition around the picture stand a few days longer until the colors have dried," he said, smilingly pocketed his money, put a few "final touches" on the picture and left the city in the night. When the partition was finally removed, people saw that instead of the golden crown he had given the saint a diadem of fins. The enraged people of Perugia sent riders in pursuit of him, but they were unable to trace him. The dubious headdress of the saint had to be removed by another master.

At another time Buffalmaco had painted the picture of the Madonna in Calcinaia. The man who had ordered the work was a wealthy farmer. He was displeased with the result and called Buffalmaco a vile name. So over night the painter transformed the child in the arms of the madonna into a cub bear, by means of water-color, and only after the farmer had besought him on his knees to remove the monstrosity and had given him twice the stipulated amount of money, did Buffalmaco relent, wiping the bear away with a sponge and replacing it with the smiling bambino. In those days reports did not spread as rapidly as nowadays. If the pious nuns of Faenza had suspected what a rogue Buffalmaco was, they would never have let him paint the "Slaughter of the Innocents" for their abbey church. Whistling and in his shirt sleeves the master set to work. The nuns objected to his careless dress and bode him be a little more sedate. So he secretly made a large wooden doll, dressed it up very demurely in a cape and cowl, placed a brush in its hand and set it upon the scaffold before the high altar. All the nuns were greatly pleased at the decorous dress of the painter and at his industry. But as they wished to inspect the progress that he was making, they discovered their mistake. Laughingly Buffalmaco slipped out from behind the altar where he had been hiding and gave the nuns a lesson to the effect that an artist cannot be judged by his clothes. As the picture was nearing completion the nuns found that the faces of the figures were too pale. "No wonder," said the painter slyly, "I lack the red-wine to prepare the color." He knew that the abbottess kept a splendid vintage in her cellar. From then on the good nuns supplied him generously with wine, which of course he drank freely. Each of the figures received a deep crimson dab on each cheek.

But once this rogue, Buffalmaco, who had played pranks on so many people, became the unsuspecting victim of a quirk at the hands of another. The bishop Zuido of Arezzo called him to his court, asking him to decorate his private chapel. For his amusement the bishop kept a monkey who roamed at will about the palace and silently and unnoticed watched the painter very attentively as he worked in the chapel, mixing colors and cracking eggs, the whites of which was used as an adhesive medium in painting in distemper. One wall of the chapel was already beautifully decorated and the exhausted master decided to take a rest, for the next day was Sunday. But when he returned to his work on Monday, he was beside himself with surprise and rage. The whole painting was dabbed with paint like a hodge-podge and ruined by dreadful blotches. "That must be the work of an envious colleague," the furious painter avowed. He asked the bishop for six armed guards and with these he concealed himself in order to catch the supposed miscreantif he should perchance return for the purpose of witnessing the results of his mischief. Behind the confessional chairs the armed sextette hid, ready to leap upon the intruder and cut him to pieces. Suddenly the door opened and with majestic stride there entered the monkey, leaped deftly upon the scaffold, in spite of the wooden sills which he wore fastened to his hind feet to keep him out of trouble, and looked at the painting in deep, critical meditation. Then he mixed all the colors he could find into one pot, broke up all the eggs, tossed them in, yolk and all, dipped his brush into the mixture and applied it with great, dextrous sweeps to the wall. Dab upon dab became visible, and the undissolved yolk of an egg landed upon the chubby cheek of a cherub, who seemed to be smiling over the experience. Buffalmaco and his retinue could hardly contain themselves for laughter. The villain had been discovered. The monkey had taken advantage of the holiday to practise what he had observed the day before. The bishop, who was also very much amused, compensated Buffalmaco in a generous manner, requesting him to begin his work anew. But Buffalmaco replied: "It would be unfair to you, Your Eminence, to employ outside talent hereafter. You have a splendid master of painting in your own midst."

QUIET TALKS

THE HUMAN GOD

Men hunger for the human touch in —God. It's in us humans to want to know by the feel.

We crave the human touch, from cradle to grave. No fingers hold so tight as baby fingers. Children cling to mother and father and each other. The hand-clasp, lin touching lip, the light caress, the tightening hold of the hand as life ebbs out—the hunger for the human touch is in our blood.

That's why Jesus came, for that human touch, to get it, and to give it. The hunger itself is a bit of God.

Man is like God when he is truly human. That word "human" has two meanings. The hurt meaning has the come the common meaning, the weakness, the selfishness, the narrowness, in man. Originally, truly, it means the distinctive traits in which man is different from the lower creation, and is like God.

God is like man, the true human, in the power to reason things out, the twin power ot speech, the moral sense, and, its twin, moral choice, and, most, rarest in,—love. That word "love" tells most what God is. Love is a human thing. We know it. That's God's most distinctive trait.

The difference between God and man is in the limitations found in man. God knows no limit in power or knowledge or love. It's a radical difference in degree, not kind. Though too great for words or mental grasp.

Now, Jesus was God showing us these two things. He made plain what the true fine human is. And he made as plain what the real God is. Do you want to see the true human? Look at Jesus. All there is of the human is in Him.

Do you want to know the real God? Look at Jesus. When you are looking at Him you are seeing the Father. All there is of God, within the true human limitation, is in Him.

Jesus shared all our human experiences. He earned bread and bed by sweat and toil. He knew family ties, friendships' sweet, sorrows' pain, indignation over wrong. He loved deeply, sympathized tenderly, and wept real tears.

He was tempted as we are. Many a time his brow was knit and moist, and his hand clenched, as he felt temptation and fought it. And he overcame temptation precisely as every man can and may, by the use of his will, his choosing, and the use of his knees. Neither without the other.

Except—yes, there is an outstanding exception. One experience he never had. That which grows out of wrong choice. But—but, that's not a human experience. It's lower down. He was more truly human in this that he refused to make wrong choice.

Jesus is peculiarly the racial Man, our Fellow. All sorts are drawn to him, little children, the aged, ruggedly strong men, fine-fibred woman, virile eager youth, student, scholar, unlettered, both sexes, all social sorts—all alike gladly confess his pull upon their hearts.

And he alone was the Son of God in the same distinctive sense. The Father was as drawn to Jesus as we men are. There was the fullest understanding and oneness of purpose, appreciation and love, between Jesus and the Father as between Jesus and man.

Here is the Book's own story of how it happened that Jesus came. God and man used to live together in a garden. It was a wondrous garden, full of trees and birds, and all growing things good to see and to eat. They were fellows together, walking, working, together day by day.

They used to meet in the twilight for a friendly talk, sometimes without words, as only real friends can do.

One twilight God came to the usual trysting-place for the touch with his friend. But the man wasn't there. God was there. God didn't go away. God has never gone away.

But the man went away. Then he went further away. Then he lost the way back. Then he didn't want to come back. And away from God he got into bad shape. His will grew strangely stubborn. He got strange ideas about God not loving him.

All this was very hard on God. He sent messengers after the man. They were all treated badly. Then God said, "What shall I do? For the sake of my own breaking heart I must do something."

And this is what he did. One day he hid away the God part of him, and came in among us as one of ourselves. And we called his earth name Jesus. He was a real man. He lived our life.

Then one day he got down, in, under the load of our stubbornness, our selfishness to get rid of it. And the load was so heavy it broke his heart. And the blood came. And he used the blood to clean us up, and break our hearts, and bend our wills and draw us back. And he is doing it.

A little girl in bed screamed out when the storm broke. The mother, coming quickly, said, "Didn't I tell you, dear, not to be afraid? God is watching: you won't get hurt." "Yes, mother," the child said in a shaky voice, "but when it thunders like that I want somebody with skin on."

May I, with utmost reverence, use the child's child talk? Jesus was God coming with skin on. He came that we might know God by the human feel.

The Human Side

THE EDUCATED MIND

Children have all heard of the "educated horse." Some have seen trained seals perform at the circus. Such "education" has its limitations.

The human mind is capable of continued training, which, while approaching the limit, never reaches it. You may be unable to "teach an old dog new tricks," but a human being "never gets too old to learn." Furthermore, the ability to learn increases with learning.

How do we learn?

We can best find our answer by looking at the way Nature preserves the life of the body. What we live on comes from the outside—air, food, water. It is taken into the system and by chemical changes turned into muscles, blood, fat, and vital parts which, in turn, automatically cooperate, control and preserve the body. Likewise all mental growth takes place.

The things we see, hear, feel, taste, and smell form food for mental development. A being with none of these senses could never have any mind-sense. After the outside objects enter the senses, some unknown change takes place—digestion goes on, and later these perceptions enter into the subconscious mind, serving as the background of our thinking and acting.

Education may be aptly defined as the art of forgetting, since the conscious mind can explore new fields of thought only in proportion as it can pass to the subconscious mind those things already learned, and thus render them automatic. A child two years old cannot take much into his mind while tottering around learning to walk. Only when walking is relegated to the automatic control of the subconscious mind can one walk and talk without danger of falling over sticks and into holes along the way.

The secret of success is found, therefore, in the fertility of our subconscious mind which controls our creative acts.

Socrates said, "Know thyself"—but if you wish to succeed in your career, "Be thyself." You can never succeed by imitating others. Our lives are what we make them, because we alone can control the nature of the subsoil that determines our crop of ideas and actions.

WATER USED AS AERIAL.

French naval engineers have been experimenting with streams of salt water pumped from the sea into the air as antennae for the naval ships. This is not nearly as effective as the wire aerial, but it is designed for emergency use when the wire aerial breaks down.

THE DEPTH OF THE OCEAN

Several attempts have been made to determine the average depth of the ocean and the average elevation of the earth and to draw comparisons.

The well-known authority on geodetics, Cossinna, has recently made a new effort in this line. Taking into account a possible error of about 100 meters or 300 feet, he estimates the mean depth of the ocean to be about 11,000 feet, or 3,800 meters. Earlier calculations had given 3,681 meters, but did not take into account that the south seas are deeper than they were thought to be. Aside from the marginal seas, the average depth of the ocean is 4,117 meters, that is 4,322 meters in the northern hemisphere and 4000 meters in the southern.

The volume of the various oceans has also been figured out. The Pacific Ocean contains 707 million cubic kilometers, the Atlantic 323, the Indian Ocean 291 and the Arctic 17. The total surface area of the oceans is 361 million square kilometers. One quarter of this —an area equal to Asia and the Western hemisphere—lies under 5000 meters, and an area as large as half of Europe under 6000 meters.

Cossinna has also made new computations of the elevation of the various parts of the earth. He says that the mean elevation of Europe is 297 meters, of Africa 671, of South America 582, of Asia 970, of Australia 346, of North America 715, and of the Antarctic regions 2000 meters. The mean land elevation of the entire world is about 840 meters.

Taking the volume of the oceans at 1270 million cubic kilometers and the average density as 1037 , we get a total weight of 1.42 trillion tons. Assuming a saline content of 34.8%, the oceans contain 22.3 million cubic kilometers. If this amount of salt were to be spread evenly over the oceans, there would be a layer of a thickness of 82 meters.—Rudolph Barker, Bremen.

HAS $100,000 BUT WILL WASH STILL.

Detroit Washer-woman Will Not Join The Ideal Rich Class.

DETROIT, July 28.—Louise Billiet, 50-year-old washerwoman, has inherited $100,000—

But she's going to stick to her tubs!

One hundred thousand dollars is a lot of money. But all the money in the world, she says, couldn't separate her from the work in which she has come to find happiness.

Enterprising auto agents, stock and bond salesmen, newspaper reporters and photographers, all get the same answer.

"Here I am mistress of my world," she says simply. "In this steam-filled room, with my soap and water and ironing-board, I am the boss. My work keeps me young, happy and healthy. Why should I change?"

And she prods articles of wearing apparel around in the suds, humming the tune of a popular song.

Can't Leave It.

"My work has grown on me in the years I have depended on it for support—I can't leave it now. I shouldn't be at home anywhere except over a wash-tub or ironing-board.

"There are other kinds of work, yes. But I like washing and ironing best—They're such good exercise."

Miss Billiet, however, will use part of the $100,000 to gratify a whim she has had for years.

"I may take a short vacation and visit the Rocky Mountains," she confessed, a bit ashamed, "I've always wanted to see what they're like."

But, after that brief rest, back the $100,000 wash-lady will come to Detroit and her tubs and ironing-board and her smooth-running wringer.

Here's the story of her legacy:

Twelve years ago Miss Billiet came here from Belgium and became housekeeper for Mathews ver Vaicke, a widower and distant relative, who occupied a fine home and was reputed wealthy.

Contest Will.

Ver Vaicke died. When his will was read, it was learned—to the great consternation of his children—that he had bequeathed his entire estate to his faithful housekeeper.

The seven children immediately started action to invalidate the will, declaring Ver Vaicke had made it under influence and while partly unsound of mind.

The fight went into the courts and meanwhile Miss Billiet, deprived of other means of support, "took in washings."

In 1921 the circuit court ruled the will should be broken and the fortune should go to the Ver Vaicke children.

But the case was appealed to the state supreme court and word has just reached Detroit that the decision of the lower court has been reversed and Miss Billiet has been declared the legitimate heiress.

CHEF GOES UP IN THE AIR

By GEORGE BRITT

CHICAGO, July 28.—Some chefs may take their girls walking in the park during their time off, and some may go to the ball game. But no such commonplace entertainments attract Ye Ham, chief cook for the Aero Club of Illinois at its students' quarters at Ashburn Field.

Ye Ham goes in for flying, in his own airplane.

Two years ago he was running a laundry at Newport News, Vt. He used to watch army and navy planes sailing over the town, and they interested him. After he came to Chicago, an aviator invited him to ride in the clouds. That one experience instilled a conscious ambition in Ye Ham, and he set his heart on getting a job at a flying field.

At length he became cook for the Aero Club. He sold his laundry and hoarded all his savings from the lure of the fan-tan games. Then one day he was able to buy a ship, officials of the club arranging for him to complete his payment in installments. Now he flies, without fear of supervision from any pilot. Flying and cooking—that's his life.

Downtown on Michigan Avenue is another man from the kitchen with an unexpected side line. He is Leopold Granitz, who started life in a lunch counter as a $6 a week dish-washer and now is auditor and buyer for one of the most fashionable restaurants in Chicago. He writes.

His first burst of writing fever came about a year ago at a trade convention, when he won a prize for a paper on food. The infection was fatal and the result is a novel.

"I haven't sold it, but I have received very encouraging comments from both publishers and moving picture producers," says the author. "I have been assured that it is coming out."

The story is called, "The Knights of the Dragon" and it concerns the mysterious, thrilling exploits of an American who eventually comes to rule a kingdom in the Balkans. It sounds far removed from calories and proteins, but it is a direct descendant of that paper on food.

School teachers who are taking summer courses at the University of Chicago have imported a new problem to the campus. It is this: "Can a teacher doing graduate work maintain his own home town dignity if he goes to class on a hot day without his coat?"

The younger students who make up the majority of the campus population during the other three-quarters of the year settled the coat question in the spring without regard to dignity. They left 'em off. Faculty members sanctioned the practice, holding that a student uncomfortable in body was not likely to be in a receptive mental state.

But most of the summer graduate students have been clinging to their coats, with what dignity they could save from melting.

Chicago is the wood engraving center of the United States, and perhaps of the world. That fact might be noted in a statistical almanac without particular thrill. But the reason for it, in that it shows one of the ancient arts being preserved by modern commercialism, may be worth explaining.

Woodcuts were crowded back from their old commercial position by the quicker, cheaper, easier process of photo-engraving. There are only a few hundred skilled workmen in wood left in the United States, and authorities says less than a hundred of them work outside of Chicago. The big mail order houses sustain them.

The hundreds of illustrations in the mail order catalogs are all woodcuts. The wood engraving method shows a completeness of detail impossible to the photo processes, and permits the use of much cheaper, thinner paper.

There are other uses for wood engravings, of course. But it could be said that the art of Timothy Cole and Joseph Pennell is being passed along by the voluminous catalogs of the mail order houses.

The barber is following the dressmaker into society. The sign on the latter's door long ago changed to "Gowns" and then to "Robes and Manteaux."

In a new "shops" building, just off Lake Shore Drive, a barber has established himself, but he left his red, white and blue pole behind. Instead of that he has on his window the notice, "Hair Cutting Specialist."

GOOD COOKS RULE IN EVERY NATION.

Serenity of Mind Promoted By Good Cooking, Says English Novelist.

By MARIAN HALB

NEW YORK, June 28.—Has destiny placed you in the kitchen? Then you may with propriety pass the next premier or ambassador you meet with a cool stare. For the cook is mightier than the potentate and the wielder of the sauce pan rules the world.

Joseph Conrad, famous English novelist, now on his first visit to the United States, admits as much. As he puts it, "Good cooking is a moral agent."

As is to be suspected, Mrs. Joseph Conrad is to blame.

While the novelist was creating Lord Jim and other famous characters his wife was plying him with stuffed goose, currant jelly and piquant horseradish sauce. And now to her ministrations Conrad attaches not only his own physical well-being but a deep political significance embracing all climes—and all cooks.

"The worst cooking in the world," he points out, "is to be found along the west coast of Africa. There they drench everything in palm oil. To this pernicious use of palm oil I attribute the exceeding sloth and superstition of the inhabitants.

"In like manner, the somber and excessive ferocity of the North American Indians may be accounted for, in that as a race they suffered from perpetual indigestion. The noble red man was a mighty hunter, but his wives had not mastered the art of conscientious cookery. And the consequences were deplorable.

"The Seven Nations around the Great Lakes and the horse tribes of the plains were but one vast prey to raging dyspepsia. The noble red men were great warriors, great orators, great masters of outdoor pursuits, but the domestic life of their wigwams was clouded by the morose irritability which follows the consumption of ill-cooked food. Victims of gloomy imaginings, they lived in abject submission to the wiles of the medicine men."

The novelist sees in this a deep lesson to modern civilization.

Field for Quacks

"The quack of the present day, the vendor of patent medicines, preys mainly upon the races of Anglo-Saxon stock," he points out, and these are also great warriors, great orators, mighty hunters, great masters of outdoor pursuits.

"No virtues will avail for happiness if the righteous art of cooking be neglected by the national conscience. We owe much to the fruitful meditations of our sages, but a sane view of life is, after all, elaborated mainly in the kitchen—the kitchen of the small house, the abode of the preponderant majority of the people.

"Good cooking, by rendering easy the processes of digestion, promotes the serenity of mind, the graciousness of thought and that indulgent view of our neighbors' failings which is the only genuine form of optimism."

Conarad's extensive cruisings about the world have convinced him that no nation is superior in the art of cookery, he says. Men are in the whole the better cooks, but it is the women who rise to the pinnacles of the art, he concludes.

RECIPES

During dog days every housekeeper is sure to wake up some morning to find the cream sour. In and of itself this is at best inopportune and at worst a tragedy, but after the immediate need for sweet cream is supplied this sour cream will make some sort of a special delicacy.

Of all frostings sour cream is one of the best. It never gets dry and sugary and has a "taste" of its own.

Sour Cream Frosting.

One cup sour cream, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup nuts, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Cook cream, sugar, nuts and salt in double boiler till a soft ball is formed when a drop is tried in cold water. It will take a long time to cook. Beat till cool, add vanilla and spread on cake.

Salad Dressing.

One cup sour cream, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 3 tablespoons sugar, ½ teaspoon salt.

Have cream very cold and whip until stiff. Add lemon juice, sugar and salt and beat slightly. This dressing is very nice with fruit salads.

This is an old-time cookie rule used by my grandmother, who believed in a full cookie crock.

Cookies.

Three-fourths cup butter, 2 cups sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cup sour cream, 4 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, few gratings nutmeg.

Cream butter and slowly add sugar. Beat whites and yolks of eggs separately. Add well-beaten yolks to butter and sugar. Mix thoroughly and add sour cream. Sift soda with flour and add to mixture. Fold in whites of eggs beaten stiff and dry.

Roll this dough as soft as possible. Certain kinds of flour will use more than four cups, but add the last amount after adding whites. Roll dough on a well-floured board, about one-fourth inch thick. Bake in a quick oven.

Johnny Cake.

One cup sour cream, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup sugar, 1 egg, ¾ cup flour, ¾ cup corn meal.

Beat egg well. Add salt, sugar and flour and mix till perfectly smooth. Add cream and corn meal. Dissolve soda in a little boiling water and stir in the best thing before baking. Bake in a moderate oven for twenty minutes.

This Johnny cake is delicious with a cold luncheon of salad and cold meat, tea and Johnny cake being the only hot dishes.

Scotch Scones.

Four cups flour, 1½ teaspoons soda, 1½ teaspoons cream of tartar, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 1½ to 2 cups sour cream.

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Rub in butter with tips of fingers. Cut in sour cream with a silver knife. The dough should be as soft as possible to roll. Roll about one-half inch thick and cut with a cookie cutter. Bake on top of the stove or on a well greased griddle. Split and spread with butter to serve.

INVADES CASTLE.

VIENNA, (By mail to the United Press).— Napoleon—riding his white charger, heading his columns of victorious troops—has again invaded Schoenbrunn suburban residence of the Hapsburgs.

As the "Little Corporal" entered the great open yard through the gates where once before his fiery steed (Napoleon always rode a fiery steed) carried him in triumph before a royal assemblage, a movie camera clicked, directors waved their arms wildly and regal honed the conquerer what to do, how to do it and when.

Schoenbrunn, the Potsdam and Versailles of Vienna, is a Hapsburg home no more. It is now the home of a museum.

The latest effort is a huge production showing Napoleon's historic invasion. Every detail has been carried out with most minute care—thousands of participants, carrying out the reel story in real fashion.

A MYSTIC SHRINE.

BUDAPEST, July 28.—(Associated Press)—A great wave of religious feeling is today sweeping over the peasantry of Hungary because of the alleged appearnce of a picture of the Holy Virgin in the branches of a walnut tree in a little village in the county of Zemplen.

Thousands of peasants come daily from all parts of the county to kneel piously before the spot where the tree stood. For within the past three weeks, since the picture is said first to have appeared, the tree has been cut up and carried away by the pilgrims. Peasants are now digging deep to possess themselves of the last vestiges of the roots.

Near the trunk of a walnut tree near by a spring has appeared since the peasants began to frequent the locality. The water of this spring is now attracting other pilgrims, the lame, the halt and the blind, many of whom profess to have found relief.

THE "TROUBLE SHOOTER" GIVES TIMELY TIPS FOR TOURING

By E. H. SCOTT.

How to select Tent, Cooking Utensils and Equipment for Tour

If you want to enjoy your auto tour vacation, do not load up the car with a lot of bulky equipment that takes a long time to pack, and occupies so much space that there is little room left for the comfortable seating accommodation of the party. Select your equipment with care. See that it is strong and light, yet packs away compactly. Don't take anything that you do not really need.

The question of what tent to take is one of your first problems. There are any number of good auto tents on the market. If you are going for a long tour, making short stops here and there, do not take one of the old style army tents. These take too much time to erect, are not waterproof unless you use a fly, and take two people to put them up. There are specially designed auto tents similar to the one illustrated that are thoroughly water and insect proof.

The best tents have a sewed in canvas floor, and flaps for ventilation that are gauze covered to keep out the insects. It should be so designed that you can set a table in the centre and stand upright on both sides of the table and have plenty of head room. Most good auto tents can be erected by one man, yet are so well braced that they will stay put during the heaviest storm. It is not a very pleasant feeling to lie in bed listening to the howl of the rain and wind, and then all at once have the wet walls of a tent collapse about you. I have had that experience, and I can assure you it is not at all pleasant.

Select a tent that has a fly that can be extended out in front. The fly can either be attached to the top of the car or poles can be used as in the tent illustrated. You then have a porch under which you can do most of the cooking, or sit under on hot days. With a fly arranged in this way, most of the luggage can be left in the car, which leaves much more space to move about in the tent.

Next to the tent is the cooking stove. It is difficult to beat the small portable gasoline stoves. It's all right in theory to enjoy the beautiful smell of a wood fire and sit down while the bacon is frizzling, but just strike a few wet days, or after a long day's run you have to go out and hunt for wood, and you will speedily become converted to the little portable gasoline stove. With the gasoline stove, you do not need to worry about collecting wood etc., and on a wet day the cooking can be done either inside the tent or out under the "Porch." The writer has used a gasoline stove for a number of years now, and would not think of starting out on a camping tour without it.

The size and number of cooking utensils will depend on the number of people in the party. It is much better to buy one of the outfits made by firms like the Wear Ever Aluminum Co. than use the regular house utensils. These outfits are light and nest together in a very small space. For say four people the outfit should include—3 cooking pots, coffee pot, frying pan, 4 each bowls, plates, cups, knives, forks, teaspoons and tablespoons, large kitchen knife, long handled spoon, can opener and a fish slice for turning pancakes, etc.

What sort of bed shall I take? Most of the firms that make auto tents also make a suitable bed to go with their equipment. These are very comfortable, and can be folded up into a small compact bundle. If you want REAL comfort, take one of the special air beds. They are the last thing in comfort, and the dead air space insulates you against the cold that comes up underneath. In any case take some kind of mattress, either felt or wool, not the usual kind you use at home, but one of those made specially for auto camping. The number of blankets you take will of course be a question for you to decide yourself.

A folding table and two or three folding chairs take up very little space and will add to your comfort. One of the newest ideas brought out is a trunk that fits the running board, which when removed can be opened out and forms a good sized table. It is large enough to hold all your cooking outfit, stove and all, and has some space for food also. It is the outfit de luxe and if your tour is going to be an extended one with short stops here and there, this is the ideal outfit to take with you. With this outfit your stove, cooking outfit and food are instantly available.

A canvas folding washstand and bucket should not be forgotten. Don't forget a small first aid outfit. These contain a collection of bandages, etc., that are just the thing for any little cuts or bruises you are liable to get at any time. If it does not include something to rub on your skin when the mosquitoes are biting, be sure to see that a bottle is included.

If the tour is going to be of any length, a pair of goggles should be carried for each member of the party. On hot, dusty days you will generally drive with the windshield open, and there is not much pleasure in driving if the roads are very dusty or the sun glaring and the eyes are not protected. The amber tinted glasses are better than the clear glass. The amber tint, tones down the glare of the road and it more restful for the eyes. They also come in very useful when driving at night.

NO NEED TO FUMIGATE

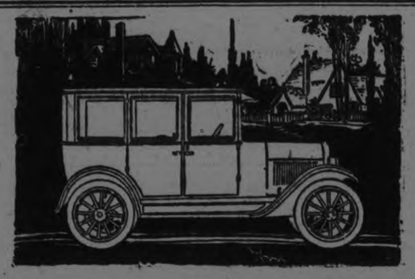
Scarlet fever and measles are probably not, in very light degree anyway, transmitted in the peeling or the scaling eruption from the skin characteristic of those diseases, said Dr John Huber in the Montreal Star. The peeling stage of scarlet fever is not, as was formerly supposed, that when transmission is most likely. And measles is infectious mostly during the first days of the disease, when the germ-laden discharges from the patient's nose and throat are most in evidence and profuse. It is in such nose and mouth discharges of measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria and whooping cough that the danger of infection mostly lies. These diseases are most catching in their pre-eruptive period, when their nature is so often unsuspected.

What use, then, to fumigate after the mischief has been done?

Fumigation—disinfection by formaldehyde or by burning sulphur or other substances—certainly does destroy germs or render them innocuous. But most germs cannot retain their vitality or their capacity for mischief for any length of time after leaving the body of the host—that is, the patient's body.

The fact is the best disinfectants are pure air and the blessed sunshine. A sickroom is thus ventilated on the termination of the case: the bedding, carpets, rugs and so on being subjected to the sun's rays; plenty of soap, water and elbow grease for the floors and the walls—these means will, for the most infectious, be all the purification necessary. Nor does it by any means follow that the best disinfectant is the one that smells the worst.

Thus in accordance with the modern conception of the spread of infectious diseases, most health departments have discontinued the fumigation formerly in vogue.



The Economic Value of a Chevrolet

IN the business, professional and family life of Canadians, the automobile has proven an important economic factor.

No other means of transportation is so rapid, so flexible, so economical.

In business the savings effected are readily counted in actual dollars and cents. In the professions, money, time and often human life are saved. In the family, the benefits, no less real, come in the form of health-giving pleasures and relaxation. Your friends are brought closer—distance is eliminated.

To enjoy these benefits and effect these savings, you must have a quality car, low in first cost and economical in upkeep.

Chevrolet is the world's lowest-priced, fully-equipped automobile. It is strongly built for Canadian conditions and is the most economical car in the world to operate.

STUDEBAKER

Studebaker Light-Six

$1395

STUDEBAKER'S vast resources are utilized to manufacture (not assemble) the Light-Six complete in the newest and most modern large automobile plants in the world.

Resources, consisting of $85,000,000 of actual net assets and $45,000,000 of plants, make it possible for Studebaker to offer a six-cylinder car, at less than $1500, that is emphatically superior in design, construction and performance to any car within hundreds of dollars of its price.

By complete manufacture, Studebaker not only guards the quality of each part, but saves the middlemen's profits, with the result that no other make of car ever built, by anyone, at any price, represents so great a dollar-for-dollar value as the Light-Six.

Evidence of its mechanical superiority is found in its practical freedom from vibration. This is accomplished by the perfect engine balance secured through machining the Light-Six crankshaft and connecting rods on all surfaces. This requires 61 precision operations. No other car in Canada selling for less than $3,500 follows this practice.

It is significant, therefore, that the sale of more than 80,000 Studebaker cars during the first six months of this year broke all records. Buyers are justified in expecting more for their money in a Studebaker than in any other car.

The Studebaker Light-Six

was designed by Studebaker engineers and is manufactured complete in Studebaker's own plants which are notable in design, size and equipment for efficient and economical manufacture.

Studebaker factories, in cost and size, are the second largest of the world's automobile plants. They employ 20,000 people.

A more vivid idea of the magnitude of these plant facilities will be gained by the huge investments involved in single manufacturing departments. For instance, the Light-Six forge plant cost $4,000,000, which alone is more than the total assets of many automobile companies. Light-Six machine shops cost $7,000,000; the stamping plant, $4,000,000; power plants, $2,500,000. The new foundries will cost over $2,000,000.

Studebaker is the second strongest financially of the automobile manufacturers of the world.

These facts show why it is possible for Studebaker to produce the Light-Six—a truly remarkable car—and sell it for less than $1500. No prospective buyer of an automobile should decide on anything until he has seen and driven the Light-Six. It is an achievement based on Studebaker's 71 years of manufacturing experience.

Schliebner Making Good As Sisler's Understudy.

ST. LOUIS, July 28.—George Sisler was voted the most valuable player in the American League in 6922.

Eye trouble has kept Sisler out of the game this year. "Dutch" Schliebner is acting as his understudy at first base for the St. Louis Browns. It is the toughest assignment in baseball.

Schliebner was grabbed by Fohl from Brooklyn as a last resort. He was the only first sacker available. Unable to hit in the National, he had been relegated to the bench.

National League critics rated Schliebner a fair fielder and not much better than a .200 hitter in the majors. A fast ball inside was said to be his weakness.

Manager Fohl took a chance. Inside of a week he had changed Schliebner's style at bat and the averages show that he is hitting close to .300.

Had it not been for the Browns' dire need of a first baseman, Schliebner would now be back in the minors, despite the fact that he has proved he is of big league caliber.

Schliebner had the ability but needed much coaching, which he received under Fohl. His showing as Sisler's understudy has won him a place with the Browns even if Sisler should return to the game.

Although 100 tons of opium would supply the medical needs of all countries, the annual world production is nearly 2,000 tons.

Girls Will Play At Central Park

The Girls' Baseball game between the Colonial Weavers and the All-Star team to be picked from the otehr five teams will be played this evening at Central Park and not at Riverside Park as was reported last evening. This information was obtained from President Gandy who stated that the person who circulated the previous report had no authority to do so.

The game is scheduled for 6.30 and with two teams of first class playing ability it should be one of the best of the season. Alex Kay will be the umpire-in-chief and will be assisted by "Curley" LeBarr on the bases.

COGNAWAGAS WON FROM LAKEFIELD

East Peterboro League Fixture Ended With A Score Of 6 to 1.

In an East Peterboro League game at Lakefield last evening Cognawagna succeeded in getting the big end of a 6 to 1 score. The game was called at the end of the fifth inning.

Northey was on the mound for Lakefield and turned in a good game. He fanned ten and allowed eight hits, but errors by his team mates at critical moments gave the visitors a couple of cheap runs.

Vannest was on the rubber for the Cognawagas and turned in a steady game. He allowed but three hits and fanned six, but was a little wild, walking four men.

In the first inning for Cognawagas, A. Davis was safe on Hull's error and was advanced to second by Grose's single. Shadgett singled scoring Davis and Grose pulled up at third. Grose scored on Prest's sacrifice, Simpson to Weaver.

In the third after D. Davis had popped to Weaver, Pres and MacDonald singled and both runners scored on Allen's double to left field.

In the fourth A. Davis was safe on Ridpath's error and after stealing second scored on Shadgett's double to centre field. Shadgett stole third and scored when Simpson let a ball pass.

Cognawagas were retired in order in the fifth.

In the first for Lakefield, Ridpath was out, Grose to D. Davis. Weaver was safe on MacDonald's error and advanced to second on Northey's single, only to be forced at third by Simpson. Northey was caught a minute later off second retiring the side.

In the third Ridpath singled, Weaver struck out and Northey and Simpson walked, filling the bases but McManus fanned and Grier was an easy out to P. Vannest.

In the fifth, Weaver walked but A. Davis threw him out stealing second. Northey walked and after stealing second scored when A. Davis' throw got away from MacDonald. Prest robbed Simpson of a home run by going back to deep centre and picking off his terrific drive. McManus struck out.

WIN FOR HASTINGS DEFEATS MARMORA

Continues on the Road to Championship in O. A. L. A. Juvenile League

HASTINGS, July 28.— Hastings continued on the road to the championship by defeating Marmora here yesterday in an O. A. L. A. Juvenile fixture.

The Hatsings boys demonstrated to the fans present that they are to be considered dangerous factors in the District No. 2.

In the first period play was fairly even, although the locals outscored their opponents by one to 0. Cruickshanks did the scoring for the locals.

Marmora carried the advantage of weight but Hastings had the system and broke into their stride and kept the game well on ice till the finish.

The Teams were:

Marmora:—Goal Neal, Point Sim. CoverPoint Dixon, 1st Defense D. Neill, 2nd Defence Reynolds, Centre McWilliams, 2nd Home Brady, 1st Home Wills, Outside Neal, Inside Clarmont. Subs, Summers.

Hastings:—Goal Lambert, Point Sanders, Cover Point McArthur, 1st Defence Dodd, 2nd Defence Scriver, Centre Flint, 2nd Home Gould. 1st Home Cruickshanks, Ontside White, Inside Archer. Subs, Walsh and Scriver.

Kenny Cruickshanks scored the first goal for the locals when he picked out a path in the Marmora defence and went in alone. Two of the visitors goals were gifts, and all were shot from close range. Neal stopped a number of shots and some that were fired from outside, with one or two that were right on line.

H. Dodd handled the game impartially and had only a few penalties to report.

The Marmora Juveniles are a husky bunch but play the game in sportsman like manner and with a little experience wil be a hard bunch tot trim.

Firts quarter:—Hastings 1. Marmora 0.

Second quarter: — Hastings 3. Marmora 1.

Third quarter: — Hastings 5. Marmora 3.

Fourth quarted — Hastings 7. Marmora 5.

EVANS AGAIN U. S. GOLF CHAMPION

Sweetser Missed An 18 in. Putt And Lost His Chance To Gain The U. S. National Title.

CLEVELAND, O., July 28 (Canadian Press). — Missing an 18-inch putt on the second extra hole after running up dead from all over the green all day and sinking many long ones, yesterday cost Jess Sweetser, national champion, his golf match with Chick Evans in the semi-finals at the Mayfield Club, in the Western championship, which Evans was defending for the seventh time.

Sweetser, after leading much of the forenoon round, was overhauled and put one down at the eighteenth hole by Chick's fine round of 69, but he in turn overhauled an Evans lead of three up and squared the match at the thirty-sixth, only to lose at the thirty-eighth by failing to sink a wisp of a putt for a half in five on the 340-yard hole, after he had saved himself on the 385-yard thirty-seventh by holing a 12-foot putt for a half in par four.

As a result of his victory over the national champion, Evans will play Hamilton Gardner, of Buffalo, in the finals to-day, the New Yorker having eliminated Joe Wells, of East Liverpool, Ohio, four and three, in a fine match that was almost forgotten on account of the thriller in 36 reels flashed on the green fairways at the hills and dales of Mayfield links.

ZIONS WON FROM SOUTH MONAGHAN

Slugging Baseball Contest Ended With A Score Of 21 To 16.

BAILIEBORO, Jrly 28 — Zion and South Monaghan played off for first place in the U.F.O. League on Wednesday evening in the Peterborough Exhibition Grounds. Zion, South Monaghan, and the 6th Line of Otonabee were tied for the first place until Wednesday evening last, when Zion won from the 6th Line 10 to 2, leaving Zion ahead to play off with South Monaghan.

A six-inning game was played before darkness set in, and until the fourth inning Campbell's nine from South Monoghan held the Zion boys 15 to 10. in the former's favour, scoring six runs in the first and seven in the second, including two home run hits by Ronald Hutchison and Edwin Hutchison. Ronald scored a homer just at a particularly good time when the bases were full, and scoring four of the runs.

In the third inning Ed. Hutchison tapped a second homer, while Bob Jamieson for Zion knocked a homer in the first inning, and Dick Rice ran home on a wild throw from Rutherford, the right fielder. But this, perhaps, could scarcely be called a home run.

In the fifth and sixth innings, Zion knocked the South Monaghan pitcher's fast balls all over the lot, and although he had good support, Zion scored eleven more runs. Rice only allowed the Monaghan boys one more run, which gave the Zion crew complete victory by 21 to 16.

The line-ups follow:

Zion—D. Rice, p; P. Clancy, c; E. Clancy, 1b; B. Jamieson, 2b; F. Fitzgerald, 3b; M. Clancy, ss; J. Jackson, rf; W. Crowley, lf; H. Slattery, cf; R. Coughlin, sub.

South Monaghan and the 6th Line have yet to play off for second place.

Standing of Teams.

The standing of the four teams in the League is as follows:

BELYEA WON HIS HEAT AT REGATTA

Champions Is Not In As Good Condition As He Shculd Be For Major Event.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., July 28. — Threatening weather conditions which did not deevlop failed to interfere with a successful completion of the first day's events of the 41st annual regatta of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen on the Royal Canadian Henley Course here yesterday.

"Quite in keeping with the interest centering upon the Senior Singles was the finish of the second heat which Hilton Belyea of St. John, the present champion won, and which was keenly contested. Since his return from competing in the Diamond Sculls at Henley it had become apparent that the Easterner was not in his best condition. His win yesterday was accomplished by his gamest performance since he made his bow on the local course. Paul Costello of Philadelphia, who has been expected to be Belyea's chief opponent in the finals which are to be run to-day, won his heat fourteen seconds slower than was required for Belyea's heat, but Costello did not have the same opposition. McGuire of Buffalo, provided the surprise of this event. Drawn with Belyea, Gilmore of Philadelphia and Switzer of Ottawa, McGuire made a dangerous challenge for first place. Had he steered a better course and maintained the same clip it's doubtful if the champion could have finished first. As it was Belyea nearly collapsed at the finish. Gilmore, as was expected, picked up an early lead. McGuire tacked on to Belyea from the start, apparently paying no attention to anyone else. At the mile they had Gilmore in third place but the Philadelphian, with a fresh burst of speed urged his shell over as the centre piece of three shell lapping movement.

Costello's heat was no such contest. He finished nearly seven lengths ahead entirely fresh and lost a couple of lengths by running foul of a buoy. Johnny Durnan was an early contender but faded before the last 100 yards. It was a good race between Kane and Durnan for the first mile.

Major Leagues Help To Keep Hospitals Going.

DETROIT, July 28.—Illness and injuries have played no little part in both major league races this season.

The hospital list, indeed, has been an extremely large one. Even more so than in other years.

And while most of the ailments have been more or less of a minor nature, still they have been serious enough to keep players out of the game for quite lengthy intervals with the usual moral and psychological effect to a team.

Perhaps the Detroit club has been one of the hardest hit. Player after player on the Tigers' roster has been forced out of the lineup through some cause or other. One cripple has followed another to the convalescent ward.

Bob Fothergill, with badly bruised ribs, was out of the game for a week. Emory Rigney, suffering with an attack of lumbago, was out four weeks. Bobby Jones, with a fractured ankle, was missing from the lineup for six weeks. Fred Haney, down with a twisted ankle, was out three days.

Then Harry Heilmann was suspended for nearly a week for giving an umpire a brown derby as a token of his esteem.

Old Man Jinx certainly has been hot on the Tigers' trail. But practically every other team in the big leagues is having its troubles, too.

OMEMEE TEAM DROPPED A GAME AT MILLBROOK

MILLBROOK, July 28. — The Omemee juniors and Millbrook juniors played an exhibition game here yesterday. The score was 18-5 in favour of the home team. The lineups:

Millbrook Juniors—F. Russell, p.; S. Gilmour, c.; B. Shaw, 1b.; E. Burnham, 2b.; A. Armstrong, 3b.; L. Ingram, s.s.; W. Sayles, r.f.; E. Carson, l.f.; L. Russell, c.f.

Omemee Juniors—Weir, p.; Overhalt, c.; Morton, 1b.; Finley, 2b.; Bradburn, 3b.; Stephenson, s.s.; Sloan r.f.; Black, l.f.; Mackey, c.f.

Umpire—G. W. Sayles.

Sport News

Sport talent comes in flocks. In boxing you have, as a rule, a predominating number of good men in only one division at a time. In baseball there is generally one position in which the largest number of stars can be found.

When one tries to pick the best third basemen in the majors, a healthy argument starts. There are today undoubtedly more stars at third than at any other position.

The National League is becoming convinced that its greatest performer is Pi Traynor of Pittsburgh. The National has a number of crack third sackers, but Traynor is the pick of a notable field.

In the American League opinion is more divided, Bobby Jones of the Tigers, Willie Kamm of the White Sox, Joe Dugan of the Yankees, Bluege of the Nationals, are remarkable players.

There are no new stars in the outfields of the American League. The first baseman find in Lu Blue the best man at the position, but outside of Blue there is not a crack performer. Walter Pipp of New York, is the nearest approach to the Detroiter and Joe Judge of Washington would rank second to him if Judge could remain in the game any length of time. There is a dearth of good second sackers, the veteran Eddie Collins of Chicago still being the best in the field. Shortstops are also a mediocre company, with "Chick" Galloway of Philadelphia, best in the group and Emory Ridney of Detroit and Gerber of St Louis, close behind him.

The real quality is found among the third sackers.

Connie Mack some weeks ago remarked that any pitcher who gave Babe Ruth a good ball to swing on when there was a man on base was a "fool." Connie could not agree with the interviewer, who was of the opinion that Ruth should be pitched to.

There has been an unusual amount of criticism of the pitchers who walk Ruth whenever the score is close, but baseball strategy demands this, says Mack. Ruth IS the New York team and when Ruth hits the psychological effect is a great advantage to the Yankees.

Pitchers bear down on the batters who precede Ruth in the batting order. They want to keep them off the bases in order to discount a home run by Ruth. When a pitcher gets rid of Ruth, he is apt to let down and this fault has lost a number of ball games for opponents of the Yanks this year.

Ruth, considered from any angle, is a menace to the opposition when he comes to bat.

John J. McGraw insists that his players observe the "curfew bell." It is a rule on the New York club that all members of the squad must be in bed before midnight. McGraw stands at the hotel entrance as a rule at night and checks the players as they come in. Any man who stays out late has to settle with McGraw.

"We may lose a pennant because our pitchers are hit or because our players fail to hit, but we won't lose it, because we are not in condition." says the New York manager.

Circling the bases demands speed, plus. Hans Lobert established the record for baseball when he circled the sacks in 13 4-5 seconds. Hart Hubbard, the University of Michigan sprinter, hurdler and broad jumper, tried to beat this mark on the Cincinnati diamond recently. He required 14 seconds flat to go around. That is within one-fifth of a second as fast as Lobert ran. Hubbard undoubtedly could beat Lobert on a straightaway, but circling the bases is a different matter. Hubbard never tried it before. Probably, if he practiced rounding the sacks he could beat Lobert's mark. The distance is 120 yards, but three turns are required and that is where the trouble exists, particularly for a sprinter who never took a sharp turn in a race.

In New York the World admits being puzzled over the hold prize fighting has on the public. The World admits that a good fight is undeniably exciting, but points out that only one match out of every 10 or 15 is good. The average appears to be less than that in Detroit. Comments the World:

"Day in, day out, baseball is far more interesting. Even the best of fights has many dull moments. Often all the pertinent action is crowded into a period of a few seconds. A close ball game may have situation after situation, but as a rule there is just one crisis in a fight."

Public interest in boxing is largely manufactured, believes the World. As a rule the sport page is the best written section of a newspaper and the sport writer is at his best generally when he describes a fight. The writer finds in a big match all the dramatic element that brings out his finest ability and he generally produces an inspired story. It is the effect of these stories on the reader that creates the unwarranted interest in boxing.

"In a measure it is unfortunate that the boxing reporter accomplishes his task so magnificently. He creates in many cases, a work of art, but he falsifies life. The story of the fight, nine times out of ten, is far more enthralling than the fight itself."

It accuses fight reporters of becoming romanticists. Reference is made to Battling Siki. As the wild man Siki became a remarkable drawing card. The imaginative writers found in him something appealing and they set about to make the most of it. Siki developed into an international character within a few days after he knocked out Carpentier. Siki made fine "copy." He was unique. Then came the life story of the black Siki and imagine the disillusionment contained in the opening sentence, "I was born in Senegal, and my people wear trousers and are Christians like yourselves."

This causes the World to ask, "Why should anybody pay a high price for a box seat merely to see a Christian like himself."

Ranking the sports as they appeal to the spectator the World accords first place to baseball. Second place is given to football if the game is one in which leading major league teams are involved. Polo takes third place and boxing comes after polo. But baseball, football and polo, in order named, give the spectator the largest number of thrills.

Of the leading three sports polo must still cater to popular fancy, but this will happen sooner or later.

EXPERTS NOW SAY JESS WAS NOT FIT

Former Heavy - Weight Champ was Out Of Condition For Firpo Bout.

Willard has retired now from the game that was very good to him. Although he never had a shot at the purses that are being given to Jack Dempsey now, he, nevertheless, earned a little fortune in the ring.

He never liked boxing, and he never had the fighting instinct of Dempsey, who really likes to put on the gloves. Willard was always misunderstood and rather disliked by the public.

It must have been an unusual and pleasant experience for the former champion to hear 90,000 fans in a chorus shouting: "Come on, Jess," when he had Firpo in a bad way in the fifth round of the fight.

Willard might have responded four years ago, but he couldn't that night. He was too old and too "through" to deliver.

Right after the fight, Willard's handlers said that he was suffering with neuritis in his left arm and that doctors had been treating it for several days before the fight.

Since then several experts have printed stories that it was known on the "inside" that Willard had broken up in training and that he was not in condition to fight.

The same experts, even up to the day before the fight, were writing that Willard was in the best of condition, that he was almost as good as when he took the title from Jack Johnson and that he was in condition to put up a great fight.

Only one story was printed before the fight that Willard was NOT in condition.

That story was written by Jack McAuliffe, the retired, undefeated lightweight champion, and it was carried by the United Press.

McAuliffe admits that he did not know exactly what was the matter with Willard, but he knew that he was not right, and that he was not in shape.

Willard says that Dempsey will beat Firpo. Jack Johnson says there are three heavyweights who can beat the champion: Luis Firpo, Harry Wills and Jack Johnson.

Wilard has fought both Dempsey and Firpo. Johnson has done all his recent battling with speed cops.

GOLF FATAL TO BIRDS.

LONDON (By mail to the United Press).—Partners in golf foursome killed two birds during a round at the Thorpe Hall course, in Essex.

A. W. Wass drove from the tenth tee. The ball hit a tit-lark fifty yards away. The bird was cut cleanly in two.

Ten minutes later Wass's partner, A. F. Hart, played his second shot—a mashie—from the twelfth fairway and struck a singing lark in flight. The bird was killed, but not mutiliated.

Both birds are to be stuffed, and will be placed in the clubhouse along with a partridge and a greenfinch killed by other golfers.

O'ROURK IN WRONG WITH COMMISSION

Threatens To Make Revelations If Charges Are Pressed. Weighing in The Fighters.

—NEW YORK, July 28 — Tom O'Rourke, veteran matchmaker of the Polo Grounds Athletic Club, which promoted the Eugene Criqui-Johnny Dundee featherweight title match Thursday nigt, was suspended yesterday by the New York State Athletic Commission as the result of a dispute with Walter Hooke, Deputy Commissioner, Thursday, when Criqui and Dundee weighed in. The Commission issued no explanatory statement of its decision, but O'Rourke discussed the incident freely.

"Hooke objected to a test of the scales by myself and Robert Eudeline, Criqui's manager,' declared O'Rourke, "before the fighters weighed in. I insisted that every precaution be taken, however, as the boxers and $10,000 forfeits at stake to make 126 pounds, and the result was we found the scales to be off balance by a pound.

"I doubt whether the Commission as a whole will sustain its decision when I am given a hearing. I am prepared to make important disclosures. however, if the case against me is pressed."

Criqui and Dundee both scaled 124 1-4 pounds.

The weighing in of Benny Leonard lightweight champion and Lew Tendler, Philadelphia challenger, for their 15-round match at the Yankee Stadium last Monday, also occasioned considerable comment. Contrary to usual custom, newspaper men were not permitted to witness the proceedings. It was announced Leonard weighed 134 and Tendler 133 1-2, but they refused to step on the scales again to verify those figures.

BASEBALL DYING OUT IN PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

MANILA, P. I., July 28.—(Associated Press).—Baseball, the American national pastime which was expected to replace cock-fighting here, is dying out in the Philippine Islands, and the Department of Public Instruction, by its lack of interest, is blamed for the failure by a sporting writer in a local newspaper The Manila league is said to be the only baseball organization in the islands in a flourishing condition today.

During the last five years, sporting authorities say, the Department of Public Instruction has given no encouragement to baseball through the bureau of education. Prior to that time, it is said, the bureau of education was actively engaged in fostering the national game in the islands, with a view to eliminating the island sport of cock-fighting.

Teachers brought here from the United States, it is charged, do not play baseball and have little, if any, knowledge of the game or of athletics in general.

The Philippines Amateur Athletic Federation, according to dyed-in-the-wool baseball fans, is favoring indoor baseball over the outdoor game. It is pointed out that in the new P. A. A. F. athletic annual only three pages are devoted to baseball out of a total of 384 pages. Eleven pages are devoted to the rules of indoor baseball while many additional pages are used for general information of the indoor game.

Filipinos, it is agreed, are as keen today as ever they were in regards to baseball. The players have developed into crack moundsmen, backstops, in and outfielders, and while their hitting is weak, compared with American big league standards, they are fast developing their stick work.

LEFT HAND HITTER HAS SMALL EDGE

Hornsby & Heilman Upset The Dope By Leading The Leagues.

By BILLY EVANS.

Who is the greates right-handed batsman in baseball?

Unquestionably that honor lies between Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals and Harry Heilmann of the Detroit Tigers.

A vote of the pitchers in the two major organizations would probably reveal the fact that there is little to choose between them.

Hornsby and Heilmann are two right-handed batters who have refused to yield to the general belief that the left-handed hitter is supreme.

In 1021, when Hornsby led the National League with an average of .397 and Heilmann showed the way in the American with a .394 total, these two great right-handed batters performed the unusual in baseball.

They Led Leagues.

The records reveal the fact that not since 1904 has two right-handed batters led the major leagues in the same year. When Hornsby and Heilmann turned the trick in 1921, it was the first time it had happened in a span of 16 years.

When it comes to leading the major leagues in batting, the left-handed batters have a decided edge. In the last 17 years Harry Heilmann is the only right-handed batter to top the American League averages. Left-handed batters like Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, George Sisler and George Stone have carried off the premier hitting honors.

Ty Cobb has hogged the situation by leading the league 12 times, nine of the years in succession.

In the National League the right-handers in the same length of time have made a much better showing, it being about a 50-50 proposition, due to the showing of that great batter Hans Wagner and his close rival, Rogers Hornsby.

Hitting Around .400 Now.

The year 1923 looks as if it might be another season in which the right-handers would hold the margin Hornsby and Heilmann have been hitting around a .400 clip since the opening of the season. If they keep up their present gait it is a certainty they will repeat their feat of 1921, in having two right-handed batters lead the major leagues.

The style of Hornsby and Heilmann at the bat is somewhat similar. Both have a tendency to take a healthy swing at the ball. Pitchers in their respective leagues work on the theory that slowing up on these two great hitters is most essential. True, a slow ball at times seems to bother both of them, yet if the next pitch is the same style of ball, they may knock it over the fence.

The only feature of batting does there appear to be much difference and that is in consistency. Heilmann has arrived with a vegeance for only about the last four years, while Hornsby for perhaps twice that time has been one of the stellar batsmen of the National League.

Both are now waging a thrilling battle for supremacy in their respective leagues. In each organization a bunch of crack left-handers are attempting to oust them. Perhaps it would be well to render a draw decision on the pair and permit their averages at the close of the season to speak for themselves as to supremacy among the right handers.

Lawn Tennis

It would seem a simple thing to grab a tennis bat, but nine out of ten will do it wrong. That is they will be wrong if they have any ambition to become a good player. If you are going to be satisfied with just getting the ball over the net, any grip that enables you to do that will be good enough. But if you have aspirations to become a real player, correct grip will be primary need and it is much easier to master it at the start, than it is to change over you have developed your game to the point where you realize your mistake.

The correct grip is known as the "English' grip. It was, of course, not universally accepted without some controversy, but it is now generally conceded to be the best and is used by all the leading players. There is only one stroke that cannot be made without changing and that is the reverse American serve, which is fast becoming obsolete. The main feature of the English grip is that the wrist is free and flexible in all positions and every good strike needed can be made without moving a finger.

It is rather a hard thing to describe without elaborate diagrams, but is very simple to do, particularly if the racquet handle is oval or flattened as suggested in previous article The main point is, that the thumb should be almost flat along the face or smooth side of racquet with the rest of the hand extending as far around as it will. An easy way to do this is to hold the racquet edgewise and making a V of the thumb and fingers, close down on the handle so that the top edge comes as far up into the V as possible. For a high back hand stroke some players, extend the thumb endwise along the handle to give better control, but this is a matter of choice.

If this primary contact is properly established, the natural position of the head of the racquet will be above the wrist where it should be except in rare emergencies. This grip will be a slight strain on the wrist for those not accustomed to it, but it soon develops strength and flexibility there, which is absolutely essential to good play.

The next article will deal with service and will appear in Wednesday's paper.

CURLERS WIN IN THE FIFTH

Two Homers and Seven Runs Rout Leafs in Midget Game.

Home runs by McLeish and Woods featured the batting of the Curlers when they defeated the Maple Leafs in a Midget series contest last evening by 14 to 7. The Curlers broke out in the fifth when they cinched the game, the Leafs blowing badly, allowing seven runners to cross the plate. Up to that stage the teams had battled well, both pitchers having a big edge on the batters.

Woods struck out the side in the first. Armstrong's wildness gave the Curlers a pair of runs in their half. Ecobichon and McLeish, who were passed, completing the circuit.

In the second the Leafs went out in a row, Carroll grounding out, and Armstrong and Cohen fanning.

The Leaf's pitcher came back strong and fanned Vincent and Fraser, passed Baird and struck out Ecobichon.

The Leafs tallied two in the third Brunton and Heard scoring after some wild work by the Curlers. Heard got the first hit of the game in this frame.

Curlers went out in order, McLeish fanning, Woods grounding out and Baker by the struck out route.

Nothing developed in the Leafs' fourth, but Curlers sent three runs across, after Gray had fanned on singles by Fleming and Baird, and Fraser's double.

The Leafs got two in the fifth after Jones and Levinne had fanned. errors by Woods and Baidr, a wild throw and a passed ball, scoring Miller and Brenton.

The Curlers delivered a knockout in their half by getting seven runs. Wods started it by hitting to deep centre for a home run. Baker was hit and McLeish, who went to the runways, made second and third, only to go out at the plate when Gray shot a grounder at Heard.

Then the Curlers proceeded to pack the bases, Fleming and Fraser getting free transportation. Baird drove a hard one at Cohen, who juggled the ball and threw badly to the plate. A passed ball, Heard's error on Ecobichon's grounder and McLeish's home run completed the Curlers' outburst.

Four batters faced Woods in the sixth, Carroll getting on when hit by the pitcher. The runner was stranded at third.

Curlers took a pair of tallies in their sixth, and in a belated rally in the seventh, the Leafs gathered three, Brunton helping a lot with a double to the left field fence for the Leaf's second hit of the melee.

The teams:

Curlers: Ecobichon ss; McLeish 1b; Woods p; Baker c; Gray 3b; Fleming cf Vincent lf Fraser rf, Baird 2b.

BIG GAMES ON OR NEXT WEEK

Important games are scheduled for next week in the Juvenile, Midget and Bantam divisions of the city baseball championships.

Belmonts and Curlers complete the first half of the Bantam series at King Edward Grounds on Monday evening and a win for Belmonts will tie the team with Curlers for second place, Rotary already having won first place.

The Midget Feature

On Tuesday evening at Sacred Heart Grounds. Curlers and Sacred Heart Midgets will replay their five innings tie game. The fans should see a tidy contest. At King Edward Grounds on the same evening Kiwanis and Rotary open the second half of the Bantam race.

Juvenile Leaders Meet

At Riverside Park on Wednesday evening, Sacred Heart and Maple Leaf Juveniles, will meet for the first time in the second half. One of these two teams will represent the city in the O.B.A.A. race, and the game will serve to show the fans, the calibre of ball played in this series and what may be expected of the winners in the Ontario Championship games.

On the same evening at King Edward Grounds Cognawaga and Keene will play an East Peterborough League contest.

On Thursday evening at King Edward Grounds, Sacred Heart and Maple Leafs will meet in a Midget game. At Sacred Heart grounds Lock Works and Hillcrestsr come together in a Juvenile game.

On Friday evening at King Edward Grounds, Curlers and Hillcrests are billed for a Midget game. Hillcrests are having trouble in getting their players together and if they should default next week and Sacred Heart defeat Curlers and Maple Leafs the Midget series being tied up, may be decided by a sudden death game between Curlers and Sacred Heart at King Edward grounds, on Friday evening. A loss by Sacred Heart to either Curlers or Maple Leafs in the schedule game, will give Curlers the first half.

Team managers are urged to make a special effort to have their teams on the Grounds ready for play at 6.10 p.m.

Canadian Stock Exchange And Mines — New York Stock Exchange and Curb Prices

Today's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, July 28.—(Special.)—To-day was one of the most active Saturdays experienced on the stock exchange in some time with prices weak from the opening, reaching new lows in many instances as the session progressed. It was difficult to pick out the weakest group of the list as every department participated. Pressure was particularly pointed to the Oils and Steel stocks, Marland Oil, which was very weak on Friday, being off 4 5-8 on the day, dropped another 3 to 39 1-4. Steel was off 1 5-8 on the day, selling at 85 3-4 and was more active than it has been in some time. Studebaker supplied the feature of the automobile group, selling at 99 1-2, off 2 from the close and stop orders were caught in the stock in some quantity.

Baldwin, the Bears speculative favorite, sold at 113 1-8, off 1 3-8 and even American Locomotive, which through 67, selling at 66 7-8, off 3-4 through 67, sellin gat 66 1-8, off 3-4 for the day. It is just three weeks ago that a feeble rally commenced in the market and it lasted just two and one half weeks. Some professional short covering caused some of the weakest stocks to rally somewhat during last minutes of trading. For instance, Steel Common sold at 87 1-4, up 1-4 from the low, and Marland 30 3-4, up 1 1-2 from the low of the session. Studebaker was under pressure up to the close, selling at 99 7-8, off 1 5-8. Accumulation of overnight selling orders, some as the result of margin calls, made for a heavy opening of the stock exchange to-day with the Oils under pressure. Cosden opened at 34, off 1-2, Marland sold at 31, off 1 1-4, and Producers and Refiners at 31 5-8, off 1-4. Dupont sold at 112 1-2, off 1 1-2 net, and Can. at 81 1-2 was unchanged. Bethlehem Steel lost 3-4 at 46 1-2.

ART EXHIBIT AT THE ARTCRAFT STUDIO

Peterborough is going to have its first "Exhibition Sale of Pictures," conducted by a local dealer during the first two weeks in August. Mr. Mathias, of the Artcraft Studio, will have on exhibition some very good paintings in oil and water color, a few pastels and some color etchings, etchings, old engravings and old prints.

A seascape, "Castle Rock," Lynton Devon, and landscape, "The Thatched Cottage," Amberley, Surrey, by Dan Sherrin, A.R.A., of Hune Bay, England, and including a crisp little water color of a fishing smack—at rest—in the moonlight, by the same artist.

A beautiful water color will be in the exhibit, a landscape by Hannaford. One of the most noticeable in the color etchings is one of "The Age of Innocence," by George P. James. Its exquisite coloring and perfection of the etchers art, in exact reproduction of a famous painting, will give you a pleasure great indeed.

There are several other very attractive offerings which Mr. Mathias has on his walls. We will not describe them, but advise you to set aside a day or two during the first two weeks in August and see for yourself, and by your patronage also encouraging this initial venture by our local art dealer.

Mr. Mathias informs us that any painting, work of art or picture that is for sale can be secured for you by him and costing you less than if you went to a dealer in the larger centres. He also repairs and remodels old frames, and will have a few built to order, in his exhibit.

THE OLD GARDENER SAYS.

If your hollyhocks have gone to seed you can start new plants at once. It is far better to sow the seed now than to wait until spring. Make a seed bed in an old cold frame of a corner of the garden that is well drained, and where the sun shines all day. Do not plant the seed more than three inches deep, or nearer than three inches to each other. Water should be applied freely each evening, putting a piece of burlap over the bed unless a fine spray can be used.

ENGLISH PICTURE AT THE CAPITOL

Another triumph for the English-made picture—this time it is "Diana of the Crossways" adapted from George Meredith's famous novel of British intrigue, romance and politics with the talented star of England's legitimate stage, Miss Fay Compton in the title role. The picture comes to the Capitol Theatre Monday for a three day stay.

Miss Compton while remembered for her great stage work in the Follies as "Mary Rose" in Barrie's play of the same name, and more recently the toast of London as the heroine in "Quality Street" at the Haymarket Theatre. She has appeared with marked success in "The Old Wives Tales" and "A Woman of no Importance" but the English reviewers who have seen "Diana of the Crossways" say it is by far the best role. The Crossways was a rambling old house, (and by the way, the original house of the story, and old red brick building near Dorking, is used in the picture) dearest of all places to Diana Merion. The story opens with Diana as an orphan, at the point of disposing of the home place to a barrister, Augustus Warwick. The girl's extreme beauty and high breeding makes her the favorite wherever men and women congregate in drawing-rooms. It is one of the greatest stories of the last generation and is centering round the great Irish wit and beauty, and is just as applicable today as at the time when it was written. It deals, in fact, with the actualities of life and character, limned by the hand of a master.

AMERICA'S ONLY RUBBER PLANT GROWS IN TEXAS

ALPINE, Texas, July 28. —(Associated Press).— The only rubber producing plant known to grow uncultivated in North America is found in the Big Bend country of both Texas and Mexico, along the border, and the only factory in the United States equipped to make rubber from the raw latax is in Brewster county, Texas. A factory was established at Marathon about 15 years ago, but for the past several years has been idle.

The plant from which rubber may be made is the Guayule and grows abundantly in this section of the country. Large quantities have been destroyed by prairie fires and neglect, but much continues to grow without attention. Apparently it will thrive in rocky barren soil where nothing else will sprout.

The Guayule has no resemblance to the rubber trees and plants of tropical countries. It grows in the form of a small bush or shrub and when mature is about four feet high resembling slightly the Texas greasewood bush. Its leaves are small, tough looking, and have a slight similarity to those of other rubber producing plants.

The milky juice, known as latax, from which the rubber is made is in a layer under the bark or skin of the shrub, extending from the root to the topmost branch. The latax is separate and distinct from the sap of the Guayule, which flows through the plant.

The method of extracting the latax differs from that used in tropical countries where the trees are tapped and the juice oozes out.

The fluid is pressed from the entire Guayule plant.

TELEPHONE 1600 WHEN DELIVERY BOY FAILS

At this season of the year, irregularity of delivery with regard to the Examiner is more prone to occur, in view of the fact that during the holiday period, many of the carrier boys are away from town for various terms, and secure substitutes to look after their routes for them in the meantime. The Examiner will be glad to hear of any such irregularity. Feeling that such cases are the result of new boys, rather than deliberate carelessness, it is the wish of the Examiner that complaints be made as early as possible so that the matters may be righted in the minimum space of time. STRAIGHT JACKET ACT FOR MARKET CROWD

Carnival Show Publicity Stunt Attracted Hundreds This Morning.

Billie Clark's Broadway Exposition with its sixteen attractions at Exhibition Park appears to be the biggest carnival show that has ever come to Peterboro. They will remain here until Thursday night, going on to London for an old Boys' Reunion.

An idea of their magnitude may be gained from the fact that they have their own train of cars, and a set up of tents that fills the entire east end of the Park. Three rides are included in the amusements, a merry-go-round, ferris wheel and sea plane.

Johnny Wallace's animal show is the feature of the Exposition, and his family of monkies had an addition this morning a baby that was receiving maternal attentions this afternoon that seemed almost human.

"You've got to see that monkey," he said; "the people will think it is only another press agent stunt."

At the Empress Hoted this morning in view of the market crowd, Mr. George Daly of Ottawa performed a Houdini trick of escaping from a strait-jacket while hoisted almost to the roof of the hotel. Mr. Daly is with the Illusion Show of the carnival and is claimed to be the only person other than Harry Houdini who does this act.

HE'S TRAVELLING IN A PILL BOX

Tavelling in a "pill box" is the unique experience of S. G. Holmes, of Toronto, who is in Peterborough in the interests of Dr A. W. Chase Medicine Co. But while this statement should not be taken literally, it is interesting to note that Mr. Holmes' motor conveyance is a faithful replica of those pill-boxes in which are carried to so many homes Dr. Chase's well-known remedies for kidney and other ailments to which the human race is subject.

Painted yellow, the aluminum body of this striking rig displays on its two sides the benign and bewhiskered countenance of Dr. Chase himself, with appropriate publicity lettering in dead black.

One of Mr. Holmes' objectives here, as wherever he calls, is to see that Dr. Chase's handy recipe books are distributed in Peterborough homes. These books, while naturally advertising the doctor's proprietary medicines, also offer housewives quite a few "first aids" in and curative recipes for many minor ills which arise from time to time in most families and from which dangerous developments unless checked in their incipiency. Other useful household receipts are also found within its covers.

Eyewitnesses Cannot Recognize Bandits' Pictures—Two Women Reported Arrested.

TORONTO, July 28.—(Canadian Press).— Toronto detective department had an unusually heavy list of callers this morning. The visitors included bank messengers and citizens who were on-lookers, when the bandits launched their attack on bank messengers, last Tuesday morning, but though they looked long and earnestly at long rows of pictures of American criminals, none of witnesses of the affair could definitely identify the pictured thugs, as being the men who pulled off the daring robbery in the heart of Toronto's financial district, Acting Inspector Wallace stated that he was quite confident the bandis would ultimately be caught. "That is our business as police officers and I have every reason to believe we will get them," he said.

Arrest in Detroit

Two young women, who gave their names of Hazel Oliver and Josephine Hart, were taken into custody at an apartment house in Detroit, early today and are held for Toronto authorities in connection with robbery, July 24th of Toronto, bank messengers. Girls are being questioned to learn if they were companions of two of six or more men who shot their way to freedom in crowded Toronto street, following robbery. The arrests were made upon information furnished by Toronto police.

No News in Toronto

Questioned to-day in connection with the arrest at Detroit of two girls, Acting Chief of Detectives, Wallace, claimed that the Department had no knowledge of the arrests. Asked further if the Toronto Police Department had instructed the Detroit police to make the arrests, he replied, "I know absolutely nothing about it. I know of no instructions having been given the Detroit police.

Trail in Brockville

Susticious circumstances in connection with discovery of quantity of men's clothing in some bushes near Brockville, on Thursday evening, last by two youths and meeting of three strange men prompted chief of Police Burke of Brockville, to-day to report the occurrence to the Toronto Detective Department, on the suspicion that the men might be the members of the Toronto bandit band. The boys Bolin and Girand, said that upon landing at Water Works dock, on their return from Morristown, N.Y., on Thursday afternoon, they were approached by one of the three men seated nearby, who asked that they row them over the river that evening. The boys met them at the hour mentioned, the men throwing their valises and all except necessary clothing, into some bushes.

On arrival at American side, the boys, were given five dollars for their services.

The descriptions of the men given by the boys were as follows:—First man, aged 25, medium size, gold cap on front tooth in upper jaw, blue suit heavy Oxford shoes, blue work shirt.

Second man, medium build, aged 27, dressed in dark brown suit with heavy brown shoes.

Third man, little smaller than the others aged about 25, light colored hair wore pair of silver rimmed glasse, khaki trousers and brown boots.

The Advertising Committee, Chairman E. G. Bartlett, has requested, through the secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, that the business places decorate their premises with orange and purple, the Encampment colours.

EX-KAISER SELLS MANY VALUABLES

Jewels and Pictures Disposed of Privately to Americans.

LONDON, July 28. — (United Press.)—The former German Kaiser has sold many valuables recently, the Exchange Telegraph states today in a despatch from Amsterdam, commenting upon the recent Monarchist activities.

The despatch is given extraordinary significance because of the recent visit of many Germans from the Fatherland and frequent calls of the former Crown Prince at Doorn, where the Kaiser is in exile.

Among the things sold by the Kaiser are a portion of the former Kaiserine's jewels, including a beautiful necklace, some of his own collection of pictures, privately to Americans, a number of French goblins and tapestries and also a large quantity of antique furniture.

STRUCK BY TRAIN WHEN CAR STALLED

Woman Killed and Son Severely Injured in Crossing Accident.

WELWYN, Sask., July 28. — (Canadian Press.)—Mrs. Susan Byers was killed instantly and her son, James B. McConnell, received injuries that may prove fatal, when their auto stalled in the middle of the railroad at a crossing just east of Welwyn and was struck by a west-bound Canadian Pacific railway passenger train yesterday. Just as the auto reached the centre of the track its engine is believed to have stopped and the car stood stock still, the on-coming train but fifty feet away. McConnell made a frantic effort to start it, but in a second the engine had struck the car and thrown parts of it in all directions, the body being carried two hundred yards on the fender of the locomotive.

Mrs. Byers had her skull fractured and two legs were broken. Her body was found near the railway track about 50 feet from the crossing.

BABY CONTEST AT EXHIBITION

Opportunity for Under-developed Children—Have Your Baby at the Clinic on Tuesday.

The success of the baby contest at the Peterborough Central Exhibition, as well as the contest for the improvement shown in under-developed children at the same time, is already assured.

To those mothers who have children that are not progressing as well as they would like, the committee from the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition asks them to have their babies entered at the Peterborough Welfare Babies' Clinic, either on Toesday next, 31st July, or not later than Tuesday, 7th August, when they will be taken care of by the Clinic doctors and nurses, who are co-operating with the Fair Board, and records kept of their condition from date of entry until the Exhibition is over.

It is only necessary for underdeveloped children to be entered in this manner, as children who are going into the baby contest who are healthy and fully develored need not be taken up on the Clinic records, but may do so if desired, and they will find also that the information that will be given them will be of great value in bringing up the child.

There will be from $150.00 to $200.00 in prizes offered in this baby contest, and to those whose children are not showing the progress they should, the services of the nurses and doctors at the Clinic is so valuable that they hope that every mother of children up to three years of age will take advantage of the opportunity for improving their childs' health.

Welfare Baby Clinic every Tuesday afternoon at G.W.V.A.

CONSCIENCE MONEY IS UNKNOWN HERE

But Anonymous Cheques Are Common in Tax Collector's Office.

Conscience money is unknown in Peterborough. Tax Collector W. J. Green says. In England, the number of people whose consciences prick them regarding Income and other tax fraud, is decreasing year by year indicating that virtue is coming into its own or that consciences are getting tougher. The amount received in this manner in England in 1920-21 was $700,000, but last fiscal year it had decreased to $100,000.

Mr. Green smiled as he said he never received money anonymously, but he often received anonymous cheques. It is surprising, he said, the number of people who send unsigned cheques. He takes these to the banks where the writing is sometimes identified, enabling the sender to be traced and asked to rectify his omission. Sometimes blank signed cheques are received which Mr. Green fills in with the amount due.

SEA LORDS DEMAND CONTROL AIR FORCE

LONDON, July 28. — United Press. — Further conferences have failed to mollify the sea lords who are demanding that the Admiralty shall be given complete control of the naval wing of the air service.

Earl Beatty is leading the revolt against the decision of the Imperial Defence Board that the present system of one force shall be maintained. It is claimed that the unification of this, the youngest force, is only temporary, and designed only to allow of its upbuilding following the war.

The sea lords declare that efficiency is impossible unless this branch of the force is developed through the navy with the resulting understanding of naval strategy tactics, customs, traditions and discipline.

The controversy has spread to the War Office where general staff demands control of the army branch of the force, but this condition is not serious compared with that existing at th Admiralty, where it is freely stated if opposed on this question Lord Beatty and others will resign. It is anticipated that the Prime Minister will announce the decision of the cabinet in the House of oCmmons next week, when it is probable that the recommendations of the Imperial Defence Board will be upheld.

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT FAILS ATTRACT CITIES

HAMILTON, Jily 28. — Present indications are that the much-talked-of conference which was to have been held in London regarding the establishment of a commission form of Government for Ontario cities will not take place this year.

The Mayor of London invited eleven cities to take part in the conferences, and only Stratford and Kitchener agreed to send delegates. The present form of municipal government is quite satisfactory to Toronto and Galt, where officials expressed their opposition to any such change.

Other cities sent their opinions to the city clerk in London, and the prevailing feeling is that it would be unsatisfactory and unwise to change the present form of municipal government.

Some time ago, when the invitations were set out by the London Mayor, the Board of Control and the City Council here vigorously opposed the suggestion, and decided that it would be a waste of time and money to send a delegate to the conference to discuss the matter.

Chatham has already a commission form of government in effect, and Niagara Falls has also a city manager.
